Winners of the Miss Campus Chest contest are Booba Boobs, queen and Chesty Winnerwoman, runner-up. General Hershey captured the Ratfink award, making a considerable lead over his opponents.

The Campus Chest netted over $1000, through its novel door-to-door campaign, Miss Campus Chest contest, Rat Fink Award, Happiness is giving . . . sale, and Campus Chest Carnival.

The Carnival proved to be the focal point of the week-long drive, with music provided by 'the Incorporated Soul' and over 700 prizes being awarded through raffles and game booths. The most profitable booths were the egg-throwing, sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon, a seance sponsored by Webster House, and a roulette wheel offered by the Newman Center. Fifteen booths took part in the carnival.

Eleven lucky winners will date the most attractive girls on campus. Beldon Bly held the winning raffle ticket that brings him a date with Stephanie Bourbonnais, Winter Carny Queen. Mark Sullivan will date Bette Pugh, Freshman Queen; Brad Johnson holds a date with Flo Bryany, Sendoff '70 Queen; and Richard Daoust winning a date with Linda Richardson, Miss Engineering Girl for March. Other winners include Rick Alias, Phil Hellen, Dan Kerrigan, Wayne Briggs, Bill Francis, and George Child.

Book on International Phys Ed Published

A detailed report on the current health, physical education and recreation programs and practices of 26 nations has been compiled and published by University of Massachusetts professor of physical education C. Lynn Vendien with John E. Nixon of Stanford University.

National and international leaders have contributed in preparing the incisive reports that constitute a major portion of the book entitled "The World Today in Health, Physical Education and Recreation" printed by Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J. The book is the first to offer descriptive material about other lands written in English by leading professionals and presented in one volume.

The informative work focuses on the various aspects of health, physical education and recreation that are useful in making comparisons between countries. Such factors as the importance of the body, dance as a cultural expression and the roles of a physical education and sports within a particular field are examined in detail.

Dr. Vendien received her Ed. D. degree from Stanford University before coming to UMass. She has acted as consultant on health, physical education and recreation in several countries as well as the states of Michigan and Massachusetts. Her research and interests have taken her to Europe, Asia, Africa, and South America, as well as throughout the U.S.

DRUGS . . .

distribution and use of narcotic drugs, especially of marijuana, is irrelevant. Violation of these statutes is a felony; any legal action taken is serious and involves a permanent police record.

"The University has a number of resources available for students who are concerned about their own attitudes and experiences regarding actual or potential drug use," Dean Field continued, "Health Services, the Chaplains, and the Counseling Center as well as other Student Personnell staff members are available."

The Dean reiterated that it is vital that students understand that the law on use of non-prescribed narcotic drugs is broad and strong, and that personal attitudes about the appropriateness of penalties for misuse of such drugs does not justify misuse, nor lessen the legal gravity of offenses.

Tindall, DiSarcina Are 1st Team Selections

Conference Selects Squad; Ellerbrook, Gayeska 2nd

A trio of performers, who not only score well but did great jobs in controlling the boards for their respective teams, have been named to the all-Yankee Conference basketball team for the second year in a row.

Billy Tindall, of the co-champion University of Massachusetts Redmen, who led the conference in scoring with 227 points; Bill Corley of Connecticut, who averaged 21.8 in ten games, and Art Stephenson of Rhode Island who scored 191 points, were renamed by the coaches. Stephenson and Corley tied for the rebounding title with 164 rebounds each while Tindall was in third spot with 136.

Joining them on the top team is another repeater, Larry Johnson, of the University of Rhode Island who was up among the scoring leaders with an average of 20.8 points per game.

The lone newcomer to be named to the first team is Joe DiSarcina of Massachusetts, who averaged 10.5 points per contest, but whose fine overall play enabled the Redmen to tie Rhode Island for the conference crown.

John Fultz, Rhode Island's sharpshooting sophomore, heads the second team which also includes Jim Stephenson of Maine, who set a Black Bear seasons scoring mark of 553 points; Dave Lapointe of Vermont and Pete Gayeska of Massachusetts. The fifth spot is shared by Ray Ellerbrook of UMass and Tim Smith of UConn.

Also receiving mention were Joe Zaranka of Rhode Island, Jack Melen and John Crisp of Connecticut; Bill Librera and Frank Martiniuk of Vermont and Scott Sargent of New Hampshire.

Redmen Leading in Keaney Trophy Standings

With four spring sports still remaining; outdoor track golf, tennis, and baseball, UMass holds a slight lead over Rhode Island, in the tabulating for the 1967-68 Frank W. Keaney Trophy, which UMass has won four of the five years the trophy has been given. The Keaney award is presented to the New England grant college that achieves the most points in conference championship competition.

The trophy standings are tabulated by giving six points for a conference title, five for second, four for third, etc. UMass presently has a total of 25½ points, gained through a first place football finish, two five point totals for runnerup spots in cross-country and soccer, four points for a third in indoor track, and five and a half points for its first place tie in basketball.

Rhode Island stands five points behind the Redmen with 20½ points, earned by a conference win in indoor track, its tie with UMass in basketball, and a third in football, fourth in soccer and fifth in cross-country. Connecticut is a scant half-point behind the Rams at 20 points with its title in cross-country and second place in football.

Maine has 14 points, Vermont has 13 and New Hampshire has 12 to round out the rest of the conference.

The trophy was first originated in 1961 when several alumni from Rhode Island were searching for a way to perpetuate the memory of coach and athletic director Frank Keaney. It was decided to donate a trophy to be named after Mr. Keaney to the conference which would be awarded each year to the school that achieved the most points during league championship play.

UMass' early lead over its conference rivals has put the Redmen in a commanding position for another Keaney Trophy, its fourth in succession.

WE AIM TO KEEP THIS—Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk and University President John W. Lederle stand admiringly beside the Frank W. Keaney Trophy, symbolic of Yankee Conference superiority.

NCAA Hoop Culminates with Houston vs. UCLA

(AP) — It has come to pass. Houston and UCLA, the country's top two college basketball teams, play each other again this week. Their meeting means that Elvin Hayes and Lew Alcindor, the country's two top players, will wage another individual duel.

This epic rematch will be played Friday night in the Sports Arena in Los Angeles as part of the doubleheader semifinals in the NCAA tournament for the national collegiate championship.

It was set up Saturday night when unbeaten and top-ranked Houston routed Texas Christian 103-68 and UCLA, defeated only by Houston, walloped Santa Clara 87-66 in NCAA quarter-finals.

Waiting Since Jan. 20

Ohio State upset Kentucky 82-81 and North Carolina rallied to beat Davidson 70-66 in the other quarter-final games. The Buckeyes and Tar Heels meet in the other NCAA semifinal Friday. The winner advances to Saturday night's championship final against the Houston-UCLA winner.

The Houston-UCLA rematch is the one collegiate fans have been hoping for since Jan. 20 when Houston shattered UCLA's 47-game winning streak 71-69 before a record 52,693 in the Astrodome at Houston.

Hayes, the Big E, outscored Alcindor 39-15 in that game and won it with two free throws in the last 39 seconds to break a 69-69 tie. His performance was a major factor in his becoming the college basketball player of the year.

The Houston triumph also knocked UCLA out of the No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press poll. Houston took over the top rung and finished in that position in the final poll.

Hayes scored another 39 points in leading the Cougars to their 32nd straight victory, 31-0 this season. Texas Christian, upset winner over Kansas State Friday, was outclassed in the Midwest Regional final at Wichita, Kan.

Alcindor, a towering 7-1½ who was hampered by eye trouble in his Jan. 20 meeting with Hayes, scored 22 points at UCLA overwhelmed Santa Clara in the West Regional final at Albuquerque, N. M.

It was the 14th straight victory for the Uclans since their Houston defeat. Their over-all record this season is 27-1. They won the national title last year with a 30-0 mark. They have a fantastic 61-1 record in their last 62 games.

"We're going to have to beat UCLA if we're going to win the national championship," said Guy Lewis, Houston coach.

"That's the way it should be. It will be a great game at Los Angeles. I'm looking for them to stay with their press."

Johnny Wooden, UCLA coach declared: "We hope we'll play Houston better than when we lost by two points in January. We didn't do anything especially wrong in that game except we didn't shoot well. We shot our poorest game since January 1961."

"Houston has improved, but so have we," Wooden continued. "Houston is a great club. If we can stop them, it'll be something."

The Cougars and Bruins also met in the NCAA semifinals 1st year at Louisville, Ky. UCLA won 73-58 and took the national title by defeating Dayton the next night.

Snuffs Rupp's Hopes

Down by eight points after a 22-6 Davidson spurt in the first half, North Carolina rallied to edge the Wildcats in their East regional final at Raleigh, N. C. Larry Miller's basket put the Tar Heels ahead for good at 47-46.

Dave Sorenson's five-foot jump shot with three seconds left gave unranked Ohio State its upset triumph over Kentucky in the Mideast Regional final at Lexington, Ky. The goal snuffed out the hopes of Adolph Rupp, veterans Kentucky coach, for an unprecedented fifth national title.

Long Island, the No. 1 small college team, took its first step toward duplicating Southern Illinois' 1967 feat of winning the title in the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

The Blackbirds upset Bradley 80-77 on Luther Green's three points in the last 19 seconds. It was one of four NIT games that completed the first round and reduced the field to eight.

Dayton beat West Virginia 87-68, Fordham downed Duquesne 69-60, and Notre Dame edged Army.

Crewmen Labor Hard Preparing For New Season

The recent warm spell and the resulting breakup of ice on the Connecticut River came as a blessing to crew coach Dave Clarke and his oarsmen. Three weeks separate the crew team from its first race. Varsity coach Clarke and frosh coach Mike Faherty are pacing their freshmen and varsity oarsmen to a four to five times a week schedule until warmer weather allows a seven-day schedule.

As with past years, members of the crew team will remain on campus during spring vacation, rowing twice each day.

During the early weeks of the season, Clarke will watch his men to determine effective oarsmen combinations. A large number of returning oarsmen promises stiff competition for the varsity seats. The final starting lineups will be announced a week before the first race.

Each spring, Clarke coaches a stronger, more experienced group of oarsmen. Several members of the team are now in their third year of rowing, and most of the varsity candidates have had at least one year of rowing experience. The stepped-up weight training program has been a success—most oarsmen gained five to ten pounds.

Most of this year's freshmen are in the 180-200 lb. class, Frosh Coach Faherty said, so size will be no problem, although only one of the frosh candidates rowed in high school.

Clarke and Faherty are looking forward to a winning season.

Student Power Discussed By Panel on WMUA

By DON TRAGESER
Staff Reporter

Student Power at UMass was discussed over WMUA last night with Pete Ward moderating a panel consisting of Jim Collins, Jack Dean, Bart Kaplan, and Dean Field.

Student Senate President Collins felt that Student Power consisted of a situation where "a student could be a part of the decision making process of the University." He stated that students should have power in both social and academic matters.

Dean of Students, William Field, said that "the structure of the University tends to discourage individual self-expression." He also later added that both students and faculty are responsible for this.

Collegian Editor-in-chief, Jack Dean, cited the solving of the curfew problems as an example of Student Power at UMass. He felt that the direction that the student body takes next year in regard to academic matters will determine the strength of student participation in University decision making.

Bart Kaplan, Editor of Mother of Voices felt that Student power was exerted in the classroom. "They tell me when they're bored by not showing up or not participating." He remarked that priorities here seemed to involve making the state strong rather than emphasizing the individual student.

When questioned as to what the students were being prepared for Collins felt that a University was a good one if "a person leaves the place as an individual and is sensitive to people." He said that exciting teachers and a wider choice of courses were necessary.

Toward the end of the hour and a half program Moderator Pete Ward asked if the administration and student leaders really made an effort to communicate with students. He pointed out the infrequency of student opinion polls, that administration officials treated open office hours as a special event rather than a daily one, and that the student Senate did not extend special invitations to their meetings very frequently.

Jack Dean stated that in the past, the Collegian had not been sufficiently involved in academic matters. He added however, that "a critique of Cook Report, a summary of the report and its entire contents would appear in the paper shortly after spring vacation." He said that The Exit offers an appropriate additional medium for expression on academic matters.

President Signs Gold Bill; Entire Stock Backs Dollar

by GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced Tuesday that Pres. Johnson has signed legislation releasing this country's entire stock of gold to back the dollar in foreign exchange.

The bill, which Johnson signed Monday night, removes the 25% gold cover requirement for the nation's currency.

This frees about $10.7 billion in gold which the Treasury had been required to hold under a 55-yr.-old law that said every $1 federal reserve note must be backed by 25¢ in gold.

The bill squeaked through Congress last week at a time when international speculation in gold had reduced the U.S. stock to $11.2 billion, or only about $500 million more than the cover requirement.

Despite urgent calls for passage by Johnson, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, the House passed the bill by the close margin of 199 - 190, and the senate vote was 39 - 37.

New England Storm Causes Serious Damage

(AP)—A torrential storm moved out tsea Tuesday after inundating sections of southern New England with as much as seven inches of rain and swelling rivers and streams.

Property damage was estimated unofficially in the millions and Gov .John A. Volpe said he would ask the Small Business Administration to aid commercial establishments affected by the floods.

In Washington, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said federal agencies were investigating the need for emergency aid.

Thousands of homeowners reported flooded cellars and ground floors in the Boston area from what the U. S. Weather Bureau said was the worst rainfall since the 1958 hurricane.

The weather bureau reported the heaviest rainfall — 7.72 inches—was recorded at its Blue Hills Observatory in Milton, a suburb of Boston.

Power was knocked out in many homes, leaving many without heat or cooking facilities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The New England Telephone Co. reported some 46,000 telephones were out of service at the height of the two-day storm. A company spokesman said some 2,000 repairmen had been summoned from nearby states to help restore service.

The weather bureau said brooks and small streams were receding but warned that some larger rivers in eastern Massachusetts, such as the Charles River and the Nashua, would continue to rise for the next one to four days.

Tax Bill Passed In Britain to Balance Economy

LONDON (AP)—The Labor government handed the British people Tuesday their highest tax bill in peacetime history and announced wage - price - dividend controls to balance the economy and help preserve the Western world's money.

Presenting the annual budget to a packed House of Commons, Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins in effect tossed the ball to Pres. Johnson to rein in the U.S. economy as America's contribution to solving the international monetary crisis that erupted last week.

He said the best the British could do was to get their own economy right and end the balance of payments deficit that forced the devaluation on the pound last Nov. from $2.80-$2.40.

"The U. S. authorities have shown they are determined to deal with their own balance of payments problem," he said. By so doing we will give that firmness to the two reserve currencies, the dollar and the pound which is the necessary foundation on which the international trading community must build."

The national budget presented by Jenkins for approval by the House provides for revenue of the pound equivalent of $28.6 billion and expenditure of $27.1 billion in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Rockefeller Faces Nixon For GOP Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)— Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller indicated strongly to a broad range of Republican senators here Tuesday that he plans to announce Thursday, or possible Friday, that he is challenging Richard M. Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination.

"He sounded very definite," one Capital source close to the situation reported.

"He didn't say so in so many words," said another, adding that "all of the indicators were positive, none negative."

Rockefeller said after a 1-hr. breakfast meeting that most of the senators present thought he should run, but that he is still considering the matter.

"All that's left are the nuts and bolts," one source said.

Rockefeller himself said that if he does run, he will likely sidestep all primaries but the one in Oregon May 28.

He said he will not campaign in Nebraska, even if Nixon forces succeed in putting his name on the ballot for the May 14 primary there.

Rockefeller was pictured as realizing that his battle against Nixon would be an uphill one.

But he said at a news conference he believes "the concepts and actions of government are not keeping pace with the realities and the problems of a rapidly changing world."

Some 17 of the 36 Republican senators turned up for breakfast with the governor. The host, Sen. Thurston B. Morton, Ky., said: "No commitments were asked. None were given."

Rockefeller told reporters afterwards that most of those who attended thought he should run on grounds "competition in the Republican party is healthy. They felt from the point of view of the party and the country this was desirable," he said.

Adam Clayton Powell, Negro Spokesman, Will Be Speaking April 3 at the Cage

Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., controversial Congressman, author, clergyman and Negro spokesman, will speak at Curry Hicks on Wednesday, April 3 at 8 p.m. Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Distinguished Visitors Program, Mr. Powell will talk on a subject of current interest. Only students with I.D.'s will be admitted prior to 7:45 p.m., after which time admission will be open to the public

A Doctor of Divinity, Powell was minister of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City from 1937-1960. Early in his career he was elected to the City Council of New York. Elected to the United States Congress from Harlem in 1944, Powell has been a Democratic member of the House of Representatives for twenty-three years.

A well-known international and national figure, Powell was the only member of any Western parliament to attend the historic Afro-Asian Conference at Bandung, Indonesia, April 19, 1955. As a Negro spokesman, he is a life member of the NAACP.

News Briefs

NATIONAL

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. John A. Volpe planned to make a quick inspection tour of flood-torn areas of the state this afternoon.

The State Civil Defense Office said the governor planned to leave the State House by car at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., denied a report that he already had been chosen to be Rockefeller's national campaign director.

"I'll do what I can for the governor, but I didn't know that he had even made up his own mind whether to run," Morton said. "This is pure speculation."

(AP) — U. S. officials said Tuesday they do not expect an early release of the crewmen of the captured U. S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

The North Koreans are trying to extract as much prestige and propaganda mileage as they can out of their seizure of the ship Jan. 23, the officials said.

The Reds have called for a U. S. apology over the affair, which Washington has refused to make. The United States contends the Pueblo was in international seas when captured, not in Korean territorial waters as the Reds claim.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Local Republican leaders were making plans Tuesday for a $100-a-plate dinner when an aide gasped and pointed.

The stamps to mail the invitations all bore the likeness of Democratic President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Republicans scoured the country and finally came up with the stamps they wanted. The envelopes went out carrying stamps that pictured the American flag.

Rochester, N. Y. (AP) — Joseph M. Hoffmann, administrative supervisor of the Bureau of Internal Revenue here, found this note today on an income-tax form:

It read: "I understand President Johnson has declared war on poverty. Please advise as to where I go to surrender."

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's network of neighborhood vigilante committees announced Tuesday it will administer the thousands of small private businesses nationalized by the Castro government last week.

OSLO (AP) — Crown Prince Harold, 31, will marry a commoner, Sonja Haraldsen, 30, a friend since school days, in August or early September, King Olav V announced Tuesday.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's white minority government sent its American-made jet bombers Wednesday against at least 50 guerrillas it reported were pinned down near the Zambezi River, 250 miles north of Salisbury.

The military command reported killing 14 guerrillas. They were said to have come from Zambia last week. One Rhodesian was killed.

Low-Rise for High-Risers Being Set Up in Southwest

By DENNIS DAYTON and NEIL SWEET

ARE YOU: Tired of dorm apathy and passive dorm government? Tired of guys who complain and don't do anything? Tired of useless bull sessions about the same topics every night?

DO YOU: Want a full program of dorm activities — academic, cultural, athletic, social. Want a new dorm that you can shape the future of? Want a dorm to be proud of?

A group of students who answered 'yes' to the above questions are looking for guys who believe that the dorm should be an important part of the students' life. We feel that an academic atmosphere at a social level is missing at UMass, and this dorm will fill the gap.

We do not want pseudo-intellectuals, but rather guys who are interested in the world around them and want to be a part of a mature group who share their interest. Of course, the dorm will also have an active social and athletic program.

The dorm, one of the new low risers, will not be a "responsibility dorm", like another in Southwest, because we feel that anyone who joins will respect University property and the rights of others. This dorm will be different from the one described in Friday's Collegian because responsibility will not be the goal of the house, but rather, a basis!

A unique feature of the house will be its organization this semester. This will be to ease to transition next September. A few weeks after Spring Recess there will be a house meeting. This will give you the opportunity to meet the other residents, and also a chance to decide on the goals and policy of the house. In addition, dorm dues would be collected and work could begin on a constitution.

The fate of the dorm rests with you! We have the opportunity to develop a house which

Copper Strike Breakthrough; Further Progress Anticipated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 6,500 copper strikers approved a contract with one company Tuesday and prospects brightened in White House talks involving three other major strikebound firms.

Approval of new contracts by Phelps Dodge Corp. strikers in Arizona, Texas, Arkansas and New York was the first big break in the 22-state strike of more than 50,000 workers, now in the ninth month.

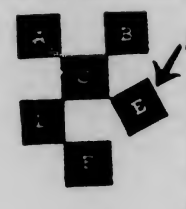
The Phelps Dodge agreement provides a reported $1.13 per hour in wage and fringe benefit increases over 40 months for some 5,600 mining, smelting and refining workers in Arizona and Texas, and 75 cents over 36 months for more than 800 wire and cable fabricating employees at Fordyce, Ark., and Yonkers, N. Y.

The AFL-CIO United Steelworkers, leader of the 26 striking unions, called it "the fattest package of wage and fringe area gains ever won from one of the industry's 'Big Four'."

Wages in the industry before the strike averaged $3.28 per hour. The new contracts include 54 cents in wage hikes plus improved pensions, health, disability and layoff benefits, and vacations.

Informed sources reported substantial new progress in negotiations involving the three other companies — Kennecott Copper Corp., Anaconda Co. and American Smelting & Refining Co.

UMies Produce A Puppet Show On Bible Talk



Four UMass undergraduates worked together to produce a play based on the story of Purim found in the Book of Esther in the Old Testament.

From the narration in the Bible, Mike Ross, '69, Leonard Radin, '69, Edna Neuwirth, '71, and Al Pransky, '71 adapted the story of Purim to play form and presented it Sunday afternoon to an enthusiastic audience of Jewish children.

Besides converting the narration to dialogue, the four students faced one special problem.

To adapt the play for marionettes, with voices coming from narrators on the sides of the puppet stage. Mike Ross and Edna Neuwirth wrote most of the script, alternating dialogue with narration. Leonard Radin, the puppeteer, coordinated the script with the movements of the marionettes.

Music Committee Sponsors Poet Anne Sexton Lecture

The Music Commitee of Student Union will be sponsoring the outstanding American poet Anne Sexton on Tuesday, April 2, 1968. She will be speaking about her works at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom on this day. There is no admission charge and all are invited to attend her lecture.

Anne Sexton was born in Newton, Massachusetts in 1928 and grew up in Wellesley. She attended local schools, has lived in Baltimore and San Francisco, and has summered often on the Cape, in Gloucester and in Maine. Writing has been her main interest, and her poems have appeared in many magazines.

ANNE SEXTON

She held the Robert Frost Fellowship at Breadloaf and was a Scholar with Radcliffe's New Institute for Independent Study from 1961-63. She was awarded the first traveling fellowship of the American Academy of Arts and Letters (1963-64), a grant from the Ford Foundation in 1964-65 (for residence with the Charles Playhouse in Boston), and in 1965 was awarded the first literary magazine travel grant under the auspices of The Congress for Cultural Freedom.

In 1965 she was elected a Fellow of The Royal Society of Literature in London. Houghton Miffiin Company published Mrs. Sexton's first book, To Bedlam and Part Way Back, in 1960, and her second, All My Pretty Ones,

Clothing Drive

With Spring just around the corner, let's take time out to think of others—those at the Belchertown School for the Retarded.

Gamma Sigma Sigma is presently conducting a clothing and sporting goods drive to try to put a little springtime joy into the lives of those who are so much less fortunate than we are. In addition to clothing, we are also interested in collecting such items as costume jewelry, accessories, and sport equipment. Everything should be in reasonably good condition.

Spring vacation is the opportune time to do your family and those at Belchertown a real service. Bring any of your contributions to the representative Gamma Sig sisters in your dorm area. There are signs posted indicating their names and room numbers.

Strangulation at Khe Sanh

It has been three months since General Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's Defense Minister, began his demoralizingly slow strangulation of the Marine base at Khe Sanh. By gradual advancement of their position, the North Vietnamese have effectively isolated the Marine base and are slowly, skillfully, tightening their grasp around it.

They have dug an intricate network of trenches encircling the camp. This tactic closely resembles that of the Viet Minh prior to their successful ground offensive at Dienbienphu — a significant though played down similarity.

The systematic trenching, devised and directed by Gen. Giap in the 1954 battle as a part of the strategy of progressive attack which the Communists consider the most effective means of insuring victory, has brought the enemy to within 100 yards of the Marine's barbed-wire perimeter.

Besides providing cover and surprise, the trenches were proved to be an effective base of concealed fire power, undetectable to the most advanced and powerful of air support.

The physical and tactical similarities make it obvious that Gen. Giap hopes to re-play his significant victory of 1954, and the effectiveness of the strategy doesn't seem to have diminished over the years; for instance, the daily air strikes on supposed enemy positions, unloading up to 1.3 million pounds of explosives in one day, have failed to silence the .50 caliber machine guns and 60-mm mortars which have pounded the Marine base at will.

Despite this, administrative and military estimates of a Khe Sanh battle remain optimistic. These estimates are based on the massive American air power available — something the French didn't have—and the supporting heavy artillery based at Camp Carrol within striking distance of Khe Sanh, which the French also lacked.

But how can bombs and mortars destroy enemy guns that are impossible to locate? American Generals also tend to discount the fact that Dienbienphu was very strong. It had over 16,000 men compared to only 6,000 at Khe Sanh, and with 20,000 North Vietnamese around its perimeter, the outlook at Khe Sanh is doubtful at best.

With the surprisingly strong and unexpected TET offensive which brought U.S. operations to a standstill and caused the allied forces to go on the defensive, there is no longer any cause for the military's detached, sanguine appraisals of the Khe Sanh situation.

Registration Needs Reform

Imagine registration void of all the confusion and wrath displayed in Boyden. Imagine a relatively "turmoilless" registration. Perhaps, in view of the present situation, the thought may seem absurd. But an attempt to materialize this thought will soon be considered.

No one can deny the inadequacy of the present system. Needless frustation, endless wasted hours, and inevitable dissatisfaction are the end results for all involved. This certainly ought to be eliminated. Both the administration and the students deserve a smoother system.

A proposal requiring the assignment of courses on a first come first serve basis has already been rejected, and wisely so. The plan connotes a free-for-all, and would only add to the confusion rather than reduce or eliminate it. Dean Wagner explained that this particular system has been employed in a number of other institutions and has proven unsuccessful, one major point being, that there are no provisions for the infirmary patient.

However, a more plausible system was formulated, and will be employed as an experimental system this spring, to be adopted if proven successful. The plan requires student pre-registration as usual. If, as is too often the case, a course is deemed difficult to enter, the student will then be requested to file an alternative pre-registration card.

This second card will give the student an opportunity for an available and, most important, desired alternate subject. Those neglecting to submit the alternative card will be the only students required to fight the usual battle in Boyden. Based on a system of priorities, this new plan assures upperclassmen entry into subjects of their choice, an assurance absent in the first come first serve proposal.

The major problem foreseen at present lies in the difficulty in predicting which courses will be over-enrolled. This, combined with a possible student negligence, will endanger the effectiveness of the system. Yet, the system will be deemed very worthwhile if it eliminates even half the registration turmoil. Perhaps the day of confusionless registration does lie in the near future.

Mac Kimmie House Is "Special Residence"

To the editors:

Your article, "Dreaming of Utopia," was based on a clear-cut lack of knowledge concerning the special residence.

MacKimmie House has elected to become the special residence next year, not because anyone in the Southwest Residential College said it must be, but because the STUDENTS themselves wish to avoid such conditions as exist in John Adams and George Washington. The STUDENTS set up the dorm, not the administration.

Granted, there was cooperation from the administration, but they had no part in the initiative.

If other dorms wish to do the same, that is entirely up to them. We will be glad to offer suggestions for setting up such a dorm if another house wishes to follow our example. But let it be understood that "the energies that are going into this 'Special Dorm' " are purely student energies, centered in MacKimmie House.

It is not designed to be any more of a Utopia than living in our own homes would be. Our biggest problem so far is the negative attitude that you stuffy editors are enhancing: "Well it's a nice idea, but it will never work."

It may not work, but if it's a nice idea, why not support it one hundred percent? After all, it's by the students, for the students. Is the Daily Collegian going to go on record as opposing student rights?

Tower Girls Object To Room Use

To the editor:

The girls of Tower II and Tower IV are furious, and with good reason. By a March 15 memorandum from the Southwest Housing Office, we have been notified that "during the Spring Semester break, Calvin Coolidge and John Q. Adams will be used to house Conference Personnel." We realize that this practice is not new, that other dorms have been used for similar purposes, but now that it effects us we must indignantly question its legality.

First, the term "Conference Personnel" is rather vague. What it means to us is that "someone" from "somewhere" will be staying in our rooms in our absence. We will never know who these people are. We will never know where they are from. Hopefully, there will be no reason for us to want to know; yet the whole idea is disturbing, and there is nothing we can do about it . . .

In answer to our protests, the Housing Office has called to our attention its policy as outlined in the Student Handbook: "The University reserves the right to utilize student rooms occasionally during vacations for conferences and other groups. Residents will be given advance notice in such cases."

We all, of course, read the Student Handbook from cover to cover before we paid our bills, and so we supposedly have no cause for complaint. Still, we feel that our anger is justifiable, and the fact that "room rent does not include the several school vacation periods" remains irrelevant.

So legally we haven't a leg to stand on — the University reserves the right to deny us our privacy. But more than that, the memorandum asks us to leave our rooms in good condition, remove the linen from our beds, and transfer our "personal belongings" to a storage space provided. In the midst of the inevitable pre-vacation exams and papers, we will be delighted to spend time preparing our rooms for unknown and unwanted "guests."

Furthermore, this transfer of personal belonging business is ridiculous. A dormitory is a "home away from home," not a motel, and the transfer of belongings involves more than moving a suitcase to another room. We have no locks on our closets or drawers, so all but our most valuable possessions will be fully available for the use of the "Conference Personnel."

It is not that we expect a group of criminally insane "excons" to be using our rooms; most probably they will be mature, well-educated, responsible adults. But in any large random sampling of people there are apt to be elements of kleptomania and "borrow-itis."

Evidently the Housing Office itself is not totally without suspicion, as it has arranged to have our room telephones disconnected for the entire vacation period.

In closing, the memorandum adds a somewhat hypocritical "ENJOY YOUR VACATION!" We cannot help but wonder if those who arranged this invasion of privacy could spend a carefree, enjoyable vacation knowing that their homes had been left open for the use of total strangers.

Transition into Fantasy

by MARTHA CURRAN

"I like your hat." 'Is that your own hair?" 'What's the occasion?" Wow! With comments like that I was ready to put a bucket over my head and run home. It's part of what Mr. Paul Laflamme, style director at Regency Hairstylists in Amherst, calls "image," one of the five things his stylists judge in their customers when they plan a hairstyle.

Facial features, hair length and thickness, and the time both client and stylist have to spend are other factors in determining the style of the hair design. Image, of course, has a great deal to do with the design. "Is it me?" you might ask, but if you want it to be, it is.

Martha: Before her new 'image".

After: "It's all mine and I think it's fun!"

Jane Lichwala, a petite brunette with short hair, styled my hair and explained the techniques of a good set. She used hair set to add body. Hair stretches 1/3 its length when wet so rollers should be spaced with the same parting separation to avoid "dragging." Hair should be cooled after drying and then brushed until there is no indication of a roller mark or pin curl. Miss Lichwala thought falls were a good idea for girls who want a curly look as well as an everyday style.

Curls "in" for Special Occasions

"Curls are definitely in," LaFlamme said, "but mainly for special occasions. Most curls are added to everyday hairstyles by hairpieces and falls. The best hair for falls comes from Sweden."

American hair ranks last in a list of eight markets, including Sicilian, Italian, French, German, Caucasian, and Asian. LaFlamme attributed the inferiority of American hair to the effects of permanents, dyes, tints, temperature, iron pills, hormones, and improper diet.

Trends in Hairdressing

Hairdressing, like most other traditions, has definite trends, LaFlamme continued. The first is the hairdressers' trend and right now, hairdressers are pushing haircuts and curls. Curling irons are in demand and LaFlamme has already ordered one for the Regency Beauty Salon.

Movie trends are also obvious. "Bonnie and Clyde" have taken us back to the Thirties. Eliza Doolittle of "My Fair Lady" did more than a little to bring back curls. Scarlett O'Hara, whether Rhett Butler gave a damn or not, never went anywhere without flouncing her curls.

The "good taste" trend will always be influential—it's the style that does an individual most justice.

"Senior Citizens", the fourth trend, is the unchanged tight, kinky and durable hairstyle that will last forever.

Sausage curls are evidence of the fifth trend, the European look. Wild, careless designs are toned down a bit for America. All of these trends are variations on the basic long hair—short hair traditions.

The current trend is for short hair, probably because the Sassoon line is flattering to most face shapes. Short hair should be trimmed every four weeks, therefore upkeep may be expensive. The straight, long look is easy to maintain.

Face Shape Important

The Regency style director divided face shapes into three categories: banana, peach and oval. A banana, or long face should have a peach, or round, hairdo to complement it. By the same token, a round face should have a vertical hairdo. An oval face is "perfect for anything."

Only 3% of American women can wear a hairstyle to a "T", LaFlamme concluded. "Young girls can wear any style. You can wear a pail over you head and look good because you're young."

So, in answer to "Is that all yours?" Or, "How does it feel to walk around with a birdcage on your head?", I could only answer "It's all mine and I think it's fun!" With a dazzling smile, and a toss of curls, I flounced out of the Collegian office.

Kiss Me If You Dare

Kissing, for man, is a relatively late development in his repertoire of caresses. It is a discovery and development of the Western world and has been cultivated in the art of loving only in a comparatively high stage of development.

Earliest Kiss

One of the earliest instances of kissing as an expression of man's love and affection is related by Leybard during the Sixth Century. He gave his betrothed a ring, a kiss and a pair of shoes. The ring he gave to bind them together; the kiss to seal the pledge of affection; and the shoes as a sign of his subjection to her.

In furthering the development of the kiss in the pursuits of love, France was a fertile field. Montaigne said that in his country it was the privilege of a jack with three lackeys to kiss almost any woman of his choice. The dance was an excellent opportunity, thus popular dance figures were those that included a kiss in the proceedings.

The kiss also became popular in political circles. Louis XII conferred the royal benediction in the form of a kiss on every woman in Normandy. In Russia, a kiss from the Czar was one of the highest forms of official recognition.

Public Kiss Obligates Marriage

In contrast, at the same period in urban Italy, the kiss as a salutation was taken so seriously that if a maiden was kissed by a young man in public, it practically made marriage obligatory. There was always the danger of a kiss from some undesirable admirer or needy youth who wished by this means to force a marriage.

Even church was not a safe refuge for unescorted girls. Young women of the wealthier class in Venice went to church hidden by long white veils and accompanied by male escorts or armed retainers.

In the early Sixteenth Century, Pierto Lando, then Podesa at Padua, ordered his son to be decapitated for kissing a girl he loved in the public street.

Kissing Found Objectionable

It is said that the Chinese consider the European kiss to be highly objectionable from the esthetic standpoint, being suggestive of ravenous cannibals. Native mothers in French Indo China scare their children by threatening to give them a white man's kiss.

In addition, it has been suggested that our erotic kiss is merely a sublimnation of the amorous bite. The "love-bite" is a tantalizing, controlled bite to increase sexual feeling. It is essentially a primitive expression of sexual ardor, but is not unknown among highly cultivated individuals.

"Smell - Kiss"

A form of salutation that has much wider vogue than our tactile kiss is the olfactory kiss.

Its typical form is practiced in three phases: (a) the nose is applied to the cheek of the person kissed; (b) a long nasal inhalation is accompanied by the lowering of the eyelids; (c) a slight smacking of the lips without the application of the mouth is applied to the recipient's cheek.

This type of "smell-kiss" is popular among the Laplanders and the Russian Yakuts. It is the predominant form of kiss in Asia, Africa, Polynesia, and other parts of the world, including some of the aborigines of the Americas.

Redmen as NEISC Champs Highlights '68 Ski Season

UMass Skiers End 30-Year Dry Spell

By JAN CURLEY
Staff Reporter

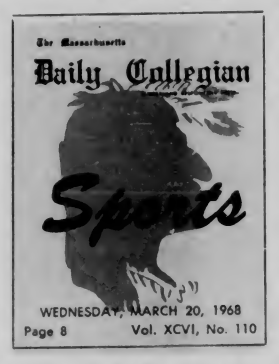
Rain is not the only thing which can break a dry spell. Athletic teams can do it too, such as the basketball team which broke a 32 year jinx on the impossible Storrs court by beating UConn 56-44. The ski team ended 30 years of reigning by other New England teams when they brought back the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference championship from Cranmore Mountain.

Throughout the short season, cross-town rival Amherst College provided the only really close competition. UMass competed against such other schools as Bentley, Boston University, Tufts, AIC and Northeastern. eastern.

Collin Garstang and Ned Kelley got the season off right by pacing the skiers to a 407.5 win over Bentley, WPI, BU, AIC, Amherst, Northeastern and Tufts at the Middlebury College Snowball held at the end of January.

Dave Kamila and Jim Garstang placed third and fourth for the Redmen in the dual slalom event.

The next day the UMass quartet of Kelley, Collin Garstang, Kamila and Mike Zanoli were among the first eight men off the mountain to give the Redmen their second win in two days.



The following weekend the Redman skiers split the Giant Slalom at the Dartmouth Skiway in Lyme, N.H., with host Amherst College.

Saturday's race, which Amherst won by only five points, was held under adverse conditions as rain and unseasonably warm temperatures combined to delay the race. The course had to be reset and packed by the racers and then treated with ammonium and chloride to freeze the snow.

The Redmen found the skiing on the icy course difficult to negotiate, and three members of the six man "A" team either fell or spun out.

Kamila established personal contact with Roger Peabody, president of the U.S. Eastern Amateur Ski Association, who sanctions all skiing and jumping events. Neither one broke any bones and picked themselves up with a new measure of respect for each other.

As the mercury plummetted below zero the next day, the slushy snow was turned into boiler maker conditions. The race, which was originally scheduled to be a downhill race, was changed to a two run giant slalom. UMass took this one by nine points over Amherst College.

Collin Garstang led the first race and won by two seconds, but was heated by Don Marsh of Tufts in the second race. Zanoli had two strong runs for the Redmen in the two days and was instrumental in the Sunday win.

The win at Dartmouth put UMass in first place in the NEISC conference standings followed by Amherst College in second place.

The Haystack Mountain meet, (a two-run slalom and a giant slalom) held the next week end, was a non-league meet and did not affect the standings. For the Redmen this was a good thing, as they had one of those days. Collin Garstang had the fastest time in the two run slalom, but Jim Garstang, Kamila and John Hurd fell and were either disqualified or did not finish. Kelley also sprained an ankle to make the weekend even bleaker. Amherst College won both the two run slalom and the giant slalom.

Captain Garstang paced the team to a second place win in the NEISC race the next weekend at Bromley Mountain. Garstang came in second followed Wilkie Ward, sixteenth, Dick McHugh, seventeenth and Jim Garstang, twenty-first.

In the Saturday race, Amherst College was first at 499.3, 9.4 seconds ahead of the Redmen.

The UMass skiers regained their winning form Sunday as they won the giant slalom by 23 seconds over a strong Amherst College team.

The Garstang brothers, Collin and Jim placed first and fourth for the team respectively. Mike Zanoli skied to a fifth place finish followed by Kamila, eighth, Hurd, eleventh and Ward was nineteenth.

The win kept the Redmen in first place followed by Amherst, AIC, Boston University, Tufts, Bentley, WPI and Northeastern.

At Wildcat Mountain in New Hampshire the Redmen skiers dazzled on the course as they swept both the Osborne Division and the Northern League. The Northern League boasts such schools as Brown and Princeton.

An opportune fall by an Amherst skier in the second run of the slalom put the Redmen in the lead. Collin and Jim Garstang, Kelley, Zanolli and McHugh placed for UMass.

Sunday's race was a man-for-man contest between Amherst and UMass. Collin Garstang and Amherst ace Pete Flaccus both fell, but the slack was picked up by the other five members.

Jim Garstang skied excellently and was only beaten by one second by Ned Kelley. Garstang's time put the Redmen in a solid win position.

With only one race left in the season, UMass was leading the Osbourne Division.

For the first time in the history of the school the ski team won the NEISC by winning the slalom sponsored by Boston University at Cranmore Mountain, North Conway.

The giant slalom was held on soft, wet snow as the temperatures reached into the 60 degree range. Kelley was forced to withdraw from the second race when he reinjured his ankle in a pile-up with another skier.

UMass placed three skiers in the top ten: Collin Garstang, first, Kamila, seventh, and Zanoli, eighth.

The NEISC held an awards banquet following the race at which John Hurd received the annual award for sportsmanship and service to the conference. Dave MacBride, BU coach and the conference president, presented the award. At the same time McHugh and Kamila were elected co-captains for the next winter.

The team is losing five members through graduation. The losses of Captain Collin Garstang, Kelley, Hurd, John Williams and Zanoli will be left, but Coach Bill MacConnell has some good talent in Jim Garstang, Kamila, McHugh and Ward. Next winter the skiers will be looking to make it two championships in a row.

Houston's Lewis Eyes High-Scoring Tilt vs. UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Guy Lewis of the Houston Cougars laughed off any suggestion that UCLA would stall against his basketball forces Friday and predicted a high-scoring battle.

The No. 1-rated Houston and the Bruins, who finished second in the Associated Press poll, meet for the second time this year when they tangle in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's championship semi-finals.

When they played the first time, in Houston's Astrodome on January 20, the Cougars won 71-69 and have gone through their season undefeated. UCLA finished 25-1.

All-Americans Elvin Hayes of Houston and Lew Alcindor of UCLA averaged 37.7 and 26.2 respectively during the year and Hayes tallied 39 against the Bruins in Houston.

Lewis, in an interview Tuesday, said he expected a better game this time, explaining.

"I think UCLA will score more points and shoot better. We'll shoot better and I really feel we'll have a high scoring game."

UCLA Coach John Wooden, early in the week, had said, "I really can't say whether we'd be better off running or stalling against Houston. I'm surprised nobody has stalled against them. Maybe that's the best way to play them."

Lewis and coaches Dean Smith of North Carolina and Fred Taylor of Ohio State took part in an amplified telephone conversation as part of the Southern California Basketball Writers meeting. Wooden attended in person.

North Carolina plays OSU at 7 p.m. in Friday's opening semi-final with Houston and UCLA clashing at 9 p.m. in the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Smith declared, "There is no danger of our looking past an excellent Ohio State team, a fine rebounding and shooting team." His is the No. 4 team in the Associated Press poll.

Taylor termed himself "more than pleased" to have reached the semifinals, having won the Big Ten title in a playoff and then downed Kentucky 82-81 in the Midwest regionals.

Intramural Wrestling

At 7 p.m. tonight, the Intramural Wrestling Division Championships will be held in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym. The Dormitory Independent Division and Fraternity Independent Division winners will be decided. The Campus Championships will then be held on Thursday night at 7 p.m. in the Boyden Auxiliary Gym. At this time, the Dormitory Independent Division winners will grapple with the Fraternity Independent Division winners.

Frosh Martin Nabs 3rd Place In Masters Cup

UMass freshman Ted Martin, 19, captured third place in the men's division of the 1968 Ski Masters championships held this past weekend in Wildcat, N.H. Finishing fourth after the first day's trials, Martin nailed down third position with a spectacular final freestyle dun.

Bob Morrow, a 14 year old student at Forest Grove School in Worcester, placed first in the overall men's standings. Second place went to Lloyd Hadden, 25, a ski shop operator from Chocoura, N. H.

Martin received a blue pin for his weekend heroics, as did all second through fifth place finishers. Morrow, the champion, had his name engraved on the permanent Masters Cup, and was also rewarded with a replica of the Cup and a white pin.

Martin's final point total was 69.333 out of a possible 100 points. Morrow's score was 73-.333 and Hadden's was 71.333.

Forensic Case Postponed Pending Reply to Charges

By NICK COSTA
Staff Reporter

Within a "committee of the whole," which was closed to the public, the Student Senate, members of the Ways and Means Committee, representatives of the Forensic Society, and representatives of the Recognized Student Organization office (RSO) last night, discussed charges brought against the Forensic Society and its faculty advisor Ronald J. Matlon.

Matlon was charged with falsifying receipts to allow sufficient money to pay for his expenses (see March 7th Collegian).

Doors Closed to Public

When John Dubois, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee (who is in charge of the Senate investigation), requested that the doors be closed to all people except Senators, the Forensic Society, and the RSO representatives, stated that, "We ought to have complete freedom to discuss this." Senator Neil Giroux strengthened the request by adding, "A man's reputation is at stake," and noted what an error in reporting could do to Matlon's reputation.

A previous motion, introduced by Senator Larry Marcus, to allow the Senate meeting to remain open for all present, including the Daily Collegian, was defeated. Marcus noted the responsibility of Senators to the student body: "The student body has a right to know what's happening . . . and not to hear it second hand."

Following the nearly two hour closed session, the Senate reopened its meeting to allow interested students and the Collegian to record its findings. President Collins requested that actions on parts of the Ways and Means Committee's recommendations of the six page study be postponed until after the spring vacation to allow Matlon and the Speech Department personnel to reply to the charges, and give the administration a chance to take action.

President Collins, in an MDC interview, noted that the Student Senate "placed their trust in President Lederle," and felt that he should be given an opportunity to express some action.

Action Postponed

Because of this and allowing Mr. Matlon and the Speech Department to reply to the charges, action on the following recommendations was postponed until after the vacation: 1) the censure by the Student Senate of the director of Forensics, Ronald J. Matlon, 2) the Senate petition the Department of Speech for compensation in the amount of proven misuse of funds, and 3) the Senate refuse to budget the Forensic Society as long as Matlon remains Director, and until the Forensic Society can provide the Senate with 'convincing assurances' that the Society has reformed to justify re-

Wood Announces Censure; Proposes Exec. Council Change

By BILL DICKINSON
Specials Editor

At a Senior Class Executive Council meeting last night, Senior Class President Richard A. Wood announced for the first time that he had been found guilty by the General Court of violating R.S.O. policy with regard to the use of class funds. He also said that he had appealed the decision to the University Discipline Board which turned him down. Currently he is appealing that decision to President John W. Lederle who has not yet made a decision.

May Festival Proposed

Also at the meeting Wood introduced a proposal for restructuring class government to give it an "air of legitimacy" and suggested a "May Festival" to take the place of Senior Week.

Gauges Effect of Censure

Explaining to his Executive Council why he was discussing his censure before them, Wood said, "I'm trying to gauge what effect this will have on my actions as a class officer . . . and want to know what your feelings are." He said he didn't know whether to resign, make a public apology or an explanation.

He read the charges that had been made against him by Senate treasurer Paul Silverman: 1.) Purchased Alcoholic beverages at the Lord Jeffery Inn and charged them to the class. 2.) Submitted false information to the R.S.O. office concerning the mileage and hotel charges to Grossinger's Resort in New York. 3.)Requested reimbursement for mileage on two round trips between Wilmington, Mass. and Amherst and submitted that it was 500 miles total, when it is only 360.

The General Court acquitted him of the second charge regarding the Grossinger's trip. It did convict him of the other charges, and issued a letter of censure.

Wood appealed the Court's decision to the University Board which is made up of both students and faculty members. "To my displeasure" Wood said, it turned down his appeal. The Board's notice said in part, "There appears nothing in the record or in the nature of the penalty which would justify an appeal . . . Consequently the appeal is denied."

Wood's appeal to the President is based on his contention that he did not in fact violate R.S.O. policy in the Lord Jefferey incident and that he has "new evidence" which was not available earlier proving that he actually made five trips on the dates mentioned.

Wood finished by saying, "There never has been a cent of class funds spent on alcoholic beverages."

He then announced that the Fire Destroys Stockbridge Barn

The "isolation barn" at Stockbridge was gutted last night by a fire of "suspicious origin."

The fire started in the hay loft about 11:20 p.m. and quickly spread throughout the rest of the barn which was occupied by about 50 head of sheep and hogs. All the livestock was rescued by a watchman and three students.

The fire was termed suspicious because the condition of the hay in the loft ruled out the possibility of spontaneous combustion and because there was no wiring in the loft which could have started it.

No estimate of damage was available, although the barn did contain a room full of veterinary research supplies.

DeGaulle Wants New Gold Standard

PARIS (UPI) — Charles de Gaulle sitting on the second largest gold reserve in the West pressed Wednesday his demand for a return to the gold standard in a new effort to reshape the world monetary system.

The French president characterized the present international system, supported by "privileged" American and British reserve currencies, as inequitable and inapplicable. He said it should be scrapped.

He warned that France opposes any monetary reform proposals failing to base the financing of the world trade on gold. It alone, he said, boasts "immutability, impartiality and universality."

De Gaulle's move, monetary experts said, is likely to increase uncertainty about the dollar, the pound and gold. The recent speculation has forced the United States to modify a 34-year-old promise to buy gold from all comers at $35 an ounce.

Don Conn Presented Lecture On Law Enforcement Last Night

By DON TRAGESER
Staff Reporter

Chief of the Massachusetts Attorney General's Criminal division, Don Conn, referring to the Boston Strangler Murder case at a lecture last night in the Colonial Lounge, said that "Middlesex District Attorney John Droney would do well to keep his nose out of it," until the state completed its investigation.

Conn's comment was directed at the fact that Droney in a Boston Globe story yesterday said he had received "worthwhile information from George W. Harrison, a Concord Reformatory inmate who escaped with DeSalvo from Bridgewater State Hospital last year.

Conn while expressing "admiration" for his former boss felt that "he was a little rash to believe a man of Mr. Harrison's sterling qualities". He mentioned that Harrison had accused him (Conn) of injecting truth serum into him in order to locate DeSalvo after his escape. Conn said that "if he relied on what Harrison told him that they would still be looking for DeSalvo in Canada."

Conn conjectured that Harrison went to Droney, the man who holds the least credence in the possibility that DeSalvo was involved in the stranglings, because of his dislike for Conn who was the prosecuting attorney against DeSalvo.

To Tell More

According to a March 20 Boston Globe story, "Harrison has indicated that he has much more to tell Droney, and the letter said he anticipates 'many more' conferences with the convict who hopes his cooperation will help him win a parole hearing."

Mr. Conn also discussed the "plight of American law enforcement." He said that because of decisions in the last ten years of the Warren court the jobs of the policemen and prosecutor have become more difficult.

He added that after complaining about the court decisions, policemen and prosecutors had to go back to school to learn how to deal with them.

17% Crimes Solved

In describing American law enforcement he brought out the fact that only 17 percent of the million crimes in this country eventually result in conviction of the criminal. He felt that the general public's attitude was "antagonistic" and "apathetic" towards the problems of the police unless they are personally involved. Also, he pointed out in a 24 month period that "one out of every four people will be the victim of a crime."

WASHINGTON (AP)— Several hundred students captured control of the Administration building at predominantly Negro Howard Univ. Wednesday.

Student spokesmen said school officials suspended classes indefinitely.

Students interviewed at the scene of the demonstration said they were prepared to hold control of the Administration building until officials agreed to reshape the whole approach to education at the school.

"We don't want a Negro education, we want black education relevant to the black community," said Gary Ayres, Pres. of the Assoc. of Men Students at the university.

Dr. T. C. McBride Reports Increased Venereal Disease Cases at UMass

By E. QUAGLINI

Venereal disease cases at the University have increased this year, according to Dr. Thomas C. McBride, assistant director of the University Health Services. He said that there were more cases of gonorrhea last semester than there have been in two or three years.

One of six physicians working with gonorrhea cases, he is treating "a dozen or so" patients. Although the Health Center keeps a day-to-day tally of the disease, Dr. McBride said that he does not yet have access to all of them.

VD and UMass

As to what is being done to pubicize the VD problem on campus, Dr. McBride said that "There is a great need for educational films on veneral disease."

The Health Service rents out films for dormitory use, but due to fewer student requests, there are fewer films being shown this year than in the past. One of the reasons for this lack of requests, Dr. McBride said, is that the films being shown now are too trite.

According to Dr. McBride there is another problem besides the disease itself.

"Veneral disease is always a problem, but there is also the problem of students who are afraid to report veneral disease when they recognize it."

Dr. McBride said that all the cases are being treated in strict confidence. Cases are reported by code number only.

Birth Control

Attributing the consequence of veneral disease to promiscuity from the advent of the "pill", Dr. McBride said that "birth control pills are no protection against veneral disease."

Films on venereal disease, he said, should be first shown in the eighth grade. For Dr. McBride, sex education, started early in the elementary school, would help students to understand sexual relationships more fully.

Pamphlets on venereal disease, including the types, symptoms, and cures, are available at the Infirmary.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan Injured in Excavation Collapse

TEL AVIV (AP) — The dirt walls of an archaeological excavation collapsed and buried Defense Minister Moshe Dayan Wednesday, seriously injuring the Israeli hero of three wars as he hunted for artifacts for his backyard museum.

Reliable sources said the main artery to his heart was damaged but Dr. Haim Schreiber, director general of Tel Hashomer Hospital, said Dayan was "in no danger and his condition is satisfactory."

The sources said the cave-in had injured Dayan's aorta, the main vessel carrying blood from the heart, and that an operation might be necessary. The earth and gravel that crashed around Dayan also broke two ribs, a vertebra, and caused chest injuries and possible internal damage.

X-Ray Treatment

Doctors said Dayan was undergoing a series of r-rays to determine the full extent of his injuries. They described him as being "in good spirits," and said he had a radio at his bedside "so he can keep in touch with the current situation and international events."

Dayan has joined fighting and archaeology all his life and as he explained to an interviewer: "I suppose I go digging not only because I like archaeology but also to be alone."

Tonight DVP Presents Last Talk In "American City" Series

By NEAL NOVACK
Staff Reporter

"The Pathology of the American City: Political and Social Perspectives" is the last in the series of discussions being presented by the Distinguished Visitors Program. The panel discussion, which will be held tonight at 8:00 P.M. in Mahar Auditorium, will be moderated by Dr. Everett Lee, Chairman of the Department of Sociology here at the University. Included on the panel are: Hon. Thomas I. Atkins, Dr. Webb S. Fiser, Dr. Norton E. Long, and Dr. Leonard Reissman.

Boston City Councilman and former Chairman of the Model Cities Community Conference, Mr. Atkins comes armed with positive insights and solutions to the urban Negro's problems. His objective of integration is similar to that expressed by the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

Legislative Achievements

Dr. Fiser, Professor of Government at the State University of New York, holds a dim view of the success of the judicial and legislative achievements of the civil rights movement; that if anything, these achievements have further frustrated the Negro's attempts to formulate political power.

Pointing out "man's inhumanity" as the major cause of the black communities impotency, Professor Long, Chairman of the Department of Politics at Brandeis University, has stated that "one condition of responsible government is that no appreciable element of the community should be politically powerless."

In his book, The Urban Process, Dr. Reissman distinguishes between "the practitioner for urban improvement as committed to a job, and the visionary as dedicated to an ideal."

PROF'S WIFE HAS CAR TROUBLE

A visiting professor's wife from Germany is looking for someone to help instill confidence in her driving ability. Mrs. Edding and her husband, who is a visiting professor in the sociology department, arrived in this country from West Berlin last November. Mrs. Edding has received an American driver's license and proper insurance; however, she still has a lack of confidence driving an automobile in this strange country. Mrs. Edding is willing to pay someone to drive with her for just an hour a day in order to help build up her confidence. Mrs. Edding lives at 12 Wildwood Lane in Amherst. Her telephone number is 253-5457.

Eligibility Rules Published For Voting in Mass. Primary

Voters interested in voting in the presidential primary election on April 30 should be reminded of the procedures to followed in order to establish eligibility to vote in that election either as a Democrat or as a Republican.

1. Voters may cast a ballot in the primary election of only one party. They may not take part in both.
2. Voters currently enrolled as either Democrats or Republicans will be eligible to vote only in the primary election of that party unless they change their designations of party preference by March 30. All changes of party designation must be accomplished in the office of the town clerk.
3. Voters not currently enrolled as either Democrats or Republicans but registered as independents, may vote in either party primary (but not both) by designating a party preference on primary day.
4. Voters currently enrolled as Republicans who desire to vote in the Democratic primary (or vice versa) may follow two courses:
   a. They may change their designations of party preference and enroll with the clerk of their town as Democrats (or Republicans). If accomplished by March 30, this will enable them to vote in the primary election of that party.
   b. They may designate themselves as independents. If accomplished by March 30, this will enable them to vote in the primary election of either party by designating a party preference on primary day.
5. If they so desire, voters may change their party preference designations back to their original choices immediately after the primary election.

Voters should also be reminded that if they have previously participated in a party primary, they are still enrolled as members of the party in whose primary they most recently voted unless they have subsequently changed their registrations. If that is the case, they will be permitted to vote only in that party's primary unless they act by March 30 to change their registration status. Any voter who is not certain of his current enrollment should check with his town clerk before March 30. If he does not do so, he runs the risk of being denied the flexibility in primary participation that is afforded him by state law.

You are the only person who can answer that question.

To do it, you should know as much as possible about the 150 new plant units Du Pont has built since the end of World War II. You'd then choose from one of the many lively fields of interest at Du Pont: design, construction, production, marketing, research and process improvement (to name just a few).

Involvement starts the day you join. There is no training period. You go into responsible work right away. Your professional development is stimulated by real problems and by opportunities to continue your academic studies under a tuition refund program.

You work in small groups where individual contributions are quickly noted and appreciated.

The work is significant, and of benefit to society. You're part of the most exciting technical environment available today and tomorrow, and facilities and associates are the best.

How could you fit in? Why not sign up for a chat with a Du Pont interviewer and find out? The coupon will also bring you more information about us.

Finally, what is Project X?
We don't know yet. Could be we're waiting for you to tell us.

Housing Proposal

A new housing proposal has been sent to the Office of the Treasurer by the Housing Office. This proposal, though not an overwhelming revision of the present policy, constitutes nontheless a substantial change in University housing policy.

The proposal as outlined would replace the present room lease policy with a room license policy, thereby making it possible for the students to enter into their own contract without the usual parental co-signing.

The proposal also calls for a $50 room deposit to be made by all resident students which would ensure them the room of their choice. This deposit would also ensure the return of the vast majority of students to claim their rooms. This has been a problem in the past where from 4-7% of the students don't return resulting in much confusion at the beginning of each year. It would also substantially cut down on the number of triples that have to be set up and on the mass confusion witnessed after registration with the reassigning of rooms.

It is obvious that this new proposal has the best interests of the students in mind. The new license policy would place a very real responsibility on the individual student, freeing him from the usual parental backup and affording him worthwhile experience in the financial workings of the "Establishment." The $50 fee is, in essence, a guarantee which would ensure the student that his room would be held. The fee would be returned upon graduation or separation from the University. Besides this, the interest accumulated on the half million collected in deposits would be used solely for and by the students. According to Mr. Mike West, Assistant Director of Housing and originator of the proposal, the money collected in interest could be used to set up such programs as a financial aid fund, area programs, and for use by the individual residential areas for their cultural programs and area publications.

The benefits to the students by this proposal are almost greater than what the proposal was originally set up to do mechanically. With all the advantages to be gained and nothing to be lost, this proposed housing change appears to be infallable which ever way it goes. The Treasurer's Office, along with the Offices of the Provost and the President should view this proposal in light of the advantage to be gained by both the Administration and the student body. And in the best interest of all, this proposal should be passed and sent on to the Board of Trustees.

Faculty Senate Elections

In addition to being concerned with nearly every question of academic policy, the Faculty Senate this year has recommended on the open house proposal and a picketing demonstrating code and it may recommend on the proposals in the ad hoc Alcoholic Beverages Committee report. Thus, it is clear that the students have special interests which the Faculty Senate affects. Students also have a University-wide interest in this body of about 100 members of the faculty.

It has been argued by the President of the Student Senate that the Faculty Senate is not accountable to the student body except in one respect. According to the concepts of "due respect to the opinions of mankind" and according to the idealistic concept of the University as a tripartite community, the Faculty Senate, says Jim Collins, owes the student body an explanation or rationale for its actions, particularly those decisions affecting the special interests of students.

On the other hand, it follows that the student body is obliged to provide the Faculty Senate with reasoning for the adoption of its proposals. The question of how adequate is the communication between the two groups is left open to individual interpretation.

But the student body will be extremely negligent if it allows the opportunity presented by the April 4th elections of 43 members to the Faculty Senate to pass by without speaking up. Here is an un-paralleled opportunity to break the ice with members of the faculty by asking them if they are going to run, by asking them to consider the views of the students on the issues which concern them.

The fact that students may not be eligible to vote has apparently not deterred them from campaigning for President of the United States. Neither should the inability to vote preclude campaigning and participation in these University elections.

Here is an opportunity for the "open meeting" student who believes he has real grievances; here is an opportunity for the student who cares for nothing except academics. Academic policy is the heart of Faculty Senate concerns. If the students believe that they are at the heart of the University — the reason why the administration and the faculty are here—then the students have an obligation to influence the choice of Faculty Senators.

Shakespeare's Shylock"

To the editor:

The March 18 article on my Hillel lecture, entitled "Shakespeare's Shylock", was not only written poorly, but contained some gross errors. To set the record straight, allow me to state the following:

1) The first name of Re Lopex, who was Queen Elizabeth's physician was Roderigo, not Roderco.

2) Christopher Marlowe wrote his play The Jew of Malta (1589) before the Lopez incident, not because of it.

3) Antonio did not charge interest when lending money.

4) I never used the phrase, the "Trial Speech", whatever that is, or the phrase, "insuperable logic". I did say that in one speech in the Trial scene — when Shylock is discussing Christian slaves — his logic seems "unanswerable".

5) Lopez's execution did not cause the Elizabethans to view Jews critically, as suggested in the article. The Lopez affair merely aroused feelings that were already there.

6) Unkindest cut of all, my first name is Normand, not Norman.

Cordially yours,
Normand Berlin

Disrespectful Demonstration

To the editor:

We as Americans have the right to criticize our government. I feel that demonstrations are a healthy sign of our democracy. But, have you ever noticed how much the average draft card burner cherishes his social security card? Some people can take out their own anxieties on such complex issues as Vietnam. Why? Criticism for its own sake is worthless to society.

We don't have to look on our nation as "der hunterland" but at least we can give it a little respect.

When a supposedly intelligent college girl can cut up an American flag and make inserts for her bell-bottoms, I feel that this is going a little too far. I feel that this act is disrespectful, selfish, unloyal, and just plain not in good taste. (Besides being against the law.)

Thank You,

Lacking Bare Necessities

To the Editor:

An unusual thief resides on this floor,
Who ransacks drawers wherever opened doors.
Her loot is petty
Her values trite
I was a victim the other night.

She takes no clothes
But will steal hose.
She won't take money
And this too is funny
And strange, in my opinion.

My taperecorder, my typewriter too,
If you were a thief, what would you do?
Steal them, of course!
What did she take? What is my beef?
My underwear—this is my only grief ! !

Such is my tale, extemporaneously told.
The girl who stole, might have a reason to hold.
Perhaps, it's a hazing gimmick.
"Purloin girls' intimate apparel
And we'll make you a brother Harold." So he said to his girl.
Now he is happy, she is happy, and I am lacking in bare necessities.

newal of Senate funds. The Senate, however, is not obliged to appropriate funds even after this action.

Although the Senate did delay action on three recommendations, they passed two recommendations that will return remaining Forensic Society funds to the Senate and that would lead to judiciary action involved in the misuse of funds.

Other Business

President Jim Collins requested and received Student Senate approval to be appointed as a temporary member of the ad hoc Faculty Senate Calendar Board, which will deal with the academic schedule. Collins noted that he would give special attention to areas of: pre-registration (by mail), more sections for heavy enrolled classes, an increased number of field trips, and the question of Saturday classes and a tri-semester university.

The recently enacted "Open Question Period" was not used as no questions were received by the Senate. The new Question Period allows students to ask University officials questions by writing out their inquiries and bringing them to the Senate office the Monday before the weekly Wednesday Senate meeting. In this way, Prsident Collins added, the proper officials could be contacted to attend the meeting and reply to the questions.

WOOD . . .

Student Government Association is preparing a new constitution which, he said, would "abolish class government." Wood said, Classes are a little too important on this campus to be abolished."

According to the Senior Class President, the new S.C.A. constitution would take the power of approving class budgets from the executive councils and give it to the Student Senate. The main reason this is being considered, Wood said, is that many people do not consider the executive councils representative. He cited the Senior Week controversy this year as an example.

Executive Council Change

Wood announced that he is proposing a new set-up for the class government to avoid this criticism. In the structure, the executive council would be composed of 15 members elected at large. This body would pass on the budget and other financial matters. There would also be a "class assembly" which would act as an "advisory body," and be selected from applicants in the same manner as the present executive council.

He hopes this would "end all criticizing of the executive councils for not being representative."

Wood made another announcement of importance last night. Senior Week," he suggested to the council that the Senior Class go to a "day country club" called High Meadow in Granby, Conn. Each person would pay his own way. He also proposed a mixer locally on the same night. And then a picnic near the stadium on the following day. According to Wood this would all be paid for by the individuals. He wants to call it "May Festival."

TWO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS ARRESTED

Two U Mass students from Washington (Tower 6) were arrested early yesterday morning in Amherst by the University police.

The two pleaded not guilty to charges of possession of marajuana at the Northampton District Court. The case was continued to March 29.

The students are presently being held at the Hampshire County House of Correction on bail of $1,000 each.

SAM Bouncers Raise Heart Fund Money

By RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity at the University collected a total of $656.70 for the Western Massachusetts Heart Association last weekend.

The money was raised in a 24 hour period from 6:00 P.M. Friday evening through the same time on Saturday at the Springfield Shopping Plaza. The brothers drew attention for contributions by continual basketball bouncing during this tme.

Rado station WHYN of Springfield also provided publicity for the fund drive.

Bruce Abrams of the fraternity coordinated the money raising efforts and it received total participation from the house. The brothers worked three hour shifts at the Plaza.

A Sigma Alpha Mu member told the Collegian that the fraternity intended to make a yearly project of the heart fund drive. Last weekend's efforts were carried out on a national basis by all Sigma Mu fraternities across the country.

The local house also has done work at the Belchertown State Hospital, in the past.

Boston's Steve Rosoff Is Man Behind the Scenes in "Li'l Abner"

He is a song writer, an actor, a comedian, an entertainer. He is Steve Rosoff who comes from Boston to direct the Operetta Guild's spring production of "Li'l Abner" to be presented in Bowker Auditorium April 4, 5, 6 & 7.

His background is widely diversified having performed in nightclubs in the San Diego, Cal. area and also having written for the Hollywood Comedy Workshop during which time some of his material was used by Phyllis Diller.

Lately, at his home in Boston he has been working on his own musical review entitled "Mondo-Lulu", songs from which are frequently performed in the Boston nightclub circuit.

The UMass campus is not new to Steve as he spent most of his undergraduate years here.

The Operetta Guild is also one of Steve's old acquaintances as he appeared in their 1964 and 1965 productions of Pajama Game and Kiss Me Kate. His directing talents were also previewed in the 1965 Orchard Hill production of Oh Dad, Poor Dad.

Now he has returned, not only to enchant audiences with his bovarian charm in the personnage of General Bullmoose, the sly conniving politician who is after Mammy Yokum's infamous Yokumberry Tonic, but also to bring out all the dazzel and sparkle of that hillbilly hysteria from Dogpatch U. S. A.

Orchard Theater Workshop Plans Performances for Orchard Hill Week

By MICHAEL BRADLEY
Staff Reporter

The first meeting of the Orchard Hill Theater Workshop was held in Grayson House on Monday, March 18. At the organizational meeting it was decided to present a series of performances in conjunction with Orchard Hill Week, to be held April 28 to May 5.

Richard Duggan, a sophomore, was elected chairman of the group. In discussing the workshop's format, Duggan said, "We hope to break away from the typical, commonly-done material usually performed on campus stages." He went on to express hope that the group would be "a voice", presenting the creative work of students and professors. It has not been decided what work will be performed in the May presentations. Presently under consideration is "The Hairy Seducer" by Ashley Walker, a recent UMass graduate.

New Members Needed

The group plans to specialize in "unproduced student plays," Duggan stated. "We would welcome manuscripts from any source." The company also solicits new members interested in any aspect of the theater, from on or off the Hill. Previous dramatic experience is not required. Students wishing to join or to submit works for consideration should contact Duggan, 205 Grayson, or telephone 546-6897. A second meeting will be held on Monday, April 1, at 7:00 P.M. in the Grayson Lounge.

The students in the workshop will direct and produce plays themselves. Make-up, set design, costumes and lighting will be largely informal.

Redmen to Defend Title

Faced with the most rugged schedule in the history of Redman baseball, the 1967 Yankee Conference champions will be seeking to regain their title as the season gets underway next week with a six game away stint in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

In addition to playing the five other Yankee Conference teams, they will also play such rugged competitors as Dartmouth, Boston College and Colgate, all new additions this year, as well as perennial opponents Holy Cross, Springfield, American International, Williams, Amherst and Tufts. The District One playoffs are at the end of a long, hard road.

Coach Dick Berquist, starting his sophomore year as Redman coach, has 14 returning lettermen this year of a squad of 25 players.

Co-captain John Canty from Dudley, Mass., should be the mainstay of the pitching staff. The hard-throwing southpaw, an All District One First Team selection last year, struck out 145 in 92 innings to post an E.R.A. of 1.65 and an 8-2 record. Backing up Canty in the mound duties will be Dave Katz, Norm Elliott, Rich Rappoli and John Kitchen.

A battle is shaping up for the catching positions between veterans Tony Chinappi, Ed Lagey and Ernie Smith. Adding to the competition will be sophomore Chuck Newell, who is vieing for a position on the varsity.

Joe DiSarcina, fresh from the boards of the Cage, will be at the shortstop position this year. Last year he batted .339 to lead the Redmen.

The rest of the infield chores will be handled by inexperienced, although capable, players. Second and third base are up for grabs, and Bob Hansen, who hit .469 for the freshmen last year could win the first base position.

Co-captain Don Ferron, a .317 hitter as a junior, is a sure starter, probably as an outfielder. Ted Mareno and Alex Vyce, both returning lettermen, will be hard pressed by sophomores Dick Depin and Chuck Espanet, both seeking places on the varsity.

Other players with good potential are Fred Tomber, a transfer infielder, Ray Ellerbrook, and utility man Steve Rogers who can pitch, play the outfield or first base.

Next week's games, although non-conference games, should be a good preview of the team's potential. Last year the Redmen swept the two game series against Erskine by scores of 16-5 and 9-4. Belmont Abbey, Randolph-Macon and the University of Maryland are new additions to the schedule.

Frosh Ball Players Cut; Season Opens in April

By KEN SCHWARTZ
Staff Reporter

After three weeks of daily workouts in the Curry Hicks Cage, the freshman baseball team has been cut down to 36 players, almost half of which are catchers and pitchers.

Of the 14 pitchers remaining on the squad, Coach Allan Barber hopes to keep at least 10. Although it is still early, pitchers Don Anderson, Lou Collabele and Jack Bernardo should be the stalwarts of the mound staff. Barber does feel that he will get full use of all his pitchers especially in the early stages of the season.

Catching should also be a strong point for the freshman with Paul Sulcicki, Dan Roberts and Bob Wilman, all good receivers who can play other positions as well.

Only five outfielders remain on the squad led by hard-hitting Mitch Salnick, Mike Minkos and Steve Verenis.

The infield positions are wide open. Duane Brown, Mike Flynn and freshman basketball player Bill Greeley are fighting for the third base position. The shortstop job is still very uncertain, and there are five players after the second base spot. Stan Winston should have a good shot at first base.

Coach Barber will cut the squad down to 25 players before the season opens April 16 against Springfield College. Weather permitting the team will begin outdoor workouts immediately following a Spring recess. The coaching staff and squad are both hoping for better playing conditions than existed last year.

By MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

The presentation of the George "Trigger" Burke Trophy which symbolizes the team's most valuable player, to Captain Billy Tindall and the naming of Joey DiSarcina and Peter Gayeska as next year's co-captains highlighted last night's banquet honoring the 1967-68 UMass basketball team.

Gayeska also walked off with the George Henry Richards trophy naming him the most improved player on the squad, while DiSarcina also captured the Samuel B. Samuels Trophy for foul shooting excellence.

Varsity M Club citations were handed out to Tindall, DiSarcina, Gary Gasperack, Ray Ellerbrook, Jim Girotti and Rick Perkins for their efforts this year.

Guests at the head table included Dean Warren P. McGuirk, Toastmaster George Richason, Chairman of the University Athletic Council, Evan Johnston, Executive Director of the Alumni Association and John P. Donahue, Head Basketball Coach at Holy Cross, in addition to Coach Jack Leaman and Tindall.

Coach Donahue broke up the crowd with a rapid-fire delivery of anecdotes and good-humored jabs at the officials present. He also had compliments for Coach Leaman and the rest of the Yankee Conference Champion Redman team.

Dean McGuirk expressed pride at the team's success and paid high tribute to Coach Leaman, terming him "extremely dedicated."

Coach Leaman singled out his assistants, Peter Broaca and Jack Aggar, for their exceptionally fine scouting reports of the UMass opponents for the season. He also had high praise for the Pep Band which entertained at all UMass home games and were guests of the Redmen at their banquet.

The players selected an All-Opponent team which consisted of: First team: Terry Driscoll, Boston College; Ed Siudut, Holy Cross; Mickey McCarthy, Texas Christian; Larry Johnson, Rhode Island; Stu Kerzner, Providence. The second team consisted of: Bill Corley, Connecticut; Jim Hayes, Boston University; John Warren, St. John's; Jim Murray, Holy Cross; Al Hayes, Providence.

President Lyndon Baines Johnson

Immediate Bombing Halt In North Vietnam Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson stunned the nation and the world Sunday night by announcing, "I shall not seek, and will not accept the nomination of my party for another term as your President."

No Time For Partisanship

Johnson said he reached this conclusion because "with America's sons in the field far away, with America's future under challenge here at home, with our hopes — and the world's hopes — for peace in the balance every day, I do not believe that I should devote an hour of my time to any personal partisan causes or to any duties other than the awesome duties of this office."

This statement, and the warning against division in the country which preceded it, were not in the President's prepared text that was given out by the White House in advance of his broadcast. Officials had said, however, that there would be some addition to the prepared remarks.

His announcement came at the end of a nationally broadcast speech.

Halts Bombing

In the early part of the 40-minute talk he disclosed that he is halting nearly all air and sea action against North Vietnam in an effort to bring peace talks.

Johnson called this cessation of bombardments "the "first step to de-escalate the conflict."

Here are Johnson's historic words:

Declines Another Term

"With our hopes and the world's hopes for peace in the world in the balance every day, I do not believe that I should devote an hour or a day of my time to any personal partisan call or to any duties other than the duties of this office, the presidency of your country.

"Accordingly I shall not seek and I will not accept the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

Emotion Charged Speech

Johnson's new peace bid was voiced before he added to his distributed-in-advance text a very emotional statement in which he announced his bombshell decision against seeking re-election.

Throughout these passages, Johnson lamented that "there is division in the American house now" which he argued imperils the future of the land.

There were tears glistening in Johnson's eyes as he made his bombshell announcement.

"What he won when all our people united," Johnson asserted, "must not now be lost in suspicion, distrust and selfishness among any of our people.

"Believing this as I do, I have concluded that I should not permit the presidency to become involved in the partisan division that are developing in this political year."

New Political Picture

Johnson's language seemed to indicate he might even take a hands-off attitude toward the selection of a Demo-

Vice President Humphrey

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Vice President Hubert H Humphrey said last night that President Johnson's decision not to seek a new term was no surprise to him. But Humphrey did not say what his own future plans might be.

The vice president made a brief statement at the U.S. Embassy residence in Mexico City after listening to a radio broadcast of Johnson's speech.

Humphrey declined to answer questions, but said Johnson's announcement was a sad moment for him and predicted history would judge Johnson as a great man in a difficult time

Senator Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy will have no comment until today on President Johnson's decision not to seek re-election, an aide said Sunday night.

Kennedy learned of Johnson's announcement upon arrival at Kennedy Airport from a western trip in his campaign to win the Democratic presidential nomination. "I have nothing to say," Kennedy told newsmen.

Kennedy had scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. today to comment on Johnson's address.

Senator McCarthy

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy said last night President Johnson's decision not to seek another term was a "generous judgment" which clears the way for a reconciliation of the American people.

The Minnesota senator said the voters now have a difficult choice to make.

"In the months to come, I will continue to seek only the popular judgment and support for my candidacy," McCarthy said.

"I look upon this as a personally sad and difficult moment for a man who has given so many years to the service of his country," McCarthy said.

It's Not April Fool

by DON EPSTEIN
Managing Editor

Who would have believed it?

- George Romney bowing out before the New Hampshire primary.
- Eugene McCarthy coming within 200 hundred votes of defeating President Johnson in the New Hampshire primary.
- Nelson Rockefeller refusing to run for the Republican nomination.
- Robert Kennedy picking 1968 as his year to run for the presidency.
- Lyndon B. Johnson announcing that he would not run for re-election as President of the United States.

President Johnson's bombshell announcement last night that he will not seek or accept renomination plunged the 1968 presidential race into chaos.

The first question to be raised, "Why did Mr. Johnson decide not to run and why did he announce his decision at this time coinciding with the announcement to de-escalate the war in Viet Nam?"

White House press secretary George Christian said that Johnson had in his pocket on the night of his State of the Union message (Jan. 17, 1968) the text of the announcement that he would not run for re-election.

Some political analysts have interpreted Johnson's decision not to run as a confession that his Vietnam policy has failed. The President says that he just doesn't have the time to campaign. "With our hopes and the world's hopes for peace in the balance every day,' he said, "I do not believe that I should devote an hour or a day of my time to any personal partisan call or to any duties other than the duties of this office, the presidency of your country."

Why did Mr. Johnson choose to announce his decision just two days before the Wisconsin primary? The latest polls from Wisconsin show Senator Eugene McCarthy leading the President by an ever increasing margin. In recent days members of the President's cabinet campaigning in Wisconsin have been booed and harassed. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman was forced to cut short a speech in Madison, Wisconsin, the other day due to an adverse audience reaction.

Ultimately the foremost influence in the President's decision must be considered to be the results of the New Hampshire primary. The surprisingly strong showing of the anti-war candidate McCarthy brought to the surface the anti-Johnson sentiment over the entire country.

The effect of Johnson's withdrawal on the Vietnam war can not be calculated immediately. Although announcing steps to de-escalate the war and renew the search for peace negotiations, Johnson reinforced the American commitment to the war torn nation by ordering 25,000 more men to the war zone and by calling up certain reserve units.

The chances of Johnson's new peace initiative succeeding are very slim. Ho Chi Minh will probably not even consider seriously negotiations until Johnson is out of the White House. He doesn't want President Johnson to feel that he was the man who brought the Vietnam war to an end. The President's statement last night will do little to bring the war to an immediate halt.

The surprise Presidential announcement projected Senator Robert F. Kennedy and Senator Eugene McCarthy, as well as Vice President Hubert Humphrey, into the forefront of the possible Democratic nominees. Others could emerge.

Will Humphrey seek the nomination? It's too late for him to enter any of the primaries. If the Vice President should decide to run, would President Johnson actively support him?

President Johnson and Senator Kennedy have never admired each other. It's no secret that Kennedy opposed the selection of Johnson as his brother's running mate in 1960. Some columnists have called the Lyndon-Bobby relationship as one based on deep dislike and distrust for each other. It seems highly unlikely that Lyndon Johnson, the master politician, would just forfeit the nomination to the New York Senator. The President must still have some tricks up his sleeve.

For the Republicans it's once again time for reappraisal. Richard M. Nixon, at this time, is unopposed for the GOP nomination. Later last night Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and several other leading Republicans urged New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller to reconsider his decision not to run. He will reconsider along with several other possible GOP contenders.

What does all this mean for the country? The nation now has a lame duck President. History has shown that such Presidents have had little success with the Congress in passing legislation. The chances of important fiscal and civil rights legislation passing Congress seem dubious.

A telegram from Vermont Governor Philip Hoff to the President seems to reflect the feelings of the nation: "The hearts of the country are with you in your decision to devote full time to the presidency. We hope it will strengthen the cause of peace in the world and the realization of the aspirations of all citizens throughout our country."

Hoff told newsmen that with Johnson's withdrawal "we have the opportunity to rediscover the American dream and purpose."

Donahue Sees Kennedy Victory; Campus Comment: "Wait and See"

by MARK SILVERMAN
News Day Editor

Massachusetts Senate President Maurice Donahue, in an exclusive telephone interview with the Daily Collegian, predicted that Senator Robert F. Kennedy will win the Democratic nomination for the Presidency and will go on to win in November.

Donahue expressed the shocked surprise which was shared by all political observers and politicians across the country. He hailed the President's courage in making the announcement.

He commented that the announcement, "was a great example of his (Johnson's) putting Americanism above party politics. He is making a great contribution to peace in our time."

In Donahue's startling prediction for Senator Kennedy, the Senate President said, "I do feel that Robert Kennedy will lead our party to victory in November." He added, "Humphrey will probably enter the fight for the nomination, although any sort of time-table for him would be very mixed-up."

UMass faculty members, when contacted by the Daily Collegian last night, were divided on the effect which the announcement would have on the Republican party but agreed that the true impact of the President's withdrawal will be impossible to judge for at least several weeks.

Government professor Sheldon Goldman stated that, "The announcement showed a combination of personal courage and great political realism."

In assessing the effect on the Republican party, Goldman saw the development to be a "shot in the arm for the GOP. It definitely enhances the chances of Nelson Rockefeller."

He went on to draw an analogy to the situation in the 1952 presidential election when Truman declined to run after the N.H. primary. He then concluded, "I think this proves that the two party system, despite its illnesses, is still indeed healthy."

Another Government professor, George Solzner, who has campaigned for President Johnson in the past, stated, "It's a big surprise. I would anticipate Humphrey to be a definite factor in the Democratic nomination. Also it might bring Rockefeller into the Republican picture."

The head of the Government department, Professor William Havard, said, "It's really very difficult to assess any effects right now; it's too early to speculate."

He went on to say, "This should obviously have more effect on the democrats than on the Republicans. It gives Johnson a great chance to say something on whom the Democrats will nominate."

Dr. Howard Quint, head of the History Department, said, "This is a moment of great pathos for the President. Whether you like or dislike him, you have to feel some sympathy for him." With respect to the Republican party, Quint stated, "It won't have much effect—Nixon will probably win."

Student comment reflected a wariness of Johnson's motives with those students contacted by the Daily Collegian generally unchanged in their support for a specific candidate.

Chet Weinerman, former Editor-in-Chief of the Daily Collegian, felt, "It's the best way for Johnson to go down because he's such an egomaniac. He may salvage his name for the history books."

In the race for the Presidency, Weinerman predicts a Rockefeller-Percy ticket opposing Kennedy and a Southern runningmate. Commented Weinerman, "I'm still for McCarthy."

Pete Ward, a McCarthy supporter said, "The future of the country looks better. The Democratic party won't be ripped apart. We still favor McCarthy."

Jack Dean, Daily Collegian Editor-in Chief stated "Kennedy is actually lucky for jumping in at exactly the right time. His name will definitely help him."

JOHNSON . . .

cratic nominee for the presidency.

Most observers had long assumed that Johnson was a certain, if unacknowledged, candidate.

Johnson's startling announcement raised the possibility of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey getting into a scramble for the Democratic presidential nomination. And it put in brand new light the bids of two announced Democratic candidates—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Vietnam Policy

In his major policy remarks on Vietnam, Johnson not only made a new move to seek peace talks but announced the authorized U.S. troop level there will be boosted by 24,500 men to about 550,000, that several thousand reservists will be called to active duty.

He said that, because of the war, the government estimates additional spending of $5.1 billion during the current and the next fiscal years.

Previously authorized troop strength was 525,000 men and about 511,000 are there now.

Seeks United Country

"What ever the trials and tests ahead," he said, "the ultimate strength of our country and our cause will lie not in powerful weapons or infinite resources or boundless wealth — but in the unity of our people.

"This I believe very deeply." Johnson said that throughout 37 years in public life, "I have put the unity of the people first, ahead of any divisive partisanship."

The chief executive asserted that "it is true that a house divided against itself—by the spirit of faction, of party, of region, of religion, of race—is a house that cannot stand."

Declaring that the American house now is divided, Johnson said:

"Holding the trust that is mine —as President of all the people —I cannot disregard the peril to the progress of the American people and the hope and prospects of peace for all peoples. I would ask all Americans—whatever their personal interest or concern—to guard against divisiveness and all its consequences."

Johnson concluded with a final sentence:

"Let men everywhere, however, know that a strong, confident, vigilant America stands ready to seek an honorable peace and ready to defend an honored cause, whatever the price, whatever the burden, whatever the sacrifice duty may require."

Principal Points

These were President Johnson's principal points relating to the Vietnam war:

—He announced a sharp limitation on the bombing and naval shelling of North Vietnam in a move to induce Hanoi to start talking peace.

—He authorized an increase of about 25,000 men in Vietnam, with the total to reach about 550,000.

—He ordered a callup of reservists to provide some of the support troops he is adding to the Vietnam force. The extent of the callup was not disclosed.

—He said war spending will be $2.5 billion above expenditures expected this year, and $2.6 billion higher than anticipated next fiscal year.

—He urged enactment of a tax increase now, together with general spending control, to protect U.S. prosperity and the stability of the dollar.

The U.S. Command halted Monday air and sea blows against North Vietnam except for the southern end of the country near the demilitarized zone.

Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of information, said the halt went into effect as President Johnson delivered a momentous speech in Washington ordering the curtailment.

Nixon Says, 'Don't Downgrade Humphrey'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said that President Johnson's decision against seeking reelection "may have strengthened his hand in the party and made it possible for him to name his successor."

"Don't downgrade Vice President Humphrey," Nixon said.

Nixon, practically unopposed for the Republican presidential nomination since Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan Gov. George Romney dropped out of the race, told newsmen at La Guardia Airport: "This seems to be the year of the dropout."

The former vice president, returning from a campaign trip to Milwaukee, was in the air during Johnson's address and didn't learn of the President's announcement until he landed.

"I was surprised," he said. He refused to comment directly on Johnson's decision. "I want to study the text of the President's remarks before I comment on them," he said.

U.N. Secretary U Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —President Johnson informed U.N. Secretary-General U Thant in advance of his speech Sunday night that he was stopping the bombing of nearly all North Vietnam.

But the secretary-general had no immediate comment on the President's move.

This was reported by a U.N. spokesman after the President announced the cessation of bombing on nationwide television.

He indicated Thant was not informed of the President's decision not to seek renomination.

Vietnam Comment

SAIGON (AP) — President Johnson's announcement that he would not run again was greeted with stunned disbelief Monday by American soldiers in Vietnam.

"I can't believe it," said a GI on the street.

"It's not true," said a sergeant.

"Man, that's wild. It's a whole new ball game," said a shocked civilian doctor.

An Army lieutenant who is a Republican said, "That is the best that has happened in the United States since 1960."

An Army captain who is a Johnson supporter said, "I can't believe it. I think he will be drafted again. I don't think there is any doubt it."

A Negro Air Force sergeant said, "I guess if he says he won't run that means he knew he was going to be elected."

"We are standing in the sink of eternity watching life go down the drain."

"Redman" Launched Safely Into Orbit

UMass officially entered the space race early this morning with the launching of a modified Redstone rocket. The "Redman" carried into orbit a five-man crew of specialists who will circle the earth for one week.

This crew is particularly unique in that it has no captain —each man has his own control board.

The crew consists of: Dick Wood, specialist in long, expensive trips; Joe Tabacco, who has been trying to get off the ground for the past year: Glenn Briere, coherent communications expert; Jack Dean, who may Exit in midweek; and Bart Kaplan, whose Mother's Voice will be heard across the state when she discovers he's up there.

The launching was supervised by agents S.P.E.C.T.R.U.M. and Y.A.H.O.O., whose vehicles have had much trouble getting off the pad in the past. Free advice was given by staffers of the Engineering Journal, and it was reported to be worth every penny.

The rocket was designed by the men responsible for the aesthetics of Whitmore Hall and the Southwest Complex wind tunnel.

The University yesterday joined the space race when it launched its modified Redman rocket from a gantry out behind Hasbrouck Space Center. Officials said that the ship would survey Mars for a possible Med School site.

A. J. Foyt To Pilot 'Daily Collegian' Press Car

The Student Senate yesterday announced that racing driver A.J. Foyt had been hired to drive the new Daily Collegian press car.

Informed sources said that Foyt, holder of some of racings highest awards, has been commissioned in order that the car will be pushed to maximum efficiency.

A holder of racings triple crown and a winner of the Blue Cross, Foyt considers University Drive one of the best quarter-miles in the country.

Contacted by the Daily Collegian, Foyt said that the new job would offer him a tremendous challenge. "No one yet has figured out a safe, fast method of getting in and out of the UMass campus. I aim to try."

University planners also responded to the challenge. Officials said that new road blocks would be installed and that asphalt curbings would be raised to three feet. Plans are also being considered for oil slicks and land mines along Ellis Drive should Foyt get that close to the Union.

Officials at O'Connell's Sons construction said that their crew would provide mud and ditches if called on by the University.

Daily Collegian editor Jack Dean praised the Senate move. The paper has been considering for some time a quicker method of getting to stories when they break. Dean said that with Foyt behind the wheel the staff is assured of beating WMUA to Dow sit-ins and the Newman Outdoor Rosary.

Students Disturbed By UFO Sightings

Students on campus were bothered last night by numerous UFO's. The Campus Police reported that the UFO's seemed to be centered in the Southwest area. However, several girls walking up to Orchard Hill near North Dining Commons were harrassed by UFO beings.

The incident began about 11:30 when several students were amazed to see UFO's "people" roaming through the 19th floor of John Adams Tower.

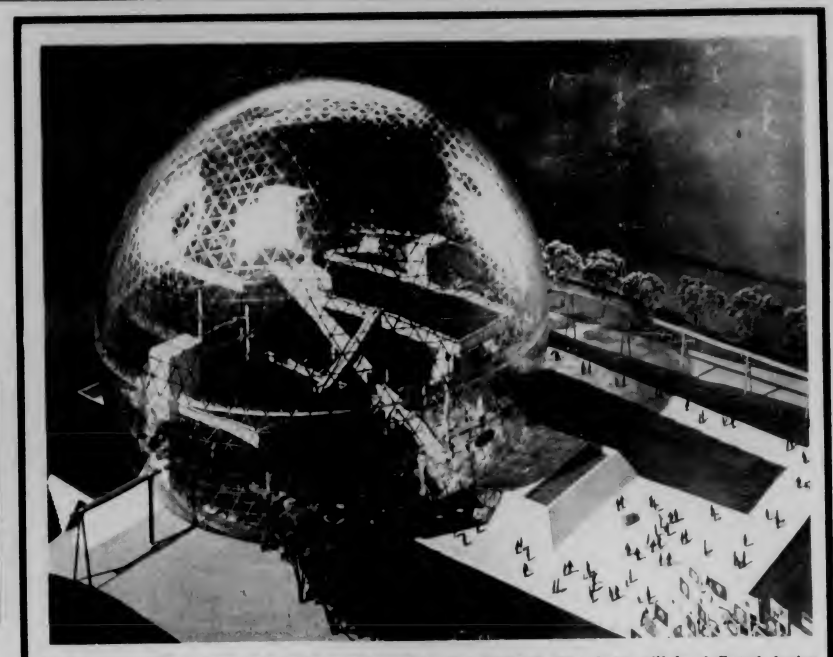
The UFO's were numerous and no clear description was given. The average UFO craft had lights that flickered in the front and rear of it and traveled at varying rates of speed.

Unlike most UFO's that seem to shy away from direct contact with people these UFO representatives made many direct contacts with students. There were no injuries reported throughout the night but the Infirmary reported a number of "shaken students."

Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee refused to give any details about the incident other than the only reported sightings were in the UMass campus.

A number of students interviewed after their contact said that they would help this new Campus and State Police would funds to educate the legislature.

give no detailed information of the events.



The UFO beings carried tin cans and said that they were out to win support from students.

cult in whatever way they could. By 12:30 most of the UFO's had gone but the campus remained far from quiet.

One of the UFO representa tives identified himself as a member of the United Front Organization which was raising

Lederle Blasts Abuse of Grass

President John Lederle today blasted the "foolhardy use of grass" by UMass students, Lederle noted recent health reports on the dangers of prolonged abuse of grass and called on deans and dorm counselors to "keep the campus from going to pot".

"The path of the straight and narrow is not that difficult if students would not blow their minds", Lederle told the audience behind the Uunion.

In response to the blast, the Mother of Voices published a special edition criticising Lederle for his "facist intrusion of the personal lives of the students".

The Civil Liberties Union said that it would look into possible violations of the Constitution and reasserted its position to defend the rights of the individual.

Contacted about the abuse of grass on campus, the Greeks reported no knowledge of the situation. Orchard Hill students said that many of their numbers were particularly partial to grass in its many forms.

A noted UMass sociologist said that the use of grass is a social phenomenon caused by acute alienation. "Students, by avoiding paved walks and crossing grassy strips, are showing their rejection of established institutions of society," he said.

Lederle said he was presently consulting with University architects about the possibility of paving the entire campus as one means of ending the grass problem.

The Arcon guide service has recently extended its tour service through campus now making it New England's Longest Guide Tour. Additional stops include the site of the underground garage pictured above, President Lederle Garden and the water towers atop Van Meter Hill.

Daily Collegian Budget Approved

The Student Senate yesterday proposed a radical increase in the Daily Collegian budget from its present $67,000 to $5,000,000 for the coming year.

Included in the proposed increase are plans for printing both a morning and afternoon paper, the publishing of six specials a week, the addition of a fleet of staff cars, pay for the editors, three new typewriters , and an 8x10 color photo of the Student Communications Board, the undisputed power behind UMass Mass Media.

The reason for the large increase, according to Senator Larry Marcus, is, "So that the Daily Collegian can continue to cover the news of the campus in the same comprehensive, accurate, and unbiased manner which so characterized the editorship of Chet Weinerman."

Commenting on the proposal, Junior Class President Wayne Thomas stated that, "We must cooperate fully with the Editors so that they may continue to produce the quality product which we have become used to."

Dean of Students, William Field, commented that, "I think that for the paper to fully fill the expectations that the Senate holds for it, it must merge in the near future with the Mother of Voices, so that the best of both might be combined." President Lederle was not available for comment on this proposal.

Regarding this impending foreign aid. Daily Collegian Editor-in-Chief J. Harris Dean stated that "if the Senate really thinks that it can get away with giving us all this money they're crazy."

Student Reaction Is Varied To New Campus Dress Code

President John W. Lederle announced today that all students must conform to the dress code passed by the State Legislature last week.

After conferring with University lawyers and the American Civil Liberties Union, Lederle said, "There's no way around it; we've got to conform." He has "regretfully" instructed Chief Blasko to order all campus policemen to arrest on sight all students who are not "properly dressed" as of Wednesday noon.

According to a source close to Blanko (not his wife), the Chief was ecstatic when he heard the ruling and exclaimed, "We've got those dirty little beatniks now!"

One patrolman, who didn't want to be identified, said, that the Chief expanded on Lederle's order and told his men: "Three warning shots in the leg if necessary."

The legislature's action and the President's decision has aroused much difference of opinion on campus.

Bart Kaplan, editor of the widely-read Mother of Voices, called for "direct action" on the part of the student body: "The only course of action left for us is a confrontation with those fascists on Beacon Hill. So I, representing the entire student body, am calling for a 'clothe-in' this Thursday at 2 p.m. at the State House. We will enter the building 'properly dressed' and then undress in the lobby. Then we'll burn our clothes."

John Siegal, campus luminary, said, "NOW! NOW! NOW!!! We're not going to undress next week; we're not going to undress Thursday; We're going to undress NOW!" Whereupon he did.

When asked to comment on the dress code, Prof. Sidney Wexler of the Faculty Senate just snickered.

After Lederle's announcement, Student Senate President James Colins began to address anyone who would listen: "In order to preserve the tri-partite system, we must seek united action, after thoughtful consideration, to wipe out mosquitoes."

Before he could be questioned by a Daily Collegian reporter, Student Senate Treasurer Paul Silverman yelled at him, "We're going to cut your budget" and ran off laughing.

The "Five-Point" Code

As a public service the Daily Collegian is reprinting the new dress code adopted by the Massachusetts legislature. The author of the code, Representative Charles Ianello, told the Daily Collegian in an exclusive interview: "We are not trying to abridge the students' rights, we are just trying to halt the moral cancer that is eating away at the soul of this grand Commonwealth. In this sad age of degeneracy and atheistic Communism, we must protect our impressionable young people from the corrosive influences propagated by the International Communist Conspiracy through Carnaby Street and various army-navy stores. We are now working on the Subversive Clothing Store Act to stop this kind of undermining of our great Christian American system which has served the world so well and faithfully. This should also serve notice to all those left-wing intellectuals out there that their time is coming."

DRESS CODE

1.) All female students must wear skirts which come to at least four inches below the knee. No pants or slacks of any kind will be allowed outside the student's room.

2.) All male students may not have hair at a length of more than two and a half inches on top, and one inch on the side. Men will be clean-shaven between the hours of 5 A.M. and 2 A.M.

3.) Students must wear clothes purchased at either Zayre's or Robert Hall's.

4.) No "mod" clothing will be allowed on campus—especially Mao jackets.

5.) Additions to this code may be made with the approval of the American Legion, the Daughters of the American Revolution and Wayne Soini.

Kennedy Withdraws

WASHINGTON (STP) Robert F. Kennedy today became the latest candidate to withdraw his name from all primaries and make the "Sherman statement" that he will not run if nominated and will not serve if elected.

"My decision stands alone and has nothing to do with the recent withdrawal of Senator McCarthy," Kennedy said in a written statement prepared for the press this morning. A Kennedy aide, however, is reported as saying that Kennedy had decided that "this is a race no one can win" and that he had withdrawn rather than fight to merely save face.

Senator Kennedy was the last of the possible well-known contenders for the nomination in opposition to President Johnson's selected stand-in, Hubert H. Humphrey. Hubert Humphrey, a dark-horse little known outside of Washington whose offices include the vice-presidency, is campaigning against Peter Ward, a dark-horse Massachusetts favorite son formerly high in McCarthy circles. Delegation pledges presently stand at 2 for Humphrey, 13 for Ward. Democratic Party Chairman John Bailey is urging all delegates to attend the upcoming Chicago convention. "We simply must have a quorum," Bailey has telegraphed state party headquarters who have indicated their lack of interest.

Facing either Humphrey or Ward in the upcoming election will be other dark horses, John Lederle and Arthur E. T. Levesque, Jr. Lederle is running on his colorful image as hard-hitting student ruler of the University of Massachusetts. Those who are campaigning for Levesque (who has not yet officially announced) are emphasizing the advantages of a no-image candidate to face Humphrey. The chairman of the Republican Party, Ray Bliss, is confident of a quorum at the Republican convention. A smoke-filled room has been reserved at the Miami-Mammy Motel to house delegates.

Nelson Rockefeller withdrew in favor of "anyone the party endorses" as he was in doubt about the Oregon primary results. Polls indicating that he could not win prompted his decision. Richard Nixon, in an embittered speech following his Massachusetts primary loss to comedian Pat Paulsen, a write-in, told the press that he withdrew from seeking the Presidency to actively campaign for the vice-presidency. Nixon followers are hopeful of capturing this office or Secretary of State "once we win." Nixon's political future had been held in some doubt since he lost the 1960 race, the California governorship, and the New York garbage case.

Blasko Unveils New Plan

Alexander (Red) Blasko, chief of the UMass police department, revealed yesterday at a hastily called press conference that he has requested the addition of seven new cruisers to the three which are now in use. According to Blasko, this is presently "the department's most pressing need."

Asked by one reporter if his present manpower shortage would in any way hinder the use of the new cars, the chief stated that he had a plan "all worked out" by which his five man force would rotate the use of the cars until more men could be added to the force.

"Once we have the cruisers, then they'll have to give us the men," said Blasko, grinning. "Then we'll have the largest, best equipped college police force in the country," he added. The chief hinted that the new cruisers might possibly bear a slogan on their doors: "New England's Largest College Police Force".

"I see no problem finding enough work for 10 cruisers," he continued, "It's true that North Pleasant is the only real 'through street' on campus now and that each year we'll see fewer cars in the classroom area, but as enrollment increases—and with it the number of student cars — we're going to find it increasingly hard to cover University Drive adequately."

University Drive is a mile-long, two-lane road which opened last year. It provides easy access to Alumni Stadium and the Southwest dormitory complex from Route 9.

"With this many cruisers we can keep it under 24-hour surveillance," he added. Also mentioned was the possibility of branching out to cover Routes 9 and 116. He implied this would help push up his revenue quota, although he stressed, "Our main concern is for the residents of the area, pedestrians, and the many careful drivers who use the road."

Addressing himself to rumors concerning speeding on North Pleasant Street, Blasko said, "I'm sure they're greatly exaggerated, but I have thought of sending someone up to see."

He reiterated that University Drive is his biggest headache. "Students just don't seem to believe that those signs say '20 MPH'," he said. In answer to a question concerning the number of pedestrians who frequent the area each day, Blasko stated that he "really has no definite figures" and that "while the number right now isn't too large, we do project many more in the not-too-distant future."

There are only two buildings on the road—a nursing home and a business complex housing Bell's Pizza, a billiards parlor and Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., owner of the building and printer of the DAILY COLLEGIAN.

The chief himself often goes out to lend a hand with the new "control parking" system.

In reply to a question concerning discrimination between students and adults, the chief retorted, "Don't be ridiculous. Everyone is equal in the eyes of the law. My men would never stop a young hot rodder instead of an elderly gentleman."

When one reporter inquired about the speed limit being 20 MPH on such a safe, straight, deserted stretch of road, Blasko answered that all campus roads "must be 20 MPH."

An alert DAILY COLLEGIAN reporter asked why North Pleasant Street is posted at 30 to 40 MPH "even in front of Marks Meadow Elementary School."

"It's a mystery to me," replied Blasko. "Maybe I ought to send someone up to check."

A.J. Foyt, recently hired to chauffeur the DAILY COLLEGIAN's new press car, when asked to comment on the situation, merely said: "I think University Drive would make the best dragstrip in Western Massachusetts. If this Blasko fella would like me to, I could use it to test his new cruisers . . ."

Humphrey Selects Slogan

In another busy day of campaigning Hubert Humphrey selected his slogan, "All the Way with HHH". Humphrey has stated that he will not campaign outside of Washington, D.C. The former Senator from Minnesota will conduct a front-porch campaign reminiscent of the successful 1920 Warren Harding campaign.

Johnson For V.P.?

Since the announcement yesterday of a Presidential news conference tonight at prime time, rumors have been rife that the President, who withdrew from consideration for re-nomination this week, will announce his intention to serve as Vice-president. A secondary rumor has it that the President will announce his appointment of himself as Secretary of Defense and resignation in favor of Hubert Humphrey, his chosen successor.

Gilmore Joins Hoop Team

Head basketball Coach Jack Leaman has announced that Artis Gilmore, a 7'-1 basketball standout from Chipola, Flaorida, will attend UMass next year.

Gilmore, who starred at Roulhac High in Chipola and presently is enrolled in a southern prep school, was one of the most highly sought after athletes ever to come out of Florida. At least 150 schools had offered the giant full scholarships.

Last weekend Gilmore visited UMass and was most impressed by the campus. He had already narrowed his choice of schools to Houston, UCLA, Texas Western and UMass at that time.

The big factor in Gilmore's decision to come to UMass was the Cage. He was awed by the huge skylight and stared dumbfoundedly as he watched the baseball team fielding grounders.

After heading back home, Gilmore made up his mind that the Cage would be his stomping grounds. He wired the other schools and told the disheartened coaches of his choice.

And so thanks to Curry Hicks Cage, Coach Jack Leaman has hauled in another big name from the Cousys and Woodens. Next fall Leaman expects to pack the Cage for every freshman game. Get your tickets early.

"The Cage is..." According to Lucy Van Pelt

TIME: Kindergarten Visitation Day, Fall, 1968

SCENE: Lucy and Linus Van Pelt, ages seven and five respectively, are standing before the Cage.

ACTION: Lucy is explaining to Linus what the Cage is.

LUCY: This is the Curry Hicks Cage, Linus.

LINUS: What is a "cage," Lucy?

LUCY: It's an indoor playground. See the green roof. That's so you can play inside when it rains and not get wet. You can also play at night because of the lights and see everything perfectly.

LINUS: Why do you look purple, Lucy?

LUCY: Next lesson, Linus, and do not interrupt me when I'm telling you something. The seats along the sides are so your playmates can come and watch you while you are playing. When the champion Redman basketball team plays here during the winter, all of their friends come and watch them.

LINUS: Lots of people can come and watch, can't they? How come the picture in the guide book only shows 30 people?

LUCY: The guide book says, "The Curry Hicks Cage was opened in 1931." I guess that was after they fixed it up. The Red Baron shot holes in the roof, and they had to put scotch tape over them. It also says that the Cage is used for concerts.

LINUS: You mean Schroeder could play his piano in here?

LUCY: Yes, and it will sound better than Beethoven does on records. Because the roof is so high, it keeps all the sounds in and they echo.

LINUS: Hey, we'll have to tell him when we get home.

LUCY: It also says in here that the baseball players practice in here in the spring. They take the boards off the floor and underneath it is dirt.

LINUS: We'll tell Snoopy and and Charlie Brown about that. Maybe they'll let us play our games in here.

LUCY: Yeah, all of these great lights are better than our one candle. Then we can see when the ball is coming. But maybe we can't because the ball will get caught in the net and one of us might break the glass roof when we hit a homerun.

LINUS: Pigpen would like to play in here.

LUCY: Yes, he can get all dirty playing in the dust and dirt around here. Patty wouldn't like it, though, she'd get her naturally curly hair dirty.

LINUS: When I grow up, Lucy, I want to come here. I've never seen such a beautiful building.

McCarthy, Nixon Gain Big Victories in Wisconsin Primary

Wallace

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., outdistanced President Johnson, the non-candidate, Tuesday night in the returns from the Wisconsin presidential primary.

McCarthy's showing, if the trend continued in the later tabulations, seemed likely to establish him in the front rank of Democratic nomination contenders as a candidate to be reckoned with in subsequent primary tests with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

Johnson

With gathering evidence that an expected Republican crossover into the Democratic primary was at a minimum level, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was rolling up an impressive total over two shadow contenders in party balloting.

Nixon received 80 per cent of his party's vote in the count. McCarthy got 57 per cent of the Democratic ballots cast.

At 8:00 a.m. this morning with 94 per cent of the precincts counted, McCarthy had 390,204 votes, Johnson 241,866, 35 per cent of the vote. With 94 per cent of the precincts in, Nixon had 371,432 votes, California Gov. Ronald Reagan had 48,968, Harold E. Stassen 27,281.

NBC DECLARES McCARTHY WINNER

The National Broadcasting Co., projecting the vote, declared at 9:31 p.m., EST, that McCarthy had defeated Johnson. At the same time, American Broadcasting Co. said that McCarthy had won with at least 50 per cent of the vote.

McCarthy was far ahead in the contest for the 57 Democratic convention votes at stake. Nixon seemed assured of all of the 30 GOP delegate votes.

McCarthy

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who has renounced active candidacy but has said he is open for a draft, was getting a scattered write-in vote that reached only about 1 per cent of the total in the early tabulations.

On the Democratic side there were only scattered write-ins for Kennedy, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, a potential third party candidate.

Humphrey said in New York he has not decided whether to run for president. "I'll let you know when I do," he said.

Rockefeller

In Minneapolis, prominent Democrats organized a movement to back Humphrey for the Democratic nomination. Dr. William Kubicek, secretary of the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party, said a state-wide volunteer committee was being formed.

Iowa Gov. Harold Hughes invited the nation's Democratic governors to an April 15 meeting in St. Louis to discuss "recent political events."

At stake in the final outcome was McCarthy's position as a challenger for the party nomination. Nixon's supporters were aiming to exceed the 29 per cent of the two-party total he got running unopposed in the 1960 primary to bolster his image as a vote-getter.

Nixon

With Johnson a dropout, McCarthy said "It's as though you were in a horse race and you made the final turn for home and the other horse jumps over the rail and starts to eat grass."

McCarthy told an informal news conference that the possible entry of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, his former Minnesota Senatorial colleague, into the race would be irrevalent.

CANDIDATES' PLANS

"It might give some people like labor leaders a place to hide for a while, but it won't make much difference one way or the other," he said.

Looking beyond Wisconsin to later primaries where he will meet Sen. Robert F. Kennedy head-on in the balloting, McCarthy flew out for a campaign speech in Omaha, Neb. That state's May 14 primary joust will follow their first face to face clash in the May 7 Indiana primary.

In a flying trip to Cincinnati, Ohio, Nixon reiterated a Wisconsin campaign theme—that world peace depends on talks between the United States and the Soviet Union at the highest level.

McCarthy scheduled a stop-off Wednesday for a speech in South Bend, Ind., on his way to Connecticut where his friends think he can harvest a sizeable share of the state's 44 convention votes.

Kennedy

Kennedy's aides announced in Washington he will visit Indiana Thursday as part of a campaign swing which will take him into Ohio, Louisiana, Kentucky, Alaska and South Dakota.

Reagan

Most of the steam of the anti-Vietnam protest was taken out of the Wisconsin campaign by Johnson's elimination of himself as a contender and his reduction in the bombing.

CONVENTION DELEGATES

Convention delegate election in Wisconsin was controlled by the popular vote for the candidates. Delegates representing 40 Democratic votes were elected by congressional districts, pledged to the candidate who got the highest popular vote in the district. A total of 17 went to the candidate with the highest statewide vote. The national committeeman and national committee woman were

Strikers Get Eviction Notices; They Feel 'No Immediate Threat'

by RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

The recent rent strike by residents of the University Park Apartment in Amherst witnessed a new development Tuesday night as over 30 tenants held a meeting at Amherst College to discuss eviction notices issued by owner Joseph Rousseau.

Notices of eviction were sent to between 35 and 40 residents on March 26 and April 1 as the tenants enter into the fifth week of their strike.

At last night's session attorney David Silverman of Springfield (representing the Ad Hoc Committee of tenants) issued a general statement to the press followed by an open question period. The group then went into executive meeting. There was no one of Rousseau's side present.

Silverman stated that "We are willing to meet the landlord half way." He added, however, that as evidence of his willingness, owner Rousseau on one hand has promised the committee repairs while on the other issuing eviction notices.

"If he wants to settle in a reasonable way, do it! But if he wants to take it to court, we are prepared to fight in court," said the Springfield counselor.

Regarding the eviction notices Silverman told the group that "there is no immediate threat of eviction. It must go through the courts." He added that at least 14 days must pass before any action can be taken regarding the notices.

The attorney said he feels that Rousseau is merely "trying to shake you up with these notices."

"We are not going to be shaken up by threats of eviction," declared Silverman.

Silverman stated that the main problem is to get negotiations of some form started with Rousseau and his lawyers.

Rousseau has expressed a request to carry out a detailed inspection of the premises and Silverman said the next move appears to be arrangement of such an inspection with both parties involved.

Several tenants at the meeting mentioned that Rousseau had met with some of the demands but Silverman quickly added that everything done had been since the rent strike and not without pressure.

RFK Renews Attack on LBJ; Wants to Review Position

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy renewed his attack on Pres. Johnson's handling of the Vietnam war Tuesday — even as the partial bombing halt ordered by the President was in effect.

The de-escalation ordered by Johnson Sunday night is "helpful," Kennedy acknowledged.

"But we have to re-examine our whole position in So. Vietnam," he said. "We have to develop policies so that we never get involved in Vietnams again.

"The bombs are still falling within 80 miles of Hanoi," he told some 10,000 applauding U-Penn. students. "A stopping of the bombing must be part of a coordinated plan for negotiations and settlement."

Kennedy became the likely front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination after Johnson removed himself from contention in his historic Sunday night address. While he called Monday for a national unity meeting with Johnson—and the President accepted — Kennedy made it clear in Philadelphia he will continue to hammer at the Johnson Administration's conduct of the war.

Pushing, shoving thousands greeted Kennedy as he arrived an hour late in the heart of Philadelphia for a street-corner rally timed to coincide with the lunch hour.

As they did throughout his 2-week tour of the West, the crowd surged around the candidate's motorcade, ruffled his hair, and pushed. At one point he said into a mike: "I'd like to announce that someone is taking off my shoe." Policemen pulled away a young girl tugging at his laces.

Kennedy then made his first visit to an Ivy League campus in a campaign that has been dominated by college appearances.

"The President's announcement of a bombing pause may prove to be the first step of a policy not of escalation but of de-escalation, and I think that's a policy we should follow in Vietnam," Kennedy said.

Tickets are free of charge and can be obtained this week, April 1-3 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. After Wednesday, if any tickets are left they may be picked up at the Women's Physical Education Building from the secretary.

Public Opinion Shifts Since LBJ Declines Re-election

(AP) — President Johnson's decision not to seek re-election, combined with his announced limited deescalation of the Vietnam war, has caused a major shift in American opinion of his war policy, a national market analysis firm reported Tuesday.

According to a nationwide telephone survey taken Monday by Sindlinger and Co. of suburban Norwood, 75 per cent of those contacted now believe Johnson is doing all he can to settle the war with only 11 per cent disagreeing. The rest offered no opinion.

Only days before Johnson's announcement Sunday, the same at random survey showed that for the first time, more Americans than ever before—43 per cent of those contacted—did not believe Johnson was doing all he could to end the conflict.

At that time, March 23 through 25, 41 per cent believed he was doing all possible.

The Monday poll showed that about 46 per cent of adult Americans would support President Johnson in the November elections if his party could convince him to change his mind about running. More than 31 per cent said they would not support him, and another 22 per cent refused to answer the question.

Albert M. Sindlinger, president of the firm, said the shift in opinion since Johnson's announcement is the "most radical" he has seen during 30 years of opinion research.

The Sindlinger poll based its projected findings Monday on a sample of 379 adults over 18 years of age, the report said.

Nixon Sees Wisconsin Republican

(AP) — Richard M. Nixon said Tuesday night the size of his vote in the Wisconsin presidential primary "is a certain sign that Wisconsin will be in the Republican column in November."

With almost half of the precincts in, Nixon had about 80% of the Republican vote. The former vice-president, in a victory statement issued at his Park Ave. headquarters, said that although there was hard campaigning ahead, the signs point to victory in November.

Nixon's statement was issued before all the Wisconsin returns were in but he said the first ones indicated "clearly that the tide that began to flow in New Hampshire continues to flow tonight. If current trends hold up we will receive the same 80% of the Republican vote we won.

Powell III, Cancels UMass Appearance

Former Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell's scheduled appearance at UMass tonight has been cancelled. Powell was admitted to a North Carolina hospital on Monday night showing what doctors termed "symptoms due to exhaustion."

The controversial Senator was said to be "resting comfortably" and remained for observation Monday night at the Duke University Medical Center. It is not known at present if the Distinguished Visitors Program will reschedule his appearance here.

Tom O'Connell of the DVP told the Collegian that Powell's recent illness would definitely mean cancellation of tonight's scheduled speech but said he was "unsure" of the near future.

Powell's sources said that he would try to meet his speaking committments after his release but would make no further comments to the University.

Soviet Underground Poetry To Be Read This Afternoon

Underground poetry by young, often defiant writers in the Soviet Union will be the subject of Professor Joseph Langland's poetry reading today at 4:00 in the Worcester Room of the Student Union.

Underground poetry, critical of the political, social, and aesthetic conditions has been increasing in the Soviet Union since the death of Stalin. However, the situation made world wide headlines with the sudden governmental crackdown and arrests of Vladimir Berkovski, Aleksei Dobrovolsky, and Yuri Galanskov. The three men were declared guilty without trial and are still imprisoned.

Professors Tamas Aczel, Lazlo Tikos, and Joseph Langland, all of the University of Massachusetts, have cooperated as translators of manuscripts, many of which have been smuggled out of Russia, and will publish a collection of these important works in a volume of English translations.

Professor Joseph Langland

Professor Langland, who will read the poems in translation, is well known at UMass. His collection of poems, The Wheel of Summer, won the Melville Crane Award in 1963; he has published poetry in numerous journals, including Poetry, Atlantic, New Yorker, Hudson Review, Paris Review, London Magazine, Saturday Review, and many others.

Professor Langland has also been guest lecturer in poetry at the Universities of British Columbia, Washington, and the San Francisco Poetry Center, and has read his own poetry at University College, Dublin, University Glasgow, London. University of Sussex, Munich University, and Oslo University. He will be poet in residence at the University of Oregon Festival of the Arts this summer.

The poetry reading is the fifth in the ORAL MESSAGES series begun this semester at UMass, and is open to the public without charge.

Food Service Campaigns Against Silver Shortage; Institutes Plastic Standard for Borrowed Wares

by PAT PETOW
Senior Reporter

A full-scale campaign will be launched this Friday by the University Food Services to persuade students to return "borrowed" silverware to the dining commons where there is a critical shortage. Students who return the stainless steel silverware to boxes to be placed in each dining commons line will be presented with a place setting of sturdy plastic silverware.

The exchange is not merely symbolic explained Joel Stoneham, Associate Director of Food Services. With proper care, the plastic silverware can serve until the end of the semester.

In announcing the effort, a spokesman for the Student Senate Food Services Committee stated, "Silverware can only be supplied when a sufficient quantity is available. The quantity available has dwindled since the beginning of the semester by an explosion in borrowing."

At the present time, the Food Services account for the purchase of new silverware is depleted, said Stoneham. The cost factor is complicated by the tightness of the overall Food Services budget for the remainder of this year, he continued.

The problem can be solved in two ways, he indicated: by the "unnecessary" purchase of new silverware or by the return of silverware. The particular purchase account would definitely have to be increased in the next budget unless there is a good response to the effort, the associate director said. He added, "They (the students) are paying for it."

The dining commons administrator estimated the cost of each setting of stainless steel silverware at about $1 and the cost of the plastic at $.025. Even at two and one-half cents, use of plastic utensils at dining commons meals would not be feasible. In the commons the plastic silverware could not be reused, in compliance with health regulations — although it can be reused by students in their dormitories. For the remainder of this semester, about 500,000 place settings would be required it was calculated.

Stoneham told the Daily Collegian that the campaign is planned to run from Friday noon until Monday but that it could be continued indefinitely depending on the response. He emphasized that Food Services would "take no names" and had no interest in punitive measures.

The associate director said he knew of no other college that had tried this exchange approach, implying that he was willing to try anything to correct the campus "silver drain." "I haven't the vaguest idea of whether it will work," he admitted.

Elections of new Phi Beta Kappa members from the Senior Class will be announced in about two weeks. Juniors and sniors will be inducted in formal ceremonies on April 26. At that time, Prof. John Ratte, president of the Amherst College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, will be the guest speaker.

RENT STRIKE . . .

Among the demands by the residents are improved landscaping, effective locks on doors, and inspection of wiring.

Silverman discussed possibilities of going to court and said this would depend on negotiations with Rousseau and his lawyers. He added that the tenants could have taken the Holyoke businessman to court in the beginning but it would have taken too much time and a "long legal hassle."

The strikers' attorney stated that the strike was a "purely pragmatic political thing" to apply "economic pressure." "Whether you prevail," he added, "will depend on how strong you believe in your grievances."

He praised the tenants for their actions by saying that they have exhibited "a good deal of faith in the whole thing," and "have a commitment to see it through."

Paul McCarthy, UMass student and tenant told the Collegian after the meeting that at the executive session it was arranged to present a live radio Forum discussion of the sessions, in cooperation with the Four-college program (including WMUA) at 8:00 Thursday night.

Russian, Hanoi Reactions to Bombing Halt

Kosygin . . .

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin said Tuesday night the time has come for the United States to understand the only way it can escape from Vietnam is to "cease its aggression."

Kosygin, visiting Iran, spoke at a banquet in his honor. The comment was his first on the Vietnam situation since President Johnson on Sunday night ordered curtailment of bombings on North Vietnam.

The Soviet leader, made no reference in his speech to Johnson's move or to the President's decision not to run for reelection. On his arrival earlier in the day, he declined to comment when asked by newsmen for his views on Johnson's decisions.

"If in Vietnam the foreign military interference continues, and if thousands upon thousands of people are wiped out, all the responsibility for this situation rests with the imperialist circles which have created this war and, with the use of armaments, want to deprive the heroic nation of Vietnam of its rights to resolve its own affairs without outside interference," Kosygin said.

Hanoi . . .

North Vietnam's official press was quoted Tuesday as saying President Johnson has not agreed to halt all bombings unconditionally and is trying to mislead public opinion.

This seemed an oblique indication that Hanoi is unready to go to the peace table now despite Johnson's order Sunday curtailing bombing in the North.

The official Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan made no direct reference to Johnson's proposal that talks begin now since most of North Vietnam has been placed off limits to bombers.

But it spoke of an American "fraudulent proposal for peace talks," said the pro-Communist Japanese Denpa News Agency in a dispatch from Hanoi.

Nhan Dan said the United States was trying actually to increase the bombing and noted bombing raids had been going on for the past two days in Thanh Hoa Province, which is part of the panhandle.

Humphrey Stalls Decision For a Couple of Weeks

(AP)—A close associate of Hubert H. Humphrey said Tuesday the vice president won't decide whether to become a presidential candidate "for a couple of weeks or more."

"The vice president is going to take time to appraise his chances and he is not going to be hurried," the associate said.

He added that Humphrey, who was in Mexico on a diplomatic mission when President Johnson announced Sunday night that he would not seek re-election, has told his staff he "is not a candidate yet."

Key members of the vice president's staff are almost unanimous in urging him to immediately enter the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. They argue that any delay would give Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York the opportunity to sew up enough delegate strength to clinch the nomination.

Humphrey, who returned from Mexico late Monday night, attended a White House breakfast with the President and Democratic Congressional leaders Tuesday morning. It was his first meeting with Johnson since the President's dramatic withdrawal.

After the breakfast, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.) told newsmen that no mention was made at the meeting of a possible presidential bid by Humphrey.

Mansfield also said he doesn't expect the President to take sides in the contest for the nomination.

"I think he will keep hands off and let the Democratic convention decide," Mansfield said.

From Pennsylvania came hints that Humphrey may join Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota in the race.

Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia told newsmen Monday that a Humphrey aide indicated to him that the vice president would become a candidate.

And from Pittsburgh came word that the White House has notified officials of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO convention that Humphrey will make an "important address" to the convention Thursday. However, Humphrey's office in Washington promptly denied rumors that the important address might be an announcement of his candidacy.

Apollo Program Will Be Subject of Talk Tonight

Tonight from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Student Union, David L. Winterhalter will speak at a joint ASME-AIAA meeting. The talk is sponsored by 1. Western Massachusetts Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME) 2. The UMass Student Section ASME-UMass Student Section of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA).

The purpose of this talk will be to present the objectives of the Apollo Manned spacecraft program and the specific goal of manned lunar landing. The various phases of a typical lunar landing mission will be discussed with details of system operation of both the launch vehicle and spacecraft. Greater detail will be presented on how the various propulsion systems support the overall mission and unique requirements necessary for man rating hardware. A short film of a recent Apollo launch will be shown.

Winterhalter, a native of Ashland, Massachusetts directs development and qualification of space vehicle auxiliary propulsion systems in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Apollo Program.

Prior to this assignment, Winterhalter was responsible for the spacecraft power generation system in the Apollo Program at NASA Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Texas.

He received a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Massachusetts in 1959.

At the joint meeting UMass

Professor, Dr. Merit P. White, will be presented the ASME Fellow Certificate. White, Commonwealth Head of the Department of Civil Engineering was recently elected to the grade of fellow in ASME. Dr. Kenneth G. Picha, Dean of the school of Engineering will present White with the certificate.

White was born in Whately, Massachusetts and received the A.B. and C.E. degrees from Dartmouth College and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the California Institute of Technology.

Prior to World War II he held research and teaching positions at Cal Tech, Harvard, and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Four-College Bus Has New Route To Go Along With New Schedule

The Four College Student Coordinating Board has announced changes in the four-college bus schedule effective April 1 and continuing the rest of the academic year.

These changes include an additional stop on the corner of Sunset Ave. near Prince House to benefit Southwest residents at the University. Also, the bus will now stop at the bus stop opposite Morrill Science Center instead of the Student Union. It will run one hour later on Friday.

The bus operates evenings and weekends at no cost to students. It goes to all four campuses and is used for lectures, movies, plays, shopping, and various social functions. It is hoped to draw the four campuses closer and encourage the use of neighboring facilities.

This year the University's Student Senate allotted $300 to the Committee so that the bus transportation system might be adequately publicized. A band from Amherst College, The Leaves of Grass, will sing songs with appropriate lyrics concerning the bus in the Hatch some afternoon in the near future.

A revised schedule is presented below.

Scrolls Considering New Members, Final Decision in Spring

Who, what, and where are the Scrolls? With applications for next year's members now under consideration by the present group, answers to these questions may prove helpful to any wondering freshman.

Scrolls, the sophomore women's honor society, consists of fifty-three sophomores, chosen in the spring of their freshman year. They are nominated by current Scrolls and fellow students on the basis of leadership, spirit, and scholarship (2.6 cum requirement).

The group exists primarily to assist freshman women in their adjustment to college life. Two Scrolls live in each women's dormitory, where they are required to stay for the full academic year, to be completely available to the freshmen of that house.

Here to welcome the freshmen in the fall, Scrolls supply them with the traditional beanie and bib and, together with the Keys and Revelers, do their best to keep them on the freshmen. They also work at promoting frosh spirit at games and pre-game rallies.

In the dorm, Scrolls provide all freshmen with "big sisters", upperclassmen who give the girls additional help with any problems. Monthly dorm activities are also held throughout the year, and are organized on a campus-wide basis.

As a University service group, the girls act as ushers for the Distinguished Visitors Program, hostesses at faculty events, and as guides during the fall's High School Guest Days.

This Thursday at 4:30 will be the last chance to apply for a room next year on the German Corridor, to be established in one of the new low-rise men's dorms at Southwest. Anyone interested (and interest is more important here than proficiency) should contact either the Southwest Housing Office (5-1500), or Roy Robertson (6-9090).

What's a 1967 Olds doing in this 1968 Olds advertisement?

It's making the point that you can own an Oldsmobile. If not a new one, then certainly a used one.

Like the nifty 1967 Olds 4-4-2 you see here. Or a sporty used Cutlass convertible maybe. Or, even, one of those great Olds Rocket 88s.

Of course, Olds dealers also carry a large stock of other brands on their Value-Rated used car lot. And should you decide on one of them instead . . . well, at least we'll know you picked a good place to do it.

Drive a youngmobile from Oldsmobile.
(New or used, it's a fun car to own.)

GM

First Person Singular

There is no more pressing a problem facing University undergraduates today than that of the nature of their school or college curriculum. In the light of social problems within this country, and of the war abroad, this is a strong statement indeed; but I believe nevertheless that it is a true picture of our situation at this University today.

Some dramatic and strongly-worded confirmation of this view has come recently from the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, who writes (in regard to the curriculum of that college) of "... the present system which has been in effect for a decade, perhaps the equivalent in 'real time' of a century if time be measured by changes both on this campus and in higher education generally in this country."

The impact of these words, and of the sentiment behind them, should stagger any student here who allows even a moment to ponder their full significance. Within the context of our common concern here, as students, there is nothing of more paramount importance than the direction our education is taking, and the manner in which it is proceeding.

This week and next will see an upsurge in undergraduate awareness of, and concern with, curricular questions; and such a turn of events, inexcusably overdue as it is, cannot be greeted too warmly. The Daily Collegian will begin this period with a special supplement to Thursday's paper, reprinting in its entirety the text and recommendations of the Ad Hoc Curriculum Study ("Cook") Committee. This supplement will include a long and thoughtful analysis of this important document—of what the Report says (and doesn't say), and of what it recommends (and doesn't recommend). The report itself is the most strongly recommended reading to come our way in quite some time, and I urge everyone to take the time to read and study it.

For those students who are moved to commit some thoughts to writing on this question, in the weeks following its publication of the Cook Report, the Collegian will be soliciting, most earnestly, as much comment as possible on the problems and situations raised and suggested by this long overdue survey of the Arts and Sciences curriculum.

Because the publication of the full text of the report is imminent, I will not begin here to digest and rehash what it has to say, beyond dropping these introductory thoughts for your consideration: should, or should there not, be a core of common requirements for every student to meet. If so, what should be the form of this code? How flexible and varied should it be? What sort of options should be available within the student's major department?

These are absolutely vital questions—questions concerned with the very innermost fiber of our common presence as undergraduates —they can not be allowed to be sloughed off to a few tables at the very back of the Hatch for consideration there alone. For too long on this campus the academic remnants of the "scilent fifties" era has held sway; but now the past two years have seen the beginnings of student concern with this issue, the floodgates of all-campus involvement must be opened on the one issue which is as importantly all-campus as this. This is a call, not for student power, but for student concern—who, after all, is any more completely or pervasively affected by the undergraduate curriculum.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

On Choosing a Vice President

President Johnson's announcement of his non-candidacy has catapulted Bobby Kennedy into the lead for the Democratic nomination. If Bobby is to be nominated, then he will have to confront the problem of selecting a running mate. Let's peek into that smoke-filled room in Chicago as Bobby and his boys decide on his Vice-President.

* * * * *

"Well, I suppose the obvious choice is McCarthy. After I let him get all that publicity in New Hampshire, he'll have to accept, as a favor to me," said Bobby.

"Don't be ridiculous," said Pierre. "His views on Vietnam are the same as yours. He's liberal on civil rights and he's from the North. What we need is someone to balance your strength."

"How about George Wallace. He's for the war. The Negroes hate him and he's from the South," reasoned Bobby.

At this, Pierre pointed an accusing finger and began yelling "ruthless opportunist." After Pierre was calmed, Sorensen explained to Bobby that his Vice President couldn't be completely antithetical to him. So Bobby apologized and the meeting continued. "I know," said Bobby. "How about Bill Fulbright. He agrees with me on Vietnam and he should be able to attract the white Southerners."

Teddy contemplated a moment and said, "I don't think so Bobby. His civil rights record is so bad, he'll lose us to many liberals."

"What we need to win this election is an experienced Southerner with a fairly strong civil rights record and who agrees with Johnson's handling of the Vietnam War," interjected Arthur Jr.

A hush settled over the room as the five political strategists racked their brains for such a man. Then Bobby arose, his face ashed, and announced he knew just the man. Bobby slowly dialed the phone and waited for an answer as the other four men held their breath.

"Hello Lyndon. This is Robert Kennedy. Say, I was wondering if . . . . . "

Court Ready to Discuss Unfair Judicial Cases

To the editor:

I read the letter written to the editor in the Monday, March 18 Collegian and feel that it has to be answered. I feel that the writers of the letter generalized from the specific case without basis. I would like to challenge this letter on the following points:

1. I ask the authors of the letter to defend their statement that ". . . at UMass when the accuser is a counselor, the defendant is guilty before he appears before his dorm judiciary." This is not true and is in direct violation of the judicial acts. Any judiciary who holds this attitude should be reported to the appropriate court and action should be taken against him.

2. In the next paragraph the authors criticized the UMass system for defending this situation. I know for a fact that the U-Mass system does not defend this situation nor even condone it.

3. Any court in the "American judicial system", when confronted with conflicting testimony must decide who was telling the truth. They usually do this by pointing out conflicting testimony or by deciding who had more to gain by lying. This could go either way in a given case.

4. Messrs. Riordan and Ryan ask the judiciary to weigh the evidence equally and decide accordingly. In their letter they have cited on evidence to demonstrate that this was not done in any given case.

I feel that if there is a criticism of the judicial system it should be made to the appropriate court regarding the particular case in question. I further feel that any such criticism that generalizes to the entire judicial system without citing evidence to back it up is guilty of suppressing the qualification necessary to permit accurate appraisal of that situation by those persons whom the author seeks to persuade.

Our court stands ready to discuss any situation where a judiciary has been unfair and further, to take action against any judicial body under our jurisdiction that is not meeting its obligation as a fair voice of the students in all judicial matters.

Baker Used as "Transit Hotel" Twice This Year

To the editor:

We the residents of Baker House are angered over the use of our dormitory as a "transit hotel" for the second year in a row. Tradition has it that a residence hall is to be used for a temporary dormitory only once in five years.

While we realize that the University in its "catch-all" contract with the students reserves its right to use any dormitory during vacations as it sees fit, we do not, cannot, and will not realize or accept the fact that the low rent district is being unduly taken advantage of.

During an emergency House Council meeting, this abuse of our privacy and property was discussed. Several petitions containing signatures of over seventy-five percent of those students affected were collected. What was the answer to our objections?

We were told that we had objected too late. This answer is double talk and malarky as far as I am concerned. If we had objected six months ago we would have achieved the same paucity of results. The use of arbitrary authoritarianism and hiding behind the guise of "policy" is a poor way to run a university of this size.

A change in attitude and policy on the part of the administration is needed. A defite policy of rotation should be adopted as well as a provision for more secure storage areas for student belongings. Why must the University officials always wait until there is trouble before constructive action is taken?

Meeting to Explore Use of Student Rooms on Vacations

To the editor:

Many times in the past, and on at least two recent occasions (letters-to-the-Editor, March 19, 1968 entitled "Protection Needed", and a letter-to-the-Editor, March 20, 1968 entitled "Tower Girls Object to Room Use") students have voiced their concern over the use of student rooms during vacation periods. The Housing Office, knowing the difficulties and personal problems that this type of system creates, shares this concern.

We would like to explore possible solutions to this problem and would ask that any interested and concerned students meet with us in the Worcester Room, Student Union, on Thursday evening, April 4, at 8:00 p.m.

Well, I'll be... Darn it! What can I say?

What does a man think of a woman who occasionally swears?

Of about 50 UMass men surveyed by "Squaw Talk", only one feels that a distinction should not be made on the basis of sex. The overwhelmingly popular opinion is that swearing detracts from a woman's femininity.

The most prevalent comment is that a woman cheapens herself by using conventional profanity in her everyday language. A woman has a certain position to uphold and if she expects to be treated with deference in other matters (car doors being opened for her, cigarettes lighted, for example) she should find more feminine ways to express herself, says a sophomore student.

Bette Davis, considered by many to be a great lady, once said: "Swearing is a perfectly good way to express oneself when the need arises." The one opponent of the sex distinction agrees with Miss Davis and believes that a woman has just as much right to use the English language and its formally unrecognized but commonly used components as a man does.

Oh, sugar !

Because it doesn't fit the image, this liberal male believes that many people tactfully ignore the fact that women, like men, swear freely in unmixed friendship groups. According to the others, this limited swearing is permissible so long as it doesn't extend into any other social situations.

Automatic Label

If a woman swears in public, she immediately labels herself to strangers within hearing distance. To one senior, this alone can give him a pretty clear indication of what such a woman is like. Using the same evaluation, a junior loses all respect for a date who punctuates her speech with swears.

When, if ever, can swearing be appropriate? To some of "Squaw Talk's" informants, it can be appropriate in an established long-term relationship where both people understand and know each other well. In this situation neither is offended and therefore the mutual respect is not diminished.

Double Standard?

Is it alright for a man to swear in the presence of women? Most consider it to be in bad taste and unnecessary even if a frustrating situation arises.

"By remaining silent you can mentally use any words the situation might warrant without offending anyone or causing your date to think less of you," said a sophomore.

All agreed that for men swearing was preferable to "Oh, sugar!" They felt that if a man expressed his feelings about a frustrating situation by such a comment his masculinity might be questioned.

The most popular view was that swearing is expected of men, but it does nothing to enhance a woman's feminine image.

Reduced to mathematical terms, 49 out of 50 dislike hearing a woman swear while about one third consider it necessary for a man to maintain his masculinity by swearing. This double standard makes it a helluva lot harder for a woman to express herself in a frustrating situation.

Sharp Dressers Send Females

When you tell 'em you just rolled out of bed, they'll believe you. The man on the beach can go sun himself in the surfer-derived jam or in beachcomber slacks. And the key to it all is color—splashy, bold, brash bouquets.

Right: White will be the most important color in the college man's formal wear world this spring. White formal trousers are great mixers with a dinner jacket of any color or pattern.

Middle: Meet tomorrow halfway with a traditional jacket in a bright bold glen plaid plus color coordinated turtleneck and slacks. Three button background meets modern relaxed look over brown twill. Vote yes.

Left: Today man takes his stand anywhere from outright traditional to cool contemporary. Here is the revised traditional three-button vested suit with botton-down shirt and rep tie. Or, the newest news in double-breasted four-button stylings, shaped slightly at the waist, wide lapels and a spread collar. Bonnie told Clyde she liked the checks.

Spring and flowers coupled together provide an emotional lift for everyone.

Psychology of Flowers

"Flowers," according to a leading psychologist, "have been important ever since the early days of mankind, because they must have struck even our primitive ancestors as representing a perfect replica of human life."

It is possible to see in their planting, growth, bloom and withering a model of our own existence. The language of man is full of allusions that represent this symbolic parallel. We speak of the bloom of youth, the flowering of young manhood. A young girl is compared to a fresh blossom; while old men fade away and are withered.

It has been found that because of their scent, beauty, color and the tactile sensation they afford, flowers have a general uplifting effect when they are received. Businessmen welcome new businesses with Flowers or plants, because they represent in the mind's vocabulary "hopefulness" and "growth."

Errant husbands, out overnight have long acted on an intuitive knowledge of the psychological power of flowers by brandishing a bouquet to an angry wife. Flowers do soothe, because they have an almost totally positive association and therefore they engender affection from the feminine sex.

Introverted personalities are described as "shrinking violets" because a violet may close its petals when the sun shines directly on it—as some personalities may close in upon themselves when affected by too strong a stimulus.

The "wallflower," a form of "shrinking violet," was so named because of the similarity in attitude between the person and the flowers that inhabit hidden crevices of walls around towers and tombstones. The psychological association though sometimes primitive, reflects a view of man and his world that is parallelled in the flower and its relation to nature.

Human nature being what it is —flowery at best—it's quite easy to see why friends and lovers use the psychological symbolism of flowers to communicate. In olden days, a red carnation sent to one's sweetheart signified "My heart aches for you." A branch of arbutus meant "Thee only do I love." To which the object of this ardor might reply by sending back a sprig of ambrosia "Your love is reciprocated" or a moss rose bud, "I confess my love," or a Syrian mallow "I am consumed by love." The recipient of a sprig of iceplant, however, knew he got the cold shoulder. Quite often an admirer would send a branch of viscaria, "Will you dance with me?". Responding with a dried white rose meant "Death is preferable to loss of innocence!"

Even politicians knew how to say it. A spray of oleander meant "Caution!" And when they sent somebody a sprig of monkhood, it meant "Beware, a deadly foe is near!"

During the Middle Ages, a tradition of the therapeutic value of flowers, spices and herbs developed which has survived and been translated into the modern science of medicine. While many of the old recipes using flowers and leaves for medicine are not valid (although a few are!) the psychological significance remains for a good many people.

Hanoi May Reject As U.S. Planes Continue Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes swarmed over North Vietnam's southern panhandle Tuesday in the second straight day of intensified attacks designed to check the enemy flow of men and supplies to South Vietnam.

Barred since Monday by President Johnson's order halting bombing of North Vietnam's industrial heartland farther north, pilots zeroed in on communications lines—truck supply roads, railroads and waterways.

Whether they streaked as far north as Monday, when they hit a target about 210 miles north of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam, was not known but a Hanoi broadcast claimed they did.

The broadcast said one F4 Phantom was shot down when U.S. planes made repeated raids on Thanh Hoa Province.

The reason for the intensified attacks in the panhandle is plain. U.S. Air Force and Navy planes may strike there now that they no longer are able to go after targets in the areas of Hanoi, the port of Haiphong and northward to the border of Red China.

The U.S. Command said a 7th Fleet destroyer blasted a highway bridge 37 miles southeast of Vinh. Warships also are restricted by Johnson's order.

As the air attacks were pressed home, indications came out of Hanoi that North Vietnam was about to reject Johnson's offer to talk peace in exchange for the clampdown on bombing.

The first came from the North Vietnamese army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan, which said that Johnson still has not agreed to halt all bombings unconditionally, as demanded by Hanoi, and was trying to mislead public opinion.

Then the Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan was quoted by the pro-Communist Japanese Denpa News Agency as saying the United States is planning "a new plot" in Vietnam and described a U.S. peace offer as a fraud. This made no specific mention of Johnson's offer.

A few months ago a new collection of his short stories appeared in English translation. At present he is Charles Eliot Norton Lecturer in Poetry at Harvard.

Leopoldo Lugones, about whom Senor Borges will speak Wednesday, was a prominent Argentine poet of the Modernist movement. The lecture will be in Spanish. At the reception in Memorial Hall, immediately following the lecture, there will be opportunities to meet Senor Borges and to talk with him in Spanish or in English.

The public is invited to the lecture.

Spring Motor Vehicle Inspection Will Continue Through May 15

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin today announced that spring motor vehicle and trailer inspections will begin on April 1 and continue through May 15.

"We have just been through a long hard winter—tough on motor vehicles — so, for safety's sake — have your checkup made early. Don't let the April first date fool you if you aren't registered on that date. The law applies to all such vehicles registered and operated in Massachusetts at any time during the inspecion period from April 1 through May 15" McLaughlin said. Failure to comply with the compulsory inspection will leave no choice but to prosecute owners or persons in control of motor vehicles not displaying the white sticker after May 15."

The Registrar has set up a system of spot checking the 3500 official stations and 10,000 adjusters to weed out stations which are violating the law by not conducting a proper inspection.

The Registrar also directed attention to the seriousness of being involved in the illegal use of procurement of official inspection stickers. Fraudulent use or possession of illegal affixing to motor vehicles or trailers or any other improper act concerning inspection stickers will result in prosecution and immediate action by the Registrar.

Mini-Newspapers Dominate the American College Scene According to Directory

Mini-newspapers appear to be the rule among the mini-journalists on the American college campus.

For more than 90% of college newspapers publish five-column pages in preference to the standard eight-column format of the professional press, according to the newly-published "Directory of the College Student Press

Compiled by Dr. Dario Politella, associate professor of journalism at the University of Massachusetts, the Directory lists 1,017 tabloids and 106 regular size newspapers of seven or eight columns wide.

Noting that "There is no particular pattern of the size of campus using eight-column layout," Politella points out that the Directory lists papers ranging from the Ohio State Lantern, an eight-column by 21-inch paper with a circulation of 22,000, to the eight-column by 22-inch Lookout of Cascade College, serving 400 students at Portland, Oregon.

"But the larger universities may well move toward the eight-column format, when one or all of three conditions are met," he said.

He listed the "conditions" as 1) when coverage of off-campus issues increases; 2) when the campus press becomes a local substitute for the commercial press to the campus community; and 3) as larger budgets become available from student subsidies.

Redmen Have Good Bats, Poor Gloves on Trip

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1968

Solid hitting, adequate pitching and some erratic fielding featured the UMass vacation-week baseball Southern swing. The Redmen ended with a 2-3-1 record, a team batting average of .316 and a fielding average of .904.

Coach Dick Bergquist's defending Yankee Conference champions defeated Erskine College, 14-10, and Belmont-Abbey, 18-6, and were tied 9-9 by Belmont-Abbey in 10 innings. Losses were to Erskine, 3-2, Randolph-Macon, 6-5, and Maryland, 9-0. The Redmen got at least 12 hits in every game except the finale when three Maryland hurlers limited UMass to just three singles.

Senior left fielder Ted Mareno led the UMass hitters with 11 hits in 25 at-bats for a .440 average. He was followed by soph third baseman Steve Stanford with 10-23 and a .435 mark, soph first baseman Bob Hansen with 8-22 and a .364, junior shortstop Joe DiSarcina 9-29 and .310 and Co-Capt. Don Ferron 8-26 and .308.

Other players who batted 10 or more times were senior outfielder Alex Vyce 5-12 .417, soph outfielder Steve Rogers 5-17 .294, soph Ray Ellerbrook 4-15 .267 and junior catcher Ed Lagoy 3-13 .231.

Senior pitching ace, left-hander John Canty hurled 14 innings, struck out 23 and walked 6 while allowing just three earned runs for a 1.92 ERA. Canty had a win over Erskine but was charged with the loss to Randolph-Macon by virtue of five unearned runs. Soph right hander John Kitchen got the other victory over Belmont-Abbey.

Frats Take All Three Campus Titles

Fraternities swept all three campus titles in intramural activity which concluded before vacation. Alpha Epsilon Pi, Kappa Sigma and Phi Mu Delta were crowned titleists in volleyball, swimming and wrestling respectively.

In gaining the volleyball crown, AEP was forced to take the measure of the Adams Smashers who were the dormitory kingpins and the Selohssas who took the independent crown.

The campus swim meet saw KS locked in a tight three-way duel with SPE and the Washington Terrors. However KS had enough depth to edge out SPE 51½ to 48½. The Washington Terrors took the Dormitory title with 46½ points. The Bouncing F's won one of their two independent titles with 41 points.

PMD with one title and two seconds edged out TKE to win the fraternity and campus wrestling title. The Grayson Aces took the dormitory crown while the Bouncing F's were independent titleists. The championship results were:

128 Bob Beck (Mills Birch) over Dick DelGallo (Bouncing F)
137 Rich Vogel (James Comanchees) over Joe Reed (BKP)
147 Steve Scheid (Brett Black Bears) over Paul Souza (PMD)
157 Gary Burns (Grayson Aces) over Bob Gorey (PMD)

Joe Louis Disfavors Olympic Boycott

DETROIT (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Lou is, looking weary but healthy after a bout with the surgeons, told reporters Tuesday Negro athletes would make a serious mistake if they decided not to represent America at the Olympic Games.

"Maybe they don't have equal opportunity in America, but they're gaining it every day," the Brown Bomber said, sitting in a wheelchair.

"And that's something you should realize. Things are improving. If they were going backwards, it would be different."

Louis, who had his gall bladder containing five gall stones and his appendix removed last Tuesday, also said Cassius Clay erred by not entering the Army, but that he still considers Clay the world's heavyweight champ.

Louis spent four years in the Army during World War II at the height of his career.

Wearing a colorful robe, Louis was wheeled into the director's office at the new $3 million Kirwood Hospital in Detroit. He was flanked by his nurses, his wife, Martha, who is an attorney in Beverly Hills, Calif., and his doctors.

They included Dr. Robert Bennett, who has been Louis' doctor since the time when Louis—who grew up in Detroit—was in his boxing heydays in the late 1930's and 1940's.

The doctor, one of four on the operating team, said Louis' condition was satisfactory and that he may be released from the hospital within 10 days. He and his wife will spend a few more days in Detroit visiting his brothers and sisters before returning to California.

Bennett observed that Louis' "liver is as healthy as one on a 15-year-old boy."

Mrs. Louis, who set up the finances for the hospital which is composed mainly of a Negro staff in a predominantly Negro neighborhood, said her husband had a routine checkup when they visited Detroit recently. The doctor then advised the operation.

There will be a meeting of all varsity and freshman golf candidates in room 251 of Boyden Building at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 4.

NHL Playoffs Open on Thursday; Celts-76'ers Series Starts Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday afternoon's game between the Chicago Black Hawks and the New York Rangers will be the first in the playoffs to be nationally televised, the National Hockey League said Tuesday in releasing its schedule of opening round playoff games.

First games in each of the four best-of-seven series will be played Thursday night. In East Division games, Boston will be at Montreal and Chicago at New York. The West Division schedule is St. Louis at Philadelphia and Minnesota at Los Angeles.

The Chicago-New York game Sunday will be televised by CBS starting at 2:05 p.m. EST. It will be blacked out in New York.

The league said that either a Montreal-Boston, Chicago-New York or St. Louis-Philadelphia playoff game would be televised Saturday afternoon, April 13. CBS has shifted its hockey coverage from Sunday that weekend to enable it to cover the completion of the Masters Golf Tournament.

The Eastern Division final playoffs of the National Basketball Association between Philadelphia and Boston will begin Friday night in Philadelphia, instead of Sunday as previously announced.

The second game will be played Sunday afternoon in Boston and will be nationally televised. It was originally scheduled for Wednesday, April 10.

The league said Tuesday it had presumed that Boston Garden on Sunday was to be the scene of a National Hockey League playoff game.

The third game between the 76ers and the Celtics will be played in Philadelphia on April 10 and the fourth game in Boston Sunday afternoon, April 14.

The three final games, if necessary, have not yet been scheduled.

The 76ers beat New York and Boston eliminated Detroit in the divisonal semifinals, each in six game series.

'Wills' Mark Will Stand'--Brock

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Lou Brock thinks nobody will break Maury Wills' stolen base record, 104 in 1962, in the next five or 10 years.

"Everybody is conscious of the stolen base these days," said the man who set a World Series mark last October with seven stolen bases for the St. Louis Cardinals. "Ever since Maury had his big year, there is more emphasis on how to prevent the steal.

"Almost every regular catcher in the big leagues can make the ball perfect—a knee high throw—80 per cent of the time. When the throw is perfect you can't get around it.

"If you can make them anxious so they want to throw you out so bad that they taste it, sometimes you can force them into mistakes. If you have good rhythm, it is tough to throw you out even with a perfect throw."

Brock, who has led the league for two straight years with 52 in 1967 and 74 in 1966, said he couldn't pattern himself after Wills or any other runner.

"You have to try to find something that fits you. You learn the flaws in the pitchers and the tipoff when he is going to the plate long before he delivers the ball. Some guys are quick, some slow. You put them into categories.

"What makes Maury great is his quickness and his ability to accelerate faster than anybody else. I can't rely on this so I had to find something else.

"There are six or seven guys who can run faster than me. Willie Davis is the fastest. Nobody around can stay with him. Tommy Harper, Dick Simpson, Alex Johnson, Sonny Jackson, Billy Cowan all can fly. Speed helps but you have to master the other keys to."

Naturally, all the base stealing skill won't help unless you get on base.

HANOI READY TO TALK

Johnson said...

- "'Now, as in the past, the United States is ready to send its representatives to any forum, at any time, to discuss the means of bringing this war to an end.'

Hanoi replied...

- "It is clear that the U.S. government has not correctly and fully responded to the just demand of the DRV North Vietnamese government, of U.S. progressive opinion, and of world opinion.
- "However, for its part, the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam declares its 'readiness to appoint its representative to contact the United States representative with a view to determining with the American side the unconditional cessation of the United States bombing raids and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam so that talks may start.'

Johnson responded...

- "Accordingly we will establish contact with the representatives of North Vietnam. Consultations with the government of South Vietnam and our other allies are now taking place."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday he plans to establish consultations with representatives of the North Vietnamese government to seek to establish a basis for peace talks.

President Johnson is flying to Honolulu Thursday to confer with U. S. officials on the war in Vietnam, including a North Vietnamese offer to establish contact "so that talks may start."

Potential Breakthrough

The Hanoi offer signified a potential breakthrough in the long impasse over getting talks going between the opposing sides in the Vietnam war.

Johnson announced that "consultations with the government of South Vietnam and our other allies are now taking place."

The weekend conference in Hawaii seems certain to delve in to the new situation stemming from the prospect of face-to-face meetings between U. S. and Communist North Vietnamese representatives.

Hanoi Changes Tough Stand

The dramatic new turn of events in the Southeast Asia war began with a surprise broadcast from Hanoi indicating a shift away from North Vietnam's previously tough stand against negotiations while undergoing bombardment by U.S. planes.

In a radioed statement responding to Johnson's latest offer for talks last Sunday night, the North Vietnamese denounced the United States for not having fully and unconditionally ended the bombing, even though Johnson had scaled back the air attacks.

Readiness for Talks

But the Hanoi broadcast nonetheless declared North Vietnam's "readiness to appoint its representatives to contact the U. S. representative with a view to determining with the American side the unconditional cessation of the United States bombing raids and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam so that talks may start."

The North Vietnamese statement dropped none of the Communist demands for a U. S. pull-

Construction stopped at Bartlett East, Campus Center, Southwest and the Machmer Addition after local 596 of the Construction and General Laborer's Union struck against the Western Massachusetts building contractors.

The 187 to 9 vote came at a March 29 meeting of the Union. In a Daily Collegian interview, Peter Korowski, Field Representative of Local 596 stated that the union wanted an increase over the present $3.52 an hour wage. However, he said he was not "at liberty to tell how much". He said that the Union would meet with Western Mass Building and a Federal Mediator this Friday at 10:30 a.m. in Holyoke.

Workers of Laborer's Local 596 set up picket lines outside Bartlett East yesterday morning.

Various picketing laborers, who declined to give their names, professed their desire to obtain wage increases similar to the ones carpenters and bricklayers had previously received. Most laborers had not mentioned any specific amount in regard to a wage increase, but two mentioned that a $1.19 increase in a 2 year contract would end the strike.

When queried as to how long they felt the strike would last most of the strikers said they did not know, but they hoped it would be a short one. One man standing near the site of the new Campus Center expected to be back on the job next week. He pointed out that three years ago when Local 596 last struck, it lasted only three days.

Apollo Space Program Lecture Given By David Winterhalter

by NEAL NOVACK
Staff Reporter

Discussing the unmanned Apollo space program and the "maturity of the complete system" leading up to manned space flight to the moon, David L. Winterhalter addressed members of the ASME (American Society of Mechanical Engineers) and AIAA (American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics) last night in the Nantucket Room in the Student Union.

The meeting began with the introduction of Mr. Winterhalter by Professor Duane Cromack, from the Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering Department here at the University, followed by a series of slides depicting the plans for the mission to the moon, description of the Saturn V rocket, specific stages of the flight, and the many engines incorporated in the vehicle. After the slides a film entitled "The Apollo IV Mission" was shown, which emphasized the launch and pre-launch activities of the first Saturn V fired on Nov. 9, 1967.

The United States, having entered its 11th year of space exploration, holds as its main objectives for manned flight: 1) United States leadership, 2) establishment of man's capabilities, 3) national competence for manned space flight, and 4) exploration of space.

Beginning with the Mercury program, which proved that man can operate in space, the space program progressed to the Gemini program which tested man's capabilities of duration in space and developed procedures such as the rendezvous and docking essentials for landing a vehicle on the moon.

The distinguishing features of the Appollo program, the final phase in placing man on the moon, will be a three-man earth orbital flight and lunar landing and exploration.

Mr. Winterhalter said, "All previous flights have simply been a prelude to the present Apollo program objective of manned lunar landing and safe return to earth. The total flight experience to date is being applied to the planning and execution of the Apollo missions."

Hanoi Willingness to Talk Sends Stock Market Soaring

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market volume Wednesday soared to a new record of 19.29 million shares in a wave of buying triggered by news that North Vietnam was willing to begin talks with U.S. representatives in a possible move toward peace.

Prices surged ahead sharply in the morning, reaching their peak at 11:30 a.m. when the Dow Jones industrial average was up 13.12. From that point on prices eroded.

The new volume peak topped Monday's mark of 17.73 million shares, which broke a record of 39 years standing, the 16.41 million shares piled up Oct. 29, 1929, the "Black Tuesday" of the Big Crash.

The Monday upsurge was inspired by President Johnson's announcement of a bombing halt, a factor much more important to the market than his decision not to seek re-election, brokers said.

"Peace is bullish," they said, and it is something they have been saying for weeks. Any de-escalation of the Vietnam fighting, any move toward peace, analysts said, would be a move toward solving many of the nation's other financial problems.

Operetta Guild's Li'l Abner Opens Tonight in Bowker

Al Capp's world famous characters have been placed in a gay, colorful musical extravaganza to be presented in Bowker Auditorium by the Operetta Guild April 4, 5 and 6 at 8:15 p.m. and April 7 at 2:30 p.m.

The plot is a satisfying mixture of hill-billy nonsense and sharp critical humor. Word has been sent down from Washington that the citizens of Dogpatch must evacuate their mountain homes because Dogpatch has been selected as the most unnecessary town in the country and therefore the most perfect site for nuclear tests.

It appears that something useful is found when Mammy Yokum produces her secret formula of Yokumberry tonic which makes muscle men of weaklings. The Association to Perform At Cage Saturday Night

The Association, who will be appearing at the Cage this Saturday evening, possess a number of qualities which have made them the most in-demand group in the nation. But of all these qualities, one stands far above the rest: SOPHISTICATION.

When The Association steps on stage, they have the appearance of a group of young businessmen. Grey suits, vests, shirts, ties, neatly-cut hair, and visible faces complete this picture of a sophisticated group of men with business to do. This picture is not a facade.

The Association are businessmen. Their business is producing music; music which has been accepted whole-heartedly by even the most demanding connoisseur. Their recording of "Cherish" managed to re-awaken the long-dormant musical interests of the entire country.

With The Association comes the unimitated, the untrodden, and the new-born. Their music, which exemplifies a perfect combination of detailed harmonies, intelligent meaningful lyrics and intricate pacing, produces that indefinable something that makes The Association a carbon copy of no one.

Appearing with The Association, for those who prefer the driving sounds of hard-rock, will be the extremely popular Yardbirds. Coming to UMass from London, the Yardbirds will present examples of the sounds that have set the recording world on its ear.

Tickets for the 8 o'clock performance are still available at the Student Union box office. The doors of the Cage will be open to the public promptly at 7 p.m.

A National Illness

Are you sick of hearing about Vietnam and the ghetto? Good! Then you should be sick of your part in the national ignorance about race and communism which are the root of those problems.

National ignorance has created discontented minorities whose aspirations cannot be compromised by cries for 'law and order'. Our breaches of domestic and foreign peace are and will be natural products of American prejudices.

So get good and sick! People usually deserve the governments they get. Johnson and the majority of Congress are just reflections of a very sick society too steeped in its wealth and luxury to take the time to think.

Go get good and sick, but before you do, decide if you will be proud to defend the racism and foreign intervention of your 'land of the free'.

I have these thoughts to offer to the altar of ignorance:

—Dining commons food is not so bad at UMass, it's the apathy of the students which is hard to swallow.

—Our "patriots try to outdo each other in 'supporting our boys'", but none will volunteer to join them.

—Some conservatives maintain that Negroes are unemployed because they are lazy. Next they will be telling us that blacks are starving in Mississippi because they don't like to eat.

—Congress was reluctant to approve a rat control legislation at first because it feared the bill would dilute its own ranks.

—Young people will do anything for money these days, even go to college for a degree.

—I am tired of hearing that my dissent and not the Johnson administration is killing our soldiers in Vietnam.

—If LBJ is worried about his political future, he can always run as a peace candidate; it worked in 1964.

—Many people suspect that Johnson has not told them the 'whole truth' about Vietnam, but they are not concerned enough to go to the library and inform themselves better about the country.

—Better dead than red! It must be true because no one has heard any dead napalmed Vietnamese civilians complaining.

—The reason for the failure of 'our' Vietnamese should be quite obvious; you cannot expect them to fight an American war.

—South Vietnamese businessmen do not want our troops to leave; they are a great source of profit for their corruption.

—A 'coward' would rather risk five years in jail, rather than kill Vietnamese.

—LBJ says no amount of dissent will change his war policy; these statements are usually reserved for dictators.

—Many liberals will maintain Negroes as their friends, as long as they do not try to marry their daughters.

—Sec. of State Dean Rusk has maintained that Arthur Schlesinger is a pseudo-intellectual. If this is true, then this column is no place to comment about what that makes him.

—Optimists feel that the death of Che Guevara has solved many of Latin America's poverty problems.

—You know why the Chinese were swimming the Yangstze River? They were making trial runs for the Pacific!

—People defend the right of dissent in principle, it is the practice of it they object to. Unfortunately I have no liberal platitudes to cure your illness!

15 March 19—

Cher Bettnoir,

At last I am alone in my cell. For so many months, I had been put in with other prisoners who had been put in with me, etc., etc. To have a cell to oneself and nothing to do with one's time, to be isolated from the objective eyes of other people once and for all (save the guard who comes in with my food and cigarettes) gives me the chance to gather up and assemble certain fragments of my life (both pleasant and unpleasant, as the latter are necessary) and to create in the seven weeks and two days I have left a future of years and years.

But enough of that! I awoke early this morning. The sun was trying to break through the clouds, and the wash of pale yellow and gray and blue coming in thin streams at my dark walls was as warm as the first day of spring. It is the blue aftermath of winter. The melting ice and the weak sun, like flowers, try to shoot, but are able to be only silent.

They have tried to tell me about the spring here, but, of course, they have failed. How, except on rare night walks, could their senses be dented with even the remotest ideas of spring? And those not lasting! Their memories fade and fade as they are led back to their artificial cells, as they spend their nights amid the smells of bodies and sweat and urine. It is a sty, this prison. I go up to clench the bars, rough to the tips of my fingers, nicked by the countless jackels who have met my fate before me. Ha! And I think that I too, who have my loose moments, now have my dreams, my task, and my life set before me, concrete as death.

Grads Dissatisfied With Draft Change

EDITORS NOTE:
The following letter was sent by the Graduate Student Senate to President Johnson.

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the 3000 graduate students at the University of Massachusetts, the Graduate Student Senate wishes to express its dissatisfaction with the draft regulations recently announced by the government.

As graduate students, teaching assistants, and future teachers and researchers, we are greatly distressed by this patent disregard for the most vital needs of the nation. With a critical teacher shortage and a serious shortage of professional skill in many areas, the United States cannot afford to disrupt the preparation of teachers, to seriously dislocate the plans of the college graduate, or to disrupt graduate school programs, which this law will do.

The Graduate Student Senate of the University of Massachusetts strongly urges you as President, your administration, and the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, to give serious consideration to the dangerous implications of the new draft regulations and to examine and formulate more effective plans, such as those recently proposed by Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Respectfully yours

Richard A. Trowbridge

He Feels Good Presidential Candidate Lacking

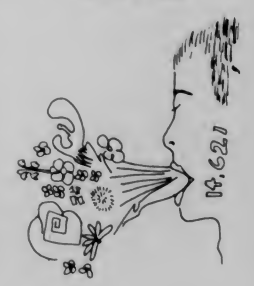
To the editor:

Lyndon Johnson's withdrawal from the '68 Presidential race left me extremely disappointed and apprehensive about the possible results of the November election.

It is regrettable that we as a nation made such a debacle of the Vietnam war. Johnson was the scapegoat for all of us who are disenchanted with Vietnam, and perhaps rightly so. But I would like to think it appropriate to say that most people flock to such peace candidates as McCarthy and Kennedy because of pragmatic motives and not those of morality.

If we had never become involved in Vietnam, I believe Lyndon Johnson could have become one of our most progressive and best remembered leaders. Because he was strong presidential material, he could have pressured a sluggish Congress to do a great deal of what both he and we as a nation want done.

If there were no Vietnam, the highly debatable tax hike requests would not exist for Congress to veto and, more importantly, to use as a ready excuse for not passing most progressive legislation such as: open housing, poverty legislation, and model cities programs.



As alternatives to Johnson we have candidates who may be excellent senatorial or gubernatorial material, but certainly not the stuff real Presidents are made of. What is Nixon? He is a loser—both in the 1960 Presidential race and the California governor's race. If he couldn't take California, how can he expect to conquer a nation of fifty states?

And who is Kennedy? What has he done? I don't believe he has an outstanding Senatorial record, nor does he enjoy the kind of sway that a Dirksen does. Who can he lead or influence if he does win—certainly not the balky Congress we have at present.

And finally, who is McCarthy? Perhaps only a one issue man. If he were to stop the conflict in Vietnam, what could he do for an encore during the remaining lengthy four years of his tenure? There are numerous problems we face as important as Vietnam. Certainly, McCarthy held little sway as a Senator, not even as much as Kennedy. How can he lead Congress on to vitally needy action?

My point is that none of the other candidates are of Presidential timber. A President is something else. He is one who not only has visionary and imaginative ideas, but is one who can stir others to make them materialize. Lyndon Johnson is the only man in the group who holds this power which is the Presidency of the United States. And he isn't running!

Dean Allen Speaks at Kappa Delta Pi Initiation

by SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

Guest speaker Dwight Allen, Dean of Education, highlighted the Kappa Delta Pi initiation meeting Monday night. "You are being honored here tonight", he told the new members of the education honor society, "because you beat the system." There is more to learning than just "psyching out" professors by pretending to work hard, he warned.

Contrary to the popular belief that a good student is a hard-working one, Dean Allen declared that the ideal student shows maximum achievement with minimum effort. "Too much of education is sheer status symbol," he noted. "You beat the system, now you must attack it."

Tracing the progress of the "system", Dr. Allen pointed out developments that the honor society, as future educators, could improve upon. At the beginning of the century, he said, schools were institutions which assumed no responsibility for an individual's success. With the invention of the IQ test, in the 1920's, schools became comprehensive.

Following this trend toward distinguishing student capabilities, children were taught differently according to their ability in the 30's. This led to what Dean Allen called "sh" grouping in which students were not informed of their section rank.

In the 50's grouping by courses divided those bright in a subject from those less bright in the same subject.

The trend of the '60's appears to be grouping by activity-lecture, discussing individual tutoring. Included in this trend is branched programming in which everyone goes at his own pace. Dr. Allen suggested that a functional curiculum which takes the social contexts into consideration would be more meaningful to students.

Jackie Mize, President of the Education Society concluded a candlelight ceremony to honor the new members who were to meet Dean Allen's challenge. With the aid of the other officers: Sue Darling, Sue Olinsky, Myra Schweiger, Claire Pratte,

Most Unfriendly People in Amherst Are Students

"The most unfriendly people in a college town, are the college students."

This conclusion results from a recent study by Mary Halbert '68, who surveyed reactions to a stranger's "Hello."

Walking from campus into town twice, on two sunny days and two cloudy days, Miss Halbert said "Hello" to everyone she encountered, and recorded the responses.

She discovered that the friendliest people were in a 30-50 age group. Seventy-five percent of this group responded positively, compared with 66 percent of the 50 and over age group, and only 60 percent of the college age group.

"You'd be surprised at how many of my fellow students just ignored me," Miss Halbert said. I also found that guys were friendlier than girls and that male hippies aren't any friendlier than other college men." She defined male hippies as any male with long hair and/or a beard. "And everyone was friendlier on sunny days," she added.

Miss Halbert conducted the study for the Advanced Expository writing class at UMass.

Step Forward

Nonetheless administration officials apparently decided it would be a step forward to at least get into discussions with the Reds, even if the fighting goes on.

The Pentagon said Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will accompany the President to Hawaii.

Orchard Education Series Begins Tonight

A series of symposia on "The Meaning of A University Education" will begin tonight in the Orchard Hill. The series is aimed at raising vital issues effecting university education. Discussions will deal with new models of understanding the entire educational process. The discussions will be held in Grayson and Field Houses in the Orchard at 7:30 on April 4, 11, 16, and 25.

The topic for tonight's symposium will be "The Problems and Possibilities of Multiversity". The panel will include Dr. Robert Cope, Director, Office of Institutional Studies; Dr. Gerald McFarland, History, Assistant Dean of Arts and Sciences; Dr. Ann Brentlinger, Philosophy; Richard Story, an undergraduate active in discussions and action on university reform. The discussion tonight is to be in the main lounge of Grayson House starting at 7:30.

In future weeks discussion topics will be "New Approaches to the Total Educational Process" —April 11; "European Education: Tradition and Relevance"—April 16; and "New Forms for University Education"—April 25.

UMass to Fast

A two day Fast for Peace, initiated by concerned students and faculty, will be held at the University on April 17 and 18. The fast, scheduled from midnight Tuesday to midnight Thursday, is intended to appeal broadly to the university community on the issue of inhumanity of the Vietnam war, rather than on a specific political program or demand.

Next week, participants in the fast will be issued white arm bands and sympathizers blue arm bands. Special tables will be located in the Student Union and other places on campus to provide information and discussion on the fast.

APO Gives to Campus Chest

This year, as in the past, Alpha Phi Omega will make a sizable contribution to Campus Chest. APO is a National Service Fraternity for whom service to the Campus is one of their major goals. By running U'Moc, the ugly man on Campus Project, the fraternity raised $100.00 as their contribution to Campus Chest in an effort to fulfill their desire to serve the campus. A fraternity spokesman expressed regrets that the amount was not as large as last year, but said the contest did as well as could be expected, having to compete with two others at the same time. It might be added that these two contests together raised less money than the difference between this years and last years APO contribution. The two less successful and damaging contests were sponsored by the Sophomore class.

Fielders Battle for Positions with Frosh Team

Hard Hitting Outfield, Infield Depth Featured

by STEVE SHAMBAN
Staff Reporter

UMass freshman baseball coach Arlan Barber is assembling an infield and outfield that is long on desire and hustle as well as talent. Coaching a freshman team is a difficult and challenging task as each player is basically an unknown quantity who has been forced to display his skills in a very short time. Consequently, Coach Barber has put together an infield and outfield in which no player may rest assured of his job because of stiff competition behind him.

At first base, Stan Winston (Needham) will probably get the starting nod for the April 16 opener at Springfield College. Winston, a former Hearst All Star, is a strong right handed power hitter who has not been overly consistent at the plate thus far but has wielded a good glove in the field.

Coach Barber has recently been trying catcher Paul Sulzicki (Stratford, Conn.) at first base. Sulzicki is a fair fielder who has been more consistent at the plate, although not quite as powerful as Winston.

The second base job is a real scramble with four players competing for the starting role. Rick Matuszczak (Chicopee) and Joe Gugliotta (Norwood) are each rated about equal at bat and in the field. Pete Silva (Stoughton) has been the most consistent hitter so far and is pushing the other two.

Tom Semino (Braintree) probably would start here, but because he is a football player who will miss about two weeks of the four week season due to spring practice, he will have to step aside, temporarily at least. All things being equal, Matuszczak, a fiery competitor, appears to have the edge.

Shortstop is not quite so unsettled as Dan Petrides (Fitchburg) is the most likely starter. An adequate fielder and line drive hitter, he will be pushed by Jim Tanner (Marlboro). Mike Marchev (Short Hills, N. J.) has a good glove and quick hands, but like Semino, is a football player whose progress will be impeded for a while.

The third base battle has narrowed to two candidates. Duane Brown (Teaneck, N. J.) has the inside shot. Of relatively small stature physically, Brown has quick wrists and packs a good wallop at the plate. Basketball player Bill Greeley (Melrose) is a good competitor but his troubles at the plate so far place him behind Brown.

In the outfield, Steve Verenis (Quincy), Mitch Salnick (Westwood, N. J.) and Mike Minkos (Chicopee Falls) in left, center and right respectively have the starting nods at the moment. All three are adequate fielders and Coach Barber feels that his team's strongest hitting will come from here. None of these three may rest easily however, as Joe Ausikaitis (Chicopee) has been coming on strong in recent practices. An improving hitter with a strong arm, Ausikaitis may replace one of the other three by April 16.

Barber, a former catcher in the Cleveland Indians system, feels this team features a good amount of depth and "in terms of total baseball ability, this is the best group we've had". With an infield of "hustling, sparkplug type kids" and a hard hitting outfield, things should be interesting.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)—The Boston Red Sox sent three pitchers to their Louisville farm team yesterday.

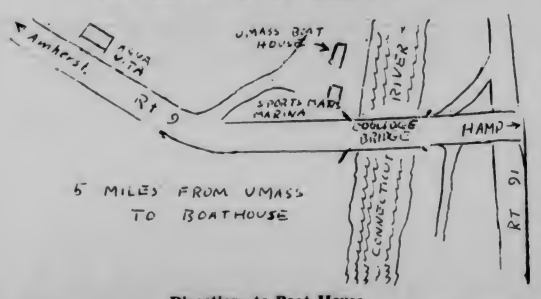
This brings the roster down to 26 with one more man to cut before the season opener April 9.

Crew To Open Season With Regatta Saturday

A home regatta Saturday against St. John, U.R.I. and Amherst will open the 1968 season for the UMass Crew Club. This is the first home regatta for the club since its reinception three years ago and affords the students a chance to see the team in action.

The three race card begins at 2 p.m. on the Connecticut River in front of the boat house near the Calvin Coolidge Bridge in Hadley. The races will be 2,000 meters long.



After a rigorous indoor training schedule during the winter, the crews have shown continuous improvement since going on the water a few weeks ago. The competition promises to be even tougher this year, but if the oarsmen continue to improve as they have in the past, they should place even higher in the standings this year.

William Fesperman Named New Football Assistant by McGuirk

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk yesterday announced the appointment of William "Dub" Fesperman as an assistant football coach at UMass. Fesperman will take over the vacancy left by the resignation of Burley Crowe and be primarily concerned with the defensive squad.

Contacted yesterday Fesperman, who arrived in Amherst this week and has been working with the football staff ever since, said he was not very familiar with the Redmen's personnel as yet. However, the Winston Salem, N. C. native and former Duke University star said, "I'm just getting settled here, but I hope to be well acquainted with the material by the beginning of spring practice."

Head coach Vic Fusia was pleased to have Fesperman join the fold, saying, "We are very happy to have a man of his stature on the staff. He has a great deal of experience, having coached four years of high school, three years at Wake Forest and Tulane and being defensive coach at Georgia Tech the past two seasons. He will be most compatible with the rest of the staff."

Spring football drills commence on April 15 and will culminate with the annual intrasquad game on Saturday, May 4.

Eighteen Playoffs Set

NHL Playoffs to Begin

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Tonight starts the annual business of deciding which hockey team is really the best. For the first time eight teams will contest the Stanley Cup instead of four.

The Western Division, represented by Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Minnesota and St. Louis, will battle for the honor of being the Christian that will be thrown to the Eastern Division lion in the final. The Western playoff will be a tantamount to winning the A.F.L. It's nice, but forget about beating the established teams. The Eastern quarter finals series will be Montreal versus Boston and New York versus Chicago.

Each series will be a best of seven affair with Montreal and New York each as the favorites. Boston is given a good shot at upsetting the Canadiens, while Chicago is given a slight chance of beating New York.

Chicago has an annual habit of concluding their season sometime around the middle of March. Unfortunately the Stanley Cup is contested in April, and the Black Hawks are usually spectators at the finals. This year should be no exception.

The reason for this is a lack of balance. Bobby Hull, along with the Scooters, Mikita, Mohns and Wharam, are great. Unfortunately the rest of the team is mediocre. By April these four are exhausted and as a result the team fairs poorly in th playoffs.

The Black Hawk defense is anchored by Pieere Pilote and ex-Bruin Gil Narotte. Pilote has slipped greatly from his all star season of last year, and Marotte still has kept his woeful habit of being up-ice at the most embarrassing moments. The other two defense men aren't even worth mentioning.

Denis DeJordy has already been Vezina Trophy material in the nets and his replacements, Jack Norris and Dave Dryden, are minor leaguers. Thirty years ago a bunch of Black Hawks, who won 14 games took the Stanley Cup in the original 'Impossible Dream.'' This year's edition won 32 and shouldn't come close.

KING ASSASSINATED; VIOLENCE ERUPTS

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—KING'S FINAL PUBLIC APPEARANCE—Dr. Martin Luther King, who was assassinated Thursday as he stood outside his Memphis motel room, strokes his chin in a reflective mood before he addressed a mass rally for striking Memphis sanitation workers. It was his final public appearance. (AP Wirephoto)

"It may even get me crucified. I may even die. But I want it said even if I die in the struggle that he died to make me free."

Albany, Ga., 1962

Civil Rights Leader Murdered in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) Nobel Laureat Martin Luther King Jr., father of non-violence in the American Civil rights movement, was killed by an assassin's bullet last night.

King, 39, was hit in the neck by a bullet as he stood on the balcony of a motel here. He died less than an hour later in St. Joseph Hospital.

Gov. Buford Ellington immediately ordered 4,000 National Guard troops back into the city. A curfew, which was clamped on Memphis after a King-led march turned into a riot a week ago, was reimposed.

Police said incidents of violence, including several fire bombings were reported following King's death.

To Lead Strikers

The 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner, was standing on the balcony of his motel here, where he had come to lead protests in behalf of the city's 1,300 striking garbage workers, most of them Negroes, when he was shot.

Police also said they found a .30-.06 rifle on Main Street about one block from the motel, but it was not confirmed whether this was the weapon that killed King.

An aide who was standing nearby said the shot hit King in the neck and lower right part of his face.

"Martin Luther King is dead," said Asst. Police Chief Henry Lux, the first word of the death.

Asst. Hospital Administrator Paul Hess confirmed later that King died at 7 p.m. of a bullet wound in the neck.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson said he and others in the King party were getting ready to go to dinner when the shooting occurred.

Standing on Balcony

"King was on the second floor balcony of the motel," Jackson said. "He had just bent over. If he had been standing up, he wouldn't have been hit in the face."

"It knocked him down," he said. "When I turned a-

Convulsive Reactions in City Streets and Colleges

In a convulsive reaction to the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., groups of Negroes roamed streets of a dozen cities, smashing windows, looting, setting fires and throwing rocks and bottles.

The most violent outbursts erupted in New York City, Washington, D.C., and Boston.

As word of Dr. King's death spread through Memphis, Negroes in scattered areas looted stores, stoned police and fire trucks and threw fire bombs. The violence continued into this morning.

Memphis

National Guard troops were rushed back to Memphis after having been pulled out only Wednesday. Troops also were sped into Nashville, where violence flared shortly after the shooting.

There were disturbances in Hartford, Conn., Tallahassee, Fla., and Monticello and Greenburgh, N.Y.

North Carolina Gov. Dan Moore alerted National Guardsmen as a precaution against trouble in Greensboro and Raleigh.

Scattered gunshots were reported by Raleigh police. There were no reported injuries.

New York

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay rushed to the Harlem area, where he has walked the streets in efforts to prevent violence, but was hustled into a car by aides and returned to his home after encountering unruly crowds.

Police officials ordered 7,000 men to remain on duty during the night on the New York streets.

The disturbances broke out first in Harlem, then spread to Brooklyn's Bedford Stuyvesant section and nearby Crown Point and Fulton Street areas.

Washington

Widespread looting was reported in a Negro section of the nation's capital, where stores were broken into along a six-block section of 14th Stret in the Northwest section.

Walter Washington, Negro mayor of the city, said there was "some property damage," but that the situation appeared under control. The police tactical squad—eight squad cars and a bus load of helmeted policemen—was sent to the area.

NEW YORK (AP) — Following are excerpts from Dr. Martin Luther King's "I have a dream" speech at the rally, August 28, 1963, climaxing the civil rights march on Washington:

"Now is the time to make real the promises of democracy. Now is the time to rise from the dark and desolate valley of segregation to the sunlit path of racial justice. Now is the time to lift our nation from the quicksands of racial injustice to the solid rock of brotherhood. Now is the time to make justice a reality for all God's children.

"There will be neither rest nor tranquility in America until the Negro is granted his citizenship rights. The whirlwinds of revolt will continue to shake the foundations of our nation until the bright day of justice emerges.

"And that is something that I must say to my people who stand on the threshold which leads to the palace of justice. In the process of gaining our rightful place, we must not be guilty of wrongful deeds.

"Again and again we must rise to the majestic heights of meeting physical force with soul force . . .

"We can never be satisfied as long as the Negro is the victim of the unspeakable horrors of police brutality. We can never be satisfied as long as our bodies, heavy with the fatigue of travel, cannot gain lodging in the motels of the highways and the hotels of the cities.

"We can never be satisfied as long as our children are stripped of their selfhood and robbed of their dignity by signs stating 'for whites only.' We cannot be satisfied as long as the Negro in Mississippi cannot vote and the Negro in New York believes he has nothing for which to vote.

"No, we are not satisfied and we will not be satisfied until justice rolls down like water and righteousness like a mighty stream . . .

"Continue to work with the faith that honor in suffering is redemptive. Go back to Mississippi, go back to Alabama, go back to South Carolina, go back to Georgia, go back to Louisiana, go back to the slums and ghettoes of our northern cities knowing that somehow the situation can and will be changed. Let us not wallow in the valley of despair.

"Now, I say to you today, my friends, so even though we face the difficulties of today and tomorrow, I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream. I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal.'

"I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaveowners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood.

"I have a dream that one day even the state of Mississippi, a state sweltering with the people's injustice, sweltering with the heat of oppression, will be transformed into an oasis of freedom and justice.

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

"This is our hope. This is the faith that I go back to the South with—with this faith we will be able to hew out of the mountain of despair a stone of hope."

Reactions Range from Shock To Indignation

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's civil rights and political leaders reacted with anguish, shock and grief Thursday night at the slaying of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis.

There also was fear that the slaying would lead to more violence.

Churches opened their doors and readied special services in Dr. King's honor. The Protestant Council of the City of New York asked that all chaurches remain open today and tomorrow so that "all citizens may bring supplication to God that the ideals of this man's life will not be lost."

James Meredith, who was shot in June, 1966, during a voter registration march in Mississippi, said, "This is America's answer to the peaceful, nonviolent way of obtaining rights in this country."

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the NAACP is "shocked and deeply grieved by the dastardly murder of Dr. Martin Luther King . . . It will not stay the civil rights movement; it will instead spur it to greater activity."

"I do think it's the will of God," says Dr. King's widow. "We always knew this could happen."

Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League, said: "We are unspeakably shocked by the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, one of the greatest leaders of our time. This is a bitter reflection on America. We fear for our country."

Floyd McKissick, national director of CORE, said that with Dr. King's death, nonviolence "is now a dead philosophy.

"This is racism in the most extreme form, it is truly American racism," McKissick said.

Jackie Robinson, first Negro to play in major league baseball and now an advisor on race relations in New York State said, "I'm shocked. Oh my God, I'm frightened. I'm very concerned, disturbed and very worried. I pray God this doesn't end up in the streets."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said the slaying "brings shame to our country. An apostle of nonviolence has been the victim of violence."

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay: "The people of our city of every race, I am sure, will join hands in paying tribute to him. Our greatest tribute to him will be to bear ourselves as he would want us to—with dignity and prayer."

Fred Meely, a spokesman for the militant Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, said, "There is no real comment that we can make. Everybody knows what happened and everybody knows why it happened and the black people in this country know what they have to do about it."

Martin Luther King

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is dead. He was assassinated yesterday evening in Memphis, Tennessee, where he had planned to lead his second non-violent protest march in support of the striking Negro sanitation workers. The details of Dr. King's fight for civil and human rights are universally known. Dr. King was the leading advocate of non-violence in a country that has had a history of violence, but the real tragedy of King's death is that the racists have removed the greatest leader of Black Americans. Dr. King represented a symbol of strength for the black community, and despite some of our disagreements with his techniques, we all shared a sense of pride when King led his marches, delivered his eloquent speeches and confronted the white society.

Dr. King assumed his role magnificently and he captured the imagination of an overwhelming majority of Black Americans. No black leader, in fact, no previous figure in history, has done more to raise the hopes and aspirations of Black Americans. There was always a certain reverence for King, even among his most severe Black Militant critics. King was admired for his courage, convictions and commitment to the civil and human rights of all people.

America is a sick society and, unlike many of us, Dr. King never lost faith in the efficacy of the non-violent movement to change this society. King was as keenly aware of the underlying racism in America as anyone, but he remained committed to the view that non-violent militant action can awaken the moral conscience of this nation and eventually overcome the pervasive and powerful influence of racism.

Many of us questioned King's faith in non-violence. We wondered how a country which can wage a war leading to the destruction of a country and people in Southeast Asia, a war that King himself had grown to hate, and simultaneously remain insensitive to the sufferings of millions of suppressed people in this nation, can ever be motivated to act because of non-violent actions and appeals to conscience.

But for some reason, we still listened to King, and many of us skeptics were quietly hoping that Dr. King's show-down of non-violence in Washington, D. C., this spring could effect some significant changes. Only Dr. King could generate such hope among a disillusioned and frustrated people. But King is now dead! WHERE DO BLACK AMERICANS GO FROM HERE?

BOSTON

A crowd of Negroes threw stones at six police cruisers near a Negro housing project in Boston's Roxbury section. Cars carrying newsmen were stoned later by angry bands of youths in Roxbury.

One fireman and five other persons were reported injured by flying stones. Police reinforcements were sent into the area and blocked off two main thoroughfares.

JACKSON, MISS.

Young negroes smashed car windows and burned a newsman's car in the Jackson State College area of Jackson, Miss.

Trouble broke out after Charles Evers, state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he received a threatening telephone call.

Police set up barricades along the perimeter of the college area and campus police sealed off a main road through the campus.

HARTFORD, CONN.

Episodes of window breaking and looting flared in sections of Hartford and Police closed five to six blocks of North Main Street to traffic. Several automobiles were stoned.

TALLAHASSEE

About 100 persons demonstrated and some threw rocks on the campus of Florida A&M University in Tallahassee. Windows were broken and cars damaged by rocks. Two house trailers in a mobile home display were burned.

More than 200 Negro youths, breaking store windows and looting, roamed streets of suburban Greenburgh near Scarsdale in Westchester County, just north of New York City.

round, I saw police coming from everywhere. They said 'Behind you'. The police were coming from where the shot came."

Solomon Jones, King's chauffeur, said he saw a "man in white clothes" running from the scene.

King had returned to Memphis Wednesday to lead another massive protest march next Monday in support of the garbage strikers. Sympathizers from other parts of the country had announced they would join, and as many as 10,000 or more were expected for the march.

A similar march March 28 of about 6,000 erupted into the first violence in Memphis since the beginning of the civil rights movement. Police and march leaders, alike, blamed the outburst on Negro youths on the fringe of the march.

One 17-year-old Negro youth was killed in the violence after the march, and his funeral Tuesday was attended by several thousand mourners.

Violence Erupts

Police reported snipers firing on police and national guard units and several persons were reported hit by shots.

Several firebombings and other acts of vandalism also were reported.

Police director Frank Holloman ordered a curfew back into effect "until further notice" as youths ran rampant, many of them with fire bombs in their hands.

Approximately 1200 students from Amherst College and UMass gathered on the Amherst Common at 1 a.m. this morning to mourn the death of Dr. Martin Luther King. For more information on the gathering along with other late developments see today's Daily Collegian afternoon edition.

Near Riot Sweeps Roxbury in Wake of King's Death

MEMPHIS—WHERE KING WAS ASSASSINATED—This is an overhead view of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis as it swarmed with police tonight after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King. King was standing on the balcony of the second floor of the motel. (AP Wirephoto)

BOSTON (AP)—A wave of violence swept through Boston's Roxbury Negro district early today after word came of the shooting death of Dr. Martin Luther King in Memphis, Tenn.

Gangs of youthful Negroes roamed through the Grove Hall part of the area, throwing bottles and stones at passing cars on the main thoroughfare, Blue Hill Avenue.

A half a dozen police cruiser cars were among the two dozen or so cars and buses stoned. Windows were smashed and a dozen persons were reported injured, including one fireman, struck by a stone as he worked to extinguish a small outdoor fire.

Several cars of newsmen were stoned, and a tire on one was slashed when they went to the area to interview Negro leaders on their reaction to the King slaying.

Police girded the area with cruiser cars, including those manned by about 50 of the Tactical Police Force, specially trained policemen who are called in from all parts of the city for emergencies.

Police closed Blue Hill Avenue to all traffic after the reports came on the first stonings of cars. Quincy street, nearby, also was closed to all traffic.

An appeal was issued by the New England Grass Roots Organization, NEGRO, an organization devoted to betterment of Negroes to all whites to stay away from the area, lest their presence incite trouble.

Bands Roam Streets

Police said some of the roving bands appeared to be teenagers, and said they were armed with clubs and lengths of chain.

Police cruisers escorted fire trucks into the area to the scenes where automobiles were reported set afire.

Store windows were broken in business buildings through the area.

Police said a liquor store and an adjacent furniture store were hit by looters.

Police Commissioner Edmund S. McNamara took personal command shortly before midnight, and ordered the evening platoons of police held over to augment the early morning patrols. That put 1,200 policemen, about half the department force, on duty. The greatest number were in the Roxbury area, either on the street or in reserve at surrounding stations.

The bands of roaming youths began to disperse about 3 a.m. when rain began falling, police said.

Doctors at Boston City Hospital reported treating 13 persons for injuries suffered in the violence. One person was held overnight, but his condition was described as not serious.

Students Demonstrate

Students held demonstrations at Cambridge and Amherst, Mass., 90 miles west. About 100 students marched from Harvard Square to a Negro neighborhood in Cambridge, where they were turned away by a group of 25 Negro men who told them to "Stay out of our neighborhood."

At Amherst, several hundred students marched from the University of Massachusetts to the campus of Amherst College, where they formed a circle and sang songs such as "We Shall Overcome" and "Where Have All the Flowers Gone."

Both demonstrations broke up with no injuries and no report of violence.

National Leaders Mourn Passing Of Martyred Civil Rights Leader

By DAVID NYHAN
Associated Press Writer

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. "suffered the fate of heroes," says a brother of the late President Kennedy, who, like King, was struck down by an assassin's bullet.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was one of New England's civic and religious leaders who responded to King's murder Thursday night in Memphis, Tenn.

"A respected leader of 20 million Americans has been struck down in another senseless act of violence and hate," Sen. Kennedy said.

"He died because he was willing to go throughout this country, as a leader and a symbol, in an effort to bring men together," he said.

King did graduate work at Harvard Divinity School and Boston University, and while at BU married Coretta Scott, a coed from Selma, Ala.

On learning of King's death, Harvard President Dr. Nathan M. Pusey said, "It is profoundly tragic. I'm shaken by this, and I just don't know what to say."

In Maine, a scheduled political rally for Democratic Presidential candidate Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was cancelled. A statement from Kennedy's office said, "It is not a time to speak, it is a time to think."

The nation's only Negro U.S. Senator, Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said in Washington, "The crime is unspeakable. The savage act of his assassin must not be allowed to overshadow the higher vision which Martin Luther King shared with all of us."

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, said, "An eloquent voice for the rights of all men has been silenced . . . he had dedicated his life to the cause of nonviolence, and now he has given his life to the ideals he so zealously preached."

The comments of "tragic . . . shock . . . sadness" were echoed in many of the tributes paid the Negro Nobel Peace Prize winner, and frequent reference was made to the "American Dream" the Boston branch of the NAACP said in a statement.

Lt. Gov. Francis W. Sargent, acting governor of Massachusetts while Gov. John A. Volpe is in Japan, said the killing "shames the nation," and added "The gunfire in our streets will not solve the problems we confront."

"Yahoo" Constitution Approved

By NICK COSTA, Senate Reporter

Open Housing Passes Initial Faculty Senate Test

President Jim Collins announced at last evening's Student Senate meeting, that the Trustees, sub-committee on Student Affairs has unanimously responded favorably to the Student Senate's proposal on 'Open Housing.'

The new proposals approved by the committee, include the following points (after long debate and concessions with the Faculty Senate): 1) Ultimate authority for open housing lies with the Board of Trustees, 2) Each house unit, including dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, will formulate its own program determined by secret ballotting, (reviewed every 30 days) 3) Up to 10 open houses may be scheduled each month, 4) The door to the room may be opened or closed, at the discretion of the resident, and 5) All students under 21, wishing to participate must have written parental consent. Students not wishing to participate in the program may request a special room assignment in a house not involved in the new open housing policies.

Collins is Greatful

The Board of Trustees also changed the term, 'Open Housing' to be now called 'Residence Hall Visiting.'

Student Senate Pres. Jim Collins stressed that the new policy just returned from committee, still requires the approval of the full Board of Trustees. The Board meets on Apr. 15th, when Pres. Collins noted, "I hope to report favorably." Collins also stated, "I would like to thank members of the committee. . .I think that they have been fair; I also would like to thank the students who have expressed interest, along with members of the faculty and alministration who have helped."

Pres. Collins reported that committee has also approved the Yahoo Constitution. This too requires the approval by the Trustees. One of the swaying factors, was the 'democracy of organization' which allows any student to contribute, while not conceding to any one interest group. The Yahoo Constitution also requires Presidential approval of all Advisor appointments. This section was included by the Yahoo committee and some senators voiced feelings that this aided the Trustee committee approval.

Afro-American Budget

Brad Johnson, Chairman of the Student Senate Budget Committee, presented the Afro-American budget for senate amending and approval. One motion previously issued by Sen. Elinor Needle, requested that the senate strike the entire $1,878 senate appropriation. Sen. Needle cited that the group only offered active membership to Afro-Americans and it should be considered as an 'interest' group.

Needle also noted that the group would 'duplicate processes' by requesting money for library services and speakers.

Sen. Marcus, following the announcement of Martin Luther King's assassination, "We can't think black. . .As much as we think we know the issues, we don't really know until someone black tells us how it is. . .as soon as all of us are educated. the problems will be settled a lot easier." Sen. Dan Janey added that "Black people are not necessarily people with black skin." Pres. Collins, speaking favorably of the group, stressed, "let the people (Afro-Amer) go out and get results themselves."

The senate approved the budget 45-6-1, after removing an $800 appropriation for a librarian and decreasing an appropriation for a camera from $90 to $50.

Provost Oswald Tippo will address next week's senate meeting as a participant of the 'Open Question Period'. Students wishing to direct questions to the Provost, must deliver written questions before this Monday.

The Provost will also present to the senate the stand of the administration dealing with senate charges against Ronald Matlon, Faculty Advisor of the Forensic Society. Matlon is charged with misuse of senate funds, reported to exceed $427 (Sen. John Dubois, Chairman of Ways and Means Committee investigating the charges).

On Apr. 26, legislators will visit the UM campus and will be guests of the senate. The program chaired by Bruce Balboni, hopes to improve relations and inform legislators of campus life.

Americans Grieve Over Senseless Killing

Although reacting with mixed emotions — fear, hate, despair, grief—Americans across the nation upon hearing the news that Martin Luther King had been assassinated, generally responded with the feeling that the killing was senseless.

President Johnson, addressing the nation on radio and television, said, "We have been saddened. I ask every citizen to reject the blind violence that has struck Dr. King who lived by nonviolence."

"My God, I'm Frightened"

Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to play major league baseball, said, "Oh my God, I'm frightened. I pray to God this doesn't end up in the streets."

Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary Ind., a Negro, said, "He changed the world. He changed it enduringly, far beyond the power of hatred to rescind."

Samuel J. Cornelius, a Nebraska state official, said, "When things like this take place, you wonder if there is any hope at all."

Leontyne Price, Metropolitan Opera soprano, a Negro, said "What Dr. Martin Luther King stood for and was can never be killed with a bullet."

James Farmer, former national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said, "Dr. King hated bloodshed. His own blood must not now trigger more blood letting."

Candidates Speak

Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, said, "We can only grieve."

New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, breaking the news to a predominantly Negro audience in Indianapolis, said, "He dedicated himself to justice and love between his fellow human beings. It's up to those of us who are here to carry out that dream."

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, urged Americans "to try a new spirit of reconciliation to redeem this terrible act."

Steeped in Violence

Sen. Frank Church, D. Idaho, said, "We are steeped in violence; it is the curse of the land."

California State Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, a Negro, said, "This will set back race relations for generations."

James Meredith, who was shot during a 1966 voter registration march in Mississippi, said, "This is America's answer to the peaceful, nonviolent way of obtaining rights in this country."

Jack Greenberg, director-counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, said, "This country is no longer the same."

Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League, said, "We pray that he has not died in vain."

Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said "It is truly American racism."

Lt. Gov. Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts, said, "It is our tragic irony that a man who lived in the face of nonviolence died in the senselessness of a violent act."

A House Divided

The newly installed Archbishop of New York, Terrance J. Cooke, said, "America can't survive with its house divided. We need the justice and love he died for."

Texas Gov. John B. Connally said, "King contributed much to the chaos and turbulence in this country, but he did not deserve this fate."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "His doctrine of nonviolence will overcome."

The Rev. James Groppi, the white priest who led open housing marches in Milwaukee, said, "We are thinking the king is dead. We are sad, bitter."

Calvin Craig, grand dragon of the United Klans of America, said, "... the worst thing that could have happened to the nation."

UMass Students March, Sing, and Pray

By RON LaBRECQUE
News Editor

AMHERST — A group of approximately 200 Orchard Hill residents paying a singing tribute to the assassinated Martin Luther King grew into a crowd of 1200 as it traveled across campus to Southwest and on to Amherst College late last evening.

Although marred by two minor incidents, the demonstration was orderly and did not show signs of adverse emotional reactions to the assassination until heated debate erupted between a small number of the demonstrators after the crowd had congregated on the Amherst Common. Debate ensued for one half hour with the crowd dispersing at approximately 1:30 a.m.

Some two hours after the shooting death of the civil rights leader was announced, the gathering of Orchard Hill residents formed a large circle on the center mall and began singing songs traditional to the civil rights movement. Harrassing spectators caused one minor injury and a small number of near injuries. A water bomb thrown from a Grayson Dormitory balcony hit one coed in the eye. It was later learned that she was not seriously injured. What was apparently a cherry bomb, also thrown from a Grayson balcony, exploded directly in front of a couple viewing the demonstration from the steps of Emily Dickinson dormitory. Both were hit by fragments from the explosion.

Leaving the Orchard Hill area, the crowd moved through the North Quad and on to Southwest. The crowd increased considerably in the Southwest area, moved up Fearing Street onto North Pleasant Street and traveled to the Amherst College campus. A sombre atmosphere prevailed as the group sang such songs as "We Shall Overcome" made famous by Joan Baez.

A large number of Amherst College students quietly joined the marchers as the group passed through the AC campus. Upon reaching the Common, the group, which then numbered approximately 1200, formed a large circle around a core of "leaders" who called for all those with musical instruments to gather in the center of the circle. Accompanied by several guitars and a trumpet, the crowd continued their singing for a short period of time.

Following a five minute period of silence asked for by UMass senior Pete Ward in order to "let us think" Amherst College student Eric Bohman spoke briefly. Bohman asked those present to attend a speech scheduled for this afternoon at Converse Hall on the Amherst College campus to be given by John Wilson of the New York SNCC in conjunction with the Four-College Black Arts Festival.

An unidentified Negro Amherst College student vehemently called on each white in the group to examine his guilt in the assassination of King. He pointed out that it was necessary to do more than just march and "sing a few songs." He angrily pointed out that the problem must be dealt with in the "white community."

A large portion of the crowd came close to the point of becoming out of control as angry retorts between the Negro youth and unidentified white male students intensified obvious deep-rooted personal feelings of the racial situation.

As reports of violence came in from scores of cities across the country, Amherst too was experiencing its own comparatively mild form of reaction to the loss of the Reverend Martin Luther King. The significance of the day's events became most vivid to this reporter as he became a member of a small group which attempted to form a protective human ring around the Negro youth in order that he might be able to speak without interruption. Constructive speech dwindled rapidly amidst a myriad of faces registering emotions which ranged from bitter anger to sorrowful compassion. As one white student argued with the Negro a coed stood nearby crying as she watched.

As rapidly as they had formed, the crowd dispersed and students returned to their respective campuses. As Amherst marched and sang and talked and argued, police departments from two nearby cities, Springfield and Holyoke, reported quiet situations.

Their Dream Must Come True

Martin Luther King is dead. The winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize was assassinated as he stood quietly on the second-floor balcony of his motel in Memphis. He was, no doubt, aware of the possibility of physical harm or even death but he continually placed his fight for the equality of man above his own safety. The years of walking in the shadow of death have ended for him. The leader of the non-violent movement died a violent death.

It would be tt least comforting to believe that his death will renew the effort to give equal rights to all. However, that was the hope at the time of Medgar Evers tragic death. Very little has changed. This may be our last chance to come to terms with our conscience.

Medgar Evers . . . and Dr. Martin Luther King have made the ultimate sacrifice. They asked only to be recognized as a man with the rights of any citizen. Their dream must come true.

The Tragic Death

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is dead. He was assassinated yesterday evening in Memphis, Tennessee where he had planned to lead his second non-violent protest march in support of the striking Negro sanitation workers. The details of Dr. King's fight for civil and human rights are universally known. Dr. King was the leading advocate of non-violence in a country that has had a history of violence. But the real tragedy of King's death is that the racists have removed the greatest leader of Black Americans. Dr. King represented a symbol of strength for the black community, and despite some of our disagreements with his techniques, we all shared a sense of pride when King led his marches, delivered his eloquent speeches, and confronted the white society.

Dr. King assumed his role magnificently and he captured the imagination of an overwhelming majority of Black Americans. No bleak leader, in fact, no previous figure in history, has done more to raise the hopes and aspirations of Black Americans. There was always a certain reverence for King, even among his most severe Black Militant critics. King was admired and respected for his courage, convictions and commitment to the civil and human rights of all people.

America is a sick society and, unlike many of us, Dr. King never lost faith in the efficacy of the non-violent movement to charge this society. King was as keenly aware of the underlying racism in America as anyone, but he remained committed to the view that non-violent militant action can awaken the moral conscience of this nation and eventually overcome the pervasive and powerful influence of racism. Many of us questioned King's faith in non-violence. We wondered how a country which can wage a war leading to the destruction of a country and people in Southeast Asia, a war that King himself had grown to hate, and simultaneously remain insensitive to the sufferings of millions of suppressed people in this nation, can ever be motivated to act because of non-violent actions and appeals to conscience.

But for some reason, we still listened to King, and many of us skeptics were quietly hoping that Dr. King's show-down of non-violence in Washington, D.C. this spring could effect some significant changes. Only Dr. King could generate such hope among a disillusioned and frustrated people. But King is now dead! WHERE DO BLACK AMERICANS GO FROM HERE ?

Man Is Still an Animal

Martin Luther King has been murdered in Memphis and there's not a hell of a lot you can say.

What you thought of the man is really not important. What it says about man is. If anyone ever had any doubts, they can now forget them. Man is an animal. He's come a long way but he's still an animal.

When cornered, he fights back and goes for the jugular —like a rat. And in America, many white men feel they are being driven into a corner by an increasingly vocal and militant black movement.

Maybe they are. But it is because of their own inadequacies. They let themselves be backed into a corner because their blindness doesn't let them see the exit. And then they go for the jugular. The door is there but they just can't see it through their prejudices.

And it's so simple it hurts. If they could only let each other rise and fall on his own merits.

But, no, that would ruin the pecking order. And after all, man is still an animal.

Effects of Johnson's Decision Not to Run

The news that President Johnson will not run for reelection this fall has affected Americans in many different ways. I recently received from my father a letter in which he expressed an opinion, often overlooked, yet very thought provoking. He wrote:

"I am disappointed that the fine things that the President has supported AND accomplished have gone unrecognized by liberals, Negroes, college students, and even middle-aged persons. Last night some hippies visited the White House singing "we have overcome." This is an extreme example of rudeness, in my estimation. Today, however, students from American University picketed in support of the President. I think it is regrettable that many in the nation, including McCarthy, Kennedy, Nixon, Wallace, Fulbright, and others, have criticized President Johnson SO SEVERELY—without offering any alternative — that the President feels this much dfeated. It is always a dirty trick, I believe, to complain, complain, and stop at that."

Censorship of WMUA At Open Meeting

To the editor:

Re: the alleged censorship of WMUA because of the Administration's unwillingness to allow live broadcast of the 'Open Meeting', 19 February 1968.

It is the understanding of many who are concerned with this issue that University Administration felt that it had something to hide when it would not allow the live broadcast; indeed, the Administration might be 'embarrassed' by any broadcast media coverage of its confrontation with over two thousand students. Why, then, was the Collegian allowed to cover the event?

It would seem to me, that although WMUA's air coverage of that event might have possibly included biased, slanted, or weighted analysis, a live microphone would have enabled those people to have a more spontaneous, a more rational, or a more emotional reaction to the events of that evening than if they had read of the same events the next morning in a newspaper. In a newspaper that somehow stood accused of yellow journalism that same evening. Wouldn't a microphone have helped those people who managed to stay away to glean a better impression and response to the feeling involvd in those statements that evening?

An 'embarrassing' situation for the University? Apparently some administrators feared it. To quote a Special Report of the Student Communications Board Concerning the WMUA Controversy, dated 1 April, 1968, ". . . Secretary McCartney told this station (WMUA) that the University should not and would not discuss its private problems in public." The point was raised in a memo to the Student Communications Board that as a public university, UMass has no private problems.

It is interesting to note that President Lederle would endorse his viewpoint, for in his inaugural address, he said, "I cannot overstress the crucial importance, from now on, in the critical times ahead of us, of the public's full understanding and full support of our state university's fundamental educational enterprise. We want our operation to be conducted as in a goldfish bowl for all to see . . . The American college—or university—must be examined critically to discover whether it is worthy of its destiny."

It appears that while first base coach Lederle has flashed the hit-and-run sign, third base coach McCartney flashed the take sign, and WMUA got caught in the batter's box as a fastball whizzed right across its call letters for a strike.

Graduate Senate Approves Budget Pending Acceptance of Dollar Tax

At its last meeting, the Graduate Student Senate approved a proposed budget for 1968-69. The funds for this budget would come from a previously approved graduate student tax of $1 per year. In order for this tax and budget to be finalized, the tax must be passed at a general meeting of all interested graduate students.

This meeting will be held on Mon., Apr. 8, at 8:30 in the SU Ballroom. The purpose of the meeting is threefold:

1. to present in detail and explain the proposed budget.
2. to answer any questions concerning either the proposed budget or tax.
3. to accept or reject the proposed $1.00 tax.

The proposed Graduate Senate budget for 1968-69 is:

1. Graduate Handbook	$600
2. Office Supplies	$200
3. Publicity	$400
a. Newsletter
b. Posters
c. Collegian
4. Part-time Secretary	$800
5. Miscellaneous	$400
a. Social
b. emergency (?)
total	$2400

The Graduate Handbook is expected to contain housing information, the procedural code (if approved), and various other items which could be of assistance to incoming students. The office supplies would be used to stock the office which the Graduate Senate expects to eventually occupy in the Graduate Center. The part-time secretary will, if possible, be a deserving graduate student.

Note that this meeting, Apr. 8, 8:30 SU Ballroom, is open to all grad students and that all grad students are eligible to vote on the question: Do graduate students want a tax of $1 per year?

The Black Arts Festival is a project sponsored by the Afro-American Students Organizations of Amherst College, Smith, Mt. Holyoke and UMass. These organizations have been working together on this festival for almost a year.

This Black Arts Festival is designed to bring to the black brothers and sisters, college students or otherwise, the opportunity to see and experience the wealth contained in their own culture. Individuals involved have made an effort to appeal to all tastes and interests. However, their main goal is to create a feeling of oneness as black people with common backgrounds. To them, the festival will be a success if twenty people come out of our political workshop seriously contemplating for the first time, their individual roles as black people.

The task of coordinating such a monumental event has not been easy. Each of the four colleges has individuals who have given up time, money and spring vacation in order to be in the area so that the numerous difficulties that arose could be dispelled.

All milestones were overcome and the 4-College Black Arts Festival will be held April 5-7 at Springfield Commerce High School. The festival will feature an art exhibit, and a play on Friday. Tickets for events on Friday are $1.50. Saturday there will be a political workshop, poetry reading, literary workshop, and a dance workshop. At 7:30, the New Breed and Archie Shepp will perform. Tickets are $2.00. Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. LeRoi Jones' Repertory Company along with the Frank Hatchet Dance Company will entertain.

By SALLY DOLGIN
Staff Reporter

"The day you kiss your bride hello, you kiss your druthers good-by." Led by young Abner, the male population of Dogpatch flees its "weaker" counterpart in the Operetta Guild's lively production of Li'l Abner.

Whether lying lazily by the old fishing hole or running circles around Cornpone Square, the State House, and General Bullmoose's dollar sign, the citizens of Dogpatch maintain a joyful pace that is even more imposing than General Cornpone's illustrious statue.

Margie Lewin — one of Dogpatch's first ladies

Cris Niemsyski as a fetching Daisy Mae cannot wait to say "Sure do" when the Preacher says "Go to" to her beau played by Jay McAuliffe. Supporting the stars are Mammy Yokum (Frances Botelho) who "protects the rights of womanhood" with her muscular vocal chords, Moonbeam McSwine's real live pig, and a colorful, melodic cast.

Outstanding direction techniques include a slow-motion ballet, a music-in-the-round actors-in-the-audience effect, and a simulation of President Johnson's Southern drawl.

Although Mammy Yokum may do the objecting for her family and fellow citizens, Pappy declares he is just as objectionable as she it. But the hardworking, fun-loving musical cast would have no objection to three sell-out performances the fifth, sixth, and seventh. They deserve it.

Cris Niemyski, playing Daisy Mae, proclaims what she would do if she "had her druthers".

Will the charms of Stupifyin' Jones, played by Marti Carey, save Dogpatch?

Humphrey Close To Entering?

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey all but entered the race for the Democratic presidential nomination Thursday and he received a long, noisy ovation from representatives of organized labor.

Humphrey reminded the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO convention of his long association with labor and said, "If we stick together a little longer, we will be together a lot longer."

But Humphrey, despite appeals from some 2,000 delegates crammed into a hotel ballroom that he "tell us what we want to hear, Hubert," hinted strongly that he would not announce his decision until at least after President Johnson returns from his Vietnam talks in Hawaii.

Humphrey said, "I am not one to walk away from a decision and a decision will be forthcoming in due time."

However, Humphrey, without direct reference to the turmoil in the Democratic party since Johnson took himself out of the race, said, "I will do nothing that in any way will impair". President Johnson's diplomatic mission to Hawaii.

Although Humphrey declined to announce his candidacy, he exclaimed, "Wonderful" when told by a newsman that Secretary of Labor Willard Wirt, had endorsed him.

And the vice president, in a loud aside to others at the head table, said, "Great, great" as the delegates to the labor convention staged their own replica of a political convention. They snake danced through the hall and a red-coated band alternately played "The Minnesota Rouser" and "Chicago" in honor of the Democratic convention.

And there were shouts of "sock it to them Hubert," a mod exclamation more often associated with the supporters of Sens. Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy and roughly translated as give them hell.

The vice president also walked away with the endorsement of United Steel Workers President I. W. Abel, who sat at the front table during Humphrey's speech.

Abel said in a statement that he was joining AFL-CIO President George Meany in urging Humphrey to declare his candidacy. And he said after Humphrey's speech, "I would urge you, in fact plead with you, that the minute our great President returns, you not only make that decision, but you make the decision to be our candidate. Go, Hubert, go. We're with you."

New York Has Balance

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

New York has balance. The first two lines, Marshall, Goyette and Nevin, and Gilbert Ratelle and Kedfield are potential scoring units while the third line, the New York chapter of the Boston Bruin Alumni, Fleming, Kurtenback and Stewart are a fine checking line that can also score.

The defense is sound. Harry Howell heads the blue line corps which also boasts Jim Neilsen, Rod Seiling, and Arnie Brown. This group is big and talented. They don't leave too many loose pucks and opponents must work to beat this crew.

Ed Giacomin is blue chip in the goal. He usually comes up with the big score and seldom gives away a goal. His backup man, Don Simmons, is questionable. If the Rangers had to rely on Simmons, they could be in serious trouble. If Giacomin plays the Rangers could get to the semi-finals.

Boston and Montreal are probably the two best teams in hockey and the winner of this series should go all the way. The Bruins played a third of their season without all every defense man Bobby Orr. The 20-year-old wonder missed games because of an ailing back, broken collarbone and cartilage damage in his knee which required surgery. He is now back in top form.

The loss of Orr may have been a blessing in disguise for the Bruins. Without Orr to rely on, the other defensemen started to take up the slack and as a result are a sound unit. Teddy Green is the policeman and is paired with Don Awrey Dallas Smith, who has finally made it after eight years on the farm system and joins Orr. Gary Doak is the fifth man.

Nobody can score like the Bruins. Of their nine regulars seven scored 20 or more goals. The two that didn't were Tom Williams (18) who missed three weeks of action with a bad bruise and Ed Westfall (14). Westfall failed to score until Christmas night.

Phil Esposito leads the scoring parade. He notched 35 goals, 39 assists and was second in the league.He centers to Shack and Ken Hodge. The first line consists of Fred Stanfield, John Bucyk and John McKenzie. This line manages more than eight goals over the season. The third line has rooky Derek Sanderson centering Williams and Westfall.

Much mention has been made about the Bruins lack of playoff experience. But the experts have failed to notice the first two lines have had playoff experience with other clubs and Bucyk was on the last Bruin playoff team. In the nets the Bruins are sound. Gerry Cheevers did the bulk of the goal tending over the last half of the season. Sub Ed Johnston is a proven major leaguer and has always done well against the Habs.

The Bruins have been playing well although they slipped slightly in the final week. The Canadiens lost their last two games. Forget them. The season starts anew tonight. The Bruins are hungrier, they're stronger and they score better. They'll win in six.

• Lacrosse

on the trip, midfielders Bob Florin and Steve Connolly did not make the trip due to injuries

Garber is still juggling his lineups. If Sinclair can not play goal, the nod should go to junior Mark Schlossberg. The coach has been experimenting with Sinclair on attack to add scoring punch.

Garber saw the morale excellent on the trip in face of the busy schedule and injuries. He also was pleased at the great deal of experience his second line players obtained. "The first half was for the first team to go all out. They always held their own. The second half was experimenting and many players picked up valuable playing time."

The coach had a final word about UMass' place in national lacrosse circles. "There are five levels of lacrosse in American collegiate circles. The National Division which includes John Hopkins, Maryland and Army, plus the Ivy League, are the top two. This amounts to only 13 of 87 teams. We are in the third level. Therefore we have about 14 teams ranked ahead of us."

"We played credibly well against those teams and that's no alibi or excuse, just fact. It would be like UMass playing Notre Dame in football every week."

and coxswain, Rich Santaguida.

Mike Faherty is starting his first year as coach of the freshman team. He has three years of rowing experience under the coaching of Dave Clarke. This is the second year UMass has had a freshman crew.

According to Coach Faherty, URI and St. John's should both be bringing good crews. URI had a lot of candidates out for the crew. The freshmen have been able to watch their third opponent, Amherst, working out this week on the Connecticut River.

Eric Meffley was elected captain of the boat over vacation. He is the second man in the boat. The rest of the boatings for the freshmen are: bow, Dave Richard; third, Tom Mone; fourth, Phil Dwyer; fifth, Donald Hanberry; sixth, Mark Caren; seventh, Bob Depan; stroke, Rich Marulle and coxswain, Chris Jedfrey. Steve Malone and Dave Solar are the spares on the frosh crew, but according to Coach Faherty, the positions are not set definitely and he is still trying out different combinations.

The freshmen will be leading off at 2 p.m. and the varsity and junior varsity will follow. According to Coach Clarke there is plenty of space for parking at the boathouse in Hadley and room for spectators to watch with a full view of the course. With the UMass race plus the Amherst-Temple race, there should be plenty of action tomorrow.

The Fifth Column

1 Picture May Tell the Story

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

The time has come to prevent Friday's pictures from tainting Thursday's results. With the recent technological improvements of video tape, especially in stopping the action, it should be obvious that a camera can decipher something that a human eye can't.

For years now a camera decides the winner of an extremely close race, not some steward sitting on the finish line. Why can't video tape be used to answer the questions: Did the receiver have his feet in bounds when he caught the pass? Did the ball go through the uprights or was it wide? Did the ball hit the screen or bounce to the top of the wall?

Steve Ross

A perfect example of this was the case last Thursday when a Phil Esposito shot caromed off the back support of the cage and rocketed out onto the ice. Boston goal judge Bernie Bailey was screened by the support and thought the puck hit the crossbar and never blinked the red light. Esposito's reaction was immediate; he slashed at the hercolite panel in front of Bailey and cussed. As soon as play was stopped Esposito and Ted Green asked referee John Ashley to allow the goal. He totally ignored the Bruins co-captains and would never even consult his linesmen. Ashley seemed to treat the whole game as a disturbance of a private trance. He let just about everything go in the first two periods including an attack by Orland Kurtenbach of New York .

Friday morning the controversy was settled. A great photo by the Herald Traveler's Russ Adams showed the puck in the net. Bailey admitted he was wrong, but the results stood—Rangers, 5; Bruins 4.

Three seasons ago Green Bay and Baltimore were playing off in the Western Division title. With 1:57 to go in the fourth period and the Packers trailing 10-13, Don Chandler booted a 25 yard field goal to tie the score. He booted another in overtime to win the game. Baltimore complained bitterly that the first attempt was wide. Films proved the Colts right, except they lost and the Packers won.

The solution isn't too difficult. Place a monitor on the sideline and play the game. If an official is questioned about a discernable fact like "where did the ball go exactly," a replay can be played and the issue settled correctly, whether or not the original call was correct or not.

The only problem that could arise would be that of cameras being out of line with the action. If this were to be the case, the official's decision, right or wrong, would have to stand.

It is only logical that the fan would want the corrected result to stand. Even if their team had a decision charged that hurt them, a fan would still accept the call if he saw it on film or tape.

Bernie Bailey said, "I was positive that I was right last night, but that picture shows that I was wrong. All I can say is I made a mistake and I'm sorry." That's quite a thing for a man to admit.

Ball Team Opens Home Stand Against Colgate

Canty Gets Mound Duty

By HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

Fireballing lefty John Canty gets the starting nod for the UMass baseball team as it opens its home schedule Sunday against Colgate at 2 p.m. on Varsity Field. The senior co-captain has a 1-1 mark with a 1.92 ERA. In 13.1 innings pitched during the Redmen's 2-3-1 Southern road trip, Canty struck out 23 while walking only six.

The game will be the sixth for the Red Raiders in an opening stretch of twelve straight road encounters. Coach Frank "Red" O'Hara has the youngest team in his 18 years as head coach at the Hamilton, New York school. Ten lettermen return, with captain John Ciesluk being one of only two seniors on the squad.

Heading the Colgate pitching staff is junior Bill Reina who led the staff with a 2.45 ERA last spring. Sophomore right-handers Jim Decker and Jamie Lotz both have been impressive in spring drills as has junior lefty Bob Sudmyer.

The catching is capably handled by sophomores Joe Nabozny and Ken Giffune. Nabozny belted the ball at a .500 clip for the frosh last season.

A new look features the Red Raider infield. Converted right-fielder Ciesluk will play first base while last spring's second-baseman Ted Beekman has moved to shortstop. Beekman clouted three homers and knocked across 11 runs last year.

Chuck Fox and Art Crabtree are battling for the second base spot while Tom Mariano and Bruce Bonney are in the running for the third base job.

O'Hora's strong suit is his outfield, with lettermen Ron Burton, John Reid, and Doug Hale returning. Reid and Hale, both juniors, are counted on to provide a big share of the hitting load. Hale led all Colgate hitters last season with a .391 mark. Junior Jeff Smith will be the spare outfielder and also handles catching and infield duties capably as a utilityman deluxe.

UMass coach Dick Bergquist is currently hampered by injuries to key personnel. However, Joe DiSarcina (bruised right elbow), Bob Hansen (bruised right ankle), and Don Ferron (right shin) are all expected to see action in the 2 p.m. contest.

Also possibly available for spot duty will be Chuck Espanet (bad left knee) and Fred Tombor (pulled right hamstring).

The Redmen will have two more home games next week, hosting AIC April 11 and Dartmouth two days later.

The tentative UMass starting lineup shows sophomore Chuck Newell or junior Ed Lagoy handling the catching chores. The infield will hopefully be manned by 1b Hansen, 2b Ferron, ss DiSarcina, and soph Steve Stanford at third.

Senior Ted Mareno will be in left field, soph basketball ace Ray Ellerbrook in center, and either senior Alex Vyce or soph Steve Rogers in right.

"Baseball Future Is Doubtful" For Conigliaro, Says O'Connell

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox reported yesterday that outfielder Tony Conigliaro's vision in his left eye is deteriorating and the young slugger's "baseball future at the present time is very doubtful."

Dick O'Connell issued the statement after Conigliaro was examined by Dr. Charles E. J. Regan, an eye specialist.

Conigliaro suffered a cracked cheekbone and a serious eye injury when he was struck by a pitch thrown by California's Jack Hamilton in a game last Aug.

He missed the remainder of the 1967 season, including the World Series. Conigliaro attempted a comeback in training this spring but was ineffective at bat, striking out 22 times.

O'Connell said the examination revealed that Conigliaro "has a much larger blind spot. His vision is deteriorating," the statement said. "He has vision distortion and poor or no depth perception. There is a possibility of a detached retina.

"His baseball future at the present time is very doubtful. Further examinations are being made at this time by Dr. Charles L. Shapens, another eye specialist."

Crew Team to Row Against Tough URI, St. John's in First Meet

By JAN CURLEY
Sports Day Editor

The traffic on the Connecticut River is getting thicker every day. The UMass crew club has three shells practicing daily and Amherst College also has three shells out. For UMass, the winter long practice schedule will be tested tomorrow as they row against the University of Rhode Island and St. John's. The varsity and junior varsity follow the freshmen who are expected to start at 2 p.m.

For the crew teams this is their third year of competition. They race in the Dad Vail Association in Philadelphia, although they are not members. Last year UMass placed three crews in the top 10 New England schools, which is an admirable accomplishment for a team which is not even recognized by its own athletic department. This year UMass is rated as a big contender for an even higher standing.

The varsity and junior varsity crews are coached by Dave Clarke, a senior, who helped to organize the team three years ago from a group of 10 men who rowed for pleasure on Sunday afternoons.

Last Monday the team elected Roger O'Donnell, an engineering major with three year's rowing experience, as their captain. Tim McKenna, a history major also with three years of rowing experience, was elected captain of the junior varsity.

URI and St. John's are both expected to bring three teams to the meet tomorrow. Neither team has beaten UMass before, and according to Coach Clarke, "They will be looking for their first win against UMass."

Amherst, which is competing against Temple on the Connecticut River this weekend, has also been practicing in Florida over spring vacation. The junior varsity, in addition to rowing against URI and St. John's, will be competing against Amherst. The course is 2,000 meters long, the regulation Olympic distance. This distance is being used as many of the crew teams are going to compete for berths in the Olympics. Glenn Chaple, the varsity stroke, will be trying out for the Olympics with the East Coast Olympic Training Camp at MIT.

The boatings for the varsity, announced by Coach Clarke, are: bow, Roger O'Donnell; second, Robert Kiley; third, Chick Leenard; fourth, Ken Stevens; fifth, Shultz; sixth, Ed Magiera; seventh, Howard Chapin; stroke, Glenn Chapland, coxswain, Bill Crowe. Dee Smith and Andrew Elliott are spares.

Beatings for the junior varsity are: bow, John Farrell; second, Dave Keating; third, Wendell Frost; fourth, Doug McLean; fifth, Tim McKenna; sixth, Bob Natusch; seventh, Jean-Louis Garbose; stroke, Kurt Betchick

Injuries Mar Winning Lacrosse Trip

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Injuries to several key performers marred an otherwise successful spring trip for the UMass lacrosse team. Competing against some of the best competition in the east, the Redmen more than held their own, winning six and losing three of their scrimmages played.

Coach Dick Garber was much pleased with his team's fine performance. "We had good hustle, we played technically well, and best of all, I think, was the excellent morale," said the coach. "It was a most worthwhile trip."

The team started its week with two scrimmages on March 23. The Redmen routed R.P.I., 14-4, and the Connecticut Valley Lacrosse Club, 12-2, before hitting the road.

Monday, the 25th, UMass met Army at West Point. The Cadets are annually ranked in the country's top five teams and this year is no exception. Playing against this top caliber competition, the Redmen more than held their own.

UMass scored first before the score was tied at the end of the first quarter, 1-1. The Cadets led at the half, 5-2. Coach Garber then used all his reserves in the second half, as Army won 10-5. The score was misleading, however. As Garber said, "We had more good shots, point-blank shots, that we just hit the goalie with. It was a problem we would have all week."

Garber also praised his defense as, "excellent," and also said that the midfielders ran well and the attackmen worked together in good fashion.

Wednesday of the same week, the team travelled to play City College of New York. CCNY had fine seasons the past couple of years. UMass, however, jumped out to a big 7-1 first quarter lead and won the contest, 10-6. From midway in the seconid quarter, Garber used his reserves, as he would do in most games.

This impressive victory was marred by a freak injury to co-captain and starting goaltender Bill Sinclair. The veteran senior was standing on the sidelines when he was struck in the eye by an errant pass. Sinclair did not play the rest of the trip, and his play in next week's opener is not sure. The injury takes on added seriousness with the fact that it is the same eye that Sinclair had injured last season.

The next day, Thursday, March 28, the Redmen were scheduled to play Rutgers but wound up also scrimmaging Princeton. Against the Tigers, three first quarter goals and one in the second quarter enabled UMass to lead 4-2 in the third stanza before the reserves entered the contest.

UMass' other co-captain, defenseman Walt Alessi was injured during the Princeton contest as he bruised his shoulder. He also did not see any action the remainder of the trip. Coach Garber when asked if Alessi would play in the Wesleyan opener, said, "We have our fingers crossed."

On the same day, UMass faced Rutgers. The tired Redmen lost 8-5. Erratic shooting again plagued the Redmen as Garber said, "We were not outplayed." The injury jinx struck again as sophomore midfielder Bob Marshall hurt his shoulder in the contest.

Friday of the same busy week, Garber's squad arrived in Long Island to scrimmage Nassau Community College. The combination of a very tired UMass team plus a very good Nassau team spelled an 11-8 upset defeat of the Redmen. It was a patched up squad Coach Garber used in this contest.

Sophomore Peter Scoville played goal much of the time and distinguished himself well. The game was highlighted by a brilliant five goal performance by last year's leading Kevin O'Connor. The injuries, however still kept coming as sophomore defenseman Bruce Fulton suffered a bruised thigh.

The trip wound up with a round-robin match involving Harvard, the Boston Lacrosse Club and Tufts, plus UMass. The Boston duels saw the Redmen play real well and as Coach Garber put it," "It gave us a big lift."

Playing Harvard first, UMass fell behind 1-0 at the half, but came back to go ahead, 6-3, before the reserves were inserted. Against Tufts, the Jumbos jumped to a 3-0 lead but the spirited Redmen fought back and gained a 4-3 win. UMass then shutout the club team, 5-0. Garber attributed the win to good passing and running.

In looking over the trip as a whole, Coach Garber said, "We'll have to work on our shooting and ground balls. The defense was outstanding on the whole, with Tom Tufts turning in a consistently amazing job. Steve Chambers played a great midfield while O'Connor was outstanding on attack. Marty Kilkowski also did a fine job.

Besides the injuries, incurred

Dr. King's Funeral To Be Held Tomorrow

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King made final plans yesterday for her husband's funeral and then tentatively scheduled a one-day visit to the city where he was slain to add dramatic support to the cause in which he died.

MRS. KING TO LEAD MARCH

The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, new head of the civil rights organization Dr. King lead, said that Mrs. King would lead a street march today in Memphis, Tenn., on behalf of striking sanitation workers. Mrs. King said however, her plans were not final.

"We believe that we will be able to conduct a non-violent demonstration," the Rev. Mr. Abernathy said, "but we cannot make a guarantee."

Dr. King was assassinated in Memphis last Thursday.

SERVICES HELD

In Atlanta, Dr. King's closest friends poured out their sorrow in special Palm Sunday services while Mrs. King, in seclusion most of the day, took personal charge of Tuesday's funeral arrangements.

The streets of Dr. King's hometown, untroubled by the major violence that has ravaged other cities, remained quiet and uncrowded under a gray sky as Atlanta observed the national day of mourning requested by the President.

MOURNERS PAY TRIBUTE

Visitors continued to file past the body of Dr. King, resting in repose upon an unadorned bier in a campus chapel. By mid-afternoon the line was backed up a quarter of a mile.

The body was placed on public view in a glass covered bronze coffin Saturday afternoon. It will be taken Monday to Ebenezer Baptist Church, where Dr. King was co-pastor with his father. The funeral will be at the Ebenezer church Tuesday.

City officials, hotel keepers, airport authorities and others were preparing to accommodate as many as 100,000 visitors for the funeral.

Private citizens were urged from pulpits and in radio broadcasts to open their homes to out-of-towners and provide transportation from the airport in an anticipated taxi shortage.

Churches of all faiths held special memorial services and others planned Monday memorials. An interdenominational service was held at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Philip.

BROTHER CONDUCTS SERVICE

Dr. King's brother, the Rev. A. D. King, conducted the Sunday service for Dr. King's own flock at the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

He said Dr. King had told him a half hour before he was shot to death Thursday that he planned to preach a sermon entitled "Why America may go to hell." The Rev. A. D. King adopted the topic.

He said America, like the prodigal son of the Bible story, was spending its efforts recklessly in a far off country.

"Come home, America," he said, "and make my world a better world," The slain Dr. King was an ardent critic of the war in Vietnam.

The Rev. King also told the story of Lazarus begging for crumbs from the rich man's table He said the rich man's attitude was, "Don't rush your cause, Lazarus . . . stay there at the gate and beg."

He likened this to America's attitude toward the poor but said "America has a chance.

You don't have to go to hell."

MEMPHIS—KING'S LAST PUBLIC APPEARANCE—Dr. Martin Luther King addresses 2,000 supporters of a sanitary workers' strike at Memphis Wednesday night, his last public appearance. King, assassinated Thursday night, said in the speech now is the time he would rather live than any era in history.

Vigil Pays Homage to Dr. King

by BOB GORMAN
Staff Reporter

At 11:30 Friday morning, a long procession of students and faculty walking six abreast marched to the Amherst Common from the Student Union in tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

When the 400 marchers arrived at the Common they were joined with several hundred other shocked and saddened people. The group paid tribute to Dr. King with a ten minute silent vigil, followed by talks from three UMass chaplains.

Rev. Thomas Lindeman gave a summary of Dr. King's life; Rev. John L. Scott read pieces from a letter that King wrote when he was in the Birmingham, Alabama jail that mentioned the need for action against injustice and, Rev. Lindeman gave a prayer for Dr. King's family and the country.

The noontime service was over in twenty minutes and the group disbanded and walked back to campus.

Gil Salk, '68, helped plan the march from the campus to the Amherst Common. He said that the march and rally were intended to express the sorrow and shock at a great man's death. The people at the rally were very quiet and very respectful.

The memorial at the Common was coordinated by Harold Ohlendorf, an instructor in the Germanic Languages Dept.

At 1 p.m. Amherst College held a memorial service in Johnson Chapel where half of the 1200 students attended.

Rev. Lewis S. Mudge, Amherst's chaplain, led the group in the hour-long service. He gave a prayer and read several pieces from Scripture. The students and faculty as well as the Amherst Glee Club sang several songs.

Cuthbert Simpkins, Amherst '69, President of the Afro-American Society, gave a eulogy to Dr. King. He said that by killing Dr. King "our only prince of peace" has been killed.

Students Organize Memorial Services

by RONALD J. LABRECQUE
News Editor

A march to the center of Amherst, a half hour silent vigil on the common, and a memorial service with speakers on the South Terrace of the Student Union will be offered in memory of assassinated Martin Luther King tomorrow morning beginning at ten o'clock.

The memorial services and march have been organized by Gilbert Salk '68 who organized last Friday's march to the common.

Upon return from the silent vigil on the Common, members of the Amherst area clergy and the University community will speak briefly. The memorial coincides with the funeral services of the slain civil rights leader which will be held in Atlanta, Georgia tomorrow morning.

It was announced by President John Lederle that classes will be held as scheduled. Dean of Students William F. Field told the Daily Collegian that "speaking for the administration, I would encourage students who desire, to attend." Explaining that it was not feasible for classes to be cancelled, he went on to say that it was traditional for the administration to make it aware to the faculty that an event of a serious nature is scheduled. Although not receiving definite official sanction for class excuses, the memorial services will be regarded as any other major religious event which occurs on a class day.

Clergy who will be speaking tomorrow morning include Rabbi Martin Kowal, Rev. Jeffrey Campbell, Unitarian minister and Rt. Rev. Monsignor David J. Power, Newman Center Chaplain. Also speaking will be Professor William Wilson, Student Senate President James Collins, and Salk.

The march will begin in front of the Student Union and then move up North Pleasant St. to the Amherst Common. In case of inclement weather the speakers will be heard in Curry Hicks Cage.

Other memorial services for King include a Mass which will be held in the Newman Center Chapel at 5 p.m. this evening.

Open House Proposals Clarified

The Daily Collegian wishes to clarify certain points in last Friday's story of the open house proposal.

The new proposal approved by the Board of Trustees Student Activities Subcommittee include the following points.

1) Ultimate authority for open hours, or residence visiting, lies with the Board of Trustees.

2) An unlimited number of Open Houses, the exact number to be determined by secret balloting in each house unit, including dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, may be held.

3) The door to the room may be opened or closed, at the discretion of the resident.

4) All students under 21, wishing to participate must have written parental consent. Students not wishing to participate in the program may request a special room assignment in a house not involved in the new open housing policies.

Compliance with the new open house proposal by the students will be under the honor system with the dialogue occuring between students and family.

The proposed hours for open house are:

Mon. - Thurs.	3 P.M. - 10 P.M.
Fri., Sat., Sun.	12 noon - closing
Night before holiday	3 P.M. - closing

ABOUT 800 STUDENTS from the four-college area conducted a peaceful march Friday from the UMass Student Union to the Amherst Town Common where special ceremonies were staged honoring the late Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. Gilbert Salk (carrying sign), a UMass student, led the group.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin O. Reischauer, former U. S. ambassador to Japan, says there is a 50 - 50 chance the United States can end the Vietnam war in the next six months "or be well on our way to doing so."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — A man carrying a rifle walked into an afternoon church service Sunday and began firing, killing three persons and wounding three others. Police killed the man with rifle and revolver fire in front of the storefront church.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A Negro was killed and two others and two policemen were wounded in a pitched battle in the long - brewing feud between the militant gun - carrying Black Panthers and police Saturday night in the West Oakland Negro district.

International

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller appealed to the New York State Legislature Sunday to enact legislation swiftly as a tribute to the memory of the assassinated Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

"We cannot honor him merely by our tears," the governor said. "We must honor him — and the principles for which he died — by our actions."

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam prefers a neutral country as the site for any talks to end the war, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do said Sunday.

He ruled out Paris or capitals of Communist countries such as the Soviet Union or Poland. Present thinking in Saigon, he added, is that talks should be held in Geneva, Tokyo or New Delhi, India.

U. N. Secretary - General U Thant said Geneva is "quite a good possibility" for preliminary talks, which he asserted will begin very soon "and result in the unconditional cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam."

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Van Loc has signed a decree extending the draft age to men of 40 and recalling older veterans to military service, government sources said Sunday.

The move appears to be the first step in the general mobilization President Nguyen Van Thieu has been promising. The decree will go into effect June 1, the informants said.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said Sunday he deplored the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. as a "cowardly and atrocious killing." He associated it with the sufferings of Christ.

"Our sorrow is made all the greater and more fearful because of the violent and disorderly reactions" that followed the slaying of the Negro civil rights leader, the Pope said.

RICHMOND (AP) — An explosion ripped through a row of buildings in downtown Richmond Sunday afternoon. The blast destroyed at least one building and damaged others, including City Hall. Some of the damaged buildings were in flames.

Violence Quelled in Washington; Disorders, Looting in Baltimore

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Palm Sunday calm descended on arson-scarred and pillage-racked Washington but the city remained wary and under military patrol.

Discovery of three bodies in burned stores pushed the death toll to seven and possibly eight in violence that began Thursday night.

Arrests were tapering off, no new fires were reported Sunday and looting appeared confined to a few stores in Negro areas previously combed by window-smashers and thieves.

Some 11,600 National Guardsmen—many of them Negroes—remained on duty, enforcing the curfew, guarding smashed stores, patrolling intersections and keeping tight security around the White House and Capitol. Trucks full of troops lumbered up and down streets.

BALTIMORE

Meanwhile the White House announced yesterday that up to 2,000 regular Army troops will be dispatched to Baltimore at request of Gov. Spiro Agnew of Maryland, to help quell disorders and looting.

The White House disclosed that several hundred troopers already are in motion toward Baltimore, that up to 2,000 will be authorized as soon as a formal request reaches President Johnson from the governor, and that "if the governor wants more than 2,000 he will get them."

PITTSBURGH

Fresh violence broke out in Pittsburgh yesterday while a shaky calm, enforced by nearby 40,000 troops, fell on burned, smashed and looted areas of Washington, Chicago and Baltimore, hardest hit by Negro rioting in the three nights since the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The renewed firebombing and looting in Pittsburgh's Negro Hill district caused police to call for help from state police and a battalion of National Guard troops which had been alerted Saturday night.

tertainment as their uncomparable musical style is aided by a well practiced.

The sensitivity and feeling put forth in the songs written by group members Terry Kirkman and Ted Bluechel highlighted the performance. Kirkman is the composer of "Cherish" and a moving number which the group dedicated to the memory of Martin Luther King entitled "Requium For the Masses". Bluechel's composition, "Standing Still" is a captivitating song about love which ranks with the beauty of "Cherish".

The music of the Association cannot be labeled for it draws on many different types of music and to find a label other than "the Association sound" becomes a difficult task.

Class Officers To Be Elected

Election for class officers will be held next Tuesday, April 16 (the primary) and the following Tuesday, April 23 (the final election). The Student Senate last Wednesday suspended the election rules to hold the voting Tuesdays instead of Thursday to allow the new officers a few more days to prepare their budgets for the next year.

The classes of 1971, 1970, and 1969 are affected by the elections but not the class of 1968. This election will also be the final voting for the class of 1969 —officers elected in April of their junior year serve until graduation.

Students wishing to run for one of the five offices (president, vice president, treasurer, secretary, or senator-at-large) of their class may take out nomination papers starting today from the RSO office in the Student Union. One hundred signatures on the nomination papers must be filed by noon, Saturday, April 13. Other regulations are included in the election rules, copies of which are available from the Student Senate.

Primary elections shall be held on April 16 only for those positions for which more than two candidates have filed. Final elections for positions which two or less candidates seek and the run-off elections after the primaries shall be held on April 23.

Absentee ballot provisions for class elections are as follows: "absentee ballots shall be made available to students with extenuating travel circumstances, health problems, religious conflicts, or other reasons justifiable to the chairman of the S.G.A. committee Student Government Affairs Committee of the Student Senate. Requests for absentee ballots will be honored if a written, signed request to that effect is, with reasons, presented to the chairman of the S.G.A. Committee not later than five days before the election . . . Such ballots must be returned in a sealed envelope to the chairman before the polls close in order to be valid."

See tomorrow's Daily Collegian for a listing of the whether the incumbent officers will run for reelection.

Tomorrow

Summer came early this year.

The summer of violence and destruction predicted by most authorities in the field of race relations got off to a premature start last Thursday when Dr. Martin Luther King, an advocate of non-violence, was felled by an assassin's bullet. What comes next is anyone's guess.

Racial prejudice is a complicated problem which cannot be solved by legislation or by budgetary appropriation. It cannot be solved by executive order. And it definitely cannot be solved by ignoring it. We can plead ignorance and keep our eyes closed if we so desire, but the situation will not go away.

Theoretically it will make little difference whether King's killer is ever apprehended, for the blame may be shared collectively. Every American, every student, in some way contributed to the act: the students on Orchard Hill who hurled cherry-bombs and water balloons at the crowd of mourners, the Southwest residents who heckled the marchers with swears and threw trash out the windows at them, the Greeks who sat in front of their fraternity house and chanted "white power" as the procession headed into town, and the various onlookers who used traditional racist phrases like "nigger lovers" in harrassing the group. "That's one less we'll have to worry about," commented one student when he heard the tragic news of King's murder.

The question can no longer be merely "who" killed Martin Luther King. Rather it should be "what" killed Martin Luther King. Perhaps a little introspection and re-evaluation is in order even in this supposedly liberal, unprejudiced University community.

Tommorrow at 10 a.m. a procession will form in front of the Student Union. It will proceed into Amherst to the town common for a half-hour of silent tribute, after which it will return to the South Terrace of the Union for a memorial service. Everyone should make it his business to be there—not merely to sooth his conscience, but rather to stimulate it to a greater awareness of the problems which are threatening to destroy America from within.

Perhaps the most appropriate comment was made last night during a meeting of various concerned citizens at Amherst High School. Said one person intently: "July fourth is the birthday of America—let's let April fourth become the birthday of America's conscience."

Let's all hope that it does.

Nothing Left for the Left

Since every silver lining has its cloud, I began to wonder if it were possible that the latest hints of peace might be unwelcome to anyone at all. I found that the answer was as near as the local campus radical.

• • • • •

"You must be pleased with the latest prospects for peace, since it's what you've been advocating for years now," said I.

"I'm not so sure," he said, obviously shaken by the dramatic turn of events. "I suspect it's just another cheap political ploy by Johnson."

"How can you say that about Johnson after he so nobly took himself out of the race for President?"

"That's just the type of guy Johnson is. Just as soon as he realized we were right, he practically admitted he was wrong. Now, I ask you, is that fair?"

"You have a point," I said.

"And that's not all. When he took himself out of the race, we couldn't hate Johnson anymore but at least we could hate the war. If he stops that, there'll be nothing left to hate."

He was on the verge of tears, so in an effort to comfort him, I suggested that if he were to point this out to Johnson perhaps Johnson could pacify the pacifists by leaving about 30 or 40 men in Vietnam to fight Communism. That way they could still have their cause but very few people would be killed.

"It's no use," he sobbed. "If Johnson stops the war, the peace movement is doomed."

Supporting Dr. King's Struggle

To the University Community:

We appeal to you to contribute whatever you can in support of the Memphis sanitation worker's strike for collective bargaining rights. It was specifically in this struggle that Martin Luther King, Jr. gave his life. As Bayard Rystin said shortly after Dr. King 's death, the immediate task is to see that Dr. King did not die in vain in the cause of the Memphis workers. The funds collected at the University will be forwarded directly to Dr. King's Memphis headquarters at the Temple A.M.I. Church. In the event that the strike should be settled before the funds can be sent, the funds will be redirected to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to be used as it sees fit to carry on Dr. King's desperately important work for America.

It would be helpful if one individual would undertake to organize the collection of contributions in each department or service area.

Checks can be made out to Martin Luther King Memorial Fund. Please send all contributions to Andrew Martin, 306 Machmer Hall.

Rowdyism during the Memorial March

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the President of Grayson House on Friday.

Dear Mr. Russell,

I would like to make known my extreme displeasure, or I should say disgust, with the actions of a large number of the residents of your dormitory during the spontaneous singing memorial to the slain Martin Luther King which was held in Orchard Hill last night.

I found the demonstration to be a most gratifying expression of sincere emotion and the actions of certain residents of Grayson seems to me to be completely antithetical to any mode of human decency. Any person who participated in the harassment emanating from the balconies of Grayson certainly has no reason to be proud.

I find it hard to believe that college "men" could be so completely thoughtless and unruly as to actually cause personal injury. I was a witness to a girl being hit in the eye with a waterbomb. Fortunately the girl was not seriously injured although it was very possible as she was wearing contact lenses. I later saw what was apparently a cherry bomb explode in front of a couple splattering them with fragments from the explosion.

Firecrackers, waterbombs, catcalls, obscenities, a constant barrage of banalities; these are what confronted a group of thinking, feeling people. I wonder if any of the Graysonites stopped to think of exactly what was happening down there. A memorial service, a form of prayer for a murdered man, for an ideal, for a goal, was being offered.

It was no time for humor. A most significant event had occurred, one which will without a doubt seriously affect the lives of each and every one of us. I can only wonder at what kind of people, living in a supposedly intellectual community, could be so cruel and thoughtless to so vociferously disrupt a demonstration of this sort.

Since the time of the assassination we have been told that we should feel shame for what happened in Memphis. I only hope that some amount of shame is felt in the corridors of Grayson. Perhaps time has shown the gravity of the situation to those participating in the harassment. Perhaps Grayson residents have taken stock of what their actions last night mean. Perhaps not. I shudder to think of the future of our country if they and hundreds of thousands of supposedly intelligent people like them across the nation have not taken time to think.

I would invite any person who participated in the balcony harassment to visit me in the Daily Collegian office and justify his actions. I would like to remind you that although I am writing in my capacity as an editer of the student newspaper I speak solely for myself and not for the entire Editorial Board.

The Yardbirds and the Association — A Contrast in Sound

by RONALD J. LABRECQUE
News Editor

The amplification was a mistake for Curry Hicks Cage but hiding behind a barrage of decibels were four creative musicians. The Yardbirds began with "The Train Kept On Rollin' " and it was immediately apparent that something which had once been captured in a recording studio was being sacrificed to several vibrating amplifiers.

The social comment of "Mister, You're a Better Man Than I" was lost in a mass of sounds which seemed to excite the teeny-boppers present but was more than the discerning ear could take. The English rock group is talented but the talent just wasn't always apparent. Some of their better numbers included "Heat Full of Soul," one of their more popular recordings, which was done well but marred somewhat by a psychedelic interlude which took something away from the song.

"Smile Me Baby", a bluesy number with some good harmonica by lead singer Keith Relf was one of the few numbers that wasn't hindered by the amplification problem. Another was an instrumental called "White Summer".

The Yardbirds of the recording studio came through in a few numbers especially "Shapes of Things" and the only number which the over amplification seemed to enhance, "I'm a man".

On stage, their manner and dress give the impression that the group members are less than aware or interested in the world around them. Quite the opposite is true as the four boys from England talked knowledgeably on a variety of subjects in the dressing room after their performance including a dialogue on the special social problems which confront this county today which was led by lead guitarist Chris Dreza.

In total contrast to the psychedelic rock of the Yardbirds was the performance by the Association. Their act is total en-

Tryouts To Be Held For 'The Big Parade'

Tryouts for the 1968 Readers Theatre production will be held tonight and tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m. in 119 Bartlett. All graduate and undergraduate students are eligible. Students should come prepared to read a bit of verse and a bit of prose of their own choosing.

Vincent Brann, director of forthcoming Readers Theatre production The Big Parade: An American Montage.

The subject of this year's production is contemporary America as reflected in modern poetry, prose, slogans, songs, and miscellaneous bits of Americana. Its title is The Big Parade: An American Montage, and it attempts to convey, a bit satirically and a bit irreverently, what Americans look and sound like today.

Director Vince Brann will need six men and four women, including one musician who can play a guitar, a banjo or a harmonica. The musical aspect is flexible, as this is primarily, a readers performance, not a musical.

If the announced audition times are inconvient for interested students, they may call Mr. Brann at 545-0133 and arrange some other audition time.

The Big Parade will be produced May 9-11 in Bartlett Auditorium.

Phone Study to Be Conducted by Marketing Club

The New England Telephone Company will sponsor a special study of telephone service for students during the period April 8th through 18th.

The objectives of the study will be to evaluate the quality of various aspects of residence hall telephone service from the students viewpoint; to determine the importance of the service to them; to uncover the problems encountered in the use of the service; and to obtain information about usage of telephone service by students, their present and potential needs, and their suggestions for service improvements.

Members of the UMass Marketing Club, under the direction of Mr. Lawrence Johnson, Assistant Professor of Marketing, will conduct personal interviews with approximately 500 students selected at random from all classes and the graduate school. Professor Johnson, as Survey Director, will have responsibility for the overall administration of the study.

Results of the special study, which will be reviewed by the Telephone Company and the University administration, will provide a means of assessing the overall performance and usage of this relatively new system for campus telephone service

Baseball Opens One Day Late

Aside from the Cardinals batting order, there were few safe baseball bets Sunday as the major leagues prepared to launch the 1968 campaign with an abreviated slate Tuesday—the day funeral services will be held for slain civil rights champion Dr. Martin Luther King.

Red Schoendienst's world champion Cardinals were scheduled to open against Atlanta in a night game at St. Louis, with speedster Brock leading off a potent attack and Series pitching hero Gibson opposing Braves right-hander Pat Jarvis, but the game has been moved to Wed.

The Philadelphia Phillies are down for a night game at Los Angeles in the other National League opener.

The Phillies-Dodger game is up in the air, however, after Philadelphia General Manager John Quinn's announcement that his club would not play because of the King funeral.

The scheduled starting pitchers at Los Angeles are left-handers Chris Short of the Phillies and Claude Osteen of the Dodgers.

Former teammates Eddie Stanky, the White Sox' manager, and Alvin Dark, the Indians' new pilot, are set to match wits at Chicago Wednesday, that game too having been postponed. Gary Peters of the Sox will pitch against Cleveland's Sonny Siebert.

The Presidential opener, pushed back from Monday to Wednesday, pits the Senators against the Minnesota Twins. Boston is at Detroit, California at New York and the new Oakland A's at Baltimore in other American League daytime openers, originally scheduled for Tuesday.

UMass Bats Are Quiet as Colgate Wins, 4-2

Vyce Homers for Lone Runs, Canty Fans 15 for Losers

by HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

A pair of hits, three walks, and a wild pitch by John Canty handed Colgate's baseball team three sixth-inning runs Saturday and cost the Redmen a 4-2 verdict.

Originally scheduled for yesterday afternoon on Varsity Field, the game was shifted to Springfield College's Berry Field at 11 a.m. Saturday due to the day of national mourning for Dr. Martin Luther King.

Canty pitched well enough to win most games as his fastballs were consistently humming past Colgate batters. The southpaw whiffed 15 and yielded but six hits in his route-going job but three of his seven walks hurt in the big Colgate sixth.

Catcher Dick Grady walked, and with two gone, centerfielder and football quarterback Ron Burton lashed a long double to center. Opposing pitcher Jim Barnes walked to load the bases. Art Crabtree followed with a grounder off Canty's leg which he beat out for a hit, scoring Grady. John Reid drew the third walk of the frame, forcing home Burton with the second tally.

With Doug Hale at the plate, Canty wild-pitched and Barnes came in for the final marker.

Alex Vyce, senior rightfielder, accounted for the only Redman runs when he bombed a 2-1 pitch over the left field fence in the fourth. The belt, coming with Ted Mareno aboard with two outs, gave UMass a short-lived 2-1 lead. The Red Raiders had scored first in the third inning when Reid singled and Hale tripled him home.

UMass batters hit several long shots which were caught but for the most part Colgate's sophomore righthander Barnes kept the hitters off-stride by changing speeds on low-breaking pitches.

A ninth-inning threat by the Redmen was in vain. Third-baseman Steve Stanford led off with a single and with one out, pinch-hitter Steve Rogers blasted one deep to center but Burton raced back to the fence to haul it in. Canty then singled to right but center-fielder Ray Ellerbrook ended the game by hitting the first pitch to second.

The Redmen now stand 2-4-1. Canty, an eight-game winner last spring, is 1-2. The Red Raiders, now 4-3, bowed to Springfield College, 1-0, as the afternoon half of their Saturday twinbill.

UMass hosts AIC Thursday at 3 and Dartmouth Saturday at 2 p.m.

Grid Ace Kent Stevens In Running for Award

UMass football star Kent Stevens is one of three area student athletes to be nominated for the DeOrmand (Tuss) McLaughry Award, presented each year to the outstanding senior scholar-athlete in a Western Massachusett college or university. The presentation will be made at the sixth annual award banquet of the Western Massachusetts Chapter of the Football Hall of Fame on April 23 at Deerfield Academy.

Also nominated for the award are American International defensive back, Bob Gombar and Springfield College halfback, Paul Tierney.

The Plymouth native was also awarded the William Evans Trophy at the team banquet, presented to one of the team's outstanding performers.

Majoring in physical education, Stevens has been on the Dean's List during his college career.

Another highlight of the same banquet will be the presentation of the Henry A. Butova Memorial to Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk.

Redman Varsity, Frosh Crews Triumph

By SAM CURLEY
Staff Reporter

It was a fine spring afternoon on the Connecticut River, and the wins by the UMass varsity and freshman crews made it an even finer afternoon. The junior varsity were beaten by 15 seconds by the Amherst varsity in a last minute switch between the Amherst varsity and junior varsity crews.

THE VICTOR GETS SPOILED—UMass's freshman crew team celebrates its victory with the traditional dunking of the coxswain, Chris Jedfrey.

The varsity rowing under ideal conditions won by approximately six lengths over Rhode Island as they rowed under six minutes. The varsity pulled away to a good start stroking at 37. They settled down to 23 for the body of the race and finished at 33.

Second place Rhode Island started at a stroke of 39 and settled to 34 for the body. St. Johns finished in third place.

Coach Clarke said, "We rowed smoothly and did well for the first race. We made some mistakes which we will have to work on, I think we can do better. "The varsity still remains unbeaten by St. Johns and URI.

Boatings for the varsity were: bow, Captain Roger O'Donnell; 2, Robert Kiley; 3, Chick Leonard; 4, Ken Stevens; 5, Ron Stoltz; 6, Ed Magiera; 7, Howard Chapin; stroke Glenn Chaple and coxswain, Bill Crowe.

The junior varsity race was won by the Amherst varsity. In an earlier race, the Amherst varsity and junior varsity crews had changed positions. The junior varsity rowed against Temple who won in a time of 5:47.

Amherst finished in 5:50 followed by UMass, 6:05, St Johns, 6:38.4 and Rhode Island, 6:30.8. For awhile UMass and Amherst were even, but Amherst slowly pulled out in front to win. UMass finished six lengths ahead of third place St. Johns.

Rowing for the junior varsity were: bow, John Farrell; 2, Dave Keating; 3, Wendell Frost; 4, Doug McLean; 5, Captain Tim McKenna; 6, Bob Natusch; 7, Jean Louis Garbose; stroke, Kurt Betchick and coxswain, Rich Santaguida.

Freshman Coach Mike Faherty's crew rowing in the third lane won by six lengths in a time of 6:07 over second place St. Johns and third place Rhode Island. St John's time was 6:39, and Rhode Island's time was an even seven minutes.

After the impressive win, Coach Faherty said, "We'll have to work on getting the stroke up. We weren't pushed, and it's hard to tell what the crew can do under pressure."

Boatings for the freshmen were: bow, Dave Richard, 2, Captain Eric Meffley; 3, Tom Mone, 4, Phil Dwyer; 5, Don Hanberry; 6, Mark Caron; 7, Bob Depan; stroke, Rick Merullo and coxswain, Chris Jedfrey.

Next weekend the club will be travelling to Middletown, Connecticut, for a regatta with Wesleyan and Williams. "Wesleyan has a strong crew," said Coach Clarke, "and it should be a tougher race." But that's next weekend. Last weekend was a great way to get the crew season started, especially since it was the first time UMass had sponsored a regatta in Amherst.

UMass Gymnast Shines

DelGallo 8th in NCAA

by PETER PASCARELLI
Sports Day Editor

TUCSON, Arizona—Competing against the best competition in the United States, UMass' Dick DelGallo, performing in the rings event, tied for eighth in the NCAA Gymnastics Championships held at the University of Arizona (Tucson), Friday and Saturday.

DelGallo's performance was a great personal victory for him and also a great school victory as it was the highest finish for a UMass gymnasts in history.

DelGallo, a North Quincy junior, scored a 9.15 out of a possible ten in a remarkable routine. UMass gymnastics coach, Erik Kjeldsen, who accompanied his star on the long trek, said, "It was easily Dick's greatest routine, performed against the best competition."

Although, slight of build at 5'5, 130, the Redman ace, combines great strength and agility to make him one of the finest ring specialists in the east. His all-around athletic ability is further evidenced by the runnerup position he earned in the recent campus intramural wrestling championships.

In the overall team competition, the University of California (Berkeley) with a score of 188.25 barely edged out Southern Illinois, who scored a 188.15. The championship went to the final routine before the titlist was crowned. The University of Iowa was third, scoring 187.5.

Hanoi Accepts Johnson's Vietnam Peace Talk Bid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, announcing North Vietnam's formal acceptance of his bid for talks on Vietnam, summoned his top advisers to a Camp David breakfast conference Tuesday to determine the next move.

An atmosphere of hard bargaining appeared to be forming Monday as both Washington and Hanoi considered suitable sites for initial contacts and possibly later negotiations.

U.S. authorities who took part in the 14-nation Geneva Conference in 1962, which guaranteed the neutrality of Laos, said that its communication facilities and accommodations make it the logical choice for any full scale Vietnam talks.

Hanoi Favors Cambodia Site

Hanoi Radio, quoting an interview between Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh and CBS correspondent Charles Collingwood, said the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh should be the site.

U.S. officials said Phnom Penh could not handle the communications requirements that could arise if there were more than 200 newsmen and delegations of 20 to 25 from each of 14 countries attending a full scale conference.

Johnson was unsmiling and terse when he called newsmen into the White House Cabinet Room and told them he had received a message from Hanoi, dated April 3, responding to his invitation.

"We have taken steps to notify our allies," the President said—we shall be trying to work out promptly the time and the place for the talks..."

He said he will be flying to Camp David.

Ambassador Bunker Will Come

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, flying in from Saigon early Tuesday morning, will be joined by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford for the Camp David talks, he said.

Johnson did not give the text of the message from Hanoi. Officials said it was not an oral message but a formal written reply.

On the same date that the message was conveyed to the U.S. government, Hanoi radio's international service broadcast a statement which said in part:

Hanoi Radio Statement

"The government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam declares its readiness to appoint its representative to contact the U.S. representative with a view to determining with the American side the unconditional cessation of the U.S. bombing raids and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of

Linus Pauling Joins UMass in Tribute

Dr. Linus Pauling marched into Amherst today to take part in the silent vigil on the Amherst Common in the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, whose burial was today.

Dr. Pauling is on campus this week with his wife for a series of lectures and discussions.

A spokesman for the faculty Group on War and Peace stated yesterday that "in the last few years of his life Dr. King realized that the twin obsessions of our country—white supremacy at home and military-ideological supremacy in Vietnam—were two symptoms of the same diseased society, and he fought against both of these ills."

In recognition of this concern, the Group has asked that as many as can participate in a one-day fast for peace that began at noon today and ends at noon Wednesday. Black armbands will be distributed to those who will fast.

Black-out Proposed

The Afro-American Organization has also planned a memorial to Dr. King. All students are urged to take part in a voluntary half-hour blackout tonight from 9:30 to 10:00 p.m.

A spokesman for the organization said that with "this half-hour of darkness, we can take time to evaluate ourselves, to ask questions of our ways and our means. Do not let those who have given themselves for you lie in darkness alone, for one half-hour join them."

Widow Asks King's Cause Continue

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Beneath a spring sky of somber gray, row on row of marchers paraded through Memphis Monday, in silent, grieving remembrance of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. His widow in black and three of his four children clasped hands to lead the ranks.

"I came to you today because I was compelled . . . I felt he would have wanted me to be here," Mrs. Coretta King told the marchers when they arrived at their destination, the city's marble and starkly modern City Hall.

Speaks of Husband

Mrs. King declared of her husband, a Nobel Peace Prize winner: "I can say he was a great man, a great father and a great husband. We loved him dearly, his children loved him dearly and we know his spirit will never die . . .

"But then I ask this question: How many men must die before we can have freedom and peace and truth in this society?"

From a platform in front of City Hall, Mrs. King in an even voice told the crowd: "I come to you today because I was compelled. During my husband's lifetime I have always been at his side when I felt he needed me. And so today I felt he would have wanted me to be here."

Challenges Crowd

Her speech interrupted time and again by applause, the 41-year-old widow continued: "I challenge you today to see that his spirit never dies . . We must carry on, because this is the way he would have wanted it. His campaign for the poor must go on."

The march route was the one Dr. King had planned to use when he led a march here March 28 that flared into a brief but violent rampage of looting. One young Negro boy was killed in the riot aftermath.

Top officials of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the civil rights organization Dr. King had headed, other civil rights leaders and union officials from several states were in the front ranks of the march.

Dr. King had promised to return to Memphis to lead a peace-

An electrical short circuit was the cause of a fire in the Daily Collegian press car early last night. Operator of the car, News Editor Ron LaBrecque, and a passenger, Advertising Manager Frank Wandrey, obtained fire extinquishers from the Student Union and quickly put out the blaze. A third passenger, Index Photo Editor Neil Rennie, sustained a slight hand injury in an attempt to put out the fire. Extensive damage was caused to the general dashboard area on the driver's side.

Famed Birth Control Advocate Speaks Tonight

By BOB GORMAN
Staff Reporter

William Baird, birth control advocate, will speak Tuesday evening at 8 in the Student Union Ballroom. The lecture is sponsored by the Class of 1970.

Baird, 36, is founder and director of the non-profit Parents' Aid Society of Hempstead, N. Y. The society distributes birth control information and materials to any interested people. He bought a $50,000 van in which he tours the country distributing birth control information. The Society also has clinics set up in many campuses across the country.

Baird began his interest in birth control when he was in college. Upon graduation, he became birth control information director for Emko Co., where he was the youngest information director of that nature in the country.

He left his $20,000 a year job with Emko to found the Parents' Aid Society, when he became appalled with the number of hardships that resulted in the lack of birth control information, especially among underprivileged people.

Boston University Arrest

On April 6, 1967, Baird was arrested at Boston University after a birth control pill was displayed during a speech he was giving. He was found guilty of two charges. His case is now being reviewed by the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

During a Speech at Amherst College on Feb. 5, Baird pointed out the immediate need for birth control information to control the world's growing population.

He also attacked the century old laws of Massachusetts dealing with birth control information and the lack of support he has received for the people of this state.

"It is odd that I stand here today pleading with you to help your fellow man, but in a month I may be in jail," Baird said.

New York State Reforms

He was arrested in New York City in 1965 for violating birth control information laws. His appeal led to reform of the State's birth control laws and his appointment as a legislative advisor on birth control information.

He was arrested in Monmouth, New Jersey in 1966 for similar charges but was later acquitted. As in New York, Baird was appointed a legislative advisor for the State of New Jersey on birth control reform.

News in Brief

INTERNATIONAL

by The Associated Press

Troop-carrying Israeli helicopters flew into Jordan south of the Dead Sea Monday to attack the headquarters of Arab commandos operating in Israel's Negev Desert, the Israeli army reported. It said the Israelis withdrew after a 105-minute action.

Jordan claimed, however, the Israelis were attempting an invasion with armored columns and helicopter troops "covered by a thick umbrella of Israeli jets" but were hurled back by the Jordanian army.

"These claims are ridiculous," an Israeli army spokesman said in Tel Aviv. "This was not a planned action. There were definitely no armor or planes involved, only a few helicopters."

The Israelis said the helicopter force with assault troops caught a band of Arab commandos on the desert and chased them back to Jordan.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines moved out of Khe Sanh Monday to begin a sweep looking for the enemy. A Brigade of the 1st Air Cavalry Division filed into the vacated bunkers and trenches of the combat base.

With other Marines, elements of the 1st Air Cavalry Division and South Vietnamese paratroopers, the Leathernecks went hunting for North Vietnamese who for 2½ months of siege pounded them with artillery and mortar fire.

LONDON (AP)—A British jet airliner carrying 126 persons caught fire on takeoff Monday, began to fall apart in the air, then returned to a flaming crash landing at London Airport. Four passengers and a stewardess were killed.

Officials said many of the 121 who survived jumped free in the split second after the plane touched ground following its four-minute horror flight.

An engine fell from the Australia-bound plane before the crash landing. Seconds earlier the aircraft had flown over a busy shopping center.

Moments after take off, the commander of the British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 reported fire in one of the plane's left engines. He circled for an emergency landing and the plane burst into flames, sending up a cloud of black smoke.

Survivors scrambled out emergency doors or slid down escape chutes as fire trucks and ambulances roared up.

BOAC said an engine of the same plane caught fire on take off from Honolulu on a flight to Tokyo late last year. The plane was stopped before it left the ground and there were no casualties.

NATIONAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court took the death penalty out of the Lindbergh kidnaping law Monday.

A 6-2 decision read by Justice Potter Stewart said the provision put an "inpermissible burden" on the right to a trial by jury.

Other provisions of the 1932 law, enacted in response to the kidnaping of the infant son of the pioneering air hero Charles A. Lindbergh, were left intact. The law was written to give the federal government a way to step in on kidnapings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders called Monday for prompt House passage of the civil rights open housing bill, and said this should be followed by a cooling-off period after last weekend's racial disorders.

House backers of the Senate-passed civil rights measure appeared confident they can carry through plans to complete congressional action Wednesday.

Plans for President Johnson to address a joint session of Congress were suspended indefinitely.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, declaring Congress should not act impetuously, told the Senate that "laws and appropriations alone are not the answer to urban unrest."

He said part of the answer lies in private industry assuming the greater responsibility.

"We ought to let Congress face up to its responsibilities and perhaps give the members a chance to go home and talk to the people," he said.

I don't think we ought to rush into a joint session," Mansfield told newsmen shortly before the Senate met.

Looting Continues in Many U.S. Cities As Troops Increased

By JOHN MORGANTHALER
Associated Press Writer

About 1,900 more federal troops were sent into riot-torn areas of Baltimore on Monday to surpress renewed looting, arson and violence, while Ohio National Guardsmen were alerted against disorders in Cincinnati and Youngstown.

Pittsburgh, quiet for a time, was hit anew by vandalism Monday, and 650 additional Pennsylvania National Guardsmen were sent in to aid troops already on patrol.

Soldiers kept order in other major cities hit by Negro violence in the five days since the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Troops strength in Baltimore was boosted to over 10,000, as fires blazed for a third day and a suspected looter was shot dead.

Police blockades sealed off downtown Cincinnati after disturbances broke out three miles away in the predominantly Negro section of Avondale. Rocks and bottles were hurled, small fires set and there was some looting.

The nationwide deployment of soldiers and National Guardsmen was put at 55,000, apparently the largest such force ever turned out for a civil emergency in the United States.

In all, 27 men, all but four of them Negroes, have been killed in four days of rioting in dozens of cities. More than 1,600 were injured and more than 10,000 ar-

Class Officers and Senate Election Openings Given

Most of the incumbent class officers will be seeking another term in the elections of April 16 and 23. The five positions of president, vice president, treasurer, secretary, and senator-at-large will be open for the classes of 1971, 1970, and 1969.

Seeking reelection will be Joe Tabacco, president, and Margie O'Neill, senator-at large for the Class of 1971. Among the other officers of this class, now holding interim positions, Betty Pugh and Bonnie Jackson will seek election to continue as vice president and secretary. Interim Treasurer Ben Greenberg will not be a candidate for office.

Among the former freshman class officers Joel Wilson will run for vice president again but former Secretary Suzanne Bairer will not run again. Former Treasurer Marty Shapiro could not be reached for comment.

None of the presen: class officers for the Class of 1970 will seek reelection to the same post. However, President Bruce Balboni will run for senator-at-large and Treasurer Steve Weisman will run for president. The current vice president, Glenn Mangurian, and the current secretary, Rebecca Stedman, will not be candidates for any offices. Bob Keating, who has served as senator-at-large, will not run for the Senate according to friends, but the Daily Collegian was unable to reach him to ask him if he had other plans.

The Class of 1969, which will select officers to serve until graduation, presents the clearest pre-election picture with all of the incumbents seeking reelection. The officers running again are: President Wayne Thomas, Vice President Ralph Stoddard, Treasurer Jill Wolff, Secretary

Greek Week Queen Candidates Chosen

Finalists for the title of Greek Week Queen were announced last week by the Greek Week Committee. The five finalists are: Kathy McIntyre, KKG, Pat Dirsa, XO, Chris Conner, SK, Lynn Wells, AXO, and Mary Turner, SK.

The Queen will be chosen by a panel of five faculty members, with the decision being based on poise, appearance, and personality. This year's crowning will be on April 23 at the combined Fraternity-Sorority Sing in the Student Union Ballroom.

1968's Queen will reign for the rest of the Week's events. She is to be official hostess at the Greek Exchange held in the Hatfield Barn, Pageantry, Olympics and the Buick Opel Kadett painting contest. The last event is part of a nationwide advertising campaign sponsored by Buick to promote its German import on college campuses.

The death toll includes 11 in Chicago, six in Washington, five in Baltimore, two in the Detroit area, and one each in Minneapolis; Memphis, Tenn., and Tallahassee, Fla.

The government sent surplus food into Washington, Chicago and Baltimore, where in some neighborhoods grocery stores were stripped clean by looters. All three cities were patrolled by federal troops and National Guardsmen.

Soldiers also stood guard in Detroit, Nashville and Memphis, but no new violence was reported there. New York was also quiet and one policeman said the biggest Negro neighborhood in Brooklyn was "like a tomb" Sunday night.

In Memphis, 5,000 guardsmen stood by while thousands marched peacefully in a memorial demonstration for the fallen King.

In Milwaukee, two outbreaks of rock-throwing marred a memorial march by 15,000 persons through the downtown district—the largest civil rights demonstration in the city's history.

In Chicago, where 10,000 soldiers patrolled the streets in shifts, church appeals brought a flood of food donations.

Another 11,600 soldiers guarded Washington, where demolition cranes swung against burned-out buildings and city officials rushed aid to the hungry and homeless in the pillaged Negro areas. The troops carried unloaded rifles and had their bayonets in their belts.

The Army, which has 20,000 troops on riot duty, reported another 22,000 were ready, most of them on one-hour notice.

Dreams Spur Action

In death and assassination there is always irony. It can be pointed out in so many ways that the exercise of identifying irony becomes ironic itself—death, the end of life, gives life to this method of thought.

We can use an ironic idea to place the irrational within the scheme of rational action: if one is rational, he must accept moments of irrationality. A few senseless deeds cannot destroy man's reason. It is of very small comfort.

Yet this cold reflection is necessary. We cannot mourn Martin Luther King unless we condemn the violence that met the man of non-violence. We must cite this irony if we are to rededicate ourselves to prevent violence, to make violence a discredited recourse.

We want to mourn Martin Luther King but we also want to support what he represented, not just non-violence but civil and political rights for all men. We want to be emotional and political at once.

The most pathetic example of irony expressed in the last few days seems to be in the quote, "I have a dream." King had a dream, and he probably didn't expect it to come true for some time. But King didn't just dream. He went out and organized a bus boycott in Montgomery in 1955-1956.

Before his death, he was mocked for his methods by the militants and nihilists. Perhaps, their criticism in 1968 was justifiable. But he organized the boycott, he inspired the sit-in and freedom rides. What he did was to take some pragmatic action. Even if his methods became outdated, it would be the greatest irony to remember him as a dreamer. He was a man of non-violence, but also a man of action.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Failing at Pass-Fail

It is rather difficult to take a pass-fail course on this campus. My experience of over two months ago was so traumatic that I have just recently recovered sufficiently to make public my attempt to take a pass-fail course at this University.

• • • •

I ran happily to the Registrar's Office confident that my efforts would insure my taking a course without worrying about the grade.

"Hi there," I said to the lady in charge of administering pass-fails, "Would you sign this card so I can take this Geology course pass-fail."

She smiled knowingly, "You're not a junior or senior are you?"

"As a matter of fact, I am."

"You don't look it. But no matter. I'll catch you on something else. You know you can't take this course if you're a Geology major."

"I'm not a Geology major," I replied. ?

She scanned her checklist and then said triumphantly, "I know. I'll bet you're taking this course to fulfill your science requirement. I'm sorry, but . . ."

"I've already fulfiled my science requirement."

"Look kid, to be taking this course if it isn't required, you must have rocks in your head."

"Please lady, just sign the card."

"Wait a minute. There must be some mistake here. Are you a full-time University student?" She was grasping for straws and I knew it.

"Of course, anything else?"

She was beginning to sweat profusely. "This is uncanny," she gasped. "We made sure when we instituted this program that no one would be allowed to take advantage of it. Are you willing to sign a statement saying that you have absolutely no desire to take this course pass-fail?" she said. "If I didn't want to take a course pass-fail, why would I be here?"

"I'm sorry," she said. "But one of the requirements for taking a pass-fail course is to prove you couldn't possibly want to take it pass-fail."

"OK. I'll sign," I said

Her jaw dropped. "You can't mean that," she explained.

"Listen, I didn't want to tell you this but I happen to be a personal friend of Provost Tippo's."

Her face was a sheet of white. And her fingers were shaking, as she dialed the phone in what was obviously a futile, last-ditch effort to prevent my victory over red tape.

"Hello, Professor Smith. You may not believe this, but I have a boy in front of me who's eligible to take your Geology course pass-fail. . .You won't, bless you, Professor Smith, bless you." And with an air of arrogance, the registration lady politely informed me that Professor Smith has a policy to allow no pass-fails in his courses.

Campus Comment

We Lack True Willingness

To the editor:

In a CBS news broadcast following the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Mr. Eric Savareid said that contrary to what some negroes are saying, this country is basically healthy. As evidence, he pointed to the presidential proclamation of Sunday as a national day of mourning, flags at half-mast everywhere, etc.

I do not need to point out that these are mere outward expressions of sorrow, but how is one to gauge what is in people's hearts? It is Saturday morning, and on the floor above my room in Prince House some graduate students are having a party. The smell of liquor hangs heavy along the corridors and stairways.

I have been told that the Congress of the United States represents the will of the people. It seems to me then that the unwillingness of Congress to pass a strong civil rights bill must reflect an unwillingness on the part of the people to accept such a bill.

I have also heard some people say that one cannot blame the entire white community for the actions of one man. Aside from the fact that the whole nation cerainly must share some collective responsibility for the tragic murder, I would ask these same persons to demand that Congress cease to withhold from the majority of negroes their basic human and constitutional rights because of the violent actions of a few.

This will not happen. No amount of editorials, messages of condolences, eulogies and memorial services will bring any significant changes because America lacks a true willingness of the heart.

Edward Cheng

Racism at Orchard Reflects American Crisis

To the editor:

Late Thursday evening, after the numbness of shock at the news of Dr. King's assassination gave way to an intense feeling of commitment to his philosophy, some students and faculty members felt that it was appropriate to express their sorrow and to show their involvement in the cause of civil rights, nonviolence, and peace.

A silent march to the Amherst Commons was planned to be followed by a short memorial service.

The top administrators of the University were the first to be informed of these plans and were asked by a faculty member to give their cooperation. A suggestion to cancel classes on Friday was rejected. Significant in this matter was not the rejection, but rather the reasons given. President Lederle insisted that "proper channels" be used. He said he did not have the right to act on his own. Provost Tippo felt that a cancellation of classes would put particularly those students who had labs at a disadvantage, and, moreover, he said, "this would create a precedent for anyone to call for a class cancellation if someone else should be killed in the future."

These attitudes are a horrifying testimony to the moral inertia and to the paralyzing bureaucratic thinking at this institution. At least the students haven't succumbed to it yet.

Need to Rescind Administration Decree

To the editor:

Again the Administration has shown its belief in student responsibility. It has locked the "basket room" in Boyden Gymnasium at 6 p.m., exactly one half hour before Intramural sports should commence. When questioned, the Intramural office states awareness of this problem but admits its impotency in rectifying this dilemna.

Realizing that the baskets in the "basket room" are already locked directly to the large metal cabinets by combination locks, it appears that the administration took one giant step backwards. Instead of catering to the multitude of male students who might wish to obtain their physical education equipment for use in the early evening hours, the Administration has fallen to that select few which occupies itself by stealing from others.

I think the Administration should rescind its present decree, and allow the "basket room" to remain unlocked until 10 p.m., at which time a member of the janatorial staff could easily secure the crypt.

Amherst Professor Criticizes President's Power

By MARK SILVERMAN
Friday Issue Editor

Amherst College history professor Henry Steele Commager, in an article in this week's New Republic, charges that the abuse of Presidential power (specifically in regard to the military) is leading us to destroy our political institutions, and may compel us to destroy the world.

In the article, Commager cites the attack which a foreign relations committee's recommendation for the restraint of Presidential power has come. Opponents to the limiting of power, according to Commager, say that the attempt is futile, and "that the President will recognize no limits on his conduct . . . other than those imposed by his own judgment."

Commager comments that the trend in Presidential government, if not checked, will "permanently alter the balance of power contrived by the founders of the Constitution." He continued to comment, "It is an old problem, as old as Washington's Neutrality Proclamation, and as recent as Secretary Rusk's refusal to commit the President to consult the Senate about sending additional troops to Vietnam."

New Ingredients

He then goes on to say that there are several new ingredients which make the problem increasingly grave.

The first of these is that "unlimited executive power in foreign relations and war is no longer justified as an emergency, but as normal and almost routine . . . No such humility characterizes what we may call the Johnson-Katzenbach theory of executive authority."

For the second, he says, "our current presidential commitments are global, rather than, as with Lincoln, domestic . . . or Polk, limited to Western Hemisphere, and rationalized, or justified, by the Monroe Doctrine."

The third thing mentioned was that executive commitments today are ideological rather than practical. That is "we no longer take arms because American Blood has been shed on American soil."

Commager says that the next point is "for the first time in our history, we are members of an international organization which is responsible for preserving the peace . . . and is indeed our organization, imagined by Wilson, brought into being by Roosevelt."

"A fifth point," continued Commager," is philosophically as ancient as the precept that power corrupts." It is that the use of power forces its further use, and this trend will always continue.

Result of Power

Commager, after making the point of the increasing gravity of the problem, points out that the responsibilities of the increasing Presidential power are especially grave in light of the nuclear age. He points out several examples of Presdential autonomy in foreign affairs, and cites the Bay of Pigs invasion, the Dominican Republic, and Vietnam.

Commager goes on to trace the abuse of Presidential power to several presidents, dating from Roosevelt. He then states that "the abuse of executive power can not be separated from the abuse of national power."

He concludes by stating that the increasing reluctance of the President to turn to anyone but himself for important foreign decisions may destroy the institutions of government in this country, and may possibly destroy world peace.

Food Program Available to Students

Amherst was the first Massachusetts community to begin participation into the Federal Food Program on April 1. Many college students living off campus are eligible to take part in the Program.

Under the Program, low income families and individuals exchange the money they would normally spend for food for food stamp coupons worth more. The coupons can be spent like cash for any domestically produced food item at authorized stores. Some imported items, such as coffee, tea, cocoa and bananas, which are not produced in this country, may also be purchased.

To be eligible, applicants for the Program must be residents of Amherst, have their own cooking facilities and meet specified income and resources requirements.

For the first month of the program, Amherst participants are able to purchase their coupons for one-half the regular price. Persons interested in the program may apply at the food stamp certification unit in Room 15 of the Amherst Town Hall between 9 and 12 in the morning and 1 to 4 in the afternoon. The telephone number is 253-2797.

Pranks and Damage to Livestock May Bring Serious Consequences

By JOHN JANICKI
Staff Reporter

There have been several regrettable incidents involving livestock kept at the university by the Department of Veterinary and Animal Sciences.

"These incidents have ranged from releasing animals from assigned pens, removing experimental stocks to unique locations; placing chickens in an automobile on Nutting Avenue and removing animals to dormitory areas, to wanton destruction of facilities," according to Dr. Thomas W. Fox, Head of the Department.

Possible Consequencies

Dr. Fox points out that besides the destruction of property, there can be some even more serious and far reaching consequences. The department currently has enrolled 200 students working towards associate, baccalaureate, and graduate degrees.

Many of these students, as well as the faculty, are involved in research utilizing livestock. Irreparable damage could be done to projects being conducted by seniors doing Honors work, to experiments necessary for graduate theses, and to faculty studies.

Other aspects of this problem are often not recognized. "It can be downright hazardous to be cavalier with males of any species", said Dr. Fox. Stallions, boars and bulls are not noted for their meek dispositions. Also, some of the animals carry disease organisms and the careless may suffer if the stock is mishandled.

Area Restricted

University Police Chief Blasko indicates that the farm area is restricted after 5 p.m., this ruling is designed to protect the work of researchers and possibly the well-being of a thoughtless student.

It is recognized that the location of the livestock is not a desirable one. Plans are being developed to transfer the facilities to the University's South Deerfield site.

Flying Redmen Are Recruiting Men and Women for Next Year

The Flying Redmen, an all-university drill team are recruiting interested UMies this month to participate in activities next year. Men are needed for marching, while girls are needed for banner carrying and secretarial work.

Contrary to popular belief, the Flying Redmen are an independent organization, and in no way are connected with ROTC. Their budget is provided by the Student Senate and is not financed by any of the military groups.

There will be a table in the Student Union on April 17 and 18 where all interested students may inquire. On April 23 and 25 they will hold Informal smokers in the Colonial Lounge from 7 until 9 for the men. Then a formal smoker will take place on April 29 at seven in the Colonial Lounge.

Girls interested in joining may pick up applications this week at 210 Dickinson Hall. Anyone wishing further information may contact Mike Walters, expansion officer.

ful march. He was making plans for it when the single shot tore into his throat as he leaned over the second-floor railing of a motel, talking with aides on the ground. The assassin is still at large.

Black and white marched together, with union officials and civil rights workers making most of the white contingent. National Guardsmen with bared bayonets on their rifles sealed off a three-block area around City Hall and blocked traffic from intersecting streets along the line of march. There were no reported incidents.

Tennis Team Serves Fairfield at Home in Season Opener

Redmen Aim to Win 1968 Conference Championship

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Coach Steve Kosakowski's 20th edition will be presented tomorrow on the upper tennis courts in a dual meet with Fairfield.

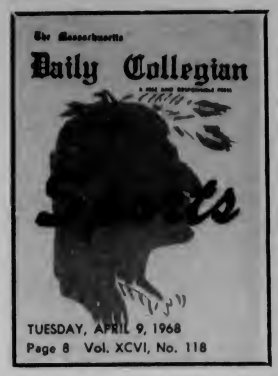
Although hampered somewhat by bad weather Kosakowski still expects a good season. "We're green, but the kids always manage to give a good account of themselves." Continuing on the inexperience he concluded, "We lost our first three men from last year's fine team. This also ruined our double combinations."

Last year's group finished with a 6-1 slate. They were a shoo-in for the Conference championship when a drizzle and an inaccurate weather forecast scuttled the meet. Two dual meets were also washed out when it appeared that the Redmen had a victory.

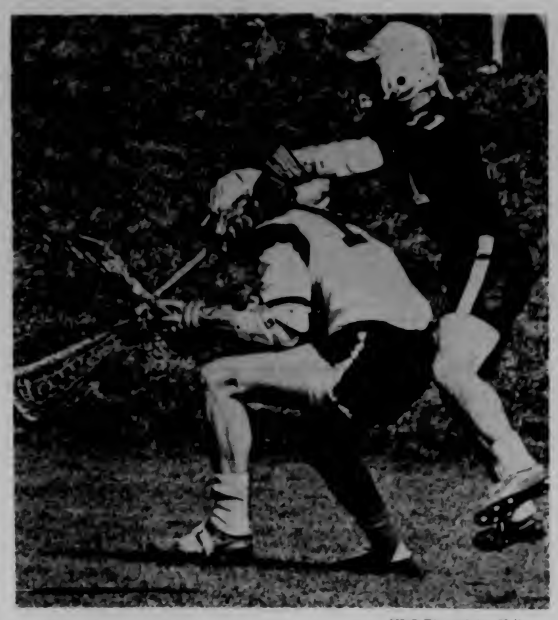
Kosakowski will start senior Al Davis, Westbury, N.Y. at first singles. The rest of the singles line-up will consist of lettermen Scott Sheppard, Reading, and Carl Clemm, Medford, as well as newcomers Mike Katz, Worcester, Warren Kahn, Malden, and Tom Johnson, Worcester. Johnson's brother Jerry co-captained last year's team.

Kahn will start at the sixth position tomorrow, but has six men pressing to take his job. Sophs Mike Santoro, Wakefield, John Quinn, Rockport, and Ken Branco, Lowell, as well as junior Ed Ryan, Worcester, and senior Steve Cohen, Worcester.

The sixth man, senior Al "Goose" Grosnick, Springfield, has Kosakowski worried. Gosnick reported overweight and has failed to get his weight down. Every time Koz looks at Gosnick's middle he shakes his head and sports a worried frown.



The first double combination is Davis and Sheppard; second is Clemm and Johnson; third is Cohen and Katz. These combinations may be altered pending early successes and failures.



Over the last five years the tennis team boasts a 39-8 record, best on campus. The Redmen haven't won the Conference since 1963, but haven't been lower than second since 1953. This year UConn and URI will contest the Redmen for title at Burlington on May 10 and 11.

The toughest early test of the season will come when the Redmen travel to Cambridge to battle MIT. Last year the Engineers squeezed by the Redmen 5-4 for the only blotch on the UM slate.

Redmen Batmen In Home Opener

The UMass baseball team plays on its home field against American International College Thursday at 3 p.m. and Saturday at 1:30 p.m. against Dartmouth.

The Redmen, 2-4-1, dropped three straight games to Randolph-Macon, 6-5, Maryland, 9-0, and Colgate, 4-2.

Colgate's Red Raiders nipped the Redmen Saturday morning.

UM Coach Dick Bergquist has not announced his pitching assignments for this week's games.

John Canty of Dudley saw his record fall to 1-2 despite a 15-strikeout, six-hit performance against Colgate Saturday. A 3-run sixth inning, in which only one ball went out of the infield, brought defeat for UM. The off-speed pitching of Colgate soph Jim Barnes limited the Redmen to six hits. Alex Vyce of Chicopee hit a two-run homer for UM but Barnes escaped the only other scoring threats in the first and ninth innings.

The rest of the starting UM lineup Thursday will probably have Chuck Newell, sophomore from East Longmeadow, (.200) behind the plate and an infield of soph Bob Hansen, East Boston, (.375) at first, senior Don Ferron of Southbridge (.267) at second, junior Joe DiSarcina of Burlington, (.273) at shortstop and soph Steve Stanford, Harwich, (.407) at third. The outfield may be composed of senior Ted Mareno, Wollaston, (.393) in left, soph Ray Ellerbrook, Hawthorne, N.J., (.250) in center and senior Alex Vyce (.375) in right.

Season Shakeup In Baseball

Dr. Martin Luther King's death resulted in the delay of the entire slate of Tuesday's openers. It still is touch and go as to whether some of the games will be played Wednesday in cities that have been torn by riots.

Civil disorders have taken two players out of the lineup of the Baltimore Orioles and raised some doubt about Wednesday's afternoon game at home against the Oakland Athletics. There has been rioting in Baltimore for three days.

Washington, which has been torn by riots, hopes to open Wednesday with Camilo Pascual going for the Senators against Dean Chance of the Minnesota Twins. Pres. Johnson is not expected to attend. Original estimates called for a crowd of 45,000.

UMass gymnast Dick DelGallo tied for eighth place in recent NCAA Gymnastics Competition held in Tucson, Arizona. DelGallo, a junior from North Quincy, is the first gymnast in UMass history to place so high in the national competition.

SOCCER MEETING

Dodgers Will Delay Opener

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers joined the other major league baseball teams Monday with a decision to call off their Tuesday night opener in tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King.

The Dodgers originally planned to proceed with the Tuesday night game against the Philadelphia Phillies since it was scheduled to start after funeral services for the slain civil rights leader.

After the talks, the Dodgers issued a statement, saying:

"The scheduled opening game between the Dodgers and Philadelphia will not be played Tuesday, April 9. The first game of the new baseball season will be played Wednesday, April 10.

Arthur Patterson, vice-president for public relations, said, "There was no doubt today the game would not be played, but the announcement had to be delayed while we tried to get a rescheduling date."

Billy Tindall, awarded the George "Trigger" Burke Most Valuable Player trophy for his outstanding performance during the '67-'68 Basketball season, is congratulated by Warren McGuirk, Dean of the Department of Athletics.

"FREE AT LAST, FREE AT LAST, THANK GOD ALMIGHTY, I'M FREE AT LAST!"

—INSCRIPTION ON MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. GRAVE MARKER

The sound of a thousand shuffling feet blended with the sound of a gentle breeze and was only sporadically broken by human voices as members of the University community marched to the Amherst common to hold a half hour silent vigil prior to services which were held on the South Terrace of the Student Union yesterday morning in the memory of Martin Luther King, Jr.

The march and services were held in the memory of King the man but it was clearly evidenced by many that they were marching and speaking for King the ideal. For many, it became a time of introspection to assess moral commitment to the struggle for racial equality.

"I can't give a moderate speech, because I don't feel moderate . . . I am upset." Senate President Jim Collins spoke for the majority as he talked of "the racism which is not really attacking our country, it is a part of our country".

Reverend Jeffrey Campbell of Amherst in a charged speech stated he was not "here only to say appropriate things about a man whose greatness has been registered around the world" but came "in order to try to get somewhat near what the life and death of Martin Luther King signifies to the real problem that is basic to our entire American way of life".

The only living American Nobel Peace Prize winner, an award of which King had been a recipient, marched with and spoke to the University assemblage. Linus Pauling, who received the award in 1962, stated his commitment to the ideals which King had revered.

While speakers on the platform spoke of the necessity of immediate action, papers were passed out to those gathered asking them to commit themselves to action which ranged from financial contributions to registering voters in Negro areas of the South.

Martin Luther King is "free at last" but action on campus continues. Discussion, formal and informal abounds, the fast continues, plans to alleviate the problems of the ghetto negro which includes such programs as the tutoring of nearby city children on a greater scale than in the past are being instituted, and the suggestion of a formal Committee to investigate the role of the University in the societal problem which would be financed by student tax money was made.

Protest Rally Marks Expiration Of Rent-Strikers' Eviction Notices

Tenants Face Possible Removal from Homes

by MARK SILVERMAN
and RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporters

Rent-striking residents of the University Park Apartments held a protest rally last night to mark the expiration of several of the residents' eviction notices and to acknowledge their sixth week of protest.

Those residents whose eviction notices ran out today can now be legally removed from their homes at the will of the landlord. Commented strike leader Paul McCarthy, "If I were Mr. Rousseau (owner of the Apartments), I'd be very embarrassed if 40 tenants were evicted. It would have to indicate that some blame must rest with the management." He added that several of the tenants who face eviction have babies.

The rent strike is organized so that all the tenants pay their rent to a central committee. All back rent, according to the committee, will be given to Rousseau when he agrees to meet the strikers, and to do something about their complaints.

The leaders of the rent strike stressed their willingness to settle the problem. Paul McCarthy said, "We're not asking for the moon—He'll (Rousseau) get his money as soon as he agrees to talk about doing something to end these conditions."

The landlord, Rousseau, was not available for comment.

The general sentiment of the protestors was that the management of the Apartments has been very unreasonable. Several of the residents said that they have been willing to talk with Rous-

Tentative Agreement Reached

A tentative agreement has been reached in the six week old rent strike of tenants at the University Park Apartments.

Announcement of the settlement between strikers and management was made last night by University of Massachusetts student and strike spokesman Paul McCarthy. McCarthy told the Collegian that apartments owner Joseph Rousseau and his attorney have agreed to "rectify immediate complaints," of the residents.

The strike leader made no comments as to specific points agreed on but said that lawyers for both sides are "ironing things out now."

McCarthy stated that he is "optimistic" about recent developments and concluded by saying that "The strike appears to be over," although attorneys David Silverman (Springfield) and David Burres (Amherst) are still holding last month's rent money in escrow.

The University student continued that announcement of the tentative agreement was made about one-half hour after residents of the apartments had concluded a protest rally to mark the expiration of several tenant's recent eviction notices.

Mr. Rousseau was unavailable for comment on the agreement.

Baird Advocates Birth Control Measures; Hopes for Changes in Massachusetts Laws

by MARTHA CURRAN
Senior Reporter

"Someday the women of this nation will be free to decide their own destiny, to decide when and if they will become mothers. I want every child born in this nation to be loved and wanted. But it will never happen if you remain silent."

William Baird, Director of the Parents' Aid Society of Hempstead, New York, said last night as he addressed a capacity audience in the Student Union Ballroom at the invitation of The Class of 1970.

Baird, who left a $20,000 a year job four years ago to crusade for changes in birth control and abortion laws, was arrested a year ago in Boston for violating the 100-year-old Massachusetts state law prohibiting the "advertising, printing or publication of direction, information or knowledge intended to prevent pregnancy and the exhibition of any birth control devices and contraceptives." He is awaiting sentencing. "I sought arrest to bring the case to court," Baird said. He displayed contraceptive devices on the Boston University campus.

"Massachusetts is a morally bankrupt state," Baird continued. "Social responsibility is totally absent here. Birth control laws

by DICK KLINE

In memoriam to the late Martin Luther King, Jr., the Distinguished Visitors Program and the Senior class announced yesterday that they have changed the name of their jointly sponsored lecture series from the Senior Lecture Series to the Martin Luther King, Jr. Lecture Series.

Chairman of the lecture series committee John O'Connell, making the announcement for the DVP and Senior Class President Dick Wood, stated that "We both thought it would be a fitting memorial to Dr. King, especially since this year's lecturer, Linus Pauling, like Dr. King was a recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize."

INTERNATIONAL

LONDON (AP) — Parliament was told by Merlyn Rees, parliamentary undersecretary of state for the Royal Air Force, that Soviet reconnaissance flights over the North Sea have been reduced in the past year. He refused to give any details on the Soviet cutback under questioning in the House on British fighter command interceptions.

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's dim-lit bars and cabarets too often were places "used and abused to conquer a woman" and therefore had to be closed, says Havana University's official magazine. It was explaining why the government ordered a shutdown recently in pursuit of Fidel Castro's purifying "revolutionary offensive."

GAZA (AP) — Two days after the last Egyptian prisoners-of-war left for home, 70 tons of food arrived for them from Egypt. The Israeli army ordered the supplies distributed to destitute Arabs living in El Arish.

PARIS (AP) — A poll conducted in March by the Independent French Institute of Public Opinion for the mass circulation France-Soir showed 61 per cent voted "satisfied" on the question: "Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with Gen. De Gaulle as president of the republic?" The same question posed in February found 56 per cent satisfied with him.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Noisy latecomers to the Cameri Hebrew Theater have to stand behind a soundproof glass partition in the gallery known as "punishment corner."

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistan's population increased about 30 per cent in seven years and now is about 120 million, with 64 million in East Pakistan and 56 million in West Pakistan, official figures showed.

NATIONAL

Violence Roundup

Police used tear gas against an estimated 1,000 Negroes outside City Hall in Kansas City on Tuesday, while a riot death in Baltimore brought the toll across the nation since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination to 29, all but five of them Negroes.

In 90 cities struck by firebombing and looting since King's death April 4, the property loss was estimated by the American Insurance Association at more than $30 million—and still rising.

Washington, quiet now in the grip of 14,000 federal troops, estimated its losses alone at $13.3 million, highest in the nation.

Widespread incidents of rock throwing by Negro youths on Kansas City's East Side led Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to place 1,000 Kansas National Guardsmen on standby alert. All the city's schools were ordered closed. Shots were fired near the business district, but there were no reports of any injuries. Property damage was described as minor.

When a march on the downtown area began, Kansas City Mayor Ilus Davis tried to secure control by leading the demonstrators to City Hall. But when they arrived they refused to disperse.

As police sought to drive the marchers out of the downtown business district, already thronged with Easter shoppers, firecrackers were hurled. Police then broke up the crowd with tear gas.

Baltimore, where rioting previously had claimed five lives, listed a sixth fatality early in the day. A 70-year-old man burned to death in his living quarters above a grocery that was set afire in West Baltimore by arsonists.

New lootings and fires broke out in Baltimore despite the presence of 10,000 federalized troops, and soldiers were assigned to ride fire engines.

However, officials were hopeful the peak of the rioting had passed there as Negro residents of some sections quietly sunned themselves outside their homes in 72-degree weather.

In Cincinnati, 1,400 Ohio National Guardsmen patrolled streets strewn with debris. The first riot fatality was recorded there Monday night when a 30-year-old white art instructor at the University of Cincinnati was pulled from his car and beaten and stabbed. Police said five Negro youths attacked him.

Police Court Judge Clarence Denning held night court in Cincinnati and sentenced the first three men who appeared before him as curfew violators to a year in jail and a $500 fine each.

Chicago marked another day of relative calm, after weekend violence in Negro neighborhoods claimed 11 lives, and brought in 5,000 federal troops and 6,900 Illinois National Guardsmen. Demolition of burned out buildings was under way.

Warden Winston Moore of the Cook County jail said $85,000 was taken for safekeeping from 1,800 persons arrested during rioting in Chicago on Friday and Saturday. One man arrested as a looter was said to have $563 in cash on him.

"Never have I seen such rich prisoners," Moore said. "Even the kids have over $100 on them on the average."

One thousand additional Pennsylvania National Guardsmen were sent into Pittsburgh to relieve some of the 3,100 who held an apparently firm grip on the city, scene of four days of looting and arson. Gov. Raymond Shafer ordered another 3,500 to their armories, to stand by.

Relative peace was restored early in the day in Wilmington, Del., after a night of reported sniping, looting and fire bombing in a Negro neighborhood, and some crowds and rock throwing Tuesday. There were 1,200 National Guardsmen in the city on a standby basis.

Four hundred Ohio National Guardsmen patrolled the streets of Youngstown, Ohio, after that city was added to the growing list of areas hit by racial turmoil.

Fires were reported set in Jacksonville, Fort Pierce, Gainesville, and Pompano Beach, Fla., early in the day.

Asst. Police Chief I. L. Griffin of Jacksonville said two bullets narrowly missed him as gangs of young Negroes roamed the streets there. He added: "Anything that moved, I just put 'em in jail. If I'd let it go on, they'd probably have burned us down. It was just fires starting one right after another."

An estimated 50 Negro students took over the University of Michigan administration building in Ann Arbor, Mich., sealing off the doors with chains and locks. They demanded more Negroes in university posts, and establishment of a Martin Luther King scholarship fund.

The Negroes discussed their demands with the university's president, Robben Fleming, and after nearly five hours returned control of the building to the university. By that time their number had grown to an estimated 150. Fleming said of their demands: "I did not find most of them unreasonable."

Special Academic Scheduling

Please note the provisions relating to "Special Academic Scheduling" on pages 25 and 26 of the "1967-68 Student Handbook."

It is the responsibility of all students to plan ahead carefully so that the applicable provisions and deadlines are met. For students who pre-register in May (for the first semester, September 1968), the cut-off date for filing a request for special academic scheduling is Counseling Day, Tuesday, April 30, although requests may be filed up to commencement.

Special academic scheduling cannot be granted at the time of Registration next September.

In cases where employment is the stated need for special academic scheduling, note that the employer must verify such employment and the hours of employment in writing prior to any University action on the request.

SENIOR LECTURE . . .

Amherst on Monday, yesterday joined students on the UMass campus in memorial services for the slain civil rights leader. Dr. Pauling has been the recipient of two Nobel prizes (one for peace and the other for science) and has been one of the world's leading scientists for over forty years.

Lectures by Dr. Pauling on Scientific Discovery: Its Impact on Man, will be presented tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, April 16 at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, and on April 18 at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. During his nearly two week stay at the University, Dr. Pauling will meet with various UMass students and faculty and also students and faculty from Mt. Holyoke, Smith, and Amherst Colleges.

A colleague of Albert Einstein, Pauling has been deeply involved in both science and humanity all his life. Upon his receipt of the Nobel Prize for Peace for 1962, Dr. Pauling called for United Nations supervision of nuclear stockpiles and for the acceptance of Communist China into the community of nations so that meaningful disarmament could take place.

He has also advocated a general agreement to stop research and development of biological and chemical weapons and to prohibit their use. "The only sane policy for the world," said the distinguished scientist, "is that of abolishing war."

are being broken every day. Contraceptives pills, made legal for married women on doctor's prescription by an amendment to the law, are available at drug stores." Baird held up a sales slip from a Springfield drug store as evidence of a purchase of foam without a prescription by a single woman and named several Boston department stores or chains where contraceptives were openly displayed. "Yet," he continued, "there have been no arrests made."

Time, McCall's, Mademoiselle, Redbook and Christian Herald, all containing advertisements for birth control, were magaines exhibited to the 500 people in the audience. "Advertisements in clear violation of the law," he said.

The 36-year-old advocate for birth control, father of four children, spoke frankly of the suffering he sees in his New York clinic and the people he is trying to help.

"I see us as we really are—stripped of our veneer. I see women so desperate because of unwanted pregnancies that they would risk death. 10,000 women die at the hands of quack abortionists each year. Yet in 45 of 50 states a woman who is raped and becomes pregnant cannot get a legal abortion."

A bill presented in New York state legislature to legalize abortion under circumstances of rape, incest or the use of drugs such as thalidomide was defeated recently, although Baird was successful in his campaign to seau at any time but that the landlord had repeatedly avoided discussing the rent-strike with them.

Residents carried signs, some of which read, "Help US Out of the Mud," "Respect for Tenants," and "We support University Park Rent Strike."

The rent-strikers don't believe they will be evicted. They think that eventually the management will have to discuss their complaints with them.

Some of the grievances which the tenants hold are a lack of adequate repairs, improper water drainage facilities and the general lack of interest on the part of the management for anything except for rent money.

Nat'l Science Foundation Awards UMass Grants for Grad Students

The University of Massachusetts has been awarded a $177,815 grant under the National Science Foundation Graduate Traineeship Program, it was announced today by Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the UMass Graduate School.

The grant will provide support for 32 graduate traineeships beginning in the fall of 1968 and extending for a period of nine or 12 months. This includes 12 new traineeships, eight second-year continuations of traineeships granted in 1967, seven third-year continuations of traineeships granted in 1966, and five fourth-year continuations of traineeships granted in 1965. In addition, the grant provides for seven summer traineeships for graduate teaching assistants during the summer of 1968.

The award is part of the $31 million granted by the National Science Foundation this year as part of a program aimed at accelerating the output of students with advanced degrees in science, mathematics and engineering. Grants were made to 209 institutions across the United States to appoint 5,658 students for full-time graduate study beginning in the fall of 1968, and 965 graduate teaching assistants for full-time study in the summer of 1968.

The award provides stipends for students and reimbursement to the institution for tuition and fees or cost-of-education allowance. The Foundation bases its allocations on the relative quality of the applying institutions, their capacity for increased enrollments, the relative need for support and appropriate geographical distribution. Students receiving stipends are selected by their respective departments.

"Massachusetts is puritanical but not holy," he said. "And I have had no public political backing in this state." I have heard you say 'We're behind you, Bill, we're behind you,' but you're so far behind me I can't see you. You've been exposed to a moral issue tonight. You cannot and you must not be silent." A student in the audience circulated a petition through the audience addressed "To Governor Volpe: We, the undersigned demand that the abortion laws be changed. We support William Baird."

Baird, in danger of another arrest for speaking bluntly about birth control, answered questions and was asked to comment on the church's influence on the birth control laws. He stated firmly that he was not "anti any religion," but acknowledged the effect of religious beliefs on birth control. "The Church must not impose its own morality on all the people of this nation," he said.

Members of the Executive Council of the class of 1970 passed collection cups around the ballroom while Baird answered questions. The Parents Aid Society is non-profit and operates solely on funds received through lecture fees and contributions.

Students responded to Baird's statement that he lacked public support in his crusade for their rights by the formation of a group to activate campus support and organize a trip to Boston to confront Massachusetts Governor John Volpe with a request for an official statement. A spokesman for the group said a tablex would be set up in the Student Union lobby today for interested students to sign up.

Baird concluded his talk with the quiet statement "You can jail a body but not an ideal or a principle. It is time now to change these laws," and received a standing ovation from his audience.

Cadet Richard L. Matthews

UMass Cadet Receives 2-Year ROTC Scholarship

Cadet Richard L. Matthews has received a two-year ROTC scholarship from the U.S. Army.

For his remaining two years at the University, Cadet Matthews will receive $50 per month plus tuition, textbooks, and lab fees.

An Electrical Engineering major at UM, Cadet Matthews is the only member of his class to receive the Army ROTC two-year scholarship.

Upon graduation, he will be commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army.

ROTC Cadets Return from Maneuvers at Fort Devens

Approximately 70 sophomore and junior cadets of the Army R.O.T.C. Detachment returned to UMass Sunday afternoon after spending the weekend at Fort Devens, Mass.

From Friday night until Sunday afternoon, the cadets received practical instruction in the essentials of barracks life, rifle marksmanship, inspections, and simulated maneuvers in company-sized units.

To conclude this weekend's maneuver, the cadets participated in the Physical Combat Proficiency Test (PCPT). The PCPT included the 40-yd. low crawl, grenade throw, horizontal ladder, run-dodge-and-jump, and the mile run.

The weekend's activities were designed to introduce the cadets to summer camp life and to provide them with a preview of what to expect.

Honors Colloquia May Be Upgraded; Program Aims at Superior Frosh

The Honors Colloquia, an educational program which offers superior students the advantages of a small college and the resources of a large university, may be upgraded.

Many large universities have an honors program to provide special educational opportunities over and above the regular curriculum of the school. Only students who are willing to work and have proven their ability are admitted into the program. The programs are created for students who want to gain new experiences for self-edification and to increase their own sensitivity to creativity and critical analysis.

Dr. Everett Emerson, Director of the Honors Program at the University, said that faculty members here are trying to develop a revised honors program aimed especially at freshmen. A new program for upperclassmen is being promoted also but there is a greater need to establish a new program for superior freshmen. The University believes that it is not attracting its share of superior students from high schools. There must be a good colloquium program to attract them, according to Dr. Emerson. The senior thesis program is remote to the needs of incoming freshmen.

Two Areas of Interest

Emerson stated that he is interested primarily in two areas. First, he wants to provide better opportunities for superior students, and second, he wants to attract them to the University. These are students who seek self-knowledge and personal understanding in the classes.

As part of the intention to appraise continually the program for its merits, Emerson and his colleagues had been working at revising the program's curriculum even before the results of the "Cook Committee" were published. The Cook Committee, which made an extensive review of the Honors Program, stated that a new honors program is very important as "an integral part of the college's educational program."

Cook Committee View

The Cook Committee expressed "universal dissatisfaction with the present honors program (as a program) and universal agreement on its deficiencies". It devoted considerable study concerning an honors program for juniors and seniors and a program for freshmen and sophomores.

Professor Herman Cohen of the UMass Speech Department and former director of the honors program at the University of Oregon, feels that the University students should have a chance to "exercise their intellectual muscles." He also emphasized that the program attempts to set up a situation of useful interaction between students and faculty and also among the students themselves. In an honor's program students can work to their maximum intellectual level.

Cohen stated that the honors program can really show the commitment of the University for superior education for undergraduates. Also, the program should emphasize a liberal, basic education as some departments may become "overly professional in their presentation to students," he said.

19 Classes Will Return to Campus For Alumni Weekend, June 7-9

When some 300 UMass alumni return to Amherst June 7, 8, and 9, they will have the 110-acre campus all to themselves.

For the first time in history, Alumni Weekend at UM will be held separately from Commencement Weekend to allow the members of the 19 reunioning classes to rediscover and explore their Alma Mater at leisure.

Alumni Weekend will be open Friday night, June 7, with a buffet supper at the South Dining Commons — the Kopper Kettle. The first session of Alumni College, a traditional program of seminars, lectures and discussions will begin immediately following the buffet.

Saturday morning, June 8, will begin with the second session of Alumni College. At a noon annual awards luncheon, outstanding alumni achievement will be recognized by the University's Associate Alumni. Saturday night, 15 reunion banquets are scheduled.

A 68-year time span will be represented by the approximately 3000 visitors. From a school of 106 students, 20 faculty and 426 alumni in 1900, the University is today a complex of nearly 15,000 students at Amherst, more than 1000 faculty and an alumni body

John Hancock Establishes College Journalism Award

Establishment of a Freedom Award by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. to recognize independence and excellence in collegiate journalism was announced today by Dr. Dario Politella, President of the National Council of College Publications Advisers. Politella is Associate Professor of Journalism at UMass.

The award, consisting of a statuette of John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence, and $250 in cash, will be presented to the college newspaper editor who best represents the spirit of the award program.

Selection of the winner will be made by the National Council of College Press Advisers. The 1968 award presentation will be made in New York at the annual joint meeting of the NCCPA and the Associated College Press November 1, at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Politella said "Behind this award is the realization that today's responsible campus editors will be tomorrow's leaders in business, education and government. Recipients will typify the best of America's young journalists who continue to illustrate, on a collegiate basis, the responsibilities of a free and independent press.

"We are extremely pleased that John Hancock has taken the lead in recognizing the outstanding contributions that campus editors are making toward maintaining basic Constitutional freedoms.

"This Award delights all of us who are so closely identified with student journalists."

Any student member of the editorial or business staff of a college or university student publication which is published in the U.S. will be eligible for the award.

According to Dr. Politella, the John Hancock Award has been established to recognize the achievements of student journalists in upholding freedom and independence. The winner will be selected on the basis of evidence demonstrating editorial competence, courage and responsibility.

Each entrant should submit a letter and clippings summarizing their efforts, along with a short biography.

Judges for the award will be a panel of nationally recognized authorities selected by the NCC PA. The deadline for all entries is May 15, 1968.

Entries should be mailed to: Dr. John A. Boyd, Executive Director, NCCPA, TMU-401, Indiana State U., Terre Haute 47809.

John Hancock has also established a major awards program for excellence in business and financial reporting and presents annually five $1,500 Awards for Excellence for outstanding business news reporting.

Strikers In Memphis Near Solution

UP—Negotiators were reported Tuesday to have neared agreement on two main issues blocking settlement of the 58-day-old garbage strike which Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. had come here to support when he was assassinated.

The reported new accord apparently came during a 20-hour negotiating session which included Undersecretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, sent here by President Johnson to help mediate the dispute.

The only unsettled issue, sources said, was the amount of the pay increase for the 1,300 workers, most of whom are Negroes.

The sources said agreement was near on union recognition and dues checkoff, the two issues on which Mayor Henry Loeb had steadfastly refused to yield since the workers walked off their jobs Feb. 12.

Mediation, recessed early Monday, is to resume Wednesday.

Meanwhile, city and county officials announced an easing in the 7 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew clamped on the city after the assassination.

Four white men, including a Presbyterian minister, continued a five-day-old fast and sit-in on the sidewalks outside City Hall which they said would end only after the garbage workers receive a satisfactory settlement.

Hanoi Shelters, Loudspeakers Are Effective

UP — The people in North Vietnam's capital met the escalation of the American air war against them with comparable escalation of their defenses, which an American writer reported Tuesday seems to have "carried them through the air war in remarkably good shape."

Bill Baggs, editor of the Miami News, said Hanoi is nested in what must be "one of the most sophisticated and effective warning systems in the world."

Hundreds of loudspeakers send people scurrying for shelter when U.S. fighter-bombers approach the city, he said.

"Something which appears to be a purely Vietnamese confection is the 'one-person bomb shelter.'" Baggs reported in a copyrighted story written while returning from his second trip to Hanoi.

The shelters are lengths of concrete pipe about three feet in diameter planted in the ground. The shelters have lids of concrete or woven bamboo.

"These are remarkably effective shelters," Baggs said, "and there are now tens of thousands of them in Hanoi."

Hanoi is not really a blitzed city in the traumatic style of Rotterdam, or even London, in World War II," he said. "Rather, it has been sort of nicked at.

"There is not even a hint that the American strategy has been to obliterate Hanoi. Surely, with the competence of the U.S. Air Force, all of this city could be reduced to broken bricks and scattered glass on any afternoon," Baggs wrote.

Baggs said that "In Hanoi almost incidentally, but conspicuously in the countryside, you see the violent wake of the American bombers."

Vandals Damage Bicycle, Police Give Owners No Aid

University property is not the only property damaged by UM students. Many bicycles belonging to UM students have been damaged throughout this year by their fellow students.

A lock on a bike prevents it from being stolen, but not damaged. When the back wheel is damaged, when the spokes are broken or when the handlebars are twisted, the bike can't be used. Bicycles in the Southwest, under MacKimmie House for example, have been damaged in these ways.

The bicycles have been thrown on the ground, often one thrown against the other. The locks have been pulled and spokes were broken. Those responsible for the damage have not been found, and damage is still being done during the night.

A major aspect of this problem is that money is needed for the owners to repair the damage. Students want to use their bikes. They don't want to pay money to repair them because some fellow students got their kicks on a Saturday night by stomping on the back wheel.

Reporting of the damage done to one's bike doesn't seem to help. To whom should a student report the damage? Should he report it to his Head of Residence, or to the University Police? In most cases nothing is done after it has been reported. However, the fact remains that someone has to pay for the repair of the bike.

As mature, young adults attending college, the vandals should know better than to purposely damage property, whether that of the University or of fellow students.

These students themselves should realize the financial damage and inconveniences they cause to others. And it is up to them to change.

Yale Graduate Reveals Widespread Use of Drugs; "Escapes Pressure"

Of every five students at Yale this year probably one is smoking marijuana, according to a recent graduate of the University who was himself a member of a "turned-on" ring there.

The Yale graduate—who has chosen to be anonymous—reveals that there is "plenty of marijuana available on campus—and LSD, hashish and pep pills as well."

The graduate implies that the college atmosphere itself—with its pressures and its searching, experimental environment—may have a great deal to do with turning students toward drugs.

"Drugs provided an escape from the pressure and problems of college life," he says. "There was the thrill of being in on what's happening. And in the bristling academic world where exploration and questioning are required of students, I felt little hesitation in experimenting with anything."

"It's easier to make friends on a high," he says, but only in the way that people tipsy on liquor declare undying friendship—"until the hangover next morning."

The fact is, that those on drugs must choose between normal society and other "potheads" — usually with a resultant loss of "normal" friends.

Far from increasing sense perception, drugs narrow it, he asserts. Moreover, the pot smoker eventually reaches the point where even bright colors and patterns get monotonous.

And, he says, far from increasing creativity, drugs just "make you think that what you're doing is art."

While marijuana is commonplace at Yale—and, in the author's view, at "most comparable colleges and universities" — few serious students are willing to face the risks involved in "tripping out" with LSD.

No such fear attaches to marijuana, claims the ex-Yale student. The true "pothead" may turn on every evening. "Consciously or not," he says, "he has renounced the 'straight' world, divorcing himself from reality."

Ultimately drugs became "enormously disappointing" to him. "Finally I realized that pot is just not worth getting hung up about."

Of those who began taking drugs when he did, two have dropped out of school, one is awaiting trial for "dealing" in marijuana, and another has "graduated" to hard narcotics.

LBJ and Hanoi Look for Site Of Conference

UP — Pres. Johnson disclosed Tuesday a new U.S. diplomatic message to Hanoi, discussion alternate sites "which could be convenient to both sides" in starting preliminary peace talks.

Amid a day-long Vietnam strategy session attended by Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to Saigon, and peace envoy W. Avereli Harriman, the President also stressed accord among the allies in the ticklish maneuvering leading toward negotiations with the Reds.

"We have consulted with our allies" about No. Vietnam's latest proposal on talks, Johnson told newsmen during a brief midmorning break in the conference with top diplomatic and military aides at this mountain hideaway.

"We are in agreement with our allies and are prepared for ambassadorial contacts just as soon as arrangements can be completed," Johnson said.

As for the new message—the second direct U. S. diplomatic communication to No. Vietnam since the Apr. 3 breakthrough in the long impasse over talks — the President referred to Monday's official reply from Hanoi and added:

"We are back in touch with Hanoi and discussing a number of alternative locations which could be convenient to both sides."

The U.S. originally proposed Geneva for the meeting place, while N. Vietnam named Phrom Penh, Cambodia. But both sides have shown a willingness to compromise on location. Rangoon, New Delhi and Jakarta are among other locations speculated about.

Female Draft

As draft deferments become increasingly scarce, many are beginning to question the American woman's traditional freedom from military duty and social responsibility. Her past infiltrations into male-dominated fields have revealed hidden mines of feminine strength, suggesting to some the existence of greater resources still to be discovered. She has proved her proficiency in an ever-expanding range of experience, but if much of the country's male population is to become its military population, then her greatest test is yet to come.

A growing draft will bring growing demands on America's female citizen. Not only will she carry a major part of the country's academic burden, but her own solid military exemption may itself be in danger. She will not, in the foreseeable future, be found fighting on the field of battle—this is too much of a digression from the "American Way"; but eventually she may be, and should be, required to serve her country in the more administrative areas of the military forces.

This is not to say that women should be drafted in order to increase the available source of fighting males. Ideally, perhaps too ideally, compulsory military service for women would allow some of the healthy, draft-eligible men the opportunity to live their lives and plan their futures. This is especially important in the field of education, where what threatens to become an academic team of women and physically deficient males would be strengthened in both mind and body, giving brighter hope to America's intellectual and political future.

But the creation of a women's draft would necessitate a corresponding system of deferment, and this could be trouble. Any woman who wished to make herself exempt could do so merely by exaggerating her femininity, thereby threatening the masculine efficiency of the military mechanism. And a policy of deferment for pregnancy could have major repercussions.

The idea is not as absurd as it must first appear. Why should the male be obliged to pay the price of female allegiance? Woman has been protected and romanticized far too long; as she repeatedly demonstrates her abilities and asserts her independence, she herself denies the need for this protection.

Moreover, the idea is not new. Israel women all, without exception, enter military service at the age of eighteen; and they carry guns, not pencils.

But she must make the move. If a change in traditional beliefs and procedures is to benefit the nation, it is important that woman herself initiate the change so that her cooperation will be assured.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Blackmail

As cities smoulder and white communities quake in fear, a number of politicians have suddenly become more liberal on the civil rights question. To find out just what was so persuasive about the logic of black militants, I had a revealing conversation with a black militant the other day.

* * * * *

"Don't you think the Negro cause would be best aided by following the non-violence that Martin Luther King preached," I asked.

He took out a pack of matches and casually inquired if my sport jacket was flammable.

"But you know, after thinking it over, I guess sometimes you have to use violence to get people's attention," I said.

"Exactly, baby."

"But there's still something that bothers me about your philosophy. It's almost as if you're pointing a gun at the heads of whites and saying, 'Come across or else.'"

As my friend took out a revolver and pointed it at my head I said, "But on the other hand, sometimes the threat of violence may be necessary."

"You know it, man."

"But sometimes I think that one should exhaust all legal means before he resorts to extra-legal ones."

When I saw his switchblade glisten in the sun I added, "But then again, the law is sometimes painfully slow."

"That's right, brother."

I thanked him for painting me such a logical and coherent picture of the black militant philosophy and walked away further convinced that if you express a legitimate grievance long enough, eventually someone will listen.

Racism at Orchard Reflects American Crisis

EDITOR'S NOTE: The above headline was inadvertently put over a letter in yesterday's MDC. It belongs instead with the following letter.

To the editor

Last night at Orchard Hill I witnessed a deeply moving demonstration of student sympathy for the murdered Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. The students held hands and walked in a large circle while they sang the songs which have come to be associated with King's SCLC. Meanwhile, from the surrounding male dormitories came shrieks, hisses, catcalls, and a cascade of firecrackers and waterbombs.

The whole panorama was highly symbolic of the present American situation. It was not merely symbolic of the deep and historic strain of violence in American life, though there was this in it, too; nor was it merely symbolic of the sensitivity and commitment of large numbers of young people today, though in part it was this. It was all these things and something more: it was symbolic of our crucially divided national culture and character — divided between humanitarian, equalitarian, large-minded ideals and violent, cruel, self-seeking individualism.

It is time, I think, that we admit to ourselves that it was not a madman who killed John F. Kennedy; it was not a madman who killed Malcolm X or Abraham Lincoln. Nor was it a madman who killed Montezuma II (probably the first non-white to get in our way). We must finally admit this IS the American Way, and having come to that knowledge we must search out new ways of being Un American before we can become truly American.

And it is time that we say to ourselves out loud that there is simply no place in America, no place in this university, for this American Way. Those who threw the firecrackers and the waterbombs last night from the balconies were hacking at the corpses of the Kings, the Kennedys, the Malcolms, and the Lincolns, and as they did so they were sowing further the seeds which must one day destroy us all. As I looked into their vacant and empty faces I could only feel how profoundly their culture had failed them, how fully we in education had failed them; for nowhere have they been provided the intellectual equipment to critically assess the nation they are living in. Nowhere had they been educated to the meaning of their actions. And until we can find some way to make them aware we shall continue to murder in Memphis, in Dallas, in Viet Nam; and we shall continue to suffer riots from Watts to Harlem, until the whole three-century edifice comes crashing down upon our heads.

Let us hope (and work to make that hope a reality) that we do not have to feel the crushing weight of that toppling structure before we understand that we ourselves have brought it down.

America Must Actively Awaken To Racial Problems

To the editor:

Saturday, a local newspaper contained an article that read that the assassination of Dr. King advances the chances of passage of the fair housing bill.

The last civil rights bill cost the life of a president. The civil rights bills before these two cost the lives of untold thousands of black men who floated silently down the Mississippi and lesser known rivers. The question is: How many more people must die before America realizes that it cannot shelve its racial problems.

In the words of Dr. King in his "dream" speech, "America is in for a rude awakening if she goes back to business as usual." If you don't believe it, just ask Stokely ! !

Levco Announces Senate Candidacy

Fellow members of the Class of '68

The election for class Senator will be held tomorrow in the Student Union. Compelling ideological issues have forced me to announce my candidacy at this time.

Many have labeled my candidacy ruthless political opportunism. The reason I didn't run for the Senate earlier was that I was afraid of splitting the class. But since the class is obviously divided anyway, I could no longer remain silent.

Only when all opinions are aired can the class of '68 join together in harmony for the greater good of the class, the university, the country, and mankind.

A Widow's Work Calls for Courage

Strives to Keep His Spirit Alive

Yesterday, her face veiled, her head erect, Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr. held her composure as she heard the taped voiced of her late husband. The young widow, even before the funeral, began her challenge saying, "The most important thing is that my husband's work must go on."

"How many men must die before we can really have a free and true and peaceful society? . . . I believe that this nation can be transformed into a society of love, of justice, peace and brotherhood . . ." —MRS. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR.
April 8, 1968, Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. King said that her husband knew that at any moment he might be killed, but added that "we faced this possibility squarely and honestly . . ." Continuing her plea, "We intend to go on in search of that way, and I hope that you who loved and admired him will join us in fulfilling his dream."

Mrs. King, dressed in black and accompanied by her children, led thousands of marchers Monday through heavily guarded Memphis where her husband was slain, then challenged her followers to see that her husband's spirit "never dies."

"My husband was a loving man, and a man who was completely devoted to non-violence, and I don't need to say that. And he, I think, somehow was able to instill much of this into his family. We want to carry on the best we can in the tradition in which we feel he would want us to carry on. And this hour to me represents much more than just a time to talk about and to eulogize my husband, who, I can say, was a great man, a great father and a great husband. We loved him dearly, the children loved him dearly. And we know that his spirit will never die.

"Those of you who believed in what Dr. Martin Luther King stood for, I would challenge you today to see that his spirit never dies and that we will go forward from this experience which to me represents the crucifixion on toward the resurrection and redemption of his spirit," Mrs. King said.

Guardsmen Line Route

National Guardsmen, their rifles tipped with bayonets, lined the route of the somber, peaceful march and police helicopters hovered overhead while she spoke.

Mrs. King was cheered many times during her 14½ minute talk, which she delivered in an unhurried fashion.

"How many times have I heard him say that with every Good Frday, there comes Easter. When Good Frday came, these are the moments in life that we feel that all is lost and there is no hope. But then Easter comes and the time of resurrection and rebirth of hope and fulfillment. We must carry on because this is the way he would have wanted it to have been," she said.

We are not going to get bogged down, I hope, and this is the moment when we are going to continue his work to make all people truly free and to make every person feel that he is a human being. His campaign for the poor must go on.

Jackie Sympathizes With Coretta King

by KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two widows, both of whom lost famous husbands by an assassin's bullets, clasped hands and shared words of comfort Tuesday.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, who could perhaps understand the grief of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., better than any other, flew to her home Tuesday for a brief visit.

The two attractive widows, both clad in black silk suits, spent about five minutes together in private talk in Mrs. King's bedroom, shortly before the funeral.

Mrs. Kennedy, who wore black mesh hose, first signed the guest book when she entered the King's simple red-brick home, with a friend, Rachel Mellon.

The former first lady then moved slowly down the long hall to the King bedroom, smiling and speaking softly to friends and relatives of the Kings.

At the end of he hallway, she paused briefly to speak to the four King children, who were dressed up for the funeral.

Twelve-year-old Yolanda, who wore a white lace dress, said Mrs. Kennedy told her, "I'm mighty glad to be here."

She then went into the bedroom for the talk with Mrs. King.

Both left shortly afterward for the funeral, in separate limousines.

The King home, before Mrs. Kennedy's arrival, was a bustle of activity.

Mrs. King, who had again been up until the early morning hours making final funeral arrangements, remained in seclusion.

Friends and relatives washed dishes, made coffee, fed guests and helped dress the children for the funeral.

Five-year-old Bernice, the youngest King child, spilled juice on her white dress and it had to be washed out and ironed hurriedly.

Mrs. King woke early to greet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Obediah Scott, who arrived from Marion County, Ala.

Throughout the days of ordeal since her husband was shot last Thursday, Mrs. King has shown remarkable composure. Her friends have described her as showing "great strength."

British Coeds Get Contraceptive Aid

Cambridge, Eng.—Two-thirds of the university health services in England provide contraceptive counselling and materials for unmarried coeds, according to Dr. Maurice Potts, secretary of the Cambridge Advisory Centre for Young People.

In the nine months that his Centre has been open, it has served some 300 unmarried women, most of them from the university. The young women who seek this help, the physician noted, "are neither promiscuous nor immature."

At another university at least half the women students have come to the health services for contraceptive counselling.

Most of the 750 clinics of the Family Planning Association of Britain also plan to serve young unmarrieds.

Squaw Talk

Marjie Flanders, Women's Page Editor

Are You a Boy . . . or Are You a Girl . . .

Modern society is making it increasingly more difficult to draw a strict distinction between masculinity and feminity.

The 19th Century image of the strong-willed man who rarely showed his emotions has been supplanted by the man who can express his emotions much more openly, even to the point of crying.

The emancipated career woman, on the other hand, now conceals her emotions at the expense of becoming more rational.

Twiggy hairstyles for women are contrasted by longer hair and sideburns for men. Even a prominent public figure like Robert Kennedy wears his hair much longer now than he did a few years ago.

This blending of hitherto exclusive traits is carried over into fashion. Ruffled shirts, bell bottom pants, and tunics are now in style for both sexes.

The "little boy" look for women is counterbalanced by the new bright colors, prints and plaids in men's clothing.

Tapered double-breasted suits, formal white turtlenecks, and collorful shirts and jackets give men more freedom to express themselves through colorful, diversified clothing. The staid conventional businessman attire is not the only way for a man to appear masculine.

This week's "Squaw Talk" survey asked 50 UMass women what they thought of the new look in men's clothes.

All of them dislike ruffled shirts because they consider ruffles to be strictly feminine.

The majority like formal white turtlenecks. One junior likes their neat appearance as well as the change they afford men's dress for a formal evening.

The few conservatives who don't like them think that they detract from a tuxedo by making it appear casual.

"A Certain Physique"

About 25 of those talked to liked plaid pants, and only half of these liked brightly colored (red and orange) plaids. Just as men complain about fat women in mini skirts, women can now complain about fat men in bright plaid pants. All of those who liked plaid pants did say that a man should have a slender build in order to wear them.

Tapered double-breasted suits also require a certain physique to be worn successfully. Although most of the women interviewed by "Squaw Talk" didn't like the new light colored "Clyde" suits worn with darker shirts, they did like dark pin-striped double breasted suits worn with vests.

Bright colors in shirts and sports coats appealed to all 50 women. They're tired of the conventional grays, browns and greens.

They unanimously agree that to an extent the new diversity in men's fashions is a change for the better.

Stepping overboard a bit . . . but still accepted.

Here modeled by a female, this costume was originally created for the male sex. Could it be that this character in the background plans to buy it ?

Student Senate Studies Reforms in Cook Report

Core curriculum, the physical education requirement, registration procedures and many other academic problems have become a major concern of many UMass students.

The chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, Senator Christopher McGahan, reports that the Academic Affairs committee of the Student Senate is now studying these problems and is trying to develop practicable reforms.

One sub-committee of Academic Affairs is investigating registration procedures. Working in cooperation with the SWAP Committee, this sub-committee is trying to eliminate the long lines and hours of frustration that characterize the present procedure.

"I am personally hoping for registration by mail," said McGahan. "However, the administration seems reluctant to do this although they probably could."

The Cook Report, an extensive study of UMass curiculum, has been made available to the public. It includes changes in the core requirements that many students find objectionable. A sub-committee of Academic Affairs has been created to set up coffee hours at dormitories where the report will be discussed.

"I'm sure that the Cook Committee tried to improve the curriculum," said McGahan, "but I don't feel they accomplished this as effectively as they could." It's a good first step, but the requirements are not entirely relevant to contemporary changing concepts of liberal education."

Dubcek Wants Concentration On Economy

UR — Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek told ultraprogressives Tuesday to slow down their drive to eject old guard elements from the party and concentrate for the time being on improving Czechoslovakia's economy.

In a statement, Dubcek spoke out against a proposal for a special party congress this summer to oust Antonin Novotny and some of his followers from seats they still hold on the Communist party's Central Committee. Dubcek replaced the Stalinist-line ruler in January.

Instead of concentrating on "cadre problems," Dubcek said, the party should prepare proposals on economic measures, a new wage structure and a new state constitution

AFROTC Man To Discuss Academic Program

Maj. Richard E. Olin from the Headquarters of Air Force ROTC will visit UM on April 17 and 18.

As a member of the AFROTC Field Services Section, he will be visiting with both cadets and officer instructors to discuss the academic activities of the detachment. Professional officer education requires continuing communication and exchange of ideas between the supervisors and educators involved.

To fill this need between Air University's AFROTC Headquarters and its 173 detachments on college campuses, AFROTC employs these educational consultants in its Educational Division.

Essentially, the service provides feedback to help AFROTC in building a better educational program, in helping the Professor of Aerospace Studies and his staff to more effectively execute the program, and in exchanging ideas on educational matters.

Peace Corps Has Different Views For People Concerned with Work

The Peace Corps means many things to many people. A Volunteer, a staff member, a host country citizen, a politician, a social scientist, an historian, an educator—all bring their special experiences to bear on defining the essential nature of the Peace Corps. Their insights form a composite picture of what the agency is trying to achieve, and how well it is succeeding.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey: "Dollar for dollar, you get more rewards and returns out of the investment in the Peace Corps than almost anything we are doing as a government and as a country."

Jack Vaughn, Peace Corps Director: "We don't seek sactity, and we try not to be sanctimonious about what we are trying to do."

A host country official in Africa: "It is one thing to lean on other nations for material and technical help. It is more painful to have to lean on outsiders for your spiritual growth. It puts your national soul in the care and keeping of others. But at this point in Africa's history, this is the kind of aid that we are most vitally in need of, and this is the kind of aid your young, wide-eyed Volunteers can most freely give."

Bill Moyers, publisher of Newsday and former Peace Corps Deputy Director: "Unabashedly altruistic in motive, but unashamedly skilled in the techniques of political change—this is the Peace Corps . . . Ideas are great arrows, but there has to be a bow. And politics is the bow of idealism."

David Riesman, sociologist: "Many Volunteers return with a better sense of the United States, not only for having seen another culture and lived in it intensively, but, for having observed themselves and other Volunteers inside that culture, thus beginning to discover what is American about America."

Harris Wofford, a former Peace Corps associate director and now president of New York State University College at Old Westbury: "To find its context may be the major problem of the Peace Corps' next five years: to find its context not just within the government, but within American higher education, with colleges and universities, with faculties and with the new post-Kennedy student generation; within American politics and society at large; and within the process of development, nation-building and social revolution underway in the rest of the world community."

A Volunteer: "We can never again become the people we were before we came to Africa. But then, we would not want to."

UMies Go to Connecticut To Campaign for McCarthy

By PETER LARRATT
Staff Reporter

A group of over thirty UMass students campaigned for McCarthy in Hartford, New Britain and other Connecticut cities this past weekend. While short on experience, expertise and money, the McCarthy organization has flourished because of the sheer manpower available. Local student groups have taken pains to provide accommodations, meals and social functions which make the venture possible and fun.

All but the leaders were students, representing institutions from local junior high schools to graduate and professional schools. The largest petty cash account was kept for and dispersed to volunteers for services rendered at the barbershop down the street. Local racial tension and civil disorder, in the wake of Dr. King's death, have not decreased the flow of volunteers. The tide has swelled. Headquarters confusion is articulated in Polish, French and Italian by language students trying to sell the candidate to certain voters by phone.

The UMass students found that the campaigning day begins about 7 A.M. Saturday morning while the rest of the campus is sleeping off "The Q Club," "Mike's" and various other TGIF functions. Nine in the morning to ten at night are the normal hours at campaign headquarters. During these hours makeshift-precinct headquarters buzz with activity and excitement. The goal of all this activity is to break the back of State and National Chairman John M. Bailey's powerful machine which has not been at all sympathetic with the McCarthy campaign.

The town of Mansfield, dominated by Yankee Conference foe UConn, was the first town to have its machine backed, nominating convention appointees dumped. Other towns quickly followed suit and now a majority of McCarthy groups through out the state have forced local primary elections. The state chairman of this effort has set a goal of 20% of the vote. This figure would force the Bailey machine to accept some McCarthy pledged delegates.

Given this goal, the UMass McCarthy contingent is quite optimistic and they hope that Tuesday's results (April 9) will reward their efforts.

Whatever the outcome in Connecticut, the McCarthy group on campus is building around its nucleus of Connecticut veterans. The group has several objectives in mind. They plan to distribute literature and buttons and to accept contributions in the Union. A clearing house for rides home to vote on primary day will be set up. They are also compiling lists of potential volunteers who

Our Space Department

Big. This year even bigger. Some Chevrolet Tri-Levels are longer. Some wider. Some with more cargo room. Size up Impala. Nothing in its field comes as big. For instance, in many others you wouldn't dare try laying a 4 x 8-foot mirror flat in the main cargo level. (Especially if you're superstitious.) In Impala, no problem. The hidden storage compartment on the lower level also takes more of your gear than any of them. The roof rack you order should take care of the rest. For your comfort, there's extra hip and shoulder room.
We make our Tri-Levels lots more attractive in other ways, too. With such exclusives in Chevrolet's field as an ignition warning system. You'll get a buzz out of it if you ever leave your key in the switch. There are rocker panels that clean themselves with every shower you go through. Inner fenders that protect the outer ones from rust. And hidden windshield wipers on many models. Even with all these advantages, Impala and Chevelle Concours are the lowest priced luxury wagons in their fields. And if that's what you like to hear, hear this. Unprecedented savings are yours now at your Chevrolet dealer's '68 Savings Explo. See the details below.

UMass Snakebeaters Travel To Wesleyan for 'Must Win'

Season Opener Is Critical

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

A must win situation faces the UMass lacrosse team, as the Redmen snakebeaters travel to Middletown, Conn., to meet Wesleyan College in the regular season opener today.

In pre-season polls of Eastern coaches, Wesleyan, along with Amherst and UMass are picked as the teams to beat in the New England Conference. Therefore this early season pairing of two of the three ranked teams takes on great importance.

UMass coach Dick Garber put it in this way, when he said, "It's only the first game for us but it is a critical one for both teams." A win means we have knocked off one of the best, while if we lose, we will be that much behind."

UMass defeated Wesleyan last year in somewhat of an upset, by a score of 7-3. Weleyan went on to a fine 8-5 season last year, which included wins over Trinity and Middlebury, both UMass defeats. It is essentially the same team that returns this season for Wesleyan.

Leading the Connecticut school's attack are two fine scorers, Peterson and Leonard. The big strength is in the midfield spot where Wesleyan features, as Garber said, "some really big and strong performiers."

A possible important factor in the contest will be the fact that Wesleyan has a new coach this year in Gene Riley. He replaces the previous coach Don Harrington, who went to coach at Colgate. Unable to scout his opponent, Coach Garber is fearful of some surprises. "They know pretty much how we play," Garber said, "but with the new coach we have no idea how they play."

The UMass starting team is still indefinite, pending injuries to several key performers. Goalie and co-captain Bill Sinclair was to have his injured eye examined yesterday but Garber is leaning toward junior Mark Schlossberg in the nets. The coach said, "Having the goaltender play with an injured eye is risky, since he can't help but flinch."

The defensive starters will be co-captain Walt Alessi, who is still only at 80% effectiveness following an injury, junior Tom Tufts, and sophomore Bill Devore.

Coach Garber, due to the injuries, will use a rare alignment of four midfield teams during the game. The first two should consist of Marty Kalikow, Paul Mushovic, who has been moved up from attack and Gerry Forgit on the first and Steve Chambers, Steve Anderson and Bob Florin.

The third midfield is what Garber called his "Red Cross midfield." It includes Bob Marshall and Steve Connolly, who have been injured all season and did not even make the spring trip along with Richard Mahoney. The fourth midfield will consist of Greg Norton, Bob LaChance and either Greg Stillman or Sean Walker.

Attack will be led by a definite All-American possibility in Kevin O'Connor, last year's leading scorer and last season's second leading scorer Gary Vassar. They will be joined by either Mushovic or Parker Simonds. Possible attackman is Sinclair who is doing well at the position in practice.

All in all Coach Garber sees this afternoon's contest to be a "close and exciting game between two good teams."

UMass will play a scrimmage Friday evening under the lights of the intramural field against the Boston Lacrosse Club. The club team features several former UMass stars and All-Americans.

Gunners Shine But Are 5th in Finals

The UMass rifle team produced one of their finest performances when they shot a score of 1281 in the New England College Rifle League finals at M.I.T. Saturday. In spite of the showing, they could do no better than finish fifth behind the University of Maine, 1352; the Coast Guard Academy, 1320; Norwich, 1319 and M.I.T., 1298.

The past two years have shown a tremendous rise in the riflemen's scores from the 1150's to nearly 1300. Far from being discouraged by being unplaced in the finals, they are confidently looking forward to next year when they hope they will be a match for any of the Northeastern teams.

This season the rifle team was plagued with schedule problems, but they still managed to remain unbeaten. Their 4-0 record won them first place in their division of the N.E.C.R. league and a place in the finals.

The main credit for the team's success goes to Captain Pete Gallagher, senior Dick Coons and sophomore, John LaCouture. Their performance during the finals and throughout the season was better than anything Coach Goodge would have believed possible a year ago. They finished with average scores of 258, 251 and 249 respectively. Gallagher was eleventh in all New England in the individual competition and will be missed next year.

Three individuals can not make a winning team, thus credit must also be given to the rest of the team: Dudley Darling, Barrie Wagenfield, Jim Gallerani, Greg Terio and Jim Outram.

This depth of shooting, together with a promising freshman team, could lead to an even more successful season next year under newly elected Captain Lacouture.

Bruins Lose, 5-2

BOSTON (AP)— Montreal's power play struck for goals by Jean Beliveau and Claude Provost and the Canadiens breezed to a 5-2 victory over the Boston Bruins Tuesday night.

The Canadiens moved to within a decision of a four - game sweep in the NHL's East Division semifinal playoffs.

LINE-UP PROBLEMS—Manager Dick Williams of the Red Sox, who lacks the services of Jim Lonborg and Tony Conigliaro, leads his team to Detroit as they open their defense of the American Championship today.

Big League Baseball Starts Today!

(AP)The baseball season opens belatedly Wednesday with a 10-game schedule after two days of postponements in respect to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Washington, Baltimore and Detroit, three cities torn by racial disorder since the slaying of the civil rights leader, hope to go ahead with their delayed openers, pending developments.

Attendance, originally estimated at well over 300,000, probably will fall below that level due to the postponements and the unsettled situation in some cities.

Battle-garbed soldiers occupied the stadium where Washington's special presidential opener was to have been played Monday afternoon. Club officials are hopeful that the game will be played Wednesday when Camilo Pascual is due to pitch for the Senators against Dean Chance of the Minnesota Twins.

Baltimore, another city disrupted by violence that necessitated the appearance of federal troops, also hopes to stage the delayed opener between the Orioles and the new Oakland A's Wednesday afternoon.

Tom Phoebus will pitch for the Orioles, who have lost shortstop Mark Belanger and pitcher Pete Richert to National Guard duty, and Catfish Hunter is due to work for the A's. A crowd of 30,000 is expected.

Detroit, which has been under a state of emergency, expects to be able to get in a day opener between the Tigers and the defending champion Boston Red Sox. Earl Wilson has been picked to start for the Tigers against Dick Ellsworth of the Red Sox. Original estimates called for a turnout of 50,000.

Chicago lowered its crowd estimate to about 20,000 for the game between the White Sox and the Cleveland Indians. Manager Eddie Stanky named Joe Horlen to oppose the Indians' Sonny Siebert.

With the groundskeepers' threatened strike settled, the New York Yankees are set to face the California Angels at Yankee Stadium. It will be Mel Stottlemyre for the Yanks, who will have rookies Mike Ferraro at third and Frank Fernandez catching. George Brunet is the Angels' probable. The Yanks count on 15,000 people.

All of the American League games will be played in the daytime, along with two in the National League. Night games are listed at Los Angeles, St. Louis and Houston.

Roger Maris, recovered from a groin injury, will be in the line-up for the St. Louis Cardinals at home against the Atlanta Braves. Bob Gibson, the World Series star, will oppose Pat Jarvis, the Braves starter. Attendance is expected to be about 40,000.

Los Angeles, last club to postpone Tuesday's opener, figures the attendance will be somewhat less than the 27,000 originally expected for the night game with the Philadelphia Phillies. Claude Osteen is the Dodger pitcher. Manager Gene Mauch of the Phils will pitch Chris Short.

Cincinnati's special opener, originally set for Monday, is just another game on the National program but still a big deal in Cincinnati. The Reds will call on Milt Pappas to take on the Chicago Cubs' Joe Niekro. They still hope for 30,000 fans.

Houston, another club which had hoped to get a jump on the rest with a Monday game, will pitch young Larry Dierker against the veteran Jim Bunning of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Astrodome before 30,000.

Houston Manager Grady Hatton already has his pitching rotation set up with Don Wilson, Denny Lemaster and Dave Giusti next in line.

The San Francisco Giants hope for 42,000 to see Juan Marichal hook up with Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' precocious rookie of 1967, at Candlestick Park.

Baird, Students Test Birth Control Law; Police Refuse to Take Action Against Zayre's

Students gathered with Bill Baird outside Zayre's, after being told that they would be charged with trespassing if they re-entered the store.

By JAN FIALKOW and MARK SILVERMAN

William Baird, backed by fifteen UMass students, and Daily Collegian challenged the Massachusetts State Birth Control Laws yesterday in an effort to aide William R. Baird's attempt to have the laws changed.

Zelda Bilsey, a Junior bought a can of Emko Foam, a "cosmetic" which is commonly used as a contraceptive, to test the part of the law which prohibits the sale of any unprescribed contraceptive to a married person, and the sale of any contraceptive to any unmarried person.

In another move to test the enforcement of the law, Karen Mortan, a UMass Sophomore, bought a copy of McCalls magazine, which contains an advertisement for Emko Foam which states the product "is a birth control without side effects."

The items were purchased in order to test the universal enforcement of the law; Baird, a noted Birth Control reformer, has been arrested for violating the law, and faces a 10 year jail sentence.

Students called the Hadley police to arrest the manager of the store for violating the law, but there were no officers available to come to Zayre's. After calling the State Police three times, the students had to wait 45 minues before the officers arrived. Said one student, "If I wanted to commit a crime, I'd do it in Hadley."

When contacted for the third time, the State Police desk sergeant asked sarcastically "you just want to get a lot of publicity, don't you?" He later added "You're just trying to make a lot of noise."

Police later refused to arrest the store manager, Mr. Pardo, because they were not present at the time the law was broken. (i. e. when the purchase was made).

In response to this, another copy of the magazine was purchased in front of the policemen. They again refused to arrest the manager. This time they reasoned that in order to take any action, a directive from a superior was needed. When questioned if a directive was needed in apprehending other law breakers, the officers replied, "no comment."

The store removed all Emko Foam from the shelves as well as all the copies of McCalls magazine from the magazine rack, shortly after the police arrived.

Zayre's security officer, Mr. Murphey, attempted to confiscate film from Daily Collegian photographer Damien Kuffler, and told the UMass students to leave the store because they were trespassing. He then told the students that they would be arrested for trespassing if they ever entered the store again.

Mr. Baird, who was present at Zayre's, spoke with Pardo and Murphey at their request. At that time, the store management threatened to press charges against 100 UM Students who have allegedly shoplifted from that store if Baird continued to publicize Zayre's breaking the Birth Control law.

Commenting on the Police's refusal to enforce the law, Baird said, "the Police are so typical of the rest of our society, who are afraid to get involved. They knew their duty, but they ignored it." He later added that there is an obvious inequality in the enforcement of the law, since he was arrested for holding a pill in public, but Zayre's is allowed to sell contraceptives.

In accordance with Massachusetts law, Baird and about 20 UMass students will file a protest in Northampton District Court as soon as legal council can be obtained. This is the only way the students can further their case against Zayre's, since the police refused to arrest the manager of the store without a court injunction.

To further illustrate their opposition of the inequal enforcement of the law and to the 100 year-old law itself, UMass students will demonstrate at 11:30 today in front of the stores.

Baird cancelled several appointments last night and today in view of the importance of the Zayre's incident in relation to his own case against the law. A news conference will be sponsored by the Daily Collegian at 10:00 today, to give national attention to the UMass protest.

In an unprecedented move last night, the UMass Student Senate issued a unanimous motion supporting Baird's fight against the State's antiquated Birth Control Laws.

Baird was invited to UMass by the Sophomore class to lecture on Birth Control Tuesday. After the lecture, two members of SUFI, a student action organization, circulated a petition calling for students to visit Governor Volpe en masse to procure a statement from the Governor about Baird's conviction, and about the law itself.

Tippo Speaks on Open Housing In Highlight of Senate Meeting

By NICK COSTA
Senate Reporter

Provost Oswald Tippo addressed members of the Student Senate and attending students, last night, and stressed the value of student-parent dialogue regarding proposals, on Open House.

The Provost in the Senate's open question period, stated that parents were informed through a University newsletter about both the Faculty and Student Senate recommendations on 'open housing.' He added that thus far about 15 to 20 letters have been received by the President, all opposed to the Student Senate's proposals, thus favoring the Faculty's proposal which limits the number of open houses to ten a month. The Trustee's committee reported favorably on an unlimited number of open houses, arranged by secret balloting of each house.

In a Daily Collegian interview, the Provost added that the Trustees would be interested in the response of the parents, and that negative responses might influence some members to vote against the proposals. The Trustees will have a meeting on campus this Mon., April 15.

Senate President Jim Collins urged that students have their parents write as soon as possible to urge passage of the new open house proposals.

Senate Elections Discussed

The Student Senate will nominate and elect officers April 15th, who will assume office starting May 1st. Senators Brad Johnson, Paul Silverman, and Fred Hartwell announced their candidacy for President; for Vice-President, Senator Elinor Needle, and Joe Doucette; for Treasurer, Alan Gauthier and Joe Kilmartin; and for Secretary, Cindy Olken, and Jim Moran.

Senator Chris McGahan previously a candidate for President, reminded the Senate of its responsibilities in stepping up the Senate elections. He stated his reasons as being, "I encountered an attitude that I regarded as unhealthy. . .an attitude of hypocrisy (within the Senate) . . . we must be devoted to idealism . . ."

"... The Most Archaic Law that Exists"

By DON EPSTEIN
Managing Editor

"I'm here to gain the support of students to help rid the nation and state of the most archaic law that exists. We have our own right to determine our own morality."

With these words birth control advocate, Bill Baird, expressed his reasons for coming to UMass and calling for student action to help repeal the ancient birth control laws which presently exist in Massachusetts.

UNTIL FOUR YEARS AGO Baird was clinical director of the Emko Drug company, a manufacturer of birth control devices. One night in 1964 when he was scheduled to lecture in a hospital, Baird witnessed the death of a 29-year old mother who had aborted herself by inserting a wire hanger into her uterus in an attempt to end her ninth pregnancy and had thus penetrated the wall of the uterus, dying an agonizing death. Baird told the Daily Collegian, "Something is wrong the way our society is set up if in this nation a woman 29 doesn't know a thing about birth control."

The purpose of the Parents' Aid Society is to disseminate birth control information and materials free-of-charge to anyone who may wish them. It operates a "Plan Van"—a mobile birth control clinic to bring help and information into the ghetto areas.

IN LATE 1964 AND EARLY 1965, Baird spent nights lecturing to people in Harlem on birth control. His employers at Emko told him to stop lecturing or they'd fire him. On May 14, 1965, Emko fired Baird from his $20,000 a year post. Three weeks later he was arrested in Hempstead, Long Island.

Bill Baird's battle is with the archaic laws which so often cause death—the death of women in their attempts to abort themselves, and the death of thousands more by quack abor-

Britain to Pass New Race Bill

LONDON (AP) — Spokesmen for Britain's colored community voiced approval Wednesday of a new race relations bill. But they said it may lack the teeth to do an effective job.

The bill, published Tuesday and expected to be approved by Parliament after Easter, breaks new ground here. For the first time it outlaws racial discrimination in two key fields, housing and employment.

Britain now has a million nonwhites—2 percent of the population.

Reward Offered in Southwest In Attempt to Reduce Crime

A $10 reward is being offered by John Adams tower in Southwest for "information leading to the apprehension and conviction of people throwing things out of John Adams." The reward announcement was made by John Adams resident Charles Hopkins.

The Southwest resident told the Collegian that a recent meeting of the tower was held to discuss this problem which he stated is reaching "significant proportion". Hopkins said that such things as bricks, beer bottles, slabs of concrete and firecrackers have been dropped from tower windows. Cars have been hit and there have been several "near misses" of people.

The cash reward being offered covers not only John Adams, but also George Washington and J.Q. Adams. The money is provided by the house government of John Adams.

Hopkins, who is a Student Senate member said he will attempt to bring a motion before the governing body of "suspension for anyone caught" dropping or throwing things from tower windows.

The Student Senator went on to say that he will propose a committee to study and "bring down the crime rate" on campus and a system of "enforcing the rules."

Student crime and destruction is a problem "all over campus" and any solution must overcome the "general apathy" according to Hopkins.

Hopkins said that if any student witnesses or apprehends another throwing things from tower windows he should report it to the Chief Justice of John Adams.

Postmaster Gen. O'Brien Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Wednesday he has accepted the resignation of Lawrence F. O'Brien as pastmaster general and nominated W. Marvin Watson, presidential appointments secretary, to succeed him.

O'Brien, who was close to the late President John F. Kennedy, is expected to join the campaign his brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, is now waging for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination.

When reporters asked whether O'Brien had discussed his plans with the President, Johnson said the Cabinet officer had stated that he wished to enter private life.

O'Brien was one of the key strategists in John Kennedy's 1960 campaign.

Now 43, Watson has served the President in his present post since February 1, 1965 and is one of his close advisers.

Unauthorized Radio Reports Explored

Search for Dr. King's Killer Continues

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —The curfew which was dropped over Memphis for six nights after Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination was lifted Wednesday, as federal authorities expanded the search for his killer.

The developments came as authorities looked into the possibility of unauthorized broadcasts on police radio frequencies which may have thrown authorities off the killer's trail immediately after the slaying.

Meanwhile, curfews were relaxed in Nashville and Chattanooga, which also had had racial outbursts following King's death — and the state tried to return to normal.

Frank C. Holloman, the city's police director, confirmed he is investigating what seemed to be false radio reports on the police frequency. These told of an alleged police chase of a White Mustang and a Blue Pontiac through North Memphis. A white Mustang reportedly had been seen leaving the area of the slaying.

But Lt. R. W. Bradshaw, who operates the police car from which the radio reports supposedly came, said he did not broadcast them. He and Holloman declined further comment.

Local officers say the search for the assassin is in the hands of federal authorities. The search for a possible suspect spread for a time to Mexico, but officials later said their information had been checked out and the man they were looking for apparently had nothing to do with the slaying.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark had said shortly after King was struck down at a local motel they had a definite suspect — "a man on the run." But as the days dragged on, it became apparent the search had settled down to the routine sifting of clues and leads.

"Crimes Against Chastity"

Bill Baird is the victim of an economically accepted double standard, just as women are victims of a socially accepted double standard. The purpose of today's demonstration at Zayre's is to denounce both of these double standards.

Baird was arrested in Boston and now faces a possible ten-year prison sentence for merely exhibiting a birth control pill at a public gathering. Yet Zayre's is able to actually sell a birth control device to an unmarried person with no repercussions.

Why? Because Baird is only one man, while Zayre's is a multimillion-dollar business. It was for this reason that Zayre's was chosen as a test case rather than a small drug store. Also, federal law prohibits any store except drug stores from selling contraceptives — Zayre's is obviously a department store.

Perhaps the most ludicrous part of yesterday's incident, however, were the reactions of Zayre's management and the local law enforcement agencies. The following is an abbreviated version of the events which occurred after the "crime" had been committed and recorded on film:

1.) MDC photographer Damian Kuffler informed by manager and security officer that he was trespassing. "Give us your film and we'll let you go" was the offer. He kept the film.

2.) MDC editors and students present with Baird were told to leave, not to return on the threat of arrest for trespassing.

3.) Baird taken aside by management. A "deal" was offered. The store had a list of 100 UMass students who have been apprehended for shoplifting. If Baird and the students would drop the case and leave, the store would not prosecute. No deal.

4.) In the meantime South Hadley Police had been called. No officers were there. The chief was not in. "Call the state police," was the advice given. We did so.

5.) After three phones calls, and a frustrating wait, two state troopers arrived. They would take no action, however, because the crime was not committed in their presence. A student then bought a copy of McCall's Magazine and demanded action. None was forthcoming. This time the reason was that an official complaint had to be filed in the district court.

6.) Zayre's speedily removed all boxes of Emko from its shelves, as well, as McCall's magazine.

According to state law (see below) Zayre's had clearly committed at least two "crimes against chastity"—selling Emko, a contraceptive, and McCalls Magazine, which contained an ad for Emko (see opposite page). Yet no action was taken when these violations were brought to the attention of the authorities. Obviously the implimentation of this law is as hipocritical as the archaic law itself.

We firmly believe that Zayre's department store has committed a "crime against chastity,' and we demand that justice be carried out. Can Bill Baird be guilty and Zayre's be innocent?

The Daily Collegian Board of Editors unanimously supports William Baird in his efforts to change the so-called "chastity laws" of the State of Massachusetts.

tionists, eager to step in and take advantage of the anguish and suffering of the unwed mother-to-be, rape and incest victims, married women too tired to care for another child, and frightened fathers who can't afford another mouth to feed.

HIS MAIN CONCERN is with deadly and dangerous self-induced abortions; with the thousands of women who are fleeced and sexually abused by quack abortionists; with poor families that grow and grow without limitation; with barely mature girls who are forced to deliver their out-of-wedlock babies and then go through the heartbreak of giving them up for adoption; with the many young people who marry only because of a pregnancy, creating almost without exception, life unhappiness for themselves and their children; and with the fact that nobody else seems to care!

His work has been a subject on NBC's Frank McGee Report, and he has appeared on major radio and television stations throughout the country. He has spoken to standing-room-only audiences at universities, before civic and social groups and religious organizations, and he has received the praise of prominent men such as Mayor John Lindsay of New York, Senator Ernest Gruening, former Senator Kenneth Keating, and Bill Booth, the Commissioner of Human Rights in New York City.

AT A TIME when the Government is actively cooperating with the Republic of India and with several Latin American governments to promote a knowledge and practice of birth control through contraception, Bill Baird is fighting prohibitory birth control laws in the United States. His arrest in New York for teaching birth control in June, 1965 led to the reformation of the New York birth control statute. His arrest in New Jersey in September, 1966 brought the question of the constitutionality of that state's law before the State Supreme Court.

Two months ago the Supreme Court of New Jersey revoked Baird's conviction and repealled the law prohibiting the dissemination of birth control information. And now in 1968, in Massachusetts, Baird is attempting, at the risk of losing his own freedom, to abolish the State's archaic stature.

Baird continues his battle in Mass. without money, or the support of political figures. Gov. Volpe, Sen. Kennedy, and Sen. Brooke have all refused to see him. "They're turning their backs on the people of Mass.", Baird told the Daily Collegian.

Baird continually stressed last week's defeat by the Mass. legislature of a bill that would have allowed unmarried people to gain access to birth control information. Because the ancient laws still remain in the Commonwealth, the federal government is withholding $36 million in aid for dependent chidren this year.

Sen. Joseph Ward (D-Fitchburg), who led the opposition to the birth control bill last week told Baird, "how dare you come here, to corrupt the youth and citizens of Mass."

The Unanimous Student Senate Resolution:

Whereas, It is the feeling of the Student Senate that questions regarding birth control and abortion should not be, in general, the subjects of proscriptive statutory legislation; and

Whereas, It is the feeling of the Student Senate that these questions should properly be left to the physician-patient relationship and one's individual conscience; Therefore

Resolved, That the Student Senate hereby supports William Baird in his efforts to reform the appropriate laws of the Commonwealth.

Resolved, That the Public Relations Committee be authorized and directed to help generate Student support behind his efforts.

Resolved, That the Student Matters Committee be authorized and directed to formulate legislation concerning the establishment of a permanent University Committee which would advise students on birth control and abortion.

Here's How EMKO Works

EMKO is packaged in an aerosol container. An applicator is used to remove the material from the container and to insert the foam into the vagina (birth opening). Once inserted, the foam immediately spreads in the vagina, forming a spermicidal barrier to trap the sperm.

THE EMKO COMPANY 7912 MANCHESTER AVENUE ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI 63143

EMKO Vaginal Foam provides you with a pleasant, easy to use birth control method that can be used without a diaphragm or male sheath. And there is no need to worry about side effects.

Here's why EMKO is recommended by thousands of doctors and druggists and preferred by over a million women.

- EMKO contains one of the most effective birth control spermicides ever discovered.
- EMKO is wonderfully gentle to delicate tissues. Most all women can use EMKO repeatedly and indefinitely without the slightest reaction.
- EMKO does not interfere with natural feeling.
- EMKO h... no odor.
- EMKO is one of the most economical birth control products available.

How to clean applicator. Wash the applicator in warm soapy water, (not in boiling water). The applicator can be taken apart for cleaning by gently pulling the plunger out of the barrel.

EMKO Vaginal Foam is produced under rigid quality control procedures, including the laboratory testing of each batch against active sperm. In these tests, even when diluted several times, EMKO acts within a few seconds to immobilize every sperm cell. However, since the use of this product is not within the control of the manufacturer, the manufacturer cannot be responsible for its effectiveness.

CAUTION: Contents under pressure. Do not puncture. Do not store near heat or open flame. Exposure to temperatures above 110° F. may cause bursting and product discoloration. Never throw container in fire or incinerator. Keep out of reach of children.

Store your container of EMKO at normal room temperature.

IRRITATION RARELY OCCURS. If it does, discontinue use and consult your physician.

a married person must have a doctor's prescription!

The State does acknowledge the fact that if the device is to be used for prevention of disease, it does not require a prescription. But the ridiculous thing is that how does the State determine whether the device is to be used for prevention of disease?

THIS MAY ALL SOUND academic since every sophisticated person knows that the law is violated daily by millions of people in Massachusetts, who, without a prescription, walk into a drug store and purchase contraceptives; by book stores and newspaper stands which sell books, magazines, etc. dealing with birth control; by the manufacturers and importers of contraceptive devices; and even by many professors and teachers who discuss contraception in their classes.

But what of the ghetto poor? What of the people who have neither the sophisticated family background nor the finances to deal with this problem? These are the people who, unmarried, have eight or nine children, are living on welfare, and who continue to have another baby each year—not because they want to, but because they do not know how to prevent an unwanted pregnancy. What of the unwanted children who result? Children who are beaten and abandoned, starved and maimed.

Because he wanted to help these people, Bill Baird accepted the invitation of those at Boston University. He came to Massachusetts, lectured at B.U.'s Hayden Hall to over 2,500 people, and made it clear that he was there to test the constitutionality of this cruel, inhuman law.

Baird discussed the problems of overpopulation and world famine as well as making everyone aware of the pros and cons of each of the various types of contraceptive devices. He was asked by the editor of the B.U. NEWS: where could a 15-year-old who had been raped obtain an abortion? Baird gave out the name of a doctor in Japan where abortion is legal.

Twenty policemen stood in front of Bill Baird, and at each step of the lecture, having informed the policemen that he was violating another section of the law, they stood firm. No one stepped forward to arrest Baird. When Baird gave a coed a non-prescriptive device to test her right to receive it, however, a plain clothes man stepped from behind Baird, tapped him on the shoulder, and escorted him from the hall. Once outside, he was arrested, handcuffed, and brought to jail.

Baird was charged under two indictments — a five-year sentence for showing the birth control pill, and a five-year sentence for giving out a non-prescriptive contraceptive device which may be purchased over the counter in any drug store without a prescription, including Massachusetts.

On October 17, after a trial which lasted approximately 53 minutes, Baird was found guilty of both charges; the case was reported to the State Supreme Court; and sentencing was deferred until the Supreme Court ruling, at which time Baird will most likely receive a sentence of up to ten years.

Since Baird has no money to appeal his case to the Federal Supreme Court should he be convicted at the State Supreme Court hearing, he may very well spend ten years of his life behind bars.

Concluding his interview with the Collegian, Baird said, "If you let your voice be heard now you can help change this law. If we remain silent nothing will be done." He expressed his gratitude to the UMass students saying that what he has observed on the campus within the past 24 hours has been stimulating to his sagging hopes.

Birth Control Law Tested at Zayre's

Other petitions were circulated by students calling for a change in the laws.

Baird commented, "Within twenty four hours the student body has shown that they are socially responsible to organize so effectively. This is our first ray of hope. The students are not just vocal supporters, but are willing to take this to the action stage.

"Some people see me as an evil man who corrupts pretty young girls. But I'm fighting for the principle of the people's right to determine their own sexual morality, instead of having it imposed upon them by the state."

"family-planning is a blessing our generation never had"

Today our young parents can plan the number and spacing of their children according to family resources . . . by using EMKO FOAM. There can be time for tenderness, support enough for each child. With the burden of insecurity lifted from young parents' shoulders, their honeymoon dreams can come true. Discord becomes harmony.

For this generation, having the right number of children is as easy as using EMKO FOAM. It is proved absolutely safe by years of medical testing and use by tens of thousands of mothers. No side effects. Women appreciate it's daintiness and privacy; no other product needed . . . Isn't it a blessing that now there's such a product as EMKO FOAM?

Twenty-five Faculty Members Awarded Research Fellowships

The University of Massachusetts has awarded 25 $1000 fellowships to young faculty members for research work this summer, President John W. Lederle has announced.

The program, administered by the University Research Council, is designed to help faculty members working in areas not normally supported by outside research grants. Most of the recipients are in the liberal arts and social sciences areas.

The 25 professors who will receive the grants are: Feroz Ahmad, assistant professor of history; Renee Arb, assistant professor of art; Robert E. Bagg, assistant professor of English; Meyer W. Belovicz, assistant professor of finance; Paul Berube, assistant professor of art; Henry B. Biller, assistant professor of psychology; Joseph T. Buckley, assistant professor of mathematics; James E. Cathey, assistant professor of German; Lawrence Foster, assistant professor of philosophy; Ernest A. Gallo, assistant professor of English; Samuel Goldman, visiting lecturer; Sheldon Goldman, assistant professor of government; and Gerald Gunderson, assistant professor of economics.

Also receiving grants are: Alan C. Kamil, assistant professor of psychology; Leonard J. Kirsch, assistant professor of economics; Mason I. Lowance, Jr., assistant professor of English; John H. Martin, assistant professor of landscape architecture; Brenda E. Minisci, instructor of ceramics; Jon L. Sicks, assistant professor of mathematics; Dorothy Stroup, assistant professor of botany; Kathleen M. Swaim, assistant professor of English; Jack Tager, assistant professor of history; Renne Eva Watkins, assistant professor of history; William J. Wilson, assistant professor of sociology; and Parker M. Worthing, assistant professor of marketing.

All recipients have a period of eight weeks during the summer free from teaching commitments that they can devote to their research. Awards were made, for the most part, to younger faculty members — instructors and assistant professors — who already have research projects in progress.

Redmen Put Losing Streak on Line Against AIC

UMass' highly-regarded baseball team, coming off its third consecutive loss, finally gets a chance to play on their home field when the Redmen take on American International today at Varsity Field. Gametime will be 3 p.m.

Dick Bergquist's nine will have its hands full against the Yellow-Jackets. It is largely a veteran nine that lost only three lettermen from last season's 10-6 squad.

A.I.C. coach, former New York Yankee ace, Art Ditmar, said of his 1968 edition, "Our outlook seems good. Trying to better a 10-6 record will be difficult, but I feel this team has the talent to do it."

Leading the A.I.C. attack will be third baseman and Captain Ron Smith. Smith, a college division All-American last year hit .379 the past season. He is only one of many big A.I.C. bats.

Also back from last year will be outfielder Sonny Hansley, a 362 batter who did not even start last year, and outfielder Frank Capuano, who batted a .304 clip last season.

In addition to Capuano, last year's whole starting outfield remains intact. They are Chuck Paglierani, who batted .289, and Paul Procopio, who hit .222.

Most of the infield is back also. They include Ken Leja, Ron Hartford, Tom Nolan and Smith. Expected to see extensive action in the infield will be sophomores Mike Delaney and Allan Bush, also a basketball player. Hansley is set for infield play in addition.

The catching will be also strong with last year's catchers, Wayne Lynch, a .280 hitter and Jeff Burgess. A highly-regarded sophomore Carl Connor is also in the running for the backstop berth.

Pitching is the Yellow Jackets' big worry. The ace of the staff is big Larry Freed of basketball fame. Freed, a Florida native, was the clutch man for A.I.C. last year and is expected to carry much of the pitching load again. The number two man should be southpaw Tom Dupont with Phil Dalessio. Freed will get the start today.

UMass, hoping to snap their loss skein, will send big sophomore John Kitchen to the mound. Kitchen won one of the games on the southern trip in his only other start. He has his work cut out for him with the big A.I.C. bats lying in wait.

The rest of UMass' starting lineup will remain intact. They are Bob Hansen at first base, co-captain Don Ferron at second, Joe DiSarcina at shortstop and Steve Stanford at third.

The outfield will consist of Ted Mareno in left, Ray Ellerbrook in center and Alex Vyce in right. Chuck Newell will catch.

The Redmen will also meet Dartmouth this week in a Saturday afternoon game at Varsity Field.

SEARCH FOR . . .

As the search continued, negotiators met with President Johnson's own mediator again Wednesday in an effort to resolve the garbage workers strike, the reason King had come to Memphis. They were reported near settlement when they recessed about mid-day.

The negotiators have asked for some information," said Mayor Henry Loeb, who led the city's negotiating team.

"As soon as it is available, we'll go back into session."

Lacrossemen Crush Strong Wesleyans, 14-7

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. — Playing what Coach Dick Garber called, "a really outstanding game from the outset," the UMass lacrosse team crushed a highly-regarded Wesleyan team, 14-7 yesterday afternoon in the two teams' regular season openers.

The Redmen turned on the offense both barrels and jumped to a big 10-3 halftime lead. The game was never close thereafter. UM coasted from the half on in their best offensive showing to date. Shooting was the big problem on the spring scrimmaging trip but the Redmen had little trouble finding the range against Wesleyan.

UM scoring was led by three hat trick performances. Kevin O'Connor, Marty Kalikow, and Steve Connolly all came up with three goal games. Paul Mushovic had two goals, for UMass.

Also in the Redman scoring column were Gary Vassar, who had one goal and four assists, and Steve Anderson, Bob Marshall who had a goal apiece. Bob Florin had one assist.

Wesleyan was led by three men who had two goals each, Blackburn, Caldwell and Peterson.

Mark Sclossberg started in goal for UM, as expected, and did a fine job, coming up with excellent saves on several occasions. He was starting in place of co-captain Bill Sinclair who is still bothered enough by an eye injury to be hampered in the nets. Sinclair, however, did see limited action in the attack position.

The three close defensemen also came through with a fine performance, as they checked sufficiently the Wesleyan team's leading scorer, Peterson, until the game was reasonably out of reach. This defensive pairing, including Walt Alessi, Tom Tufts and Bill Devore, was especially effective in the first half.

Tufts came in for special praise from his coach. Garber said of Tufts, "Tom was all over the field clearing away any loose balls. He was amazing."

It was the midfielders, however, who were the key performers. As Garber said, "It was the midfielders who won the game." The midfielders scored 10 of the 14 goals UM had, in an encouraging performance. The inexperience of much of the midfield performers was chief area of worry for Coach Garber. This fine hustling performance helps to alleviate these worries greatly.

UM used an unusual strategy of four midfielders during the game. A trio of all injured players, Connolly, Marshall, and Greg Norton managed to score four goals. Another outstanding midfield performance was turned in by Florin who was used on many face-off situations and controlled many of these.

The win has to make UM the team to beat in the New England Conference as Wesleyan was ranked in the top three in the conference.

Scoring by periods:	1	2	3	4	Tot.

MDC, SENATE ENDORSE BILL BAIRD; STUDENTS TO RALLY AT ZAYRE'S

—MDC, Gosciminski

A booth was set up in the Union to obtain signatures for petitions. Baird was amazed by the interest of UM students in reforming the Birth Control Laws of the State.

Text of a resolution adopted unanimously by the Student Senate last night.

Whereas, It is the feeling of the Student Senate that questions regarding birth control and abortion should not be, in general, the subjects of proscriptive statutory legislation; and

Whereas, It is the feeling of the Student Senate that these questions should properly be left to the physician-patient relationship and one's individual conscience; Therefore

Resolved, That the Student Senate here by supports William Bairl in his efforts to reform the appropriate laws of the Commonwealth.

Resolved, That the Public Relations Committee be authorized and directed to help generate Student support behind his efforts.

Resolved, That the Student Matters Committee be authorized and directed to formulate legislation concerning the establishment of a permanent University Committee which would advise students on birth control and abortion.

A demonstration sponsored by the Daily Collegian and backed by the Student Senate will be held in front of Zayre's in Hadley in support for William R. Baird's campaign to change the Birth Contral Laws in Massachusetts.

Yesterday, according to Baird, the State Law on Birth Control was "blatantly violated" when a UMass junior obtained a birth control product illegally. The girl, Zelda Bilsey, purchase a product advertised as Emko Foam, "the family planning product."

Miss Bilsey did this in support of William Baird's attempts to point out the "hypocrisy" of state laws on the subject. Mr. Baird is awaiting a possible 10 year sentence for distributing birth control divices and information to Boston University students.

Baird received what he termed "tremendous support" from the student body in the form of a petition to Governor Volpe, which has 900 signatures thus far.

Baird, accompanied by a University professor and a dozen students, went to Zayre's with Miss Bilsey when she purchased the Emko Foam. Hadley Police were asked to come to Zayre's. They referred the group to the State Police at Northampton.

When the State Police arrived they were asked to take action against the store manager. They refused on the grounds that they had not seen the illegal transaction. They referred the group to the Northampton County Court to file a complaint against the store manager. Mr. Baird pointed out that "this is the typical silly game they play", referring to his vain attempts to talk with officials and politicians.

Jack Dean, Editor-in-Chief of the Daily Collegian, expressed anger and disgust at the actions of the store manager and security officer concerning the group's attempts to have the manager arrested. Mr. Baird was told in private that if the group should press for action, Zayre's would prosecute 100 students from UMass on shoplifting charges. The students had reportedly been caught but not charged.

Last night, Mr. Baird expressed his happiness over the Student Senate's unanimous vote of support for his campaign. He also expressed the hope that all those who could support him would attend the 11:30 demonstration.

Baird will announce his plans resulting from yesterday's action at the Senate-Collegian supported demonstration. More complete details of yesterday's activity will appear in the Daily Collegian's regular edition.

Are You Committed?

The University of Massachusetts is at last beginning to live up to its responsibilities as a serious institution concerned with the real and urgent problems now facing our society. At 11:30 this morning UMass has an unprecedented opportunity to make its voice TRULY HEARD—not only locally, but also nationally. The outcome of this opportunity, however, will depend on YOU . . .

- WILL YOU stop TALKING about "commitment" and take some action that will bring INSTANT RESULTS?
- WILL YOU voice your disapproval of a law which will put Bill Baird behind bars, but which is violated every day by innumerable commercial establishments such as Zayre's?
- WILL YOU demonstrate your discontent with YOUR law enforcement agencies which failed to perform their duty?
- WILL YOU support a law which makes women SECOND CLASS CITIZENS?
- WILL YOU support Bill Baird, a man who now faces a ten-year prison sentence because he is fighting a law which determines your own moral code FOR YOU?

The demonstration in front of Zayre's at 11:30 today is being sponsored by the Daily Collegian with the endorsement of YOUR Student Senate. Both the MDC Board of Editors and the Senate are unanimously behind Bill Baird and his goals. But it is NOW up to YOU to make these goals a reality.

IF you are HONESTLY CONCERNED you will be there-at Zayre's-at 11:30 today-to support the abolition o fan archaic law which totally contradicts the idea of individual freedom.

Until this law is changed, none of us can continue to consider Massachusetts as being "The Cradle of Liberty".

Room Rent Hike Proposed; To Be Voted On Monday

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees will be asked to increase room and board rates, effective September 1968, at the regular meeting of the trustees next Monday, April 15.

The proposed increase will bring the rent for all residence halls to $210 a semester. The older residence hall rooms have been renting for $150 a semester and the newer ones at $175. Under the new proposal in which all room rents will be equalized, students will have an equal opportunity to select rooms on the basis of preferred area and residence programs. In addition, entering freshmen and returning veterans will be able to obtain rooms at the same rates as present students.

The Trustees will also be asked to vote an increase in board rates from $220 a semester to $245 a semester for five-day meal tickets, and from $85 to $95 a semester for two-day meal tickets.

Residence halls and dining commons are built by the UMass Building Authority, and are paid for on a self-liquidating basis through room rents and board fees. The amortization costs of these projects have increased due to higher construction costs and interest rates. In addition, the costs of labor, construction and food have increased sharply in the last two years.

If current rates were kept in effect, the amortization, maintenance and operations costs would fall more than $800,000 short by the end of two years.

The proposed rates for room and board will provide enough money to cover expenses and provide some funds for renovation work.

Present policies exempting seniors and students over 21 from eating in university dining halls except in Southwest will be continued. There will be no charges in the current five day plan.

Financial aid officers will be instructed to make certain that no student is forced to leave school because he cannot meet the increased cost. Highest priority will be given to upper class students who have prepared budgets based on current rates.

Four Units from Mass.

National Guard Call-Up Affects N. E. Reservists

BOSTON (AP) — More than 2,500 reservists and National Guardsmen from eight New England military units were affected by the call-up announcement Thursday by the Pentagon.

Four units from Massachusetts, two from Rhode Island and one each from Vermont and New Hampshire were called up.

Six of the eight are Army Reserve units which come under the Headquarters 13th Corps at Ft. Devens, Mass. The others are National Guard and Naval Reserve construction units, both from Massachusetts.

Col. August G. Lucas, commander of the 1st Battalion, 211th Artillery, of the Massachusetts National Guard, said about 540 of his men were affected. The normal tour of duty could run up to two years but may be shortened, he added.

"It means a great deal of hardship for many men, in jobs and families," said Lt. Col. William Barter, who commanded the unit until recently. He is due to retire shortly.

Units called included:

1st Battalion, 211th Artillery of the Massachusetts National Guard, estimated at 540 men.

513th Composite Service Company of Massachusetts, an Army Reserve unit. A spokesman said about 250 of the unit's 600 men were affected.

241st Military Intelligence of the Army Reserve, 32 men.

12th Mobile Construction Unit of the Naval Reserve, based in Massachusetts. A spokesman said about 500 men were called.

3rd Battalion, 197th Artillery of New Hampshire, Army Reserve, 520 men.

131st Engineer Company Light Equipment, of Vermont, Army Reserve, 189 men.

107th Signal Company Support of Rhode Island, Army Reserve, an estimated 337 men.

115th Military Police Company, Rhode Island, Army Reserve, an estimated 147 men.

Lt. Col. Barter said it was the second call-up in six years for his unit. They were last called up in September, 1961, during the Berlin crisis and served for one year, he said.

Massachusetts has a total of 17,000 National uardsmen.

200 Students Picket Zayre's; Hope to Meet with Volpe Soon

By RONALD J. LaBRECQUE
News Editor

Approximately 200 University students marched in front of Zayre's department store yesterday with William Baird, advocate of change of the Massachusetts state laws concerning birth control, protesting the double standard which now surrounds those laws.

"Hypocrisy of The Law"

Baird called the student response to an incident which occurred at Zayre's Wednesday afternoon when contraceptives were purchased by a UMass coed in a test of Chapter 272 of the Massachusetts General Laws "one of the most gratifying things he had seen in his travels across the country" during his four year struggle to improve the state of birth control laws. He went on to say that he was extremely pleased to see so many young people genuinely interested in doing something about the "hypocrisy of the laws."

Failure of state police to take action against the manager of the department store following a complaint by Baird prompted the student action. About 20 students, including Daily Collegian Editors and staffers who prepared a special morning edition of the paper, worked through the night making preparations for the demonstration.

Double Standards

The purpose of the demonstration, according to the organizers, was "not to single out Zayre's" but to make people aware that a double standard exists. Baird is currently facing a five year prison term for displaying a birth control pill at Boston University last year, a "crime against chastity," yet a multi-million dollar department store chain is able to sell contraceptives without any retribution," Baird commented.

The 200 students, a large number of whom carried placards, marched for an hour. Following the orderly march Baird spoke briefly thanking the students for their efforts and asked for continued support. He told the crowd that he believed "that this is the first step forward to get this law changed." He called on every one present to go to the office of Governor Volpe on April 19th and urge him to take a stand. He went on to say "if we can get one political man to come to grips with this problem all the others will, in effect I think, recognize their responsibilities."

Bill Baird led a demonstration in front of Zayre's yesterday in what he called his most thrilling support of his campaign to reform Birth Control Laws.

He told the crowd that "what you have done today is going to have a snowball effect and help other universities accept these responsibilities."

Hadley Police Chief

The Hadley police chief, present at the demonstration, was asked to comment on the refusal of that police department to respond to Baird's call Wednesday afternoon, to which he had "no comment."

A request made by three editors of the Daily Collegian to the managers of Zayre's to discuss the events of the last two days was refused.

At present student groups are forming to carry on Baird's crusade. Baird will return to New York tomorrow to spend the Easter weekend with his family and will return early next week to seek a complaint in Hampshire District Court against the management of Zayre's. Upon advice of legal counsel it was decided to delay the seeking of the complaint in order that a concrete case might be developed.

Linus Pauling, Nobel Prize Winner, Speaks for D.V.P.

by ANNE JOHNSON
Staff Reporter

"Whatever the decision to be made, the question should be asked which among the courses to be followed will lead to the least amount of human suffering? Along this course should the decision be made." In this manner Dr. Linus Pauling formulated his "basic ethical principle" in last night's lecture at Mahar Auditorium.

His statement of this principle arose from a consideration of what man can do with the scientific discoveries he has made. Speaking specifically about organ transplants Dr. Pauling asked "who gets the transplants?" and "who will make the decisions?" He also wondered, in the case of the transplant of an organ between two young twins, whether the parents have the right to decide to impair the life of one to save another.

Dr. Pauling also considered the discovery of the disease sickle cell anemia, and its impact on man. Sickle cell anemia is an abnormality of the hemoglobin which carries oxygen to the body and results in death. The question this disease raises for mankind is "What can be done?"

Dr. Pauling first mentioned the removal of the spleen but added that this treatment "does not save the sufferer from the crisis of the disease." He went on to say that while waiting for a treatment to be found one must consider what can be done about the new cases added each year. He asked, "Should we pass laws to prevent the people carrying a gene for sickle cell anemia from marrying?" and "Is abortion justified in the case of a sickle cell child?"

Principle Defined

At this point he formulated his ethical principle as the means "by which questions of this sort are to be answered."

Dr. Pauling supplemented this discussion by a lecture and slides on the scientific discoveries that have led to the possibilities of organ transplant and the rise of "such questions." He mentioned his own experiments of the mechanisms of immunity.

Immunity is the means by which a body fights foreign substances. Suspension of immunity ed to the body. Dr. Pauling also allows a foreign organ to be addshowed how the same properties that gave rise to an immunity reaction were also present in the case of sickle cell anemia.

Dr. Pauling concluded his lecture by promising a continuation of the subject of molecular disease and its impact on man in the remaining of his three lectures.

Are We Already Condemned?

"We know why we mourn Dr. Martin Luther King. Do you ?"

These were the closing words of Cheryl Evans, president of the campus Afro-American Society, who spoke at Tuesday's memorial gathering.

Answering Miss Evans with another question: Does it take a black skin to know what hate is and are whites incapable of understanding and feeling ? In other words, is this nation already condemned ?

The disease of our country unavoidably affects all its citizens, black and white included. We have haters and hated—are they so dissimilar? It is impossible to hate another person and at the same time not to hate yourself in part. We are all in this together, even though we are not in concord.

Many of the white students on campus reacted to Dr. King's death out of guilt. The spontaneous march to Amherst Thursday night was a kind of catharsis for the whites who felt themselves tainted by the white sniper's action. And the ones who threw bombs and yelled obscenities at the marchers — many of those, too, felt guilty, but expressed their white guilt immaturely, defensively.

But no matter what the motives are, the dual reaction is evidence of emotion on this campus and elsewhere—emotion that can be channeled into effective action.

Whites are guilty of so much racial crime in this country that Negro resentment of whites who try to help is expected. But the response of many whites to Martin Luther King's assassination is real. Although fear of what might happen to the white man's suburbs is one motive for the demonstrations, there are those who sincerely mourn Dr. King for his non-violent strategies involving blacks and whites together.

Many students committed themselves at Tuesday's meeting to work in any of six programs designed to weaken racism, one being registering of Negro voters in the South this week. Some joined the ranks self-consciously, hesitantly. Yet, they did make the positive move from thinking something to doing something.

The feelings of many of the white students on this campus are not those of the blundering, self-interested white liberal. Negro resentment of the white demonstrators is founded on the fact that racism in this country was born in white hearts, not black. But a further show of racism against whites will perpetuate our national malady.

The man whom we genuinely mourn was not a racist. The burst of emotion following his death can motivate people to help, if we have the strength to stop this bitter recirculation of mutual resentment. Dr. King's death is a challenge which we prove ourselves worthy of if we accept it humbly, but not apologetically.

Support Bill Baird

The first step of UMass' attempt to test the antiquated birth control laws of the state of Massachusetts was a success. Now the next two steps are upon us.

One step, of course, is the trip to Boston next Friday to see Governor Volpe. Another step, which is of equal importance is the raising of funds to finance the upcoming legal proceedings in the test cast against Zayre's.

Members of SUFI have already begun a fundraising drive and are making arrangements for a collection center in the Student Union.

We urge all students who feel strongly on this subject to donate whatever they can afford. If everyone who signed the Baird petition contributed a quarter, the fund would be off to an excellent start.

Don't put it off.

An Open Letter

Baird Thanks The Students of UMas

Yesterday was one of the most beautiful days of my life. The weather was beautiful; the people were beautiful; and the reaction to our efforts was beautiful. I was so very proud of the UMass students who opened their minds and hearts to me by accepting, so quickly, me and my efforts to change the birth control law of this state.

I never dreamed as I stood before you on Tuesday night that within 24 hours the tremendous talent, enthusiasm, and drive of the students could be mobilized so rapidly into a single working force, showing a great social awareness and responsibility. Last night many of us were working at the Daily Collegian office until well past 1:00 a.m. Some were making signs for the birth control rally at Zayre's; others were getting fliers ready and writing copy for the newspaper. It was truly a beautiful sight.

I realize how much you have sacrificed to help me in this common cause. I have great difficulty in putting into words the tremendous warmth, respect, admiration, and love I feel for you. I have traveled across this nation, lectured to hundreds of thousands of people, and have never before seen so many, give so much, in so short a time. From the bottom of my heart I thank each and every one of you for giving me renewed strength to continue the battle, for you have shored me up with your concern.

Particular thanks goes to the Student Senate, which unanimously passed a resolution backing our efforts. I have been told that there are many different opinions in so large a group, so I am very grateful for your total agreement. You saw the need, met the challenge, and won. However, the battle must continue.

We now share a great responsibility. We are all part of an effo to relieve the suffering of the poo of the college student, and of peop all over this state.

I believe we are now closer to t day when women will finally be fr to control their own bodies. I belie we are now closer to the day wh we will finally be free to decide o own private sexual morality. I b lieve we are now closer to the d when each baby will be born into family where it is loved and wante

No more will women suffer fr the quick abortionist. No more w women suffer the agony of a co hanger abortion. No more will t "battered child" syndrome be a gri reality. No more will women be se ually abused by quack abortionist No more will drug addicts bear a dicted babies.

Today is Good Friday—the day Great Man died on the cross to r lieve the suffering and sins others. Today our women are st bearing their own cross — cross being unable to obtain an abortio even if raped; a cross of being u able to get the medical birth contr help so rightfully theirs.

Someday all this will pass, a you will have played a dominant ro in helping change history and t destiny of the lives of many for better.

I ask your renewed effort in ing us on April 19, 1968 when w march on Governor Volpe's office i Boston. I urge you to help those i the process of setting up a Parent Aid Society on campus, designed t help fulfill the Student Senate's re olution.

Again, my sincere and heartfe thanks for a job well done. I believ I have finally found a home in Ma sachusetts—the University of Ma sachusetts.

With love,
Bill Baird

Campus Comment

In Order To Serve

To the sophomore class:

At the Executive Council Meeting on April 7, I announced that I will not be a candidate for re-election as President of the Class of 1970 but that I will be running for Senator-at-Large, Class of 1970. At that time I felt obligated to explain my reasons to the Council and I also feel that I owe an explanation to you students who elected me.

My decision was based mainly on personal factors. I realize the class does fulfill a vital function at the University but I personally feel that the issues dealt with in the Senate are more important and if I am to be involved in extra-curricular activities I want this activity to be meaningful to others as well as to myself.

I recognize the faults of the Senate but problems such as Open House and Academic Reform can only be solved by the Senate and it is these problems I want to help solve. I think the division is clear. The class cannot spend its time in non-social activity at the expense of the social. We must realize and never forget why a person applies to the Executive Council—to help in the class activities which are primarily social, and why a person runs for the Senate—to work on our non-social activity i.e. our student government.

Most students recognize that the Senate deals with our non-social problems and that this system is suitable and the most effective. This is not to say, that the Council and officers cannot formulate resolutions on a particular issue as we have done several times in the past. In fact, it appears to me that the Class of 1970 has led the rest in non-social activity (think back, resolutions speakers).

I want all of you to realize that I do not regret having been your President. It has been an inexpressible pleasure and I truly thank all of you for your cooperation and inspiration. Those who were closest to me, know what an honor I have considered the presidency. I don't think it is necessary to go through all our achievements. We all know we have made our mark.

I have tried to interpret my function as a class president honestly and accurately. My only hope is, that I have measured up to what you have wanted in a Class President. Thank you.

The Daily Collegian welcomes letters from candidates entered in next Tuesday's class election primary. All letters should be typewritten at 60 spaces doublespaced and should not exceed 15 lines (one-half page). Letters should be placed in an envelope marked Candidates Forum and placed in the "Letters to the Editor" box in the Daily Collegian office no later than 5:00 p.m. Sunday. Letters should contain the candidate's experience as it relates to the position being sought and a brief resume of future plans for the position if elected.

An Apology From Grayson House

Mr. LaBreque:

In response to your letter of April 8th, let me say that I sympathize with your sentiments entirely. I would like to take this opportunity to publicly apologize for those certain residents of Grayson who felt it necessary to throw water-filled bags and firecrackers from the balconies during the memorial which was held for Dr. King on the night of April 14th.

Though the desecration of the memory of Martin Luther King was by no means intended, certain residents failed to exercise good taste in deciding the "where" and "when" for blowing off steam. Let me again extend my heartfelt apologies for the poor judgement of these residents.

Can No Longer Remain Apathetic

To the editor:

There have been many instances since my arrival at the University when I wanted to express my opinion in a letter to the Daily Collegian. Nevertheless, I allowed my apathy to overcome my exuberance. The death of Martin Luther King and the riots across our nation no longer allow me to remain apathetic.

Today the full impact of the Reverend King's death has struck me. The senseless murder in Memphis has uncovered deep-seated beliefs as if a knife had penetrated and revealed my heart. I feel a sense of personal loss over the death of Mr. King. Yet, one can ask, "What loss can a white person feel?

My feelings are not white nor American. They are the feelings of a human being over the loss of another human being. I often ask myself why people must think in terms of Black or White, Jew or Christian, American or Russian? A Negro is no different from a white. They both began in the womb and they both will be placed in the grave. They both have the same natural rights, the same human emotions and desires, the same biological needs. Yet they both don't have equality of opportunity. For if you are Black you are doomed to be poor except for those exceptional people we read about. A Negro must be alowed to live without the obstacle of color barring his every chance for success.

I fear that if we do not shake ourselves from this self-imposed apathy a great tragedy will beset our nation just as the Roman Empire was destroyed by those it conquered. The Negro of this country so long without political freedom and now even longer without economic freedom, will no longer march and demonstrate peacefully. He will take that which he needs and desires. Take from the country that refuses to give of its own free will. Although I do not condone his taking, I certainly understand and sympathize with, the emotions and deprivation which have caused it.

Unless our governments, local, state and federal, begin a program designed to feed, retrain, and open up opportunities to the American colored this country will experience a cataclysmic disorder far more reaching in its consequences than anything since 1860. A disorder clothed in poverty and vengeance (not strange bedfellows) brought on by our own inaction and hypocrisy.

Yet, let us hope and pray that each individual will learn that to help one's fellow human being is to do the right and noble thing. For so long we have been living in the glories of the past, as we decay in the present, and perhaps without vigorous and immediate action we will die in the future.

May the love he tried so hard to spread take hold of a sick country—
May the violence he tried so hard to stem, stop—
His name will be remembered along with Medgar Evers and others—but how many must die before America will regain its sanity?
Must we have to see death in order to find peace . . .

What Was The Rationale?

To the editor:

My first reaction at the beginning of the "King Murdered" news bulletin was the hope that the murder had been associated with sick white racism rather than being an attempt to sever the strings of King's restraint upon black militancy, that rather that it be associated with sick black racism. Perhaps because I fear the cry that tells me that I may be killed by blacks while I sleep; certainly because I've regarded the rationale of such threats addressed to the White man collectively as preposterous.

After reading in the Daily Collegian of the heckling at the first memorial march, here, at UMass. I begin to wonder whether the rationale is indeed preposterous. If the heckling was the result of the need for some release from tension, or simply as an opportunity to spend fireworks or waterballoons, without regard to the nature of the gathering, then I would feel deep shame for the tactlessness and thoughtlessness of the hecklers. I would, however, be unable to change my position on the rationale of the cry of "Death to the White Devil".

But if the heckling was the result of the deeper and sicker thing, and this seems to have been the case, then I must revaluate. In this case, though I cannot join the black man in his verdict of "Death", I can, and do, challenge any of these sick white men to combat.

Free University In Danger of Folding

To the Editor:

One of the greatest institutions of progressive education in Amherst is in danger of folding. The free university on North Pleasant Street has been notified that its lease will not be renewed and that it must move by May 1, 1968. Known also as the Valley Centre, the university has striven to establish programs supplementing courses available in the four college area. Its courses have aimed at making individuals more aware of themselves and their surroundings.

Concerned with the individual, the emphasis has been an excellent alternative to large impersonal classes and the trend toward garbage—in garbage—out regurgitation. The free universities have traditionally sought out and led the way to improved education and pioneered in untraditional fields of learning. The ultimate development of courses in fields of morality, groups, art, religion, photography, politics, music, poetry, objective investigation of the Warren Report, etc., has unlimited potential.

The free university is your university — don't let it die. Meetings are planned to consider continuation, relocation, funds, and other matters. We will meet at the Valley Center Sunday April 21, at 3 p.m. Your ideas and time will determine the future of free education. Please show your support at both meetings.

WILLIAM BAIRD

A More Rational Approach Urged

To the editor:

I was rather disturbed by the nature of the material that was placed under the windshield wipers of the cars in the Zayre parking lot after the demonstration on Thursday. The copy of the Massachusetts State Law was appropriate, but the Collegian broadside probably hurt Mr. Baird more than it helped him. Many people see students as ready to grab any chance to harass the Police; ready to rebel purely for the sake of rebellion. When this belief is not discouraged, and it was not by the Collegian, it tends to widen the Generation Gap.

I would not blame the citizens of Hadley and Amherst for believing that UMies are interested in contraceptives for UMies and nothing else. How aware are they of the battered Child syndrome, babies found in garbage cans, and the casualties from quacks and self-abortions?

We must make them aware of our concern for the unwed mothers and dependent children of Roxbury and Harlem; aware that we want every child born to be wanted and loved. We must make known to them all the facts which persuaded us to stand with Mr. Baird.

They will not support a campaign by students who have apparently been deceived by a "troublemaker". Only when they are convinced by rational arguments backed up by facts (as we were by Mr. Baird) can we hope to win their support for him.

Mary Schell

A Shift In Emphasis

To the editor:

There seems to me to be a strange illogic in making a scapegoat of a store which distinguishes itself in its evident courage in allowing contraceptive "products" to be sold. The supporters of William Baird, who claim they are in favor of liberalized birth control laws, may in fact eventually force the law to clamp down on Zayre's and stop this sale.

Well, says Dedicated Student, stop it, indeed! The laws in this state are hypocritical in that they would allow Baird to go to jail but let the store continue to sell the foam. Let there be unity and purpose in our laws. THIS ILLEGAL SALE OF CONTRACEPTIVES MUST BE STOPPED.

I agree; there is an atrocious double standard in this state as regards birth control. I, too, feel that any woman anywhere should be allowed to purchase anything she wants to prohibit conception. But with the current uproar, a dangerous shift in emphasis has occurred. Instead of working to change the legality of the laws, these protestors are working to stop the sale of contraceptives. It may well expose the double standard for what it is. It would certainly make a grand theoretical test case for the courts. But I cannot erase from my mind the woman who, unable or unwilling to continue buying her "illegal" contraceptive foam, returns to the coathanger or the knitting needle. There is hypocrisy here, too—that those who would cure the ills in fact make them worse.

William Baird is a victim of the system—but a willing victim. I would sooner see him sacrificed to his jail term than have him be allowed to stir up the hostility which may well make it impossible for such organizations as the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts (which I haven't heard mentioned in all this hooraw) to continue their work behind the scenes.

After all, it wasn't too many years ago that no doctor in Massachusetts could advise any woman, married or not, as to contraception. Progress has been made, and will continue to be made, without sensationalist tactics that do more harm than good.

Senior Week Cancelled

The Class of 1968, after long consideration, has found it unfeasible to conduct any Senior Week activities. The following reasons are offered as an explanation of said action.

1) Lack of funds.

The class of 1968 was stripped of all of its $30,000 sum allocation by constitutional convention action, in December of 1967.

2) This above action expressed a rejection of both the proposed Grossinger Senior Week and/or any other activities deemed feasible by the executive council.

3) Lack of Personnel:
The disappointment caused by the rejection of this Grossinger Proposal has resulted in an overall disappointment with any lesser proposals. There have been no acceptable proposals made to this date.

4) An investigation was made into possible alternatives, with a negative result.

Once allocations were eliminated our hands were tied. Any and all solutions seemed infeasible.

Sincerely,
Class Officers

Former Viet Ambassador to U. S. Criticizes U. S. Asian Policy

By JOHN JANICKI
Staff Reporter

"America has practically no intellectual or moral direction". These are the words of a former Ambassador to the United States from South Vietnam, Washington journalism Tran Van Dinh. "How many great men must die before bills are passed?" he asked, referring to the assassination of Martin Luther King. Speaking for the Distinguished Visitors Program, Dinh, yesterday at Bowker Auditorium, was not scoring Americans for their mistakes, but asking them to look inward to examine themselves.

Dinh charged the U.S. with being inconsistent even in its treatment of the so-called communist threat. Citing congressional records and historical notes, Dinh pointed out that although the U.S. professes to be noncolonial, it has, with the Marine Corps through 1940, intervened no less than 878 times in the affairs of other nations. Aid was denied Hungary and "I do not know why the Vietnamese believed the American promise of aid was sincere based upon past actions" Dinh said.

"The recent Tet offensive proved to all Vietnamese that the U.S. is unable to provide protection," Dinh continued. "President Johnson's latest moves, de-escalation and withdrawal from the election, make the Vietnamese think that the war in Viet Nam is being conducted solely according to the way political winds blow domestically," Dinh stated.

According to Dinh the U.S. build-up of 'advisors' has served to destroy nationalism "which is the only true weapon against communism." Now the U.S. takes unilateral action and fosters a downfall of the South Vietnamese government; a bombing halt will result, but who will negotiate for the people of South Viet Nam then," he added.

"In my opinion, the only way to end the war is to let the Vietnamese people negotiate among themselves; the goal of the Vietnamese is a sovereign Viet Nam, the survival of Viet Nam would be better assured with a unified nation," Dinh said. Dinh believes that unification of his country would and should come about within two years of the cessation of hostilities.

How can Americans solve their present dilemna? "The United States has developed very rapidly over the past 100 years, it has acquired three million square miles of territory since its birth, it was instrumental in the deaths of six hundred thousand Filipinos during the 'insurrection' there; no country is perfect, but you need a new intellectual and moral direction and only by examining your history can you choose and implement this new direction," Dinh said. "The problem in Viet Nam is only a part of this misdirection", Dinh added.

Dinh supports Senator McCarthy in the presidential election from the standpoint that a peace candidate can face the Hanoi regime "man to man" and they would have no choice but to negotiate or prove themselves in favor of continued war. "A reasonable position must be taken for negotiations". Dinh apparently believes that McCarthy has the most viable position in establishing the proper climate for meaningful negotiations.

Dinh views the recent New Hampshire primaries as a hopeful sign. The success of the young people in organizing and, in effect, winning Dinh hopes, will motivate other young people to drop-in not drop-out. "There is in the U.S. a belief that politics is dirty, if you believe politics is dirty and you refuse to become politically active how do you expect this country to be clean," Dinh questioned.

"What Americans will remember the Vietnamese troubles when the war ends? I am afraid that few will, you must make plans to assist in the rejuvenation of Viet Nam after the war or you will further the Vietnamese tragedy," Dinh said.

Agents Impound Car Suspected Of Use in King Assassination

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Federal agents yesterday impounded a white Mustang fitting the description of a car sought in connection with the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the Atlanta Constitution reported in Friday editions.

The automobile bearing an Alabama license plate, had been parked since last Friday at a public housing project near the State Capitol, the newspaper reported.

Residents of the housing project who had previously joked about the car's similarity with the wanted vehicle were questioned closely by agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the newspaper said.

The FBI would not immediately comment on the report. Agent Frank V. Hitt said, "I cannot give you any comment."

The Constitution in a story by Duane Riner, said two residents of the housing project were know to have seen a young man whom they said looked like the description of the sniper.

The news story said the FBI agents swarmed around the car most of Thursday afternoon snapping pictures and taking fingerprints. They had the car taken to a federal building and locked up, the newspaper said.

Mrs. Ernest Payne was quoted as saying the man had sandy-colored hair. The newspaper said another witness described it as dark and curly.

Redmen Romp, 10-2, Over AIC in Home Opener

Kitchen Starts on Mound

By HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

Pounding out twelve hits, the UMass baseball team revived its dormant bats in time to belt AIC, 10-2, yesterday in the home opener on Varsity Field.

The Yellow Jackets broke the scoring ice in the opening frame. Chuck Hansley walked with one gone and Little All-American first baseman Ron Smith singled sharply to right, the first of his three hits for the day. UMass' starting pitcher John Kitchen, a sophomore right-hander, then issued a base on balls to AIC right-fielder Chuck Paglieran to fill the bases. Ken Leja's grounder to Don Ferron at second brought home the run.

UM countered quickly in their half of the inning. Centerfielder Ray Ellerbrook opened with a walk, stole second, and rode home on first baseman Ron Hansen's single to right.

The visitors tallied for the last time in the third when Hansley doubled, went to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a Smith safety.

Walks to Ellerbrook and ss Joe Di Sarcina, followed by a Hansen single, loaded the sacks for the Redmen in their half of the frame. Ferron brought a run in with a sacrifice fly to center and left-fielder Ted Mareno added another with a base hit.

Phil Dalessio took over for AIC's starting hurler Tom Dumont in the fourth. Rightfielder Alex Vyce greeted him with a single, went to second on a passed ball and to third on a wild pitch. Ellerbrook brought him home with a single and promptly proceeded to steal his third base of the day but was left stranded.

In the home fifth, Ferron singled to right and rode home on a Mareno smash to center for three bases. Third baseman Steve Stanford then lined a shot past the second base bag to plate Mareno.

A DiSarcina single and steal of second preceded a long clout over the right-field fence by Hansen in the sixth for two more runs. The shot was hit off AIC's third pitcher, Jim Borowski.

UMass' coach, Dick Bergquist, got a look at some of his reserves in the later innings with the game safely in hand. Norm Elliott, an occasional starter, also got in some needed work on the mound, shutting out the visitors in dazzling fashion over the final three frames. Kitchen's

Bruins Ousted from Semifinal Playoffs by the Canadiens, 3-2

BOSTON (AP) — Winger Claude Larose scored two goals as the Montreal Canadiens edged the Boston Bruins 3-2 last night and swept their Eastern semifinal playoff in the National Hockey League.

In taking four straight from the Bruins, the Canadiens advanced to a division showdown with the winner of the best-of-seven series between the New York Rangers and the Chicago Blackhawks.

Larose, who scored only two goals in the entire regular season, tied the game 1-1 as he took a pass from Danny Grant and hit on a wide angle shot from the right wing at 12:58 of the second period.

Then, with Montreal goalie Gump Worsley holding the Bruins at bay, Larose came through with his second goal at 7:20 of the final period.

Montreal added the decisive goal at 16:33 by breaking away while the Bruins buzzed around Worsley. Larose passed to Ralph Backstrom, who rifled a shot past Gerry Cheevers from 25 feet out.

The Bruins peppered Worsley with 14 shots in the first period and finally broke through 49 seconds after the second period faceoff. Eddie Westfall took a pass from Derek Sanderson and scored on a 15-foot slap shot.

Boston pressed furiously after Backstrom's goal and finally connected for a second tally. Ken Hodge took a goal-mouth pass from Phil Esposito and flipped the puck into an open net at 18:34.

The Bruins pulled Cheevers for a sixth skater with 62 seconds remaining, but the Canadiens hung on to the one goal margin.

Worsley finished with 32 saves, including 27 in the first two periods. Cheevers had 34 saves.

Lang To Miss Season

Indoor Track Starts with Meet Against Northeastern and BU

By JOEL FOX
Staff Reporter

Spring track season opens tomorrow at White Stadium in Boston against Boston University and Northeastern University. It will also be the first meet for BU; the N.U. Huskies have already passed their first test with a victory over Boston College.

The varsity Redmen captained by Greg Bowman and John Andersen, will have most of the members of a strong winter season team returning. One notable exception is two-miler Charlie Lang who is recovering from mono and will be lost for the season.

Running the sprints and the 440 relay will be a strong group of experienced trackmen. The sprinters are led by senior Steve Burrell who is recovering from a foot injury. Four Sophomores make up the rest of the group. They are Steve Chase (220), Dave Marble (100), Steve Wiseman and Dick Dyer.

The quarter and a half mile events will be manned by very capable performers who had good winter seasons. Junior Bob Hasselbaum will be trying to go under 50 seconds in the quarter. He was the lead runner of the indoor mile relay team. Two other members of that relay team, soph Dave Evans and junior Diego Gonzalez will run the quarter and double in the half mile.

The mile will be run by Paul Hoss who is also doubling in the two mile. Along with Hoss in the mile will be Bowman and in the two mile, Marc Gelinas. Co-Captain John Andersen will compete in the 440 hurdles and Marc Lefever and Peter Moryl will run the 120 high hurdles.

The field events, which will take place in the morning at BU field, will have juniors Bill Wilen and Dave Schlatka in the hammer, discus and shot put. Rocco Petito will compete in the broad jump, javelin and triple jump.

The frosh will also begin their season Saturday. In the field events at BU field the little Redmen will have George Ball and Bill Austin in the shot, discus and hammer. Dana Robertson and Bill Mahoney will throw the javelin. Indoor frosh record holder in the high jump, Cal Carpenter, will compete in his specialty. The broad jump and the triple jump will be manned by Dave Canterbury and Butch Gaynor. Buzz Hiller and Mike Pancione will be strong pair in the pole vault.

The running events which start at 1 p.m. will have a strong contingent of UMass runners, Ed Heywood, Dave Canterbury, Butch Gaynor and Walter Mayo will handle the sprints. The middle distances will be run by Larry Paulsen, Chuck Barry, Yale Stevens and Bill Wilson.

Gerry Spellman will handle both the 440 and 120 yard hurdles. The distance men will be led by cross country stars Leo Duart and Ron Wayne. Also providing stiff competition and good depth in the distances will be Tom Derderian and Phil St. Pierre.

On the varsity level Coach Ken O'Brien admits that it will be hard to determine how the meet will go because it is the beginning of the season and he has no idea how the BU men can perform. He feels that UN has the best shot for the victory because of their excellent depth. The best example of this was their BC relay championship won last April.

Coach O'Brien hopes that outstanding performers from both UMass and BU will cut down Northeastern's points. Two top BU men are Peter Hoss, Paul's brother, who will run the mile and half and possibly the two mile, and Dave Hemery, who is the British Commonwealth hurdles champion and was second in the IC4A 600.

The coach said it will be even harder to pick a frosh winner. He expects near record time from Gerry Spellman in both the hurdle events and from Yale Stevens in the half mile and from the mile relay team.

Two men whom Coach O'Brien terms the freshman "unsung heroes" Dave Canterbury and Butch Gaynor will be heavily relied upon. These two men led the frosh in winter scoring. Saturday Canterbury may compete in five events and Gaynor in six.

Greer's Shooting Leads 76'ers to 122-114 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Hal Greer's 21-point fourth period carried the Philadelphia 76ers to a 122-114 victory over the Boston Celtics last night and a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association Eastern final playoff series.

The fourth game in the best-of-seven series is scheduled for the Boston Garden Sunday.

Philadelphia blew a 10-point third period lead before Greer, who had been held to 10 points earlier, got a hot hand.

Greer converted three consecutive free throws to re-12 of 33 points by the 76ers in the final 12 minutes. The 6-foot-2 guard wound up with 31 points.

Philadelphia, after building a 77-67 lead with 6:36 left in the third period, had the margin cut to 89-85 after three quarters.

The Celtics went ahead 93-91 on a pair of free throws by Wayne Embry with 10:18 left in the fourth quarter.

Greer converted three consecutive fee throws to regain the lead and the 76ers never trailed, posting their second victory in two nights after losing the opener of the series to the Celtics here last Friday.

Johnny Green turned in another standout relief job for the 76ers as the veteran forward scored 17 points. Wilt Chamberlain, who suffered an injury on the calf muscle of his right leg in the first period, wound up with 23 points.

John Havlicek, with 29 points, paced Boston, which led by nine midway through the second period and by four at halftime.

replacement yielded but one hit in his three-inning stint.

In the Redman eighth, reserve catcher Tony Chinappi walked, moved to second on DiSarcina's single, and scored on two successive wild pitches. A Ferron safety up the middle plated DiSarcina with the final marker. The runs were fashioned off Mike Delaney, the fourth Yellow Jacket hurler.

Next home game is tomorrow at 1:30 against Ivy League powerhouse Dartmouth.

Former UMass Star Ellis Signs Contract With Patriots

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Patriots of the AFL reached into the ranks of their former players and named Ross O'Hanley, 29, coach of the Lowell Giants of the Atlantic Coast League.

The Patriots earlier announced the signing of a working agreement with the Giants, who were offiliated with the Green Bay Packers last year.

The Boston club named O'Hanley under terms of the agreement that it will pay the coaches' salaries at Lowell.

O'Hanley, a former B.S. star, earned all-AFL honors as a safetyman in the Patriots' first year in the league. Drafted by the Miami Dolphins in '66, he injured his leg in pre-season practice and sat out the season. He saw little action last year.

The Patriots also announced the signing of 2 free agents, fullback Preston Johnson of Florida A&M and defensive back Bob Ellis of Massachusetts

American League: A 5-Way Struggle for Flag

By MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

Two damaging injuries to stars Tony Conigliaro and Jim Lonborg leave the door open to almost any team as a successor to the Red Sox miracle. Five squads including the Boston unit have an excellent chance at the title. The other five do not have enough depth to make more than a surprising move into the first division.

GARY PETERS

TOMMY DAVIS

One of many good arms and a new slugger

Chicago

Anyone might do it, but right now it will probably be:

When a team has a 2.45 ERA they should win the pennant. The White Sox didn't last season, but they should be ready to do it this year with more of the same fine hurling. Joel Horlen, Gary Peters and Tommy John are the standout flame throwers. Last year they finished first, second and fourth respectively in the ERA column.

Veterans Hoyt Wilhelm, Don McMahon, Jack Fisher, Bob Locker and Wilbur Wood form one of the best bullpens in the game. Duane Josephson will handle the catching and the infield consists of Tom McGraw, Tim Cullen, Luis Aparicio and Ken Boyer. Tommy Davis, Ken Berry and Ross Snyder will be snagging the flies.

Pete Ward is an able substitute and is joined on the bench by versatile Wayne Causey, Sandy Alomar, Walter Williams and Gerry McNertney.

The big story of the season could be the rookie hurler Cisco Carlos. The Cisco Kid in 42 innings of major league ball last season and 27 frames of pitching this spring has yet to give up a single extra base hit. Right now he is the odds on favorite for the rookie of the year award.

Baltimore

Sixth place is much too low for a team with the slugging and clutch hitting of the Orioles. If the mound corps holds up at all, the Birds will be back near the top. Tom Phoebus, Jim Hardin, Dave McNally and Pete Richert head the hurlers. If needed Bruce Howard, Gene Barbender, John O'Donoghue, Eddie Watt and Moe Drabowski are always waiting in the pen.

In the infield, Boog Powell, Dave Johnson, Mark Belanger and Brooks Robinson should all bounce back after terrible years. Andy Etchebarren and Larry Haney will be platooned behind home plate and Curt Blefary, Paul Blair and Frank Robinson can be more than adequate at the picket posts. Don Buford is the top sub. The ex-White Sox speedster can step in at almost any position.

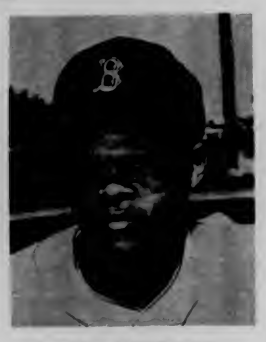
Top rookie hopeful is slugging outfielder Merve Rettenmund. Pitcher Roger Nelson has also been impressive.

Minnesota

The Twins are well off at all positions and therefore the favorite of many experts. Dean Chance, Jim Katt, Dave Boswell, Jim Perry and Jim Merritt are capable starters, although Kaat has had some arm trouble recently. Ex-Dodgers Ron Perranoski and Bob Miller team up with Al Worthington and Joe Grzenda.

All eight other positions are filled starting with catcher John Roseboro, Harmon Killebrew, Rod Carew, Caesar Tovar, Rich Rollins, Bob Allison, Ted Uhlander and Tony Oliva. Jerry Zimmerman, Frank Quilici, Ron Clark, Rich Reese and Jim Holt are the reservists.

Infielder Craig Neffles may be the only rookie to see much action for the Twin Cities squad.



DEAN CHANCE HARMON KILLEBREW

A 20 game winner and the premier slugger

Boston

REGGIE SMITH JERRY STEPHENSON

A pitching hope and a budding star

It will take nothing less than a miracle for the Red Sox to repeat, but any club which can drive in runs like the Beantowners has to be given a chance. Former National Leaguers Dick Ellsworth and Ray Culp being counted upon heavily as starters. Jose Santiago, Jerry Stephenson and Gary Waslewski will also see a few first innings. John Wyat and Sparkie Lyle are the cream of the bullpen crop.

George Scott, Mike Andrews, Rico Petrocelli and Dalton Jones "MVP" Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith are more than adequate outfielders.

Ellie Howard will be platooned with Gene Oliver in the catching department while Jerry Adair, Jose Tartabull and Ken Harrelson will see plenty of action.

Joe LaHoud, who'll be 20 years old Sunday, is the only freshman, and he'll be starting in right field.

Detroit

The Tigers just missed last year and are picked for the top this year, but won't be able to cut it with their so called pitching. Earl Wilson will be out to win another 20, while he, along with the other three starters, Mickey Lolich, Denny McLain and Joe Sparma, all have gopher ball problems. Mike Marshall, Fred Lasher and John Hiller are the best in the pen.

Eight other spots find from catcher to right, Bill Frehan, Mickey Stanley, Dick McAuliffe, Ray Oyler, Don Wert, Willie Horton, Jim Northup and Al Kaline.

Dick Tracewski and Jim Price will serve as utility men with Norm Cash and Eddie Mathews as pinch hitters.

Tom Matchick, a lefthanded hitting infielder, could be the top newcomer. The Tigers will probably have a couple of young faces on the pitching staff.

New York

Yankee pitching may bring the Bombers back to the first division. Mel Stottlemyer, Al Dworning and Fritz Peterson are the best trio on the staff. Others include Bill Monboquette, Fred Talbot, Steve Barber and relievers Dooley Womack, Joe Verbanic and Steve Hamilton.

The infield is a problem. Presently it consists of Mickey Mantle, Horace Clarke, Gene Michael and Bobby Cox. Tommy Tresh, Bill Robinson and Joe Pepitone will chase line drives while Andy Kosco and Steve Whitaker sub.

Rookie hopefuls are third baseman Mike Ferraro and hurler Stan Bahnsen.

Washington

Manager Jim Lemon inherits a spirited bunch of ball players who feel they can show the rest of the American League something. Camilo Pascual, Phil Ortega, Frank Bertaina and Bill Benehy are the starters. Donald Knowles, Dick Bosman Joe Colman and Dave Baldwin will also see plenty of action. Mike Epstein, rookie flash Frank Coggins, Eddie Brinkman or Ron Hansen, and Ken McMullen are the ground ball specialists. Frank Howard, Sam Bowens and Cap Peterson are the best of the flychasers while Hank Allen, Fred Valentine and Bill Bryan are back up men.

Besides Coggin another fine newcomer down in Florida was centervelder Del Unser.

California

After a brilliant last half of the season which saw them go from last to fifth, one might figure the Angels for higher, but such is not the case. They still lack a standout pitcher and solid hitting. George Brunet, Rickey Clark and Jim McGothlin are definite starting pitchers, while super-reliever Minnie Rojas will be walking in from the bullpen every other day. Other hurlers include Jack Hamilton, Sammy Ellis and Clyde Wright.

Bob Rodgers is behind the plate and Don Mincher, Bobby Knoop, Jim Fregosi and Paul Schaal make up the infield.

The outfield grass will be roamed by Rick Reichardt, Jay Johnstone, Jimmy Hall and Roger Repoz.

Chuck Hinto, Tom Satriano and Woodie Held lend versatility to the Seraphs.

Top freshman was portsider Tom Burgmeier, a young relief specialist up from Seattle, Burgmeier has excellent control and should be able to give Rojas valuable assistance in the bullpen.

Cleveland

Alvin Dark's task of bringing the Indians back to respectability has been severly hampered by injuries. The former KC manager does have some excellent starters, however, in the persons of Sam McDowell, Steve Hargan, Sonny Seibert, Luis Tiant and Sam Williams. McDowell was the top hurler in the Cactus League. Bob Allen, Rob Gardner and Eddie Fisher are also valuable staff members.

After the pitching it's all downhill. A lineup of Tony Horton, Vern Fuller, Larry Brown, Max Alvis, Duke Sims, Tommy Harper, Jose Cardenal and Vic Davalillo isn't that potent.

Daddy Wags Wagner, Joe Azcue, Pedro Gonzales and Chico Salmon are competent reservists.

Sinkerballer Harold Kurtz, outfielder Ritchie Scheinblum and speedster Dave Nelson were the three best rookies in Ariona.

Oakland

The hapless Athletics have a new home, but the same old bunch of bums. Manager Bob Kennedy has his task cut out for him in trying to keep the A's out of the cellar. Hurler Catfish Hunter, Chuck Dobson, Blue Moon Odom and Tony Pierce will be his best allies in that great effort. Lew Krausse and Jack Aker are in the bullpen for the time being.

Inner defense is supplied by Ramon Webster, John Donaldson, Campy Campaneris and Sal Bando.

Picketers include Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday, Danny Cater and Mike Hershberger.

Ex-Red Sox and Pirate Jim Pagliaroni beat out Phil Roof for the catching job down in Florida, while Dick Green, Ted Kubiak and rookie Tony LaRussa won jobs as substitutes.

National League: No Runaway, But a Great Race

By MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

Last year's runaway victory by the St. Louis Cardinals was most uncharacteristic of the usual senior circuit races. The 1967 flag chase will be proved an exception. In all probability the Cards will be strongly challenged by at least three other clubs, while four other teams have an outside chance.

San Francisco

From here it looks like:

For the last three years the Giants have finished second, usually by choking in the mouth of September. Last season, however, they played .750 ball in that month and now appear to be in good position for the pennant championship. The former New Yorkers have the best starting four and overall pitching staff in the league.

Juan Marichal, who missed seven weeks of action last season, is good for at least 20 wins. Mike McCormick, last year's Comeback-of-the-Year winner with 22 victories, and Gaylord Perry are also quite capable of reaching that mark. The key to the season though is Ray Sadecki, the man who Orlando Cepada was dealt for a couple of seasons back. Off this spring's activity it looks like he will finally come into his own as a great hurler. Frank Linzy and Lindy McDaniel will handle the bullpen duties while Bob Bolin and Ron Herbel can step in as spot starters.

The other eight positions are set with Jack Hiatt behind the plate and Willie McCovey at first, Ron Hunt second, Hal Lanier shortstop and Jim Ray Hart at the hot corner.

The outfield finds veteran Willie Mays in center and Ollie Brown and Jesus Alou in right and left respectively.

Hart may see some action in the outfield while Manager Herman Franks wants to get Jim Davenport's bat in the lineup. Bob Barton may also spot Hiatt behind the plate and McCovey at the first sack.

Top rookie at camp was Don Bryant, back-up catcher.

St. Louis

The favored Cards are relying on the slugging of outfielders Lou Brock, Curt Flood and Roger Maris, first baseman Orando Cepada and catcher Tim McCarver for another World Series. The other three infield positions are in the capable hands of Julian Javier, Dale Maxvill, and Mike Shannon.

World series hero Bob Gibson heads a mound corps that also features Dick Hughes, Steve Carlton and Ray Washburn as starters. Bullpen tollers include Joe Hoerner, Nelson Briles and Ron Willis while Larry Jaster is the spot starter.

Bobby Tolan, Dick Simpson and Phil Gagliano are the most valuable utility men. Former Redleg Johnny Edward will give McCarver an occasional rest at the catching post.

NELSON BRILES TIM McCARVER
A key hurler and one of the great catcher

Los Angeles

Despite Walt Alston's current illness and some minor pangs of dissension brought out over the winter, the Dodgers should be able to return to the first division on the strength of their fine pitching and improved hitting.

Veterans Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen and ex-Twin Jim Grant are the best of the starters. They'll get help from Bill Singer, Jim Brewer and the presently injured Don Sutton.

Wes Parker, Jim Lefebvre, Zoilo Versalles and Bob Bailey give the Bums a afiner defense. Al Ferrara, Willie Davis, Rocky Colovito and Ron Fairly will split the picket duty.

Tom Haller, a red hot batter on the Grape Fruit League, has come down from San Francisco to handle the catching chores. Jeff Torborg and Len Gabrielson will see some action as subs.

Infielder Luis Alcaraz hit .328 with 22 homers and 85 RBI's last season in the Texas League.

JIM LEFEBVRE JIM GRANT
A stellar and sacker and a new hurler

Pittsburgh

Experts were surprised at the fourth place finish last year of the Pirates. Now many believe that with the acquisition of Jim Bunning and Bob Veale, Al McBean, Tommie Sisk, and Steve Blass are pencilled in as starters with Elroy Face, Ron Kline and Juan Pizarro manning the bullpen.

The infield is solid with Don Clendenon, Bill Mazeroski, Gene Alley and Maury Wills while Willie Stargell, Marty Aou and superstar Roberto Clemente make up a slugging outfield.

The bench is shallow with Jose Pagan, Gary Kolb and Manny Jimenz, the best of the pinch hitters. Catching is the biggest problem. Jerry May has won the post by default.

ROBERTO CLEMENT BOB VEALE
The best player in baseball and a fireballer

Cincinnati

Injuries have turned the Redlegs from a favored contender into a dark horse. The name mound corps is a collection of ifs. Gary Nolan had to be sent back to the minors with sore arm trouble. The other starters Jim Maloney, Milt Pappas and Mel Queen have assorted injuries. Billy McCool, former standout reliever, has also had problems. The rest of the staff consists of travelers, Ted Abernathy, Ted Davidson, Jay Ritchie, Bob Lee, Gerry Arrigo and Bill Kelso.

A fine infield shows Lee May, Tommy Helms, Leo Cardenas and Tony Perez from first to third. Vada Pinson, Pete Rose, Mack Jones and Alex Johnson are the outfielders while Don Pavletich will soon action at four different positions.

Fred Whitefield and Bob Johnson are the top utilitymen. Nineteen year old Jim Bench is scheduled to be the Reds catcher in the first major league season.

PETE ROSE JIM MALONEY
A hustling star and strikeout ace

Philadelphia

Gene Mauch's Phillies have still not recovered from the 1964 debacle. Pitching features Chris Short, Larry Jackson, Woodie Fryman and Rick Wise. Grant Jackson and Dick Hall are the only others certain of a berth on the staff which will include three rookies.

Bill White, Cookie Rojas, Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor could make up the infield.

Ritchie Allen, hoping to recover from a serious wrist injury, Tony Gonzalez and John Callison will make up the outfield.

Clay Dalrymple and Mike Ryan will share the tools behind home plate while the bench is ably manned by Rocky Joseph, Don Lock, Johnny Briggs, Gary Sutherland and Chuck Hiller.

Don Morrey, a rookie shortstop for whom Bunning was traded, has been getting the most ink of any youngster but another teenager, ex-high school basketball phenom, Larry Hisle, could also make a strong bid for Rookie-of-the-Year honors if given a good shot in the outfield.

Atlanta

Luman Harris must erase dissension and poor pitching from the Braves image if they are to make a run for the pennant. Phil Nierko, last year's ERA leader, Ken Johnson, Pat Jarvis and Tony Cloninger are the core of the hurling staff. Other pitchers include Dick Kelley, Cecil Upshaw, Claude Raymond and Clay Carroll. Slugging Joe Torre will be handling the tosses of all these mound men.

Deron Johnson, Felix Millan, Sonny Jackson and Clete Boyer form the inner core while Felipe Alou and Hank Aaron are certain of outfield spots.

Tito Francona, Woody Woodward, Marty Martinez, Sandy Valdespine and Tommie Aaron will ride the bench with Bob Tillman watching Torre most of the time.

Hawaiian Mike Gum is being given a shot at the outfield in his big league debut while Ron Reed and Jin Britton are good rookie hurlers.

Chicago

Last year's almost Cinderellas will come back down to earth this season. Fergie Jenkins, Ken Holzman, Joe Niekro and Rich Nye are the youngest group of starters in the league. Bullpen residents will be Bill Hands, Bob Tiefenaver, Chuck Hartenstein, Ramon Hernandez and Pete Mikkelsen.

The eight other positions are set with Randy Hundley, Ernie Banks, Glenn Beckert, Don Kessinger, Ron Santo, Billy Williams, Adolfo Phillips and Lou Johnson.

A slim bench has stickmen Al Spangler and Ted Savagke as standouts.

Lee Elia is the best young newcomer.

Houston

Astro hopes rest on mighty young shoulders. The opening day lineup averages less than 25 years in age. Larry Dierker, Don Wilson, Wade Blasingame, Denny Lemaster look like starters. Fred Gladding, John Buzhardt, Dave Guisti and Deve Eilers will be waiting in the wings.

First baseman Rusty Staub heads an infield that also has Joe Morgan, Dennis Menke and Bob Aspromonte. Jim Wynn is the only definite outfielder.

Doug Rader, Norm Miller, Ron Davis and Lee Thomas should also see plenty of action.

New York

The hapless Mets under personable Gil Hodges seemed destined for last place again. Tom Seaver is the only certain starter. The rest will come from a hodgepodge of rookies and vets like Don Cardwell, Al Jackson and Cal Koonce. Ron Taylor, Dick Selma and Bill Short form the bullpen core.

Catching chores are shared by J.C. Martin and Jery Grote while the infield includes Ed Kranepool, rookie Ken Bardwell, Bud Harrelson and Ed Charles. The Mets do have a decent outfield, Ron Swaboda, Tommie Agee and Cleon Jones.

Art Shamsky, Al Weis, Phil Linz and Don Bosch are the valuable spares.

Nolan Ryan, the minor league strikeout phenom, is the best of a batch of rookies.

Redmen Seek Second Home Win vs. Dartmouth

Big Green Feature Strong Pitchers, Fair Hitters

By GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Dartmouth, a team like UMass which competed in the NCAA District baseball playoffs last year, meets the Redmen at the Varsity Field tomorrow at 1:30 in the first northern game for the Big Green.

The Indians bring a 4-7 record into the game, with all 11 games played down South. This is not nearly as good as last year's record, when Dartmouth lost to Boston College in the first round of the NCAA Districts.

However, the Big Green is expected to improve its record behind a strong pitching staff and fairly good hitting. The coach is Tony Lupien, a former Red Sox player who has done an excellent job at Hanover.

Dartmouth is led by its football player double play combination, second baseman Gene Ryzewicz and shortstop Bob Mlakar. Ryzewicz is a good hitter and a slick fielder, while Mlakar, a sophomore who caught a touchdown pass against the Redmen last September, has a great future.

The Indians' best hitter is first baseman Bob Thomas, a senior left handed batter who hit over .300 last year. Expected to start on the mound for Dartmouth is sophomore righthander Chuck Seelbach, a very hard thrower.

UMass coach Dick Bergquist, after yesterday's 10-2 win over MIC, is more optimistic than he has been so far in the young season. He has been pleased with the hitting, and now that the pitching is coming around, things are looking up.

Bergquist, who plans to start southpaw ace John Canty, tomorrow, was especially pleased with the pitching of junior Norm Elliott who has taken his licks down South. Elliott, in relief of sophomore John Kitchen, pitched the last three innings and gave up one hit.

After tomorrow's game, the team has four games next week. The Redmen travel to Tufts Monday where Norm Elliott will probably start. After a Wednesday home contest against Williams, UMass starts its defense of the Yankee Conference crown with a pair of home weekend games against Vermont. The Friday game will be a Patriot's Day affair, with another game against the Catamounts the next day.

Spring Football Drill Offers Fall Preview

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Spring may be the season for baseballs, tennis raquets and golf clubs, but only one thing will be on the mind of Coach Vic Fusia and his staff: Football. Spring football practice begins Monday and the annual period when football competes for attention with other spring time activities commences.

Practice will continue for the 15 session limit set by Yankee Conference ruling, culminating with the annual intra - squad spectacle at Alumni Stadium.

Coach Fusia, on the verge of his eighth season as coach of the Redmen, has four objectives he hopes to accomplish in the two week training session. Fusia said, "The first objective would be to pick the best 44 players we have on the squad. Secondly, we must pick the group that we hope to invite for early fall practice."

"Our third aim would be to give our offense and defense squad a complete understanding of the basics. Finally, and this could be the most important objective, to instill in each member of the squad a self - discipline that is so necessary to team success."

Fusia desires a squad that can give nothing but their best, under any conditions. He thinks he can have such a squad. "This looks like it will be a very enthusiastic bunch," said the coach.

Position - wise, no position is locked up according to the coach. He expects a great deal of competition at every position. The big holes he hopes to plug appear now to be at offensive guards and at quarterback. These holes are left by the graduations this June of Bob Santucci, Ernie Smith, Don Glogowski and Greg Landry.

Fusia sees his team as having the ability, but he sees it as being up to his coaching staff to pick the right people for the right spots. And as the coach warns, "I personally feel that there is quite a bit of potential, but remember, potential has yet to win a game. It's performance that counts."

The sessions, though not as long as any coach would desire, do prove helpful. The team is able to get into some semblance of shape, and also the gap of time between seasons is filled.

Fusia also sees the time valuable for analyzing personnel to decide where they can perform best. "We hope to utilize every ability on the squad," said the coach, "and also need time to ferret the talent out."

Besides the pure playing of football, there are quite a lot of intangibles to be accomplished. Fusia lists these as being, "togetherness, goals, an appreciation of team play, acceptance of teammates, a dependence on each other and also a certain sense of independence."

Scrimmaging will begin on the third day and the whole training process will end with the prementioned intra - squad game. This will be a great football show for all fans with game conditions and referees. There will be a minimal admission price. The game incidentally will be the highlight of the annual football clinic held at UMass at which 300 high school coaches attend, making it the largest clinic of its kind in New England.

COLLISION AT THE NET — Varsity lacrosse has the weekend off with their next game scheduled Wednesday against Middlebury at home. Freshman lacrosse opens their season tomorrow at Dean Junior College.

Crew Club Travels to Wesleyan Seeking Harborow Regatta Sweep

Tomorrow will be the second outing for the crew club as they travel to Middletown, Connecticut for the Harborow Regatta. The regatta, in its third year, is named after a former Wesleyan oarsman Peter Harborow who began crew at the Connecticut school.

Williams, Wesleyan and MIT crews, in addition to UMass, will also be competing in the regatta.

In the past two years the UMass crew has narrowly missed a regatta sweep as the freshman and junior varsity have won and the varsity has come in second.

Wesleyan, which was the New England Small College champion last year, have many holdovers. They promise to have a strong boat.

The Redman crews have been improving rapidly over the past few weeks and last week's excellent showing against St. Johns and URI has made them the boat to beat this year.

Changes have been made in the UMass boatings since last week. The riggings have been switched to the European style in an attempt to eradicate steering problems of the club constructed over spring vacation.

Frosh Lacrosse Opens at Dean Junior

By STEVE SHAMBAM
Staff Reporter

After seven weeks of drills in snow, mud and parking lots, freshman lacrosse coach John Bamberry's charges are pointing towards tomorrow's opener at Dean Junior College at 3 p.m.

Leading the three man attack will be Steve Hershcopf from Long Beach, N.Y. One of the best athletes on the team and a fine stick handler, Coach Bamberry plans to use Hershcopf at midfield as well to capitalize on his abilities. The "garbage man" here will be Steve Winters from Marion, Mass. He will be expected to pick up scores on rebound shots in the goal crease. Competing for the other positions are Ed Sacco, Hicksville, N.Y. and Mike Henry, Elmont, N.Y.

At midfield, Larry Diamond, Glen Cove, N.Y., William Weigle, Great Barrington and John Gannon, Plainview, N.Y., will get the starting nods. Weigle is probably the team's fastest man, while all three are considered to be the best athletes among those competing for this position.

The three defensemen will be Al Ruggiano, Elmont, N.Y., Mike Hinman, Jamaica Plain, and Roy Condon, Watertown. Ruggiano, a high school teammate of Henry's, is a fine stick handler, while Hinman and Condon, neophytes to the sport, have shown well in practice.

At the all important goal position is Johnny Orr, who is Coach tion is Johnny Orr, who in Coach sought after goalie on Long Island" by college coaches. The best athlete on the team, Orr is quick and fast and so far, has displayed no weaknesses.

Despite the additions of Brown and Trinity to this year's schedule, making it more competitive, Coach Bamberry has high hopes that this squad will improve on last year's fine 5-2 record.

Baird to Return to Campus Today; Further Action Planned This Week

By JAN CURLEY
Issue Editor

New plans are being mapped for this week in the campaign against the birth control laws of Massachusetts. William R. Baird whose arrival on campus last week set off a flurry of activity climaxed by a demonstration of some three hundred students at Zayre's in Hadley last Thursday is scheduled to return to Amherst today according to Daily Collegian editor-in-chief, Jack Dean.

Baird, who spent the Easter weekend in New York with his parents, and students will consult with an attorney before filing a complaint in Northampton District Court against Zayre's for selling birth control devices.

The students and Baird plan to confront Governor John A. Volpe with a petition of 1000 signatures.

At the time they will also demand that he take a stand on the issue.

Due to the fact that Friday is a state holiday, the State House will be closed. The Governor will be marching in a Patriot's Day Parade and Dean stated that perhaps the students would go to the parade, but he added, "Nothing is definite until we get together."

A second alternative is the date might be changed. Friday was selected originally because there are no classes and more students would be able to go to Boston.

The group also plans to work for legislative passage of pending bills that would rewrite the restrictive birth control law. Rep. Allan McGuane, D-Greenfield, in a Daily Collegian interview last night stated, "There is no bill pending now, it was killed last week. It would be my guess that no action will be taken this year."

A bill to amend the law was defeated two weeks ago in the State Legislature.

Four U. N. Soldiers Killed In Ambush by North Koreans

SEOUL (AP) — Four United Nations Command Soldiers, including two Americans, were killed and two other American soldiers were wounded yesterday when their truck was ambushed by North Korean Communists south of the Panmunjom armistice conference area, a spokesman announced today.

The ambush occurred while the truck from the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division was making a routine trip from the U.N. command advance camp to Panmunjom, he said.

The Communist ambush was discovered by a second U. N. command vehicle carrying an American sargeant and two other men about 10 minutes after the attack, he said.

They had heard about 200 rounds of automatic weapons fire and two explosions and hastened to the scene, the spokesman said.

The other two killed were South Korean army soldiers attached to the U.S. military.

A force from the 2nd Division was immediately dispatched and a sweep was made but no Communist casualties were found, the spokesman said.

The incident brought American casualties to 4 killed and 14 wounded since the Jan. 2 Communist raid on Seoul in an attempt on the life of President Hee Park.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. told an Easter congregation at Ebenezer Baptist Church Sunday that continuing her husband's unfinished work would be the greatest tribute to him.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI is withholding nationwide distribution of a composite drawing of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s assassin, police sources said Sunday.

"They haven't given us anything but a physical description," said one police official. "They aren't handing out pictures of the man. They either don't have a good one, or they're going it alone."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R. - Mass., said yesterday he feels New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will enter the Republican convention and become a presidential candidate.

"He has a great deal to offer," Brooke said. "I am very hopeful he will become a candidate for our party."

Brooke's statements were made in a taped interview with Sen. Hugh Scott, R. - Pa., a strong Rockefeller supporter.

BOSTON (AP) — Mayor Kevin White said Sunday he felt the purpose of the newly formed United Front in Boston's Roxbury section were "laudable" even though he said he had been compelled to reject some of the organization's demands.

"The purpose, mainly, was to bring all of the various segments within the Roxbury community together to see if they could find a common expression," White said on radio station WEEI's Bay State Forum.

The desperate hours and how to survive them.

The desperate hours come around midnight when you've got more to do than time to do it.

The hours when you have to stay alert or face the music the next day.

Those are NoDoz' finest hours. It's got the strongest stimulant you can take without a prescription. And it's not habit forming.

NoDoz®. If you don't stay up with the competition, you won't keep up with the competition.

A Time To Be Born

It's April

It's beautiful

Life offers so much in April. And life is for a college student. It will never be the same after college. Never quite the same perspective; never quite the same freedom from society's restrictions; never the chance to drift so much.

Go out on the grass and lie down. Look into the water; try to see a glimmering reflection. Look up at the sky; seek to find the highest ideal. Look at the grass; see God. Think of a friend and feel trust. Think of all the people you know, all the books you've read. Talk to Conscience — have a long conversation. What might have been, what one second the other way might have done to make it all so very different for you, for your brother, for peace.

Forget classes for the day. Don't think about a cum or alcohol or cigarettes or sex or money.

Introspect. Evaluate. Count blessings and scorn apathy. Thank the dreamers and curse the pushers and Hatchers. Give to yourself, instead of constantly grabbing and pulling and taking. Then you will be giving to all mankind, because you are mankind. And what is Life's purpose? It's thinking about and interacting with mankind — constructively, positively.

Think every day, because I, Mankind, need help. So desperately.

Please ?

A Categorized Electorate

Robert Kennedy has set up twenty-six committees to appeal to specific ethnic groups and thus build voter support. While such a move may be politically advantageous the move bodes ill for America. The very idea of dealing with people thru committees based on ethnic grounds is repugnant.

By singling out ethnic groups he promotes a feeling of apartness in groups, a slight loss of Americanism. Each group could conceivably come to feel different from other Americans when in fact social justice and nobility and tolerance will be accomplished only when ethnic groups feel themselves to be Americans only devoid of prejudices and special interests.

Certainly groups such as Negroes, Mexicans and Indians need special consideration to help overcome the huge barriers confronting their struggle for dignity. But most ethnic groups have become assimilated, and American society is slowly growing homogenous and less prejudiced—benefiting our country.

By establishing the twenty-six committees, Kennedy opens the way for a possible categorization of peoples in America, the destruction of our too slowly growing social unity. This categorization could possibly rip the fragile fabric of "we're all American" feeling, and return us to the chaotic racism of the early 1900's which still characterizes some sections of the United States.

why do god's children fight among each other a great man once lived a Negro man his name was the Rev. Martin Luther King.

do you know what happened
he was assassinated by a white man.
a man of such knowledge as he
Martin Luther King
a man of such courage to stand up and let a man hit him without hitting back yes —
that's courage
when you fight back of course you're brave.
but do you think you yourself can stand up and let someone beat you without batting an eyelash that takes courage shot him down that's right

We Were Both Mothers

(Editor's note: The writer of the following letter is a resident of Amherst who is currently enrolled as a Special Student at UMass.)

To the editor:

I was in Indiana when the TV flashed a notice about the death of Martin Luther King. My first reaction was one of surprise, then a feeling that the world had lost a good man who had stood up for what he believed.

The next day on a plane I sat next to a Negro mother from Chicago who was on the way to see her son who had been arrested for demonstrating at a Kentucky college. She was frightened because she had left Chicago with its fires of reaction and was entering the South where she did not know the "code of behavior." She was frightened because she only knew that her son had been arrested—she did not know why or even where he was jailed. He was 17, an only child who had been sheltered, a "bleeder" and she did not know if he could contend with brutality physically or personally. She took a plane and her husband was driving to Kentucky in the hopes that one of them would definitely get to their son. They were afraid of being shot.

We were both mothers, we both had sons 17, we both were educated, we both were concerned with today's society, and we both were not sure how we could guide our children to a better tomorrow.

She felt she had failed her son since he had been "aggressive." She stated that she had told her son, "I was not born a mother but I am learning, and I try to understand. Be patient, things will be better."

The son asked, "What has patience gotten you? I might as well die here, for my people, for something I believe in, than in Vietnam for strangers and for something I don't even understand.

I told her there was much in his logic and that was hard to argue with, that I did not have all the answers for my children and often expressed a protective attitude since I lacked answers. I said that I didn't think she had failed for all of us as mothers can only try to the best of our ability to guide our children and beyond that point we hold our breath and pray that life will be good to and for them.

As the plane landed she took a deep breath and said, "I'd like to clean up before I go to the college. Are there signs on the washrooms?"

I looked surprised and mumbled, "I don't know, I never really noticed."

She nodded and started to leave the plane. I called, "Good luck!" and she was gone.

I sat with angry thoughts. My God, what a rotten situation—a mother frightened sick with concern for her son actually had to worry about a sign that told her if she could wash her hands. I had thought that by not being prejudiced myself I had done my part, but I had never truly felt any anger over this issue before.

As the plane took off I hoped that somehow this frightened mother would understand that her son had probably reacted as he did so that one day a negro mother will not have to worry about signs on washroom doors. I finished my trip knowing why Martin Luther King had died and why a 17 year old boy was in jail.

Everyman's Guilt

To the editor:

Perhaps, as the Negro student at Amherst said Thursday night every white should examine his guilt in the murder of Martin Luther King. Still, he'd have been more right if he said every man. Martin Luther King lived and died for all of God's children (his words), white and black. The only division King recognized among his brothers was not of color, but between bigot and non-bigot. He was killed by a bigot who happened to be white; so was Viola Liuzzo. A black man and a white woman, enemies to none, were killed by their enemies. White and black have died for the cause of civil rights in Alabama, Mississippi, and now Tennessee. White and black have murdered. The only relevant differences between the martyrs and their murderers is not in their color, but in the things for which they lived and/or died.

The black student in Amherst was right. More than one was responsible for last weeks tragedy. But the murderers of Mrs. Liuzzo and Rev. King were not all white men! nor all black men! but ALL BIGOTS! ALL THE SOWERS OF HATE—BLACK AND WHITE!

The real enemy of all minority groups is the hater, whether his hate is directed at them or at others, whether his skin is different or the same. For hate on one side breeds hate on the other, and hate can only be satisfied in physical violence. In the early stages someone is beaten, someone is looted, someone is murdered. Black and white politicians build their stinking careers on the corpses of men far greater than they. In the end, it's a matter of pure physical power and the minority group has to lose.

But there is an answer and Martin Luther King not only had it, but proved it will work. Using it, he accomplished more for the dignity and welfare of the negro than all his critics could ever dream of doing. Persistant love, understanding, tolerance, and NON-VIOLENT ACTION—Man, how dull can you get?—But the fact is these things have worked and will work once we've dumped all the pseudo-leaders who are too blind and bigoted to see it, and too opportunistic to care.

UMass Needs Fine Arts Center

To the editor:

The Department of Germanic Languages at the University had sponsored a performance by a troupe from the famous Vienna Burgtheater at Bartlett Hall for the evening of April 4. The preliminary arrangements for this event had been made some time in the late fall through the Austrian Institute in New York. Up to the last moment there had been considerable doubt whether the lighting facilities in Bartlett Auditorium would be sufficient for this very intimate kind of theater. Furthermore, the problem of space had to be solved because classes were scheduled in Bartlett throughout the afternoon and had to be moved to make it possible for the crew to prepare the stage.

May I say that I am very happy about the cooperation I received from everybody concerned in trying to overcome the difficulties caused by the inadequate facilities of the University. Unfortunately, there was no other hall available for this purpose as Bowker had been reserved for the Operetta Guild and the other auditoriums have no stage.

The evening before the performance the stage manager of the Burgtheater arrived from New York, took one extended look at Bartlett and pronounced it to be unfit for any serious theater. Under the circumstances there was no other solution but to cancel the performance at this late date. This unpleasant step could perhaps have been taken a little earlier if the Burgtheater people had been less rushed during their tour in this country. As far as we are concerned, however, the truth should be admitted that we simply cannot participate in such offerings here in Amherst as long as the Legislature is unwilling to provide us with the necessary facilities.

Horrible Reality Of Death in Vietnam

To the editor:

I would be very appreciative if you would publish the following letter written by a nineteen-year-old G.I. in Vietnam.

I think that all who read this letter will get a taste of the horrible reality of the death of individuals, of fellow human beings in Vietnam. I hope they will see the personal tragedy surrounding each number on the weekly casualty list in Vietnam. I also hope that those readers who oppose the war will strive more firmly to end it and that those readers who support the war will realize that waging war is not the way to gain peace.

Some will argue that wars have taken place throughout history and that history repeats itself. To them I say that the desire for peace has also existed throughout history, but peace has never been attained by means of war. Must the history of man always relate the same story? Do we have brains for the purpose of making the same mistakes of for the purpose of learning from our mistakes?

I am sure that if each individual could see every other person in the way that he sees himself, if he could realize that every other person loves, wants, and dreams of the future just as he does, there would be no war.

Finally. I wish as many people read the editorial page as do hurriedly scan the front page.

"I saw another kid die tonight. We got mortared again. Remember if I ever mentioned having borrowed 'Sargeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band' from one of the cooks?

The cook's name was Reedy. He was 20 years old, I think. He died an hour and a half ago. I watched him die. It always bothers me to see someone die for this senseless horror, but tonight it seemed even worse than usual. We sat and watched the medic try to get his breath going again. ('Please, Doc, make him breathe')

Saw 'Doc' Freund sit back on his haunches and wipe the blood away from the kid's eyes so that they could be closed all the way.

Heard him ask for a poncho to cover his body with. ('Please don't cover his face, Doc, that'll make him dead.')

Heard him call Brigade on the radio and report that one of the five Wounded in Action's (WIA's) was now a KIA.

We just sat there and watched a kid who might be alive watching us die if the situation were changed a little.

How I hate it. Feeling impotent, powerless to help the kid live to vote against this insanity and those who support it.

I'm signing off. The more I think the worse I feel. Please love me always."

Paying First Class Prices

To the editor:

Last evening I received word of the impending increase in room rent which was made public today. My immediate reaction was shock that the university should even consider charging the same rates for living in the Central Area Slums as they do for living at the Amherst Hilton. This would be the same as renting a Watts ghetto apartment for the price of a room in a Beverly Hills mansion. Someone is getting the proverbial shaft and it isn't the affluent.

It would appear that if you go first class, make someone else pay for it. We are living in Ford rooms, paying Mercury prices so someone in Southwest may live in a Lincoln. We receive little enough for our already high rent in the form of facilities to be assessed luxury rates. Do you realize that an increase from $150. per semester to $210. per semesterwill constitute an increase of 40%. That isn't inflation, it is exexorbitant.

Why do Southwest and the Orchard fail to pay for themselves? Could it be the high level of vandalism? Could it be the higher cost of maintenance? Could it be that their residents are getting an insufficient free ride from the other simpletons on campus?

It has been quoted to me that if some of the dorms in the central area and the quad were to pay for their own maintenance, bonds and renovations on an independent basis, the residents would pay less than $150.00 per year, a far cry from the proposed $210.00 per semester. Is this justice?

I, as a resident of the central area and a registered voter and citizen of the Commonwealth, will send letters to my state senator and representative deploring this proposed inequity and urge everyone to, likewise, make his feelings known.

When Borrowing Is Stealing

To the editor:

"I'm not stealing, I'm borrowing." "We pay so much I'm entitled to it." These are typical comments made by many UMass students as they leave the dining commons with a pocket full of silverware, sugar shakers, dishes, or any other items they happen to need.

When it's necessary to stand around with your dinner getting cold while waiting for a fork in order to eat, the natural reaction is for the student to blame everyone else for the wait. The dining commons is blamed for not having enough silverware, the dishroom help is blamed for being too slow, or the situation is considered general university inefficiency. Few people stop to realize that the reason there is not enough silverware is because so many people have a set of silver in the room that they've "borrowed" for the semester.

When the dining commons has to offer to trade plasticware for the silverware that belongs to them, then something seems to be wrong. Has stealing become socially acceptable, or is it that students simply do not realize they are stealing? Stealing is the act of taking something that belongs to some one else. With this in mind the "borrowing" of items from the commons cannot be justified.

People who steal freely from the dining commons would not steal in other situations. To take something from the University store would be unforgivable because this is recognized as petty thievery or shoplifting. No one wants to risk arrest and the consequence of being caught stealing. In the dorm, students don't steal from their peers the way they steal from the dining commons. To take something from someone you live with is stealing, but to take from an unknown is "borrowing".

The stealing from the dining commons directly affects the student because one must wait for the dishes and silver to be rewashed. Its indirect effect is felt through increasing prices of the commons.

Next time you need silverware —remember that "borrowing" is in fact stealing.

Dorms Will Cost More

To the editor:

Surprise!

The administration has "proposed" an increase in room rent, effective next semester. Conveniently, this news was released in Friday's Collegian, for the Board of Trustees are meeting today to give their rubber stamp to this "proposal."

We are told this increase reflects rising amortization costs. Why, suddenly, will a student be charged up to $60 more per semester for a room in the Central Area? What do "rising construction costs" (the old standby) have to do with an established dormitory? And why must $35 more per semester be paid after a rate of $175 had been calculated for a student in Southwest? Are we to believe it was a simple error in arithmetic?

Simply, why such a drastic increase if the present rates were calculated to cover dormitory costs over the life of the buiding? This increased rate, to be paid by all students from next year on, will surely bring in money in excess of that needed for the dorms to be self-liquidating. WHERE WILL THIS EXCESS GO??? Surely interest rates alone do not justify this increase.

When this "proposal" goes into effect, a room in Baker will cost as much as a room in MacKimmie. Is this fair? And won't this result in a mass exodus to Orchard Hill and Southwest, leaving the traditional residences of the North Quad and the Central Area to be forced upon incoming Freshmen? This would seriously divide the campus according to classes, and make a balanced living environment impossible.

The Administration realizes we are "captive customers." This hike makes as much sense as the proposed $50 "deposit" to secure a room on campus, which the administration attempted to justify with similar double-talk.

Candidates' Forum

Class of 1970

To the Class of 1970:

Jerry Bly is a candidate for Vice President of the class of 1970 and more than any other, he merits and is qualified for this position. I have observed Jerry throughout the year and much of the success of S.E.N.D.-O.F.F. and Campus Chest rests with him.

For S.E.N.D.O.F.F. he organized and directed the Friday night Bitter Send Show with the Times Square Two and Jackie Washington. Those of you who attended are aware of the success of that truly unique event. Jerry was chairman of Campus Chest Week. With the various types of fund raising activities that week, we netted $1,600 — the first time Campus Chest has made money!!

Jerry has often worked long hours, making our plans materialize. He has assisted me in countless ways and the class' activities in general have benefited as a result of his labor and thought. On the Executive Council, Jerry has demonstrated the quality of leadership necessary to assume the position of Vice President. In our talks Jerry has outlined his plans for next year which, upon Exec Council approval, will include a film and lecture series. With this type of program and enthusiasm, Jerry will keep the Class of '70 out in front and on top.

I urge all sophomores not to allow this opportunity to pass us by. We have an able and willing man ready to serve. Our role is clear: VOTE on April 16 and April 23 for Jerry Bly for Vice President of the Class of '70.

Bruce Balboni
President, Class of '70

To the Class of 1970:

As a candidate for Treasurer of the Class of 1970, I feel that I am the most qualified for the office. I have served very actively on the class Executive Council for the past two years, acted as publicity chairman for S.E.N.-D.O.F.F. and Campus Chest. The success of these events speaks for themselves. I have had experience with keeping the books and know the procedures used in R.S.O. as well.

My other qualifications include two years on Homecoming Committee, active participation in Student Senate Public Relations Committee, and above all, a desire to serve.

You ask what I would do if elected Treasurer. I will not promise anything, for it seems that all campaign promises are never kept. However I will say that I intend to do my absolute best to help create the best Winter Carnival yet at the least possible cost to you the student. When you talk in terms of a $50-$60,000 weekend, you have to watch every cent, and that I will do, for HONESTY is of the utmost importance. Thank you for support.

Dave Floreen

To the Class of 1970:

With our class running Winter Carni next year the office of Treasurer will mean only a tremendous responsibility but also a fantastic amount of work and time. Naturally, as a good Treasurer, a responsible attitude towards money is a must. But there are other qualities such as sincerity of purpose, honesty, enthusiasm, and originality which must be taken into account when looking for a good class officer. I feel that I fill all these qualifications. If elected not only will I help see to it that the job facing us gets done, but also that it gets done well. The class of 1970 can only be what you and I make it.

Yvonne Mullen
Candidate for Treasurer
Class of 1970

Class of 1971

To the Class of 1971:

It has been a great honor to serve as Interim Vice President for the Class of 1971.

Before assuming the responsibilities of Interim Vice President, I served the class as Chairman for the Frosh Christmas Sing, and was elected to the President's Council. Due to a resignation, I was then appointed by the Executive Council to serve as Interim Vice President for the second semester. In this position, I have worked closely with the officers and the Executive Council in planning and carrying out all of our class functions. I have also been a member of the Student Senate Public Relations Committee for the past year.

A problem that faced our class this year was communication. I would like to see an Executive Council that, through the possible addition of dorm and commuter representatives, reaches each and every member of our class.

On Tuesday, April 16, I ask you to vote Betty Pugh Vice President of the Class of 1971. I will serve you to the best of my ability.

Betty Pugh
Interim Vice President
Class of 1971

To the Class of 1971:

When the new year and the new semester got under way, I found myself in a new position. I was no longer Bonnie Jackson —Executive Council Member or President's Council Member; not even Co-chairman of Publicity, Co-editor of the Freshman Newsletter, or a member of the various Freshman Committees. At that time I was appointed by the Executive Council to serve my class as Interim Secretary.

During the time since the appointment I have become acutely aware of the communication gap between the class government and the members of the class of 1971. I believe that this gap could be altered considerably if closer ties between the dorms and the class government could be established. Minutes, committee reports and notices, mimeographed and distributed would place the responsibility of class membership on the individual. More factual and informative newsletters would place information at the students' fingertips.

After this obstacle is overcome the class would be in a position to sponsor not only social events, but lectures and academic functions, as well as community-wide projects. All of these have been discussed, but never acted upon. I wish to see these activities a reality.

As secretary it would be my responsibility to see that communication is increased and therefore class government strengthened. I am willing to donate my time and effort to this goal if you will give a moment of your time to vote BONNIE JACKSON for Secretary of the Class of 1971.

Bonnie Jackson
Interim Secretary
Class of 1971

To the Class of 71:

I had the pleasure and fortune of serving you as treasurer until second semester when I resigned for academic reasons. During this period I still remained active in all class activities. Now that I have straightened out my academic problems I am again asking your support for my election as treasurer.

If I am elected I promise to serve faithfully as I have in the past. I urge all to vote because this is the only way to get good class government.

Riots Continue In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) Thousands of leftist demonstrators clashed violently with hundreds of police Sunday on West Berlin's swank Kurfuerstendamm.

The battle threw into chaos the traditional Easter Sunday parade of strolling tourists and Berliners.

It was the fourth straight day of violence in the city since Holy Thursday, when student leader Red Rudi Dutschke was shot and critically wounded by a lone gunman on the same street.

The massed demonstrators, carrying red flags and placards, and in one case a cross, grudgingly gave ground as a solid phalanx of police on foot advanced slowly up the street. They were backed up by mounted officers.

Water cannon poured thousands of gallons of water point-blank at demonstrators who huddled together rather than retreat.

Only when police advanced with clubs swinging did the demonstrators back up. They struck back with the sticks of their signs as they retreated.

Bosox Defeated by Cleveland, 7-4; Return to Beantown for Home Debut

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vic Davalillo broke a fifth inning tie with a bases-loaded triple and smacked an eighth inning homer Sunday, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 7-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Davalillo's two-out triple to right center field in the fifth came after an error by Boston second baseman Mike Andrews opened the door.

Vern Fuller singled and was safe at second when Andrews dropped the throw from Dalton Jones on Jose Cardenals grounder. One out later Duke Sims walked, filling the bases.

After Tony Horton forced Fuller at the plate, Davalillo cleared the bases with his drive to right center field, breaking a 3-3 tie.

The Red Sox scored a run in the seventh, but Davalillo led off the eighth with his first homer of the year, giving Cleveland its three-run margin.

Sims tied the game 3-3 in the third inning with his third homer.

Elston Howard staked Boston starter Jerry Stephenson to a 3-0 lead in the second with a three-run homer. The Indians came back with two in the bottom of the inning, Max Alvis and winning pitcher Sonny Siebert stroking run-scoring singles.

Eddie Fisher replaced Siebert in seventh and worked out of a bases-loaded jam after George Scott's sacrifice fly knocked in Boston's fourth run.

The Red Sox, saddled with a .500 record after opening the American League campaign on the road, make their home debut in a meeting with the Detroit Tigers tomorrow at Fenway Park

Parachute Club Leaps to Win In Local Meet

ORANGE — In a meet held April 6, at the Orange Airport, the UMass Sport Parachute Club gained an impressive win in the Intercollegiate Sport Parachute Meet. The event was hosted by Norwich University.

The competition consisted of three events: 1) advanced accuracy; 2) novice accuracy; and 3) team accuracy. The advanced category is gained by over 100 jumps while the novice is any under that number.

The first place individual advanced winner was UMass' Richard Clark. In the individual accuracy event, the competitor must perform three jumps from 3,000 feet. He then executes a five-second free-fall period before pulling his rip cord. The parachutist then steers himself to the target below.

A UMass team consisting of Clark, Richard Hazel, Steve Smith and David Cherry placed first in the team accuracy division. In team acuracy competition, the main concern is teamwork. Three jumpers leave the plane simultaneously at 3700. The three leapers then open their chutes at different altitudes to prevent their converging on the target at the same time.

The UMass club is currently in preparation for the larger and more competitive Northeaster Collegiate Parachute Meet, May 5, also at Orange.

Varsity and J.V. Crews Upset, But Frosh Win

M.I.T. and Wesleyan Win, Freshmen Win in Breeze

IN CONGESTED WATERS, the UM junior varsity crew on the far right loses ground to St. John's in action last week. The JV's were again hard-luck losers Saturday.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn.— Unable to maintain an early lead, the U Mass varsity crew team was defeated by a strong M.I.T. crew, Saturday in the Third Annual Harborow Regatta.

The Redmen crew jumped off the line at a 38 stroke and settled in the body of the race to a 34. Wesleyan and M.I.T. followed a length behind. UMass held its lead until the 1300 meter mark.

Wesleyan closed the gap as UMass was experiencing difficulty with the choppy water and the strong headwind. At the 1600 meter mark, UMass and Wesleyan were even with M.I.T., one length behind.

Here, however, the stronger, more experienced M.I.T. shell which finished second to Northeastern's varsity last week, made its move. Upping its stroke to a 38, the team moved by the UMass and Wesleyan crews.

UMass because of its inability to jump the stroke didn't move in the sprint. M.I.T. was clocked in 7:00 minutes, Wesleyan in 7:01 and UMass in 7:04.

Coach Dave Clark attributed the loss to the "crew's inability to move the stroke up and sprint. It's a shame to lead for a considerable distance and lose at the end." He promised some changes in the boatings in hopes of developing a more flexible crew as far as stroke cadences are concerned.

The UMass junior varsity experienced a frustrating afternoon. Getting a good lead off the line, stroking at 37, the Redmen boat was soon thereafter ordered to change course by the referee.

Wesleyan making good on the opportunity, raced past the Mass boat while the steering adjustments and the accompanying stroke reduction plagued the JV boat.

Suddenly faced with a catch-up situation, the crew moving at 35 strokes a minute made their move at the 1500 meters mark. Their bid fell short and Wesleyan pulled out on the last five strokes to take the 2000 meter event by two seconds, 7:08 to 7:10.

The UMass freshman crew continued their winning ways by easily defeating a very big Wesleyan boat. The Little Redman boat, apparently unimpressed with the Wesleyan ten pound per man weight advantage, rowed away from the Wesleyan frosh from the start.

Stroking at a 37 from the start and settling to a 34, the UMass crew had opened up a four boat length lead at the 1000 meter mark. The Redmen lengthened out their lead as the Wesleyan frosh experienced difficulty in getting together in a vain attempt to catch the smooth-stroking frosh.

The frosh were timed at 6:27 compared with a 6:55 for Wesleyan. Coach Mike Faherty reiterated last week's comment when he said, "They weren't pushed so there is no telling how they will react under pressure. They do have a great attitude and desire to win so correcting our mistakes isn't really too much of a problem."

This weekend the Crew Club travels to Philadelphia to compete in the Second Annual Kerr Cup Regatta. Crews from Georgetown, Trinity, Drexel, LaSalle and Holy Cross will compete. Coach Clarke feels this is without a doubt the stiffest meet of the year.

The team is moving well and "while we were let down some this weekend," said the coach. "we can bounce back." The regatta will also mark the UMass frosh initial row against the best in small college rowing.

Dartmouth Wins, 9-2

UMass Defense Porous

Four UMass errors contributed to a seven-run first inning for Dartmouth, allowing the Big Green to coast to a 9-2 victory over the Redmen at the varsity field Saturday.

UMass would have been better off not showing up for this one, as it just wasn't their day. The Redmen committed six errors in all, and all nine Dartmouth runs were unearned. And except for the continued strong hitting by sophomore Bob Hansen, the UMass bats were kept in check by Indian pitcher Dolph Highmark.

You could tell what kind of game it was going to be after the first two batters. John Canty, the UMass starter, got out in front of Dartmouth leadoff batter Terry Light, 0-2, and then hit him with a pitch.

Then on the first pitch to the second batter, Steve Dagirmanjian, was forced to leave the game, Junior Dick Rappoli came in to relieve.

Then things really fell apart. Dagirmanjian reached on an error by first baseman Hansen, and Bob Thoman walked, loading the bases for football star Gene Ryzewicz.

Ryzewich topped a roller down the third base line and third baseman Steve Stanford whipped it home for the force. But catcher Chuck Newell dropped the ball, Light scored, and the Indians had a 1-0 lead.

An infield out by Bruce Saylor scored another run, and Bob Mlaker was then hit by a pitch, again loading the bases. The next batter, Don Bigda, grounded a single to center which scored two runs, making it 4-0.

Jon Hanshus grounded back to the box, and Rappoli's only was to first as another Big Green run crossed the plate. Pitcher Highmark was up next, with a runner on third. Highmark grounded to Joe DiSarcina at short, but the usually sure-armed DiSarcina's throw drew Hansen off the bag at first and the sixth Dartmouth run of the inning scored.

It was the top of the order and Terry Light again. Light lined a shot to deep right center which sailed over Ray Ellerbrook's head and went to the wall. It went for a triple and scored run number seven. The horrendous inning finally ended as Rappoli fanned Dagirmanjian.

UMass couldn't get anything going until the fourth inning, when Hansen led off with a single to right, Don Ferron did the same, and the Redmen had runners on first and second with nobody out. However, Ted Mareno hit into a 6-4-3 double play which cleared the bases of eveveryone but Hansen, who moved to third.

Al Vyce then singled to center scoring Hansen, and UMass salvaged one run out of the inning.

Hansen unloaded his second homer in the last two games in the sixth inning, a leadoff blast that cleared the right field wall with plenty to spare. However, that 7-2 score was as close as the Redmen got.

A single to left by Mlaker in the seventh made it 8-2, and the final Indian run came in the eighth inning when with a runner on first, Light singled to right. Right fielder Vyce let it get by him and the runner. Highmark, scored all the way from first.

The loss left UMass with a 3-5-1 record, while the Big Green raised its mark to 5-7.

Redman Varsity Outrun by N.U., B.U.; Frosh Gain Impressive Upset Win

FROSH SPEEDSTERS SHINE—UM freshman track standouts in opening meet were, half mile winner, Elliot Stevens, two-time hurdle winner, Greg Spellmen, and versatile Ed Heywood, who placed in three events.

BOSTON — Opening the season on a sour note, the U-Mass varsity track team finished behind Northeastern and Boston University in its opening meet Saturday, at White Stadium. Again a lack of field events depth allowed the Redmen's opponents to build up a large lead.

Northeastern's field team amassed 48 points against B.U.'s 25 and UMass' 12. Bill Wiley turned in the top UMass field events performance as he won the hammer throw. N.U. and B.U. took advantage of no Redmen entries in either the pole vault or high jump.

The Redmen runners put up a good fight and fell just short of catching B.U. as the Terriers second place total was five points more than the UMass total. In the mile, senior Greg Bowman caught N.U.'s Scanlon on the last lap to take second behind B.U.'s Peter Hoss. In the 440, John Andersen was just beaten at the wire by N.U.'s Foley. Foley was timed in 48.9 and Andersen in 49.8.

Steve Burrell and Dick Dyer took third and fourth in the 100 behind two Northeastern men. In the 120 yard hurdles B.U.'s star hurdler from England, Dave Hemery, outran Redman Marc Levefer to the tape.

British champ, Hemery, came back in the 440 hurdles to win over UMass' Andersen who took second. Steve Chase UMass' top 220 runner, broke up a group of Northeastern runners and took second place.

B.U.'s Peter Hoss took the half-mile in a fast 1:52.7. Right behind Hoss was Redman D. Evans, who took over second place in the last 100 yards of the race. Evans was timed in 1:54.2.

In the two mile, Peter Hoss' brother Paul of UMass picked up where his brother left off and won the two mile in 9:24. Hoss moved away from N.U.'s Deary on the last lap to win by a good margin. UMass closed out the day's proceedings with a victory in the mile relay. The team made up of Diego Gonzalez, Andersen, Evans and Bowman won the event in a time of 3:24.1.

The UMass freshmen made their debut a good one as they upset the Northeastern frosh 93-88 2/3. BU scored 8 1/3. The frosh worked hard for the win remembering their only loss in the winter was at the hands of the Huskies.

Ron Wayne ran three races, placing third in the mile, second in the two mile and fourth in the half-mile. Leo Duart of UMass won the two mile in 9:58. Tom Derderian was third. In the half mile Elliot Stevens caught his N.U. opponent in the last corner and won in UMass frosh record time of 1:59.6.

Gerry Spellmen took both the 120 hurdles and 440 hurdles for UMass. Spellmen ran away from the field in the 440 hurdles despite the fact it was only the second time he had attempted the distance. Walter Mayo and Ed Heywood teamed up for a one-two finish in the 100. Mayo was timed in ten flat and Heywood in 10.2.

Heywood came back to place third in the 220. Teammate Clarence Gaynor came in second. Mayo, Gaynor, Heywood and Dave Canterbury teamed up for a win in the 440 relay. Larry Paulsen the top frosh quarter miler was third in his event.

The Frosh victory was made possible by a strong performance in the field events. Top performers were Buzz Hiller who won the pole vault and Cal Carpenter in the high jump.

Right-hander Ray Culp, obtained in a winter trade from the Philadelphia Phillies, then will take the mound in his American League Debut.

Canty Hurts Pitching Arm

UMass co-captain John Canty, the ace of the Redmen's pitching staff and one of New England's top collegiate hurlers injured his left pitching arm while throwing a first inning pitch against Dartmouth Saturday.

The extent of the injury has not yet been determined but it was tentatively diagnosed by UM trainer Vic Keedy as a muscle strain and a possible muscle tear.

Contacted last evening, UM baseball coach, Dick Bergquist could only say, "We'll just have to wait a couple of days to see how Canty's arm feels. He'll be further examined early in the week."

Ironically enough, over a dozen major league scouts had flocked to Amherst to see the big southpaw pitch Saturday. He threw only four pitches before being forced to leave, due to the pain in his arm.

Silverman, Hartwell Victorious in Senate

by NICK COSTA
Senate Reporter

Paul J. Silverman captured the Student Senate Presidency last evening, following a gaping vote over opponent Fred P. Hartwell. Over fourteen speakers boasted support for both candidates.

Sen. Hartwell, congratulated Paul Silverman, and made an effort to unify the Senate: "Paul and I are close friends, and agree on most things...I intend to remain in the Senate...I do not intend to take the football and go home. I will support Paul Silverman...I love the Senate, and I wish Paul the most of luck."

Sen. Hartwell, over-ridden with handshakes of supporters and friends, announced that he would consider the candidacy of the Vice President. Fran Boronski, former Vice President, nominated Hartwell for the office.

Marcus Nominates Silverman

The Senate's newly-elected President, Paul Silverman, holds a well-versed background from Senate committees, leading foremost as Senate Treasurer, and on the Ways and Means Committee. Larry Marcus, once considered as a possible choice for the Presidency, nominated Silverman and emphasized his contact with the student body, he also aired the Senate's need for the support of ALL students, regardless of its faction or direction.

Silverman outlined his goals, with special emphasis on a proposed student 'bill of rights,' a need for academic reform in all areas of education, and the need for students to become an integral part of the Senate and campus reform. Silverman noted that there is a necessity for "social evolution, rather than social reform." He added that he viewed "frustration on campus," and his desire to help become a part of aiding the students to "grow together and work together," to unify and bring change. Silverman stressed his goals as long-natured, feeling that there should be continued endeavor.

Former Pres. Jim Collins revealed his last minute decision to support Silverman, pointing out that he possesses a "sense of humanities" which would "get the most out of his office." Collins added that Hartwell has qualities that could be used and should not be discarded.

Other Senators speaking for newly-elected Silverman included: Pat Smith, Neil Giroux, Jim Moran, Paul Papaluca, Bob Gaudet, Ray Wilson, and Cindy Olken.

Probably the most effective speech, was delivered by Jim Moran who said that "The students' days are numbered" if student government was not continually evolving. Silverman, Moran added, offered a communication with students and the leadership to make it their government.

Hartwell Elected Vice President

Fred Hartwell, in a sweeping victory captured the Vice Presidency after pledging his support to President-elect Paul Silverman.

Hartwell, returning to the Senate Chambers with Sen. Needle and Doucette, who were also nominated, received the news and expressed his devotion to the Senate: "I am overwhelmed that you place this trust in me. I swear before the Senate to do the best of my ability."

Speaking for the Vice-President-elect, while campaigning for the Presidency were Sen.: Brad Johnson, Bob LaTremouille, Chris McGahan, Paul Anderson, Jim Tripp, Fran Boronski, and Joe Kilmartin. Kilmartin later supported Needle in the Vice-President race.

Would Serve As Watchdog

Newly-elected Vice-President Hartwell has an extensive background in UM government. He has aided the Senate in constructing a workable set of by-laws and chaired committees leading to better house and judicial governments. After securing the vice-presidency, Hartwell said that a large portion of his new job, would be to serve as a "watchdog" over committees and help maintain order within the Senate.

Sen. Paul Anderson previously outlined Hartwell's skills as that of "tact and knowledge, to get what we want in the best, most meaningful way."

UMass Trustees Stall On Issue Decisions

By BOB GORMAN
Staff Reporter

Student housing, room rates and open housing were discussed in detail during the monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees Monday afternoon.

The plans to construct several low rise dormitories in the Quad to house 800 students by 1971 and for three buildings to be located in the woods behind the Women's Physical Education tennis courts which will house 1400 students by 1970 were also under discussion.

No action was taken on the proposal to increase all room rates throughout the campus to $210 a semester.

Final vote on the newly proposed student parietals were tabled to the May 3 meeting. Chairman Louis Lyon of the Student Activities Committee said. The proposal calls for each dormitory, sorority and fraternity to vote on the open housing rules that it prefers and enforcement would be based on an honor system.

The architectural firm of John Carvonike Associates presented their original and final plans that will provide a unique residence hall design.

The low rise dormitories in the Quad are designed to retain the atmosphere both in materials and height with the existing dorms. The new buildings will be located in the central area that is used as a connector between North Dining Commons and Women's Physical Education Building. However the proposed structures will be constructed above the ground to allow access to the dining commons and the phys. ed. building.

The proposed dormitories will have clusters of two double rooms and one single room and a general bathroom. The corridors will be 200 feet long but the elevators will be placed in the center of the building, so no student has to walk farther than 100' to get to his room.

The three dormitories that will be located behind the tennis courts will also have room clusters similar to those of the Quad. However, each cluster will accommodate eight or nine students instead of five.

The architect's plans call for the dorms to be kept in the general natural surroundings of the hilly woods. This will provide a unique atmosphere, according to the architect, that will blend in with the natural setting.

John W. Haigis, Chairman of the Trustees Building and Grounds Committee asked for a vote on the plan to allow his committee to start preliminary work on the new dorms. The Trustees voted in favor of the plan.

The Trustees postponed action on the proposed room rate increases because they claimed they had not heard sufficient arguments from both sides. University Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson said that the rental increases are the only way of meeting the cost of new dormitories.

Johnson also told the Trustees that it is also necessary to increase the meal ticket rates from $220 per semester to $245 to meet increasing costs. The Trustees also tabled this matter for later discussion.

Trustee Louis Lyons said that under the proposed open housing plan all participating students must have parental consent, filed with the Dean of Students, and guests would have to check in and out. Also, all students wanting open housing will be located in the same dormitory so that, "people who prefer quiet to sociability will be in one house."

Students Protest Proposed Increase in Room Rents

By ROSE MILLER
Staff Reporter

An orderly demonstration of some 100 students from the traditional dorms was staged at 12:30 p.m. yesterday in front of Whitmore Administration Building, concerning the cross-the-board raising of room rents. Dave Knowlton, one of the spokesmen of the assembled group, explained the developments which led to the demonstration.

After the announcement in Friday's Daily Collegian of the raising of room rent from $150 to $210, for both the traditional and residential dorms, the student group realized that most of the campus had gone home for Easter, that neither the Student Senate nor any student organization was consulted, and that differences in dorm living conditions existed. The group decided to protest this injustice of "equalizing."

Collins Speaks at Meeting

When the students returned from their Easter weekend Sunday night, a meeting of 130 students took place in Van Meter, according to the Central Voice. Mr. Messenger, Assistant Area Coordinator for the Central Area, and Jim Collins, President of the Student Senate, were present at the meeting to explain and voice their opinions on the issue.

Collins stated that he was going before the Board of Trustees to ask them to consider postponement of their decision so that the students can voice their opinions.

To accompany Collins a committee consisting of Dave Knowlton, Doug Lawson, Marguerite Barron, Paul Garant, Dev Cochrane, and Al Ewing was formed. This group organized the meeting outside South Commons at 12:15 yesterday.

For Tri-Partate System

Knowlton called the philosophy behind the protest as "a demonstration for a tri-partate system—not against the rent raise," although one poster read "Want to live in a Ghetto and Pay Penthouse Prices, $150-$210." After the Trustees arrived at 1:55 p.m. they acepted the literature passed out by the silent, poster-carrying students lining the pathway to Whitmore, as they carried the tri-partate issue to the chamber.

After approximately a half hour of coping with other proposals, the Board considered the "equalization" and raise in room rents. It was noted that the original article had come up on April 10. Mr. Healey, representing the Executive Council Board, justified the necessity of raising the room rents by mentioning "the inflation kick." Kenneth Johnson, University Treasurer, expressed the desire that the university keep "the cost of living as low as it is feasible to do so."

President Lederle noted the increase in the building program in the current year. But he also said that financial aid will be offered to students.

Dean Field spoke of the differences in residence halls. He mentioned the fact that Mills and Chadbourne have not received new furniture or painting.

Some members of the board felt the posters calling dorms ghettos, was an "overstatement." As one member said, "no one is living in ghetto conditions around here."

Collins, speaking on the important aspect of the issue, stressed the concern of the students in not being consulted and said that "the students can be powerful allies of the administration."

Discussion on the proposal will be continued to the May 3 meeting of the Board of the Trustees.

In a Daily Collegian interview, Collins expressed his happiness at the delay. He also announced an open meeting at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday in a room to be announced. Collins urged that all students attend and ask questions on the proposed raise and the reasons for it.

News in Brief

BERLIN (AP) — Police and demonstrators fought Monday in streets of Frankfurt and Munich, where leftist crowds tried to halt distribution of Alex Springer's conservative newspapers. Some 150 persons were arrested in disorders in 6 W. German cities.

Police with water cannon were on the alert in W. Berlin, but the city had its first afternoon in four days without a violent demonstration.

Bloody battles developed in Frankfurt, around a plant where Tuesday editions of several Springer papers were printed Springer, the biggest publisher in continental Europe, has been the main target of the German New Left because of the conservative editorial views of his newspapers.

The Socialist Student Federation has accused Springer newspapers of playing an indirect role in the shooting last Thursday of Rudi Dutschke, the federation's leader, by whipping up public opinion against leftist students.

HONOLULU (AP) — Pres. Johnson called on No. Vietnam Monday to promptly make a "serious and considerate reply" to U. S. proposals for a neutral meeting site for peace envoys.

"As of now, we have had no response or comment from Hanoi—other than radio signals — about anyone of the locations we have suggested," Johnson reported.

"For us, this is not a propaganda exercise," Johnson declared in prepared remarks upon his call at Iolani Palace, the Hawaii government, seat during an Asia strategy conference here.

"What is needed now is an equally serious and considerate reply," matching the seriousness of the U.S. offers, the President said. And in stressing his urgency about the need for quick agreement on beginning peace talk preliminaries, he added:

"It is now two long weeks since I restricted our bombing and urged No. Vietnam to come to the conference table.

"We are eager to get on with the task of peace making. Precious time is being lost.

"Asians and Africans alike are ready to let diplomacy go to work—now—without further delay."

Johnson said the U.S. wants "the earliest possible contacts" but preferred a neutral capital where both sides have diplomatic accreditation. Washington has no diplomatic relations with Cambodia while Warsaw is the capital of a Communist E. European country — Poland — sending materials to Hanoi for her war.

The summit session with Park, due Wednesday, is expected to focus also on No. Korea's militantly hostile posture against both So. Korea and the U. S.

BOSTON (AP) —Superior Court Chief Justice G. Joseph Tauro Monday asked the State Supreme Court to decide constitutional questions in a case testing Massachusetts' narcotics laws, particularly as they apply to marijuana.

Judge Tauro ruled in December that marijuana is a "harmful and dangerous drug" and denied motions for dismissal of charges against two Philadelphia men.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley asserted Monday that arsonists should be shot on sight — and he expressed disappointment that Chicago police hadn't been ordered to do so during the recent rioting.

Daley, as angry as City Hall reporters ever had seen him, also implied that a conspiracy figured in the disorders that began Friday, April 5.

"I was disappointed that there weren't instructions to shoot arsonists," he told a news conference.

"An arsonist is a murderer. He should be shot right on the spot," the mayor asserted.

"If anybody doesn't think it was a conspiracy, he should go out and take a look at it," the mayor said.

He apparently referred to burned areas on the West Side, where many buildings in the fire zone were spared.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—17 Democratic governors talked politics for 2½ hours Monday, but agreed only that they will "observe the events of history" in the next few months and then decide individually who they think the party should nominate for the White House.

Gov. John B. Williams, Miss., abstained and said "The statement says nothing." The governors had said in advance they expected no decision on candi-

Alternate Course Scheduling To Be Tried in September

A system of "flagged" courses will be instituted on a trial basis this fall with the intent of reducing to some extent the frustration and the amount of time necessary to replace courses dropped from students' schedules due to lack of space.

In the schedule of courses booklet a number of courses will be marked with a crosshatching in the course number and credits column. These will be referred to as "flagged" courses. Some of these courses are proposed on a provisional basis (PROV.) and may be cancelled before the semester begins.

Others are courses in which overenrollment is expected — courses in which the rate of growth of the student body has been faster than the increase of facilities to the extent that it is impossible to accommodate all of the students who may wish to enroll in a given semester.

To adjust to these difficulties, each student who pre-registers for a flagged course should submit an alternate pre-registration card which will pre-register him for another course in the event that he is not admitted to the flagged course. This would relieve him of signing up for the replacement course on Registration Day

Priority System Used

In deciding which students will be admitted to an overenrolled course, the priority system used on this campus seems to provide a more sensible approach than a system which accepts the first students up to the capacity of the course and then rejects all who apply thereafter.

The University's priority system rates the students within a course according to those for whom it is a requirement, those for whom it is recommended, and those for whom it is a pure elective. Within each priority group, students are ranked according to their class in college with seniors given first preference.

Alternative Registration Card

Submission of an alternate pre-registration card will not in any way affect a student's priority rating for a course—it will eliminate the inconvenience of adding a course on Registration Day.

Alternate pre - registration cards may be obtained from the Registrar's Office (Whitmore Administration Building), the various Deans' Offices, CASIAC, and departmental offices. A separate card is to be completed for each flagged course elected. Cards are to be returned to Registrar's Office with the pre-registration card.

Dr. Drum and Students Meet Each Other in Union

By JOHN JANICKI
Staff Reporter

Editor's note: Yesterday afternoon Dr. Ryan Drum of the Botany Department conducted an informal "Meet the Professor" session in the Student Union. It had the same amosphere as many of his Botany 101 lectures.

Drum in a white frock, wearing a black bowler, peeling apples, throwing apples. Three films, slides, music, slow, fast, forwards, backwards. He stands, he sits, he lies down. "Meet the Prof." says the sign. "Drum plays the fool."

Is this a put on? What isn't? Everything gets thrown into the fireplace; rags, apple cores, a punch glass, someone's shoe. The film on the left, mechanized agriculture, thoughtless farming, erosion. The stuff in the middle; 'sylvan glens', mountains, streams, south sea island girls. The film on the right; ragged men scraping the earth trying not to starve. "Do you make a connection between the two worlds," shouts Dr. Drum above the noise.

The pretty woman and the tall man fiddle with the electronic gear, Drum makes an adjustment. Drum passes around food and drink. Some sit, some stand, some listen, some study, some stare blankly. Later Drum says "if you're happy being what you are, doing what you do, that's what counts. "Drum plays the fool?"

Soviet Union Successful in Unmanned Space Ship Link-up

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union, apparently preparing to put men into space again, reported a successful linkup Monday of two unmanned spaceships. After 3 hours and 50 minutes they were separated.

Informed sources said a launching involving men is expected soon.

Monday's linkup, duplicating a feat first performed by the Soviet Union Oct. 30, was made by Cos-212 and Cosmas 213. The time of the linkup was 20 minutes longer than the previous one but there were no announced significant differences between the two.

The flight patterns of these two indicated they are of the new Soyuz type.

Cosmonaut Vladimir M. Komarov crashed last April 2 in the first manned Soyuz flight. Soviet space authorities said then the Soyuz type would be used again after defects were corrected.

Komarov's death seemed to induce extreme caution in the Soviet space program. This could explain why a second remote-controlled linkup by unmanned spaceships was carried out before a new manned launching.

U.S. Attempts

The United States achieved the first manned space linkup 2½ years ago. While that country was progressing in space the Soviet Union slowed down and lost its lead.

Tass Monday said unmanned linkups are "immeasurably more complicated scientific and technical tasks, in the opinion of specialists, than the docking of a manned ship with an artificial satellite."

SILVERMAN . . .

Past - Pres. Jim Collins added that this year's candidates seemed to be closer to the student body than in former years. He pointed out that the Silverman-Hartwell ticket offer combined the skills of two good Senators.

Running mates Sen Doucette and Needle extended congratulations, and united behind the elected officers.

Miss Olken Re-elected Secretary

Receiving more than a landslide vote, Cindy Olken was re-elected Secretary of the Student Senate after nomination by Sen. Anita Smith. Sen. Jim Moran offered his congratulations.

Gauthier Elected Treasurer

Closing the Senate elections, Alan Gauthier was elected Treasurer. Running against him was Brad Johnson who is presently serving on the Budgets Committee. The race for Treasurer included a total of eight supporting speeches for the candidates. Neil Giroux, supporting Gauthier appropriately said "clear your vision, at midnight, to see your way to vote for Al." Johnson pledged continued work with the Budgets Committee and firm congratulations to Gauthier.

Paul DeMarino, Chief of the General Court, served as Chairman of the Elections, while Dick Wimberly served as Parliamentarian.

"Birth Control, Religion and the Law" will be discussed on Open Forum tonight over WMUA at 9:30 p.m. Dr. Drum and Mr. Barber will have as their guests clergymen from the three principle denominations and lawyers from the area.

Those interested can join the discussion at any time by calling either 545-2876 or 545-2425.

Trustees Hear Discussion On Yahoo, Boston Site, Antenna

By BOB GORMON
Staff Reporter

University Trustees spent a busy afternoon Tuesday in Whitmore Hall discussing and voting a number of proposals from Yahoo to an antenna for the proposed education television station Channel 57.

Discussion on Yahoo centered on the magazine's responsibility to the University community. Trustee Joseph P. Healy, of Arlington, said that Yahoo did irreparable damage to the University and that it will take a long time to live down the public dissatisfaction created when Sen. Kevin Harrington of Salem exhibited a copy of the humor magazine in a State Finance Committee meeting.

Pete Ward drew an analogy between Baker House, which he said is called the "animal house," and Yahoo. Ward told the Trustees that the mere mention of Yahoo puts most University officials on the defensive.

Instead of changing the name of Baker House or Yahoo to make discussion of either easier, they should be changed within. The make-up organization should be changed since that is where the problem lies, said Ward, not in the name.

Senate President Jim Collins said that if the Trustees don't authorize Yahoo to publish on campus it will move off campus and will call itself Yahoo and will have the same staff of the present Yahoo.

"The problem is whether you want the magazine to publish off-campus without any University supervision or on campus to have some supervision," said Collins.

Trustee John W. Haigis of Greenfield, Chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee told the Board that final site recommendations on a UMass-Boston site are forthcoming.

He said that the Board is having a hard time getting the public and Boston officials to understand the meaning of an urban campus. Haigis said that an urban campus is located in the city and is not surrounded by grass as the Amherst campus is.

Sites under consideration for permanent construction for UMass Boston include the areas of North Station, the Columbia Point Housing Project, Fenway Park, Park Square—where the UMass Boston is presently located—and the Watertown Arsenal.

Haigis did not give indication of site preference. However, each of the sites will meet with some problems. The location in the Columbia Point Project will integrate UMB with existing structures presently used as apartments.

Use of the old Watertown Arsenal will depend on the government's plans for the site and also a change in the Board's plans for a core city university. Park Sq. has met opposition due to its prime location, and the Fenway Park and North Station sites will have to be cleared with the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority, which owns part of both sites.

In other action the Trustees approved a tentative agreement with the U.S. Coast Guard for lease of federal land on Plum Island in Gloucester for Marine Science studies. The lease will be of no cost to the University and final approval depends on the Coast Guard plans for the former lifeguard station.

Finally a proposed agreement for the erection of a television antenna on top of Mt. Tom in Holyoke was endorsed by the Trustees. The Antenna will be used for transmission for the proposed Channel 57, educational television. It will cost $2500 a year for use of the lighting and power facilities of WHYN Television and Radio which has its transmission facilities there also.

Musigals Will Appear at Tufts Sing and UMass Mili Ball

The Musigals, UMass's woman's singing group, will be performing on April 20th at Tufts University in its Intercollegiate Sing. The program will include groups from Pembroke, Dartmouth, Trinity, Tufts and Jackson.

Appeared Throughout State

All year, but this semester in particular, the Musigals have been featured entertainers throughout the state. On February 9th, they performed at the High Point Motor Inn in Chicopee in a musical revue sponsored by the Hampshire District Medical Association.

On February 17th, the girls made their first trip to Boston for MIT's Jog Jam, which featured, in addition to the Musigals, Cornell's Sherwoods, the Injunaires of Dartmouth, Harvard's Krokadilloes, Vassar's G-Stringers and the Logarhythms of MIT. The groups performed for a crowd of 900 people, and the concert was also broadcast over WGBH radio.

Place First in Sing

In March, the Musigals competed in the Berkshire Bowl Collegiate sing held in Pittsfield, and placed first over groups from Smith, Mt. Holyoke and Springfield College. The girls also sang at the Nonesuch Variety Show held in the Student Union March 2nd for the benefit of Upward Bound.

Many consider their unique arrangements of such favorites as "Scarborough Fair," "Softly, As I Leave You," "Feelin' Groovy," their classical twists, and some pretty funny spoofs make top-notch entertainment.

They will be performing on campus both at Mili Ball and at UMass's Inter-Collegiate Sing later this spring.

These dignified young ladies comprise the Musigals, UMass's woman's singing group.

Change, Become American

You have killed Martin Luther King. I have seen you before, you killed John Kennedy. I know you well, you executed Sacco and Vanzetti, you shot Mrs. Liuzzo and hung Leo Frank.

You are the people who listen to George Wallace and applauded George Lincoln Rockwell. You are the Bull Connors and Ross Barnetts. The more refined of you are the Louise Day Hicks's, and Barry Goldwater's and your followers. You are the scared and the cowardly, you fear because you know that you are wrong, and because you are wrong you are fearful and you hate. You have no courage. You call those who differ from you in belief or appearance nigger, kike, ginny or catlicker.

You say that you try to preserve Americanism, but by your hatefulness you tear it down and subvert America's ideals, you lower the dignity of your country, your fellowman—and yourself.

Who am I. I am Lincoln, I am Louis Brandeis, I am Andrew Goodman, Michael Schwerner and James Chaney, I am Gandhi and Martin Luther King. I am America.

There is a book by a Negro—"This is my Country too." Today this is no longer true—this is MY country, period, and I am telling you to get out. There is no place for you here, George Wallace, and followers. You can change and become an American or you can get out; go with Hitler, Verwoerd, Ian Smith and Kenyata. I am young and educated, I am concerned with my fellow man and I love my country—really love it. Thomas Jefferson did not live in vain, America can be a free country, it will be, so change with it, or be left behind.

The Letters From Prison

7 April 19—

Cher Bettnoir,

Racked on the fertile lawn, I, murdered. It is the middle of the afternoon. It is sunny. I am a child of the earth and will. . . . the warm wind assaulting my cheeks.

I have genuine love and genuine hatred; I am the rodent and the sturgeon; I am the sunshine and the yellow ice; I am the siamese blue, the prison wall of glass. I am all of these because I am human. I have dreams of silence; I have a heart beyond the universe's stones. I have visions of warmth and madness and life.

Beginning the 1,000-Mile Journey

(ACP) — The Peace Corps has been one victim of the revulsion many students feel toward the "establishment," comments the University of Pittsburg's Pitt News.

Because it is a government agency, the newspaper continued in an editorial, people tend to identify it with Johnson administration policies and thus dismiss it. This is unfair, because the Peace Corps exemplifies the kind of solution being advocated by many Vietnam war critics — namely, a means whereby underdeveloped nations can be strengthened on the grass roots level through education and economic development.

This winter's crop of recruiters has noted that large campuses are not as responsive to the Peace Corps as they once were; it is as if a feeling of disillusionment has set in. We think this is a correct analysis; we see the futility, the feeling that one cannot change the status quo, in other situations, such as participation in student government elections.

We cannot criticize this alienation too harshly, because there are valid reasons for it. Too many hopes have not been realized. A recent survey of college students asking them to name a hero showed that many were unable to cite anyone. The void left by President Kennedy's death has not been filled. On all fronts, whether national politics or the Negro revolution, the "promises to keep" have not been kept.

Resignation is too easy to accept — and for too dangerous. It is lamentable that so many of us accept defeat so quickly. The war in Vietnam will not end automatically. The establishment in Washington will not alter its course in response to our disillusionment. But that does not bar us from making our mark.

If we remain armchair critics, are we not really accepting the status quo? Why not take the other alternative and make a contribution through the Peace Corps or VISTA ? Then we will have begun the thousand-mile journey — we will have taken the vital first step.

Lack of Humanity Marks High Offices

To the Editor:

As one of those who accompanied Mr. Ohlendorf on Thursday night (April 4), and was with him during his futile conversations with President Lederle and Provost Tippo, I would like to amplify the sentiments of the letter which appeared in Tuesday's Collegian.

One of the hallmarks of stupidity and lack of intelligence is the inability to adapt behavior to a new situation. The inability of the President and the Provost to respond adequately to the death of Reverend King displayed the appalling nature of their narrow-mindedness and inflexibility.

Were any student or faculty member in doubt, he now possesses a sterling example of the lack of humanity in the highest offices at this University.

King and Malcolm X, Who is a Hero?

To the Editor:

To be American is something very abstract and can change depending on the desires and the aspirations of the "American." To be black is something concrete and visible—it cannot be changed. If a person hates an abstract thing, he hates it with the hope that he will be comfortable after changing it—probably for the better. Or he himself can be convinced to change from hating it to liking it. If a person hates a concrete thing, and hates it with the hope that he will be comfortable after it had been REMOVED from his sights; if it cannot be removed, he will be very uncomfortable and, in order to be comfortable, he has to make all necessary efforts to learn to live with it. This has been the relationship between white and black in this country. The honest Abraham Lincoln had frankly put this situation in these words: "My race, poor Negroes, suffers greatly from your presence. It is better for us, therefore, to be separated."

"After seeing that it was impossible to remove a black man and thereby comforting the white race, a second step was taken — that of learning to live with him. It was a long and hard step, and it is a long and hard step. In this long and hard step the hated Negro had to play his role and his role was that of begging, "Please, don't hate me; learn to live with me." It is not wrong to say (forgive my language) that King was the leader of these beggars.

There has, however, emerged a new type of leadership among the hated Negroes. This leadership does not beg but it challenges: "If you hate my existence, my dear friend, I have no alternative but to fight for it." It is not wrong to say that Malcolm X was the leader of these challengers. To those who wanted to live with the hated at their will, Malcolm X and his followers are "real madmen." To those who realize the importance of the existence of the hated, Malcolm X was the torch for awakening.

King led the begging movement. Malcolm X led the challenging movement. Both King and Malcolm X are dead now. Malcolm X dies; very few people mourn his death and one knows, "Yes, the problem is still here; Malcolm X has not solved it. Why should he be worshiped like a hero?" And yet Afro-American "radicals" take him as their hero. King dies; the whole nation (or the world) mourns his death, and one concludes, "Well, if anybody understands that what he was standing for was right and noble, then there is no problem." And yet on honoring him we hear people telling the very people who honor him to change their attitudes and carry on his mission. To whom will they carry this mission?

What puzzles me then is: What makes one a hero?

Pauling's Speech Lacked Humanity

To the Editor:

While I have great respect for Linus Pauling's intellect and welcome his suggestion that people be genetically typed and that couples about to marry be informed of their likelihood of producing a defective child, I feel the designation of his lecture last night (April 10) as a memorial to Martin Luther King, Jr. is open to question. A man who even jokingly suggests persons with certain genetic make-ups be tattooed "heterozygous sickle cell anemia" and who preaches a moral obligation to insure the quality of the germ plasm has little of the late Dr. King's humanity.

Dr. King's active love for those who persecuted him and eventually took his life could not stem from any rational ethic. Dr. King is one of a very few people in all of Christian history who have actually carried out the demands of the Sermon on the Mount. In comparison with Dr. King's martyrdom, Dr. Pauling's pride in his own ability to deduce the Golden Rule and his rather flattering description of the historical Jesus as a man with as great an intellect and the same outlook as Dr. Pauling seems a little foolish. While I applaud Dr. Pauling's brilliance, acknowledge his deep interest in mankind, and am grateful for the significant contributions he has made, I feel he and Martin Luther King are not in the same class. The lecture committee will be lucky to find two or three people in each century who could deliver a fitting memorial to Martin Luther King.

Recent Past of Suspected King Murderer Becomes More Clear

By DON McKEE
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A boarding house owner disclosed Monday he told FBI agents investigating the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. that drawings of a man they were hunting closely resembled a roomer named Eric Galt.

"That's the man. The resemblance is close enough, I'm sure," said Peter Cherpes, 72, owner of the South Side boarding house where he said an Eric Galt lived for six weeks last fall, then dropped from sight.

Developments Monday brought a deepening mystery to the background of the man called Eric Galt. He had said he was employed at a Mississippi shipyard, but there was no record of his name on the employee list.

In Louisiana, where Galt had said he held a driver's license, there was no such record on state files. It was much the same story with other efforts to trace Galt.

Identifies FBI Drawing

Cherpes said he identified FBI drawings very similar to one composed by a newspaper artist from descriptions of a man seen fleeing the assassination scene April 14 in Memphis Tenn.

The FBI declined to comment.

But, within a week after King's slaying, the FBI was hunting a man identified as Eric Starvo Galt, whose last known address was the Birmingham boarding house. The hunt had spread into several states.

An FBI "locate and notify" alert for Galt was put out last Thursday over the Florida police network, but was withdrawn four hours later as erroneous. At the same time, FBI agents impounded in Atlanta a white Ford Mustang with an Alabama tag issued to Eric Starvo Galt.

The abandoned Mustang matched the description of a suspected getaway car in Memphis.

Quiet and Friendly

The boarder was "nice and friendly, quiet," said Cherpes. He described Galt as about 6 feet tall, 165-175 pounds, with blue eyes and light brown hair, a neat dresser and a man who kept mostly to himself.

No Employment Record

Galt said he was employed by a shipbuilding firm, Cherpes stated, and thought it was "Ingalls iron works." Ingalls shipbuilding is at Pascagoula. A check by The Associated Press, trailing the FBI, produced no record of an employee named Eric Galt.

Cherpes said his boarder left in early August saying he had a job "in the ships" at Mobile Ala.

The Birmingham Post Office could give no forwarding address for Eric Starvo Galt. But a duplicate driver's license in that name was mailed to the boarding house address last March 1—nearly seven months after Galt had gone. State records in Montgomery showed the license was mailed upon request made in person or by telephone and was not returned through the mail.

Little trace of Galt has been found otherwise, except for a safety deposit box he rented at Birmingham Trust National Bank. He went to the bank to open the box in August and again to turn in the keys in December—more than a month after he left Cherpes' place.

Worship and Modern World Study Group Formed Here

A study group has been formed for interested students of all denominations on the subject of "What does worship mean in a modern world?". Meetings will be on Tuesday nights at 7:00 in 319 Hampshire house (WFCR) and will be held weekly. Anyone interested please contact either Rev. John Scott (Hampshire 545-2661) or Bob Ingalls (James House 546-8968).

UMass Ad Hoc Group Responds to King's Death

"What Will You Do?" was the title of a handbill distributed at the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Service held last Tuesday morning. It called for all members of the University community to act out their response to the events of the past two weeks.

As individuals persons were asked to question local businesses about discrimination, send letters to their Congressmen, give of their money and become aware of the racism of American society. Various projects already in existence such as curriculum change, tutoring black students, working in Upward Bound or Project Equality and helping to develop new structures of university community education were emphasized as ways to become involved with others.

Ad Hoc Group Formed

According to Ron Hardy of the United Christian Foundation staff, an ad hoc group formed at the beginning of the week to act as a coordinating agency for various avenues of response to Dr. King's death. He says, "We felt that the service on Tuesday would have been a sacrilege if there were no ways to act and make concrete all the words spoken about Dr. King. The black community is now waiting to see whether whites forget the tragedy of April 4."

The group of more than 20 students and faculty will exist only long enough to coordinate the responses made Tuesday and decide how new projects may be structured at the University.

Monetary Necessity

Of immediate importance is the necessity to raise money for those who will go to North Carolina to help register Negro voters there next week. Hardy says that a number of students are willing to go but funds are at the moment unavailable. Anyone wishing to contribute should either contact Hardy at 5-0842 or 5-2661 or leave their contribution at the Martin Luther King Memorial Fund table in the Student Union lobby.

The ad hoc group encourages all who have not registered their desire to act in some way but would like to, to contact the group.

Aerospace Briefing Team To Visit Campus

Major David L. Oakes, Professor of Air Science at UMass, announced yesterday that one of the most respected briefing teams in the aerospace field, the Aerospace Presentations Team from the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama, will highlight the activities of the United States Space Program at 11:15 a.m. on April 25 in Bowker Auditorium.

Hard Hitting, Fast Moving

These much sought-after Air Force officers are chosen for their ability to present a hard-hitting, fast-moving, articulate picture of what has been done, is being done, and will be done in space, Oakes further stated.

Topics include the development and capabilities of rocket propulsion systems, the investigation of space using unmanned space systems that will benefit mankind, and the current and future manned space systems including the Apollo mission to the moon.

Over 300 Appearances

Color slides and dramatic movie clips, many of which were made in space, will illustrate the projects discussed by the three-man team, one of two briefing teams who travel extensively to meet the public demands. Last year the team made over 300 different stage, radio, and television appearances before audiences numbering in the millions. In 1964, the teams received the Hoyt S. Vandenberg Trophy for "distinguished service to the nation in the field of aerospace education."

The Department of Air Science is sponsoring the visit of this team and Oakes expressed the hope that many in the University community can be present on the 25th to enjoy this interesting program.

Administrators from the housing office and food service will be present at Wednesday's meeting of the Student Senate to answer questions pertaining to the proposed room and board increases.

Engineering Dept. Head Named ASME Fellow

Dr. Merrit P. White, left, Commonwealth head of the UMass Dept. of civil engineering, has been named a Fellow of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He is being presented with an ASME certificate by Dean Kenneth G. Picha of the UM School of Engineering. A member of the UM faculty since 1948 and department head since 1951, Dr. White is internationally known for his research into the effects on structures of high-intensity forces such as nuclear blasts and earthquakes. The fellowship certificate is an honor conferred on ASME members for outstanding professional achievement.

Young Republican Club Active Across Nation Now

The Young Republicans have been active lately across the nation as can be shown by the activity of Young Republican Club President of UMass, Marty Tinker.

During the spring vacation he attended a Y. R. Mock State Convention of Indiana at Notre Dame. There he worked on the Volpe for Vice-President campaign committee. The convention nominated Senator Mark Hatfield of Oregon for President and Gov. John Volpe of Massachusetts for Vice President. This ticket showed the trend of the feelings of the Young Republicans towards dissatisfaction of present national policy in domestic and international affairs.

Sen. Hatfield represented this because of his dove policies and his conservative policies in domestic afairs such as balancing the budget. His views on the Negro situation would be that they must work for themselves with the help of beneficial government aid.

Convention at Princeton

Last weekend students from the Five College Area attended a Y. R. Convention at Princeton University. Tinker headed a Lindsay for President Movement. Allen Tenzel of Holy Cross headed the Nixon Movement and Anita Jordan worked for Gov. Romney who was sympathetic and well versed in the current Negro-White problem. The second balloting produced the following result: Rockefeller 154, Nixon 78, Lindsay 11 and Percy 4.

The Convention came out for the withdrawal of troops from Vietnam in anticipation of a peaceful settlement of the war. They also stressed the use of force to prevent the looting, killing and rioting of various elements in our society by the use of local, state and federal law enforcing groups. It was agreed that the Negro Community opinions concerning these matters must be heeded and that they must invest in their own cause.

On April 24, Lt. Gov. Francis W. Sargeant will be coming to the University to speak to the general student body in the Colonial lounge at the Student Union. There will be a speech and then a question and answer period. This period will be left open to bring forth any student problems or to discuss other interesting topics.

He is being brought here by the Young Republicans of U-Mass. There will be a reception for the Lt. Governor at the Lord Jeffrey Inn at 8 o'clock which the public is invited to attend.

There will be a National Student Leadership Conference at Boston College May 4th. At the conference will be numerous seminars on various leadership problems and on various national problems. Any interested are welcome to attend.

Organizational Meeting for McCarthy Campaign Wednesday

An organizational meeting for students interested in McCarthy will be held on Wednesday, April 24, in the Council Chambers of the Student Union at 8:00 p.m. John Fitzgerald, a candidate for delegate to the national convention who was at the meeting on April 10, will be a speaker. Questions and opinions about McCarthy's stand on certain issues will be welcomed.

On April 5, twenty-two U-Mass students went to Hartford to canvass for the Connecticut primaries. On April 13 several students canvassed locally. Both of these groups reported success in reaching the people.

A major canvassing drive in Holyoke is planned for Patriot's Day weekend, the last weekend before the April 30th primaries. Canvassers will meet on Friday, April 19 and Saturday, April 20, at 9:00 a.m. in front of the Student Union.

Money collected from the several fund-raising activities will be donated to the "Millions for McCarthy" headquarters in Boston. This organization heads the nationwide campus fund-raising drive for McCarthy. "Millions for McCarthy" buttons will be available for a contribution at the "McCarthy Table" in the Student Union.

Dustin Hoffman, noted actor of "The Graduate" will appear at Green Hall of Smith College at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, April 20. Admission will be $1.00 and tickets will be on sale at the Union McCarthy Table and at the door.

A Performing Arts Festival is scheduled for Monday, April 22, at 8:00 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. A presentation of "Alice's Restaurant" will also be included.

The program will include a presentation of John M. Synge's one-act play "In the Shadow of the Glen" by the Amherst High School Players. Richard Webber, Irish poet-in-residence at Southwest College will also read from his poetry.

List of Senate Absentees for February through April Released

The Public Relations Committee of the Student Senate suggests that students check the attendance records of their senators at the actual senate meetings and at committee meetings. Any more than one or two absences means that the constituents are not being adequately represented and five absences are cause for dismissal. Although the committee attendance is good, it is the Senate attendance which is the vital function of the senators.

Below is the attendance record of Febru ary 1 to April 1.

UMass Group Participates in Oceanographic-Research Trip

A UMass group became deep-water sailors for four days recently, taking part in a UMass fisheries biology program that provides practical experience in oceanographic research techniques.

The 10-member UMass group took part in a cruise from Miami to Charleston, S.C., on the Eastward, a 118-foot diesel ocean research vessel maintained by Duke University and the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Charles F. Cole, chairman of the fisheries biology program at UMass, headed the party, assisted by Dr. Roger J. Reed, adjunct associate professor. According to Dr. Cole: "The intent of the trip was to show students what can be done with ocean research gear and what practical problems must be overcome in deep water research programs."

Assist In Deep Sea Operations

The UMass group assisted in typical deep sea collecting operations. As the research vessel's crew handled plankton nets, trawl nets and other gear, the students sorted out the catches, cleaned nets, recorded what was netted and preserved specimens for shipment to Amherst.

Educational Experience

The nets brought in a great variety of marine life, from the tiny forms that live in and around floating Sargasso weed clumps of the Gulf Stream to massive rays "so big all you could do was look at them and hoist them back over the side," one member of the party said.

Tropic and subtropic waters are a completely different environment than the colder waters off the New England coast, according to Dr. Cole, and catching fish in such waters is an entirely different educational experience. Most of the specimens collected on the cruise are earmarked for ichthyological research at various UMass laboratories.

Members of the UMass group also took their turns standing watches at radar and depth gear, helped keep records and learned to use specialized oceanographic equipment. They also learned how a small vessel rolls in rough water during the 80-hour voyage. On the last night out, the Eastward was rolling so much that it was impossible to stay in the bunks, one member of the party recalled.

Students taking part were: James A. Cooper of Granger, Wash.; David S. Crestin of Roxbury, Mass.; David W. Freme of Abington, Mass.; Albert C. Hine of Lyme, Conn.; John G. Holsapple of Hudson, N.Y.; Glenn R. Piehler of Union, N.J.; Roderick M. Smith of East Longmeadow, Mass.; and Jay F. Watson of Belmont, Calif.

Third Such Trip

This is the third year that a fisheries biology group has been granted time aboard the research vessel. Dr. Cole called it a unique educational experience for students and faculty and financially equivalent to a $5000 grant to the University. Next year's cruise will depart from San Juan, Puerto Rico, January 22 and arrive at Port of Prince, Martinique, January 27. This cruise will be open to qualified students and faculty from the University's new Marine Sciences program; if space is available interested students or faculty from the other area colleges are welcome to attend.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nationwide phone strike of some 200,000 workers next Thursday appears inevitable, Pres. Joseph A. Beirne of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers said Monday.

"It would take a miracle at this point to reach agreement without a strike against the Bell Telephone System," Beirne said after a 7 - hr. meeting of the union's Executive Board.

Student Recital of Vocal And Instrumental Music Tonight

A program of instrumental and vocal music will be presented at a UMass student recital tomorrow, at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

The first performance of Dr. Philip Bezanson's Contrasts will be a special feature of the program. Dr. Bezanson, chairman of the UMass music department, composed music for three poems written by poets Herrick, Blake and Gunderson. The poems are Herrick's Delight in Disorder, Blake's Mad Song, and Gunderson's How the Baby Pigeon comes to do What Everyone Wants after he knows through Bugs That they really Love Him. Soprano Dorothy Dadmun will sing the verses accompanied by Roger Spadafora on the piano.

Two old English airs will be performed by Patricia Chiang, a soprano, and Phyllis Gotlieb. The tunes are entitled My Lovely Celia and Shepherd, Thy Demeanor Vary.

Four piano solos by music students will also be featured on the program. Gail Sakaris will play Debussy's La Fille aux Cheveux de Lin; Carol Miller will perform Brahms' Rhapsody, Op. 70, No. 2; Blanche Lagasse will present Debussy's La Cathedral Engloutie; and Raymonde Sullivan will play Mozart's Sonata No. 42 in C Major.

Golfers Swing Into Springfield Opening

UMass golfer in sand trap

By PETER PASCARELLI

Staff Reporter

With only two lettermen returning, the UMass golf team appears to be lacking in experience. But, as 45 year old Roberto De Vicenzo so strikingly proved at the Masters' Tournament, experience isn't everything.

UMass golf coach Dick Page hopes that though some team members lack playing experience, this will not hinder the squad as it goes into its season opener today at Springfield against Springfield College.

The returning veterans, whom Page calls "probably the two best golfers we have," are senior captain Bob Nowak and junior Erik Lekberg. Behind these two are several fine performers who are question marks due to their absences from the game.

One of these needs no introduction: basketball star Gary Gasperack. Gasperack hasn't played golf competitively for two years, but Coach Page said, "He really helped in his freshman year and should be one of the top performers on the team."

Another two-sport participant on the squad is track high-jumper John Ariensen. Ariensen played in a couple of matches last year, and Page said that "he could give us a lot of help."

Bill Dinsmore, who has been in the service for five years is expected to be one of the top seven golfers. Dinsmore was the leading player for UMass in his sophomore year.

Rounding out the top six golfers is Keith Queneville, a sophomore whose home course is the Orchard at which UMass plays its home matches. "He is just coming around," said Coach Page, "But he'll play better as the season goes along."

Competing for the other positions are six men who will all see some action. They include, Dick Barber, a sophomore, Paul Jonson, a junior who also lettered in soccer, basketball player and sophomore, Dick Starsiak, Eric Mushovic, Joe Di Didinoto, and Richard Little, who was the leading golfer as a freshman and then has not played for two years.

In assessing his team as a whole, Coach Page says, "We don't have a lot of experience and we lack one really outstanding golfer. However," Page went on, "we have a lot of guys who can shoot between 76 and 82. This gives us good balance."

Coach Page added that he would have a much better idea of how his team is shaping after this week, which besides the Springfield match includes matches with Vermont and Dartmouth.

Snakebeaters Slay Dean Junior

FRANKLIN — Unleashing an overwhelming offense, the UMass Freshman lacrosse team trounced an outmanned Dean Junior College team 20-0 Saturday in the season opener.

The impressive win brought a comment of "an outstanding job" from frosh coach John Bamberry.

The balanced attack was led by attackman Mike Henry who poured in four goals and added five assists. The overall 20 goal attack was almost evenly split between attackers and midfielders: the attack scored 11 goals and the midfield had nine.

Defensively, UMass turned aside any and all Dean attempts to score. Led by goalie John Orr, who, along with Al Ruggiano was elected co-captain of the freshman lacrosse team, defense preserved the shutout.

Friday afternoon at the varsity lacrosse field, the somewhat inexperienced Little Redmen will have a much more difficult task in store for them. They will meet Wesleyan University, a school noted for its fine lacrosse teams. A more realistic estimate of UMass strength will be determined after this game.

Linus Pauling Speaks In D.V.P. Lecture Series

Scientific Discoveries Highlight Lecture

By JOHN JANICKI
Staff Reporter

Dr. Linus Pauling, delivering one in a series of lectures dealing with "Scientific Discovery: Its Impact Upon Man", linked the birth and development of a rational science based upon reason to the progressive displacement of superstition and dogma.

Pauling spoke of the emergence of rationality in science approximately 200 years ago, from the first tentative investigation of geologic deposits leading to the discovery of fossilization and eventually to the revolutionary propositions of Darwin.

Dr. Pauling's own work with hemoglobin on the molecular level led to his finding significant and interesting evolutionary connections between almost all sorts of life. Comparisons made primarily with the beta chain polypeptide in the hemoglobin molecule demonstrates the position of life forms relative to human beings on the evolutionary scale.

Sea life appears to be most distantly related, mammals such as cows and horses are somewhat closer on the scale and life forms such as the rhesus monkey may be separated by a single amino acid residue on the 146 member chain. Pauling cited work with cytachrome-c which indicates evolutionary links between not only 'higher' and 'lower' forms of life, but also with what is considered 'non-living' substances.

Sickle Cell Anemia

Investigation of sickle cell anemia in the equatorial belt of Africa proved that men heterozygous with the sickle cell gene are generally immune to malaria. This immunity came about through the mutation of a former gene, for the population to exhibit a 60% incidence of this immunity condition the mutations would have had to have continued over a period of 25,000 years, when computed on a basis of one in 50,000 originally. The realization that this genetic development occured over such an extended length of time buttresses the theory of evolution.

Darwin's and subsequent scientific discoveries have been "extremely important in eliminating superstition about man and his world." "This type of work permits us to understand natural world history and to learn the place of man in this scheme and perhaps his place in the future," Pauling concluded.

Baird Campaign Continues; Boston Plans Formulated

The campaign by UMass students to aide Bill Baird's fight against the Massachusetts State Birth Control Law continued today, as students obtained the services of an Amherst attorney, David Burres, to explore possible legal avenues open to students in their case against Zayre's.

The attorney was hired in behalf of several student groups seeking to prove that the State's Birth Control Law is not enforced fairly. A collection will be held to gather funds to pay for the lawyer's services.

Legal action will come about next week, as Mr. Burres determines the specific form of protest to be filed. This, according to the leaders of the campaign, is essential in order that the protest, when filed, is air tight.

In other related developments, the trip to Boston to confront Governor Volpe with the Birth Control problem has been tentively set for April 30 (counselling day).

A panel of three students will appear on Bob Kennedy's "Campus Contact" on Boston's WBZ radio this Sunday night, to discuss the recent events of the Birth Control issue at UMass.

Atlanta Cabby Identifies FBI Suspect in King Killing

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—An Atlanta taxi driver said Tuesday night he hauled a man matching an FBI sketch on a short trip in northeast Atlanta the night after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was slain.

The driver, who asked that his name not be used, said an FBI agent questioned him about another fare he had on Friday night, April 5, before showing him the sketch which he immediately identified.

He said he recognized the sketch, which appeared to be a composite photograph, as a man he had picked up at a coffee shop in Atlanta's "hippie" district and carried two blocks.

The driver said the man appeared to be in a hurry.

"He told me to make a right hand turn, and he'd let me know when to stop," the driver said. "I went about two blocks, and he told me he wanted to get out.

"When I stopped, he opened the door, and I turned around to make sure I got my fare. I got a good look at him. I put my hand out, but he threw the money on the seat and it fell on the floor," the driver said. "That made me mad. That's the main reason I remember him so well."

"He just seemed to be in a hurry," the driver said, adding that he did not know where the man went after leaving the cab.

The taxi driver's report came as FBI agents continued an intensive search for the assassin

Asian Allies Agree With LBJ Peace Move

HONOLULU (AP)—U.S. authorities portrayed President Johnson and South Korea's President Chung Hee Park Tuesday as in general accord on Johnson's move to get peace talks going with North Vietnam.

They reported also that no message from Hanoi has yet arrived in response to U.S. proposals listing four neutral Asian capitals as possible sites for preliminary peace talks.

And they labeled as premature a suggestion, attributed in news reports to South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Do, for a summit meeting of the Vietnam allies in advance of substantive peace negotiations with the Reds.

The U.S. officials said this question had not been reviewed here, but it would seem too early to consider bringing the heads of the seven allied governments together on negotiations strategy before it is known when there will be serious negotiations about ending the war.

The Washington-Hanoi maneuvering so far has been on where to send envoys for preliminary contacts that might lead later to substantive talks.

Newsmen were given this information as Johnson reviewed Vietnam operations with U.S. Pacific commanders at their hilltop headquarters overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Park was due in from Seoul late Tuesday night for a two-man summit parley with Johnson Wednesday on both Vietnam, where South Korea has nearly 50,000 in the allied forces, and on Korea, where the Communist North has been mounting pressure against the South.

Reports from Seoul and some other capitals of Asian allies in the Vietnam conflict have indicated concern that Johnson may be taking too soft an approach toward the Reds.

Besides South Korea, Thailand, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand are all contributing forces to Saigon's cause.

Park himself declared in his Seoul departure statement that the aim of the allies who have sent troops to Vietnam is to "expel Communist aggression there."

News In Brief

NEW YORK (AP)—Edna Ferber, who drew deeply from the history and folklore of America to become a Pulitzer Prize novelist, as well as a world-renowned short story writer and playwright, died Tuesday at the age of 82.

Ill for several months, she had been in and out of hospitals. But the end came in her Park Avenue apartment, where she had been confined recently.

DETROIT (AP)—Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh said Tuesday a General Accounting Office report critical of some aspects of Detroit's antipoverty program showed "no fraud, no mismanagement."

The report, however, said there had been duplication in cost and effort in the administration of two facets of the program, that some figures on the number of participants were inflated, and that Detroit's Board of Education claimed more service than was rendered.

Cavanagh conceded that some figures were inflated, but he defended them as not "dishonest, nor is it unethical or anything else.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Four men, including two members of the clergy, were convicted by a federal jury Tuesday of mutilating government property by pouring blood on draft board records.

The jury deliberated less than two hours before handing down guilty verdicts on three counts against each defendant.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Agreement was reached Tuesday to end a 65-day strike by 1,300 city garbage collectors. The bitter, racially tinged labor dispute had brought Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. to Memphis where he was slain April 4.

TORONTO (AP)—Young American draft evaders are being warned in a pamphlet circulated by their hosts that peace in Vietnam will not absolve them and "they must be prepared to be residents of the U.S. again." Mark Satin, director of the Toronto antidraft program, estimates there are 10,000 Americans in Canada avoiding the U.S. draft and says they can not hope to be repatriated without penalty.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has named Igor G. Usachev as its new ambassador to the Congo. He has been minister-counsellor at the Paris embassy and will reopen the Kinshasa embassy which was closed more than four years ago when the Moscow mission was thrown out on a charge that two members were linked with Congo rebels.

SAIGON (AP)—Newly equipped North Vietnamese attacked American jungle fighters only 23 miles from Saigon Tuesday, reinforcing intelligence reports that sizable numbers are infiltrating the capital area and the Mekong Delta.

Kennedy Received Well By Sioux, Gets Near-Endorsement By McGovern

PINE RIDGE, S. D. (AP) — The nine children huddled on the sagging beds in the one-room shack gazed up fearfully at the white visitor.

"Don't be scared, don't be scared," Sen. Robert F. Kennedy whispered as he stroked the knee of a wide-eyed Sioux Indian girl of about six.

But she was a little scared, and it took a while for the destitute Indians on the Pine Ridge Reservation to warm up to their visitor, and the dozens of reporters and cameras and mikes that crammed their cardboard-lined cubicle.

The prairie wind whistled through the cracks between the logs of the little shack, and the Democratic presidential candidate walked outside into the dusty dooryard.

As he left the shack of the Prettyboy family, which is occupied by 11 people, four Indians in gay feathers broke into a Sioux dance, kicked up the dust with their brightly-beaded mocassins and tennis shoes, bells dangling around their ankles.

One agile dancer was a deeply-wrinkled, brown tribal elder of 71.

Four other Indian men held a drum and wailed an Indian chant.

Earlier, a boisterous crowd estimated at 5,000 smashed down the chain-link fence at the airport in Chandron, Neb., as Kennedy arrived from So. Dakota. No one was seriously hurt, and the people who went down with the fence got up smiling, waiting for the candidate's hand-shake. Deputy sheriffs in this cattle country watched from horseback.

Kennedy announced Tuesday his entry into So. Dakota's June 4 primary and got a warm near-endorsement from Sen. George McGovern, who said Kennedy would be "one of the three or four greatest presidents in our national history."

Govt. Food Program Sued by NAACP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government was faced with the threat of an unusual lawsuit Tuesday following charges that the nation's school lunch program is failing to feed millions of children too poor to buy a basic meal.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund said its attorneys will consider filing a suit against Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman "seeking to establish definitions and guidelines for implementation of the school lunch act."

The fund said a major problem is that the program "rests with local school officials delegated the power to determine which individual children are unable to pay, or they make decisions in an arbitrary or copricious fashion since there are no guidelines."

"We are filing strategic suits to correct this abuse," the fund said.

Humphrey Will Postpone Formal Entrance into Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is postponing until next week or possibly even later—his formal entry into the Democratic presidential nomination race.

The vice president, back from a brief vacation in Florida, conferred with his advisers Tuesday about his plans. The upshot seems to be that they see no need to hurry about plunging into an active campaign.

The composite judgment of Humphrey's associates is that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York has failed to manufacture any stampede in his direction since President Johnson announced that he would not accept renomination.

Under these circumstances, Humphrey was said to feel that his status as vice-president and a potential candidate gives him some advantages that he might surrender by a formal announcement.

In the view of his advisers, the work of trying to line up convention delegates can go ahead unimpeded.

There is involved also the question of whether an active candidacy would conflict with the itinerary previously arranged for speeches and appearances in Humphrey's role as vice-president.

The Vice-president is scheduled for a foreign policy speech before the Overseas Press Club in New York City next Monday. This will give him the opportunity to emphasize his support of the President's policies which are focusing now on efforts to get talks started with North Vietnam.

Humphrey plans a speech at Marshall University at Huntington, W. Va., on April 24.

The Vice-president goes to the University of Mississippi at Oxford, Miss., April 25 for the kind of student question and answer panel he has been conducting at colleges all over the country for nearly four years.

Southern organization Democrats are sending up smoke signals that indicate they prefer to support Humphrey at the August Chicago convention over Kennedy or Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Folk Singers Will Appear in Program To Aid Senator McCarthy's Campaign

Judy Collins, Peter, Paul, and Mary, and Tom Lehrer will appear at Symphony Hall in a benefit performance for Senator Eugene J. McCarthy, Democratic candidate for President, Monday, Aprill 22 at 8:30 p.m. All proceeds will be used in McCarthy's campaign for the Democratic nomination in the Massachusetts presidential primary April 30. Tickets for the event are available from the Symphony Hall Box Office, the Harvard Coop, the Tech Coop, and the Massachusetts McCarthy for President Headquarters, 11 South Street, Boston, at $3.50, $5, $10, and $25.

All the performers are donating their time and talent to the campaign of Senator McCarthy.

Peter, Paul, and Mary are considered to be the most popular folk singing group in the U.S. In recent years, the group has come to the forefront of popular folk music taste with such songs as "Puff the Magic Dragon," "In the Early Morning Rain," and, lately, "Too Much Nothin."

Judy Collins is currently the most prominent folk singer in the country. She has used her talents in the civil rights movement, in protest of social injustices, and has been a voice against the war in Vietnam.

Tom Lehrer, the irreverent mathematician from MIT, has recorded several albums satirizing established national institutions and attitudes.

Connie Parvey, Concert Chairman, comments, "This will be an evening of entertainment for everyone. We want to raise money for the Senator and have a good time."

Transcript Requests Appear Overpriced

The high cost of grade transcripts has long been an object of student criticism. Results of a study made last year by the Treasurer's Office (at the request of the Senate and the Registrar) show that there is indeed cause for complaint.

According to the transcript request form, "Each student is entitled to two transcripts without charge. A service fee of $1.00, paid in advance, is due for each subsequent transcript."

If the records had to be copied by hand, as they were originally, then this cost would be understandable. But modern technical and staff efficiency have vastly reduced the amount of time and work involved in preparing a transcript. In 1965-1966, 35% more transcripts were produced than in 1961-1962, yet there was no increase in the size of the staff. The machinery currently used requires less work, less time, a smaller staff, and therefore less cost to produce far more transcripts than were being produced in 1945, when the present policy was put into effect.

Thus the present transcript fee seems unreasonably high. The student pays $1.00 for what costs approximately three cents to reproduced by Xerox. The two full-time secretaries employed and the postage required are paid for by the University, so most of the money made yearly on ten or eleven thousand transcripts goes to the state as part of the University's miscellaneous profit.

What this all boils down to is that the student applying to graduate schools is inadvertently supporting his state legislature. Whether or not this is his obligation and what the state does with the money is another story.

In general, the transcript fee must be lowered and the system itself improved. A previously suggested reduction to $1.00 for the first transcript and 50¢ for each thereafter would be far more acceptable but would not add to the efficiency of the present system.

More advantageous would be a discontinuation of the two free transcripts and the establishment of a consistent 50¢ per transcript fee. Keeping track of the number of transcripts for each student requires a great deal of bookkeeping and red tape, costly secretarial work which would be eliminated by the establishment of a uniform fee.

Finally, the work involved in looking up individual records could be facilitated by encouraging students to order their transcripts all at once; that is, by offering reduced rates for sets of X transcripts which would be run off together in just a few moments. This would be a great help to those who plan to send out as many as twenty or thirty transcripts, and it is especially unfortunate for them that the Treasurer's Office continues to ignore the demands for reform.

A Super-Editorial

(ACP) — It probably started with Superman, says the University of Kansas Daily.

Then came the supermarket Your car now may have need of a supercharger. Then there's the annual Super Bowl.

One would hope institutions of higher learning would be above the above, especially our super-campus, but no.

If you've got more going for you than just being a super-jock, you may be considered a super-stud, with varying degrees of super-cool.

Since this term appears to be with us, for better or worse, let's strive to make more practical application of it than simply creating peer group ratings.

Imagine, for example, a conversation of the future between an upperclassman considering next semester's classes and a younger member of the Centennial College who has just finished choosing his courses early.

"Hi there kid. Are you on your way to the Union to fight yonder enrollment mob?"

"No, m'lord," replies the underclassman blithely, in high spirits, "for prior to this moment I have super-enrolled."

Now that final exams have been extended to three hours over a two-week period, we have nothing other than super-finals.

Graduate instructors (super-students) who teach an honors biology lab would find it listed simply as super-frog.

But you get the idea. We can only hope a few standard, familiar words such as mother, beautiful and hemorrhage will go untouched in this fad to put everything in the super-lative.

Deferred Admissions Plan Adopted

To the editor:

The recent Selective Service announcement concerning graduate school deferments means that a number of pre-law college seniors may defer their legal education until completion of military service. In order to give them a greater sense of security about law school entrance when they return, Case Western Reserve Law School has adopted a guaranteed deferred admissions plan.

As always, students who are drafted while in the law school or who leave to enter the military before completing their law studies will have the right to return on completion of their service. If a student should be called to service in the middle of a term, the law school will contact his local board and request that induction be delayed until completion of the semester.

In the future, any admitted applicant who indicates his intention to enter the law school but who is drafted or who voluntarily enlists in the military before he begins his law studies can be certain about his admission to the School upon completion of his obligation. Every effort will be made to place him in the earliest entering class after his release from service.

Only a brief reapplication need be filed. Readmission will only be denied in the case of conduct in the interim period which reflects adversely on one's moral capacity to enter the legal profession. The deferred admissions policy will apply to those who go into the service to fulfill ROTC obligations and to those who enter reserve programs to fulfill ROTC obligations and to those who enter reserve programs with a six-month or shorter period of active duty.

It is our hope and expectation that a large number of present college seniors will plan to enter law school next fall. However, we would like students to be aware of the deferred admissions option. Anything you can do to make this information available to them will be much appreciated.

Students Urged to Remember King's Cause

To the editor:

The organization and success of the Zayre's demonstration in support of Bill Baird was a dramatic display of united action and concern for justice on the part of UMass students.

Although this is certainly evidence of a small victory over our society's and campus apathy, it seems to expose another ill which is in our midst.

Already it is as if our enthusiasm for furthering the work of Dr. Martin Luther King and turning our efforts to exposing and fighting the sickness of our racist society are being siphoned off in this new issue, and will continue to be in others to come. It has taken only a week to forget our shock over Dr. King's assassination, and our concern for immediate action in furthering human rights for the Black community.

Certainly we must fight problems as they arise, but token concern, mouthed at the appropriate time and then quickly forgotten, reveals us to be the hypocrites which we too often are, as we take up every "cause" in sight. Decisions must be made and priorities decided on by those who are going to commit themselves seriously to any issue. I dread the thought that once again our racist society will be pushed aside as more tangible, exciting concerns arise.

At Zayres we have seen what can be accomplished when we decide to act. But—will we ever see the day when 200 UMass students can be gathered together overnight, to commit themselves to fighting racism and discrimination in Amherst and on campus? Can people be found who are ready to fight for justice which cannot be achieved by the passing of a law, and the lack of which is taking so many lives?

I call upon us all to remember why we marched last Tuesday, and to remember the work to which we committed ourselves in Dr. King's name. Yes, other concerns must be dealt with, but not at the expense of ignoring this responsibility of ours. WE MUST DECIDE TO ACT—and not get sidetracked or lose sight of the urgency of this decision. THE TIME IS NOW.

Squaw's Survey:
Pre-marital Birth Control

by HELEN KENSICK

Should birth control information and devices be made readily available to college co-eds?

All 50 UMass women interviewed by "Squaw Talk" think that the answer to this question is unconditionally yes.

Here are representative comments on 4 key questions:

Birth Control Devices: About half of those interviewed by "Squaw Talk" feel that birth control devices should be sold anywhere. The other half strongly disagree.

The dissenters believe that no one should be refused birth control devices, but that they should only be obtained through a clinic where advice on their proper use could be given. Also as one senior put it: "Medical reasons should be the only determining factor for withholding the pill."

Birth Control Information: Birth control information should definitely be made available to everyone. "Because sex is a major part of a person's life, one should not be ignorant concerning any aspect of it," said a senior.

Morals: The idea that established morals wouldn't be changed radically by easy access to birth control methods was expressed by all of those talked to.

"Because the choice is so personal and individual a thing, religious attitudes have a lot to do with it," said a junior. "Freedom to use birth control devices won't alter morals that much."

The consensus of opinion was that the deeper and more intensified questioning women subject their established morals to, the stronger these morals will become.

Personal Decision: All agree that an unmarried woman should be perfectly free to practice birth control. They believe that for some people premarital sex can be completely right.

One sophomore believes that by the time a woman is in college she is sufficiently mature to make her own decisions regarding sex. "The decision is a personal one, not one that should be decided by a group of legislators."

Our First Lady

Rides to Bridge Generation Gap

"They call me 'Mrs. L' at the barn," petite, tanned, silver-haired Mrs. John W. Lederle said. "I try to go horseback riding every day." For Mrs. Lederle, who thinks there should be more understanding and less antagonism between generations, "It's a good way to meet and know students on an informal basis."

As the wife of the president of the University, Mrs. Lederle is constantly meeting students, faculty, alumni, state officials and townsmen.

University affairs demand her time: she has served for four years as the adviser to Mortar Board, the senior women's Honor Society; is currently a Faculty Fellow at Emily Dickinson; and honorary president of the University Women's Board. Each year, the New England University Presidents and their wives meet during the last week in June, the men "for business," but, Mrs. Lederle smiled, "the women get acquainted. It's interesting to get to know more about other schools." The League of Woman Voters, several clubs, and official entertaining keep Mrs. Lederle busy in Amherst.

Taking time out to go riding, Mrs. Lederle pets Ivy, a prize-winning Morgan horse.

Born in the Belgian Congo, daughter of a medical missionary for the Northern Baptist Church, Angie Lederle and her two brothers returned to Massachusetts when she was two and a half years old to live in Newton Centre. She graduated from Newton High School and the University of Michigan.

How They Met

John Lederle caught her eye during her first year at the University. He was a senior, president of the Michigan Union (a kin to the Student Senate). But two years passed before they met. "He was attending law school and already had a master's degree in Government when we went on our first date and was practicing law when he gave me my engagement ring on my graduation day," Mrs. Lederle said.

The president's wife, who changed majors from pre-med to social work during her four years at Michigan, took a job at a state hospital as a psychiatric social worker, and her husband practiced law in Detroit, later returning to U. of Michigan for his Ph.D.

The Lederles have two children, Pamela Marro, 26, is married and teaches special education in New Haven, Connecticut. Tom, 21, served in the U.S. Navy until October and hopes to study X-Ray technology. He now works at the Veterans Hospital in Northampton.

"White House"

The white house on the hill, where the Lederles have lived for the past eight years, is "half public, half private." Workers are busy taking out walls and repairing the building because the Lederles opted to stay there rather than move to a new "president's house."

Mrs. Lederle looking very pretty in pink slacks and a pink-blue-yellow striped blouse, stepped over chunks of plaster and around sawhorses through the hall turned obstacle course leading to the study, and continued, "We like the house and the grounds too much to move."

Mrs. Lederle, who has a green thumb, once gardened extensively, but demands on her time have limited this favorite activity. Renovations to update the appearance and use of the house included a complete transition in the kitchen from the 19th to the 20th century, but for all its age, they like the house. "It's an ideal place from which to watch the University grow," Mrs. Lederle said, "the University is going to be really beautiful."

"We can be very proud of this school," she concluded.

The taxi driver said FBI agents had continuously pored over the taxi company's "trip sheets" since agents impounded a white Mustang last Thursday in Atlanta. The car fit the description of a car which was seen leaving the scene after King was killed April 4 by a sniper firing from a rooming house in Memphis, Tenn.

The FBI declined comment on the taxi driver's report. The driver said the name of Eric Starvo Galt, object of a wide hunt since the Mustang was traced to a Birmingham board house where he once lived, was not mentioned by the agent who questioned him.

Music Center Session To Open at Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Center opens its 1968 session at Tanglewood on Sunday June 30 a few days prior to the Orchestra's first Berkshire Festival concert.

The Music Center will be under the direction of the Boston Symphony's Music Director Erich Leinsdorf, and it will continue this summer with two distinct programs formulated several years ago by Mr. Leinsdorf.

In the Fellowship Program are 150 pre-professional instrumentalists, singers, conductors, and composers studying and performing chamber and orchestra music. Each of the Fellows enrolled in this program receives a stipend for his summer's work at Tanglewood.

The Tanglewood Institute comprises various programs, held under the auspices of the Music Center, given by Boston University and the New England Conservatory of Music.

The University offers music courses for advanced high school instrumentalists and other courses in drama, art, and the dance. The Conservatory gives two programs for music educators. All Tanglewood Institute courses will offer the option of college credit.

Louis Speyer serves as Assistant Director of the Berkshire Music Center with Joseph Silverstein as Chairman of the Faculty.

The members of the Fellowship Program will give twelve concerts of chamber music and there will be seven concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra conducted by Mr. Leinsdorf, Aaron Copland, and Messrs. Schuller, Silverstein, and Wilson.

The Festival of Contemporary American Music, held in cooperation with the Fromm Music Foundation of Chicago, will be held from August 4 through 10. A special feature of this summer's Contemporary Festival will be the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra's performance of Arnold Schoenberg's Die Gluckliche Hand conducted by Erich Leinsdorf.

Four composers, Mark Devoto, William McKinley, Stanley Silverman, and Richard Trythall, have been commissioned to write new music to be premiered during the Contemporary Festival.

Tanglewood-on-Parade, the annual benefit program by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the Music Center, is scheduled for August 21.

Redmen Seek Revenge Against 'Fired-Up' Foe

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Facing Middlebury in its home opener today, the UMass lacrosse team will be meeting a school whose biggest lacrosse game of the season is UMass. Middlebury points toward the Redmen like no other squad.

Last year, the Vermont school pulled somewhat of an upset with its 7-5 victory over UMass. The game was played on a muddy, rainy field and put somewhat of a damper on the UMass season.

Coached by former UMass All New England star, Joe Morrone, Middlebury has one of the finest coaches in the East. UMass coach Dick Garber says of Morrone, "When we face his teams, we face one of the best-coached teams around." They are very sound fundamentally. "He does an excellent job of coaching."

Morrone further distinguished himself by coaching the North squad to victory in the annual all-star game against the South this past summer at UMass Alumni Stadium. The North has won only one other time in the last ten years and in that year, 1965, the North was coached by UMass' Dick Garber.

Middlebury defeated Wesleyan 5-3 last Saturday, the same Wesleyan team that UMass defeated 14-7. Middlebury lost two games in Maryland during its spring trip.

Coach Garber sees problems in preparing for this game. Garber said, "They do many of the same things we do out there and therefore should know our moves pretty well."

UMass put on a good performance Friday night as they walloped the Boston Lacrosse Club, 9-4, in an exhibition. Kevin O'Connor as usual led the offense with two goals and three assists. Converted goaltender and co-captain Bill Sinclair had two goals.

Peter Scoville was in the nets and played in his coach's words "excellently." UMass led 7-0, before the substitutes were used. An indication of Scoville's fine work is evidenced by the fact that the club team did not score until 12:23 of the third quarter.

Garber intends to go with the same lineup that started the Wesleyan game. He will go with the more experienced Mark Schlossberg in the nets, Tom Tufts, co-captain Walt Alessi and Bill Devore on defense, Kevin O'Connor, Gary Vassar and Sinclair on attack and the Redmen will again go with three midfield units and sometimes four. Garber has been especially pleased with his midfield play.

Midfielder Bob Marshall twisted his knee in practice yesterday and the extent of his injury is not yet known. Otherwise the health of the squad remains unchanged.

This game is the first of three straight home games with one Saturday against Tufts and then Tuesday versus Holy Cross.

Golfers Defeat Wesleyan, 4-3, After Losing to Springfield, 4-3

Coach Dick Page's golfers took part Tuesday in two golf matches that both ended with 4-3 final scores. In the first contest, the Redmen were bested by Springfield, 4-3, but came back to defeat Wesleyan by the same score.

"Springfield made a good showing," commented Page, adding that the match was close all the way.

Both matches were played at the Ludlow Country Club, Springfield's home course, which is operating with six temporary greens. This proved to be a disadvantage for the visiting UMass and Wesleyan teams. However, despite the handicap, the Redmen made an impressive showing.

Bob Brown of Springfield fired a 75 for the low round of the day. Steve Matthews of Wesleyan was second with a 77. Dick Barber was the top UMass medalist with a low score of 79. The next match for the Redmen is Friday at home against Vermont.

Scores of Tuesday's matches:

Bob Nowak defeated Bob Samuelson (S), 1 up, and lost to Steve Matthews (W), 3 and 2.

Erik Lesberg lost to Bob Brown (S), 4 and 3, and lost to Pat Kelley (W), 2 and 1.

Gary Gasperack lost to Steve Kelley (S), 4 and 3, and defeated Ken Baron (W), 4 and 3.

John Arienson lost to Barry Wengert (S), 8 and 7, and lost to Al Nichols (W) 1 up.

Bill Dinsmore lost to Roger Marcineuk (S), 1 up, and defeated Brian Silvestro (W), 4 and 3.

Keith Queneville defeated John Johnson (S), 1 up, and defeated Joe Noone (W), 3 and 2.

Freshmen Bow to Springfield, 4-2

By KEN SCHWARTZ
Staff Reporter

SPRINGFIELD — Timely hitting added to a six hit pitching performance by Springfield College right-hander Jerry DePalma combined to hand the UMass freshmen a 4-2 opening game loss at Springfield yesterday.

Springfield scored in the first inning off UMass starter Don Anderson on a walk, wild pitch and single to right. In the third the Indians scored an unearned run when Dan Laforte reached second on a throwing error and scored with two outs on a double by Curt Ascherman.

UMass came back in the top of the fifth to tie the score. With one out Anderson reached second on a throwing error, and Mitch Salnick followed by reaching first on an error. Joe Gugliotta then moved the runners up with a sacrifice bunt. Both runners came home when the Spring field first baseman erred on Bob Willman's ground ball.

The score wasn't tied for long as Laforte singled home a run in the bottom half of the sixth for the winning tally. The final run was scored for Springfield in the seventh on a walk with the bases loaded.

Anderson prevented two Springfield threats from materializing with his fine fielding at the mound. Steve Verenis had two hits for the Redmen, and Mitch Salnick narrowly missed a home run on a long fly ball hit against a strong wind while leading off the seventh inning.

Anderson pitched seven innings for UMass and was charged with three earned runs. Gary Damian pitched the last inning retiring the Springfield side in order.

The next game for the freshmen will be played today at home against Worcester Academy at 3 p.m.

Red Sox Raise A. L. Pennant, But Drop Home Opener to Tigers

The Detroit Tigers erupted for eight runs in the fourth inning and spoiled Boston's 1968 home debut 9-2 Tuesday after the Red Sox raised their first American League pennant in 21 years.

Bill Freehan led off the big uprising by beating out a hit off the third base bag, and the Tigers proceeded to send 13 batters to the plate before reliever Lee Stange managed to retire the side.

Right-hander Ray Culp, a veteran of five years in the National League, was given a rough reception in his new surroundings.

After Freehan led off with his hit, Culp walked four and gave up four more safeties before Stange was summoned from the bullpen. Stange was tagged for a two-run single by Ray Oyler in finishing the scoring in the inning.

The Tigers were helped by a pair of Boston errors, a wind blown, bloop double by Willie Horton and Freehan's second infield hit, a slow tap down the third base line. The explosion dampened the spirits of a packed crowd of 32,849.

Only Dick McAuliffe, who walked four times, failed to collect at least a single as the Tigers had 15 hits in posting their fourth straight victory since an opening 7-3 loss to Boston in Detroit last week.

Horton led the attack with a pair of doubles and a single. Freehan had a line single to go with his pair of infield hits.

Backed by the offensive support, Earl Wilson, a 22-game winner last year, breezed to his first victory of the season. He was the loser against the Red Sox in the Detroit opener.

The Red Sox picked up a run in the second on Joe Lahoud's double down the right field line and Elston Howard's pop single to shallow right. Mike Andrews lined a shot into the left field screen for his first homer in the seventh.

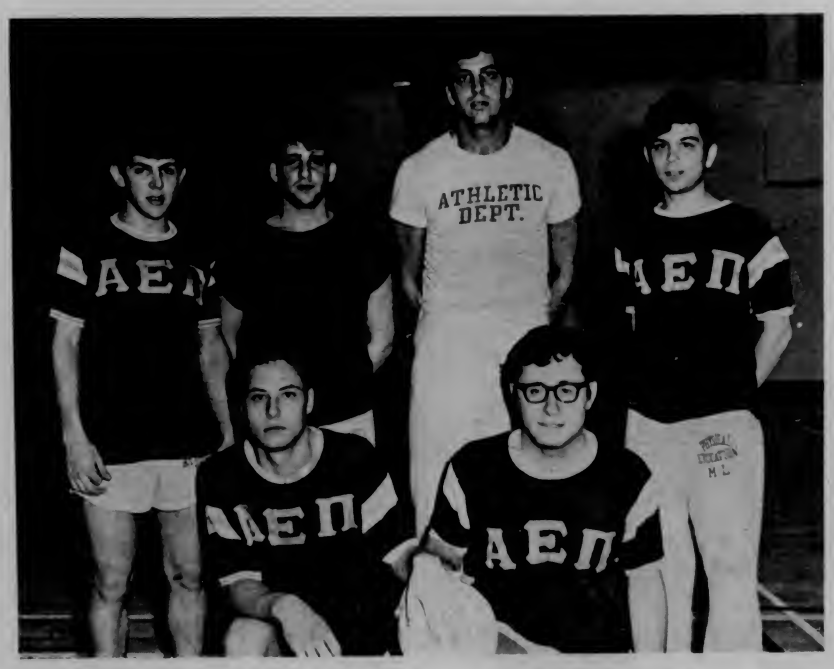
Celts Play Philly In Sixth Game Without Sanders

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics will try to become the first NBA team ever to bounce back from a 3-1 playoff deficit and win the series when they take on the Philadelphia 76ers Wednesday night.



The Celts scored their second playoff win of the series in Philadelphia Monday night, 122-104, and forced the 76ers to come back to Boston.

Player-coach Bill Russell of the Celts learned Tuesday afternoon that forward Tom Sanders will be out of the rest of the series. He has a severely pulled muscle.

"It's a 100-to-1 shot that he'll be able to play in the immediate future," team Dr. John Doherty said after x-rays.

Sanders said he was hurt at the two-minute mark of Monday's game. "I pivoted while moving through the key and just fell down," he said.

Russell declined to say how he will substitute for Sanders. "Anything is possible. I'll have to give all possibilities serious consideration between now and Wednesday night," he said after the team held a light drill at Boston Garden.

King Assassination Suspect Charged With Conspiracy by FBI

WASHINGTON (AP)— The FBI Wednesday charged Eric Starvo Galt with Conspiracy in the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

It was the first time that any conspiracy had been officially mentioned in connection with the April 4 assassination of King, in Memphis.

And the FBI issued a photograph which it identified as being one of Galt, "also known as Harvey Lowmyer and John Willard."

The FBI said a warrant was issued in Birmingham, Ala., Wednesday on the basis of an FBI complaint which charged that Galt "and an individual whom he alleged to be his brother, entered into a conspiracy" which began around March 29 at Birmingham and ended about April 5 to "injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate Martin Luther King Jr."

Galt was charged with conspiring to violate King's civil rights.

The FBI statement said that Galt, on or about March 30, bought a rifle at Birmingham. The bureau did not say specifically that this was the rifle that killed King.

But the statement said, "a 30.

Administration Discusses Room, Board Hike Proposal

By NICK COSTA
Senate Reporter

In an all-out effort to improve understanding between students and the administration on the proposed rise in Room and Board rates, the Student Senate last evening, asked five members of the administration to discuss areas of its seven page proposals.

Participants

Participating in the open discussion were: Dr. Mark Noffsinger, Associate Dean of Students; Mr. Robert Kittle, Assistant to the Treasurer; Mr. John Wells, Director of Housing; Mr. Joel Stoneham, Associate Director of Food Service; and Mr. Robert Brand, Associate Treasurer.

Background Information

Mr. Kittle presented background information on which students and administrators present could base their talk. Kittle reported that all dorms on campus are self-liquidating, which requires them to cover all costs incurred during the year. Areas to be considered, Kittle added, were: 1) debt service from long-term bonds; 2) maintenance and operation, exclusive of renovation; 3) refurnishing; and 4) periodical renovation.

Renovations Needs

Mr. Kittle proceeded to explain that the proposed $420 room rate would allow a sufficient surplus to renovate four of the Central Area dorms reaching completion in 1971. The dorms are Mills, Greenough, Thatcher, and Chadbourne Houses. Mr. Kittle also pointed to a need for action, because of nearly 11% annual construction cost increases that occur yearly.

Many students questioned whether Central Area funds would be used for repairing the Southwest dormitories. In answer, Mr. Kittle pointed out the different area control under which each area was placed: Southwest is under the UMass Building Authority, while Central Area is under the jurisdiction of the Trustees. Because of this difference, the funds from one area are not allowed to be used for the needs of another.

Dr. Mark Noffsinger

Dr. Mark Noffsinger, Associate Dean of Students, gave ardent support to students when questioned on the hasty action of the administration to hike room and board costs: "It became apparent last fall that at the rate we were going we couldn't pay our bills . . . I sat in on a meeting with the President (Lederle), at which he was asked whether or not we could increase rates . . . the President responded that we could not raise costs between semesters. We were confronted with a real situation! Who was going to do the figuring and what were minimum costs? . . . The Board of Trustees Sub-committee on Finance had to be brought into the picture. I do not know what went on in their minds. The students should have been brought in."

Noffsinger volunteered responses to questions based around gradual increase in room rates: "This was one consideration . . . the proposal of so much per semester over a period of time. I do not favor the fact that over a period we may face a slow death. There may be further increases—to pronounce none would be sheer folly. You have come no where near to paying the debts."

Mr. Kittle added that the costs incurred by renovation of Lewis House would not be met only for the saving factor of a late billing.

Growth Rate Cited

When students brought out that the administration report cited costs of six private Universities when compared to UM, Mr. Robert Brand, Associate Treasurer, explained that the administration "was trying to give an analysis of New England schools." Dean Noffsinger commented that, " . . . there is no doubt that UM has grown so fast, so recently, that this is a significant fact of the rise in expenses . . . You are paying for the catching up that the Mid-West did during the fifty's when costs were cheaper."

Off-Campus Housing

Noffsinger, seeming to have the attention of those present, continued to answer a large number of the questions. Students and Senators commented on his sincerity on questions dealing with relaxing requirements to move off-campus. Noffsinger said, "It will be absolutely nec-

National Revitalization Corps Chapter Established at UMass

There is a new organization on campus — the UMass chapter of the National Revitalization Corps. Founded in Hartford in 1964 by Ned Cole as a tribute to the late John F. Kennedy, the Corps has 16 chapters across the country with 1500 volunteers, half of whom are Negroes. The aim of the corps is to "combat apathy!", to get students actually involved in the civil rights movement.

It seems only fitting that the UMass students should make their Corps a tribute to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The UMass chapter has organized three projects in which students can get involved immediately.

1. NES Tutoring — There are five tutoring centers in Springfield which need college tutors immediately and desperately. These college tutors would tutor Negro and Puerto Rican grammar children who are not getting an adequate education in their present school systems. NES furnishes transportation to and from Springfield Monday through Friday in the afternoon and evening. The Revitalization Corps is working with NES to organize a group of tutors here on the campus. Any one interested in this program should contact Louise Harrington, telephone number 68192.

2. Clothing Drive — The Revitalization Corps is conducting a Clothing Drive April 18-27. There are going to be collection boxes placed in all the residence hall lobbies. The clothing collected will be sent to the Mississippi Delta. Please be generous Clean out your closets. If you are interested in working on this project please contact Paulette Ponn, 307 Coolidge or call 67959.

The Ball is the social highlight of the year for the military and air cadets and has the distinction of being the only formal event on campus open to the entire university community. Included in the ticket price of $4 will be two color pictures of individual couples, a buffet type supper, dancing to the 8th Air Force Dance Band, and entertainment by the Musigals. Focal point of the evening will be the crowning of the queen and presentation of her court.

Tickets can be purchased any day from 9-5 at Dickinson Hall. Scabbard and Blade and the Military Honor Society is coordinating the details and John Duty, its Captain, assures that the Ball will be an enjoyable affair for all those who attend, both military and civilian alike.

John S. Duty purchases the first ticket for the Military Ball from Colonel's Cadre members Dawn Carlton and Ann Carmichael.

LBJ, Park Rendezvous in Hawaii, Discuss War and Peace Issues

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson met with South Korea's President Chung Hee Park Wednesday for a one-day summit session on major issues of war and peace in Asia.

Both the conduct of the Vietnam war and Johnson's bid for peace talks with Hanoi were on the agenda, as well as mounting pressure by Communist North Korea against the South.

The two-man summit session at a secluded seaside estate climaxed a fence-mending process begun after Communist North Korean attacks in January set off a crisis in relations between Washington and Seoul.

Both the North Korean threat and Vietnam, where South Korea has already 50,000 troops in the allied cause, rate priority billing in the parley.

Johnson was reported anxious to quiet any South Korean qualms over his bid for direct U.S. talks with North Vietnam.

Park, like some other Asian allies, has let it be known that he is for firmness in dealing with the Reds and wants South Korea included in any negotiations.

SWAP Plans for Future Include Conference and Student Poll

In the changing and growing University the cry is raised against alienation and depersonalization. Student unrest, and student power have become familiar terms and agreeable sentiments even to the "apathetic UMie." The necessity for moving through proper and effective channels however, has been clearly shown.

Working to achieve these channels, to develop a meaningful and productive rapport between students, faculty, and administrators, SWAP (Student Workshop on Activities Problems) is presently planning its annual conference for 1968. The conference, to be held November 1-3 at the Oak and Spruce Motel in South Lee, Mass., will bring delegates from dormitories, fraternities, sororities, student government and student organizations together with members of the faculty and administration to a weekend of discussion and problem solving.

This year, in hopes of being more representative of the University community, the 1968 Swap Committee will take a poll as to the issues with which the students are most concerned. The poll will be taken in the Student Union Lobby on Wednesday, April 24. This will provide the students' with an opportunity to suggest topics in need of consideration as well as to nominate faculty members and administrators to be invited. The Committee needs your help in making this an effective conference.

NYU Offers Course on City Development and Problems

An "experimental and exploratory" summer institute on "Man in the City: His Culture and His Politics," will be offered jointly by the departments of anthropology and politics at Washington Square College of New York University, beginning June 17.

The eight-week course will run through August 9, and will give special reference to New York City. The institute will be co-directed by Prof. John F.Middleton of the department of anthropology and Prof. Frank Jay Moreno of the department of politics.

"The course will be experimental and exploratory, both in its subject matter and in the collaboration of the two disciplines, which see the city's development and problems in comparative and historical terms," said Professor Moreno.

The course, for which eight credits are offered, will include seminars and library and field research in the city.

News in Brief

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy assailed American foreign policy Wednesday, saying it has become obsessed with power and is costing this country the respect of the rest of the world.

"In that obsession we have forgotten our purposes," the Democratic presidential contender said in one of his strongest attacks on the U.S. role in world affairs.

The principal reasons for the decline in U.S. prestige, he said, are "our overcommitment in Vietnam and our undercommitment at home . . . By the unilateral exercise of our overwhelming power we isolated ourselves. To many of our traditional allies and neutral friends, we behaved as a superpower, ignoring our own historical commitment to a decent respect for the opinions of mankind."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) —Discovery of an experimental, manmade substitute for oxygen-carrying blood was reported Wednesday. It may someday be used in humans whose lives are in danger from a shortage of red blood cells.

A red blood cell substitute—a liquid form of the inert chemical that makes nonstick fry pans nonsticky—has been pumped into the bodies of rats and their own blood removed.

With total replacement, the chemical fluid has taken over the job of supplying oxygen and carrying away carbon dioxide for up to eight hours, Geyer said. Then the rats die.

Other rats with 80 per cent of their red blood cells replaced by the artificial blood have survived for as long as six months, regenerating their own red blood supply and tolerating the substitute blood as well, Geyer told the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday that five U. S. military attaches and one from Canada had pushed too hard at their inteiligence gathering missions and entered the area of "open espionage" at a shipyard and a military base last week.

The U. S. Embassy, in its strongest assertion here in years of diplomatic rights, said the attaches immunity was violated and that the incidents had been "staged."

Precedent indicated the Soviet government would not expel the men. Its official newspaper Izvestia said they had gone beyond the bounds of permissible behavior April 8 at a Leningrad shipyard and entered a closed military area at Borisov April 9.

The American repiy said that the attaches were engaged in activities "which are perfectly normal and accepted on the part of military attaches the world over, including military attaches of the Soviet Union in the United States."

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's ousted president and party chief, Antonin Novotny, was reported Wednesday leading a group of orthodox Communists struggling to retain their anti-liberal influence in the party's Central Committee.

Informants said the orthodox group had been given an ultimatum by liberal reform elements to surrender their holdout positions on the powerful committee where Novotny retains membership or face exposure for their roles in Stalinist terror trials.

According to the sources, he threatened at one stage to bring Soviet pressure on the liberals unless he is allowed to remain on the policy making committee.

Food Science Career Offers Prestige and Opportunities

In choosing a career, factors that will be most rewarding and of greatest value must be considered. Such factors as humanitarian service, salary, prestige, and opportunities for continual learning are of special importance. Food Science offers all of these. One has the opportunity to apply basic training in the chemical, physical, and biological sciences to food processing and preservation, and the development of new and improved food products. In preparation for such a career, a student obtains a liberal education with emphasis on the natural sciences.

Upon completion of such a program, the food scientist is qualified to fulfill his objectives in a rewarding and worthwhile field. Many areas of employment are available to the food scientist in private industry, education, and government. Starting salaries range from $8000 to $10000 with a B.S. degree. Some typical positions of graduates of the Department of Food Science and Technology after work experience or graduate training include Director of Research in Industry, Vice-President in charge of Production, Director of Quality Control, College Professors, and technical advisors to government agencies.

There are many chances for travel, nationally or internationally. The food scientist's job location may be anywhere in urban or rural U.S.A., from tropical South America to the Artic regions, or possibly the European continent.

Personal satisfaction can be gained by helping to combat world hunger and to develop new low cost foods. The unique problems involved in the development of space foods have created an entirely new area of food research. New methods of food preservation such as the use of ionizing radiations require research into its effects on various microorganisms and the chemical constituents of foods. The problems facing the food scientist today can be overcome only by dedicated well-trained people who are willing to accept the tremendous challenge of feeding all the people in our shrinking planet.

North Vietnam Rejects Proposed Sites For Talks; Demands U.S. Stop Bombing

TOKYO (AP) — No. Vietnam, its tone seeming to harden, rejected Wednesday as inadequate the sites proposed by the U.S. for preliminary talks on the Vietnam war.

A Hanoi broadcast once again claimed that world opinion demanded the Americans stop creating "difficulties" in the selection of a meeting place. It coupled this statement with a reassertion of its hard-line stand, that if the U.S. really wanted peace, it should immediately halt all air raids over No. Vietnam, withdraw troops from So. Vietman and "let the Vietnamese people settle their own affairs."

The broadcast coincided with disclosure in Tokyo that Japan had informally asked the Soviet Union to help arrive at an early decision on selection of a site for the talks. The request was made by Foreign Minister Takeo Miki at a meeting on another subject with Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky. The Soviet envoy was reported replying noncommittally that the Soviet Union also was "looking forward to early peace" in Vietnam.

In Waralpindi, Pakistan, visiting Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin urged in a speech that the U. S. accept Hanoi's proposals, stop all bombing and acts of war against No. Vietnam as a "necessary first step to a settlement," and enter "immediately" into peace talks. The speech seemed to reflect a Soviet enxiety to get the peace talks machinery moving.

In So. Vietnam, Premier Nguyen Van Loc declared that only Saigon and Hanoi could decide Vietnam's fate. Speaking at a bridge dedication at the big Cam Ranh Bay base, he repeated Saigon's rejection of a coalition government and negotiations with the National Liberation Front, the Viet Cong's political arm, as a separate entity. He vowed that "no one can force the Vietnamese people to accept any unfair solutions likely to lead them to self-destruction in the near future."

WAS KEATS THE BOB DYLAN OF HIS DAY?

Who was the greatest of the English Romantic Poets—Byron, Shelley or Keats? This question has given rise to many lively campus discussions and not a few stabbings. Let us today try to find an answer.

First, Keats (or The Louisville Slugger, as he is commonly called.) Keats' talent bloomed early. While still a schoolboy at St. Swithin's he wrote his epic lines:

If I am good I get an apple,
So I don't whistle in the chapel.

From this distinguished beginning he went on to write another 40 million poems, an achievement all the more remarkable when you consider that he was only five feet tall! I mention this fact only to show that physical problems never keep the true artist from creating. Byron, for example, was lame. Shelley suffered from prickly heat all winter long. Nonetheless, these three titans of literature never stopped writing poetry for one day.

Nor did they neglect their personal lives. Byron, a devil with the ladies, was expelled from Oxford for dipping Nell Gwynne's pigtails in an inkwell. (This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.) He left England to fight in the Greek war of independence. He fought bravely and well, but women were never far from his mind, as evidenced by these immortal lines:

How splendid it is to fight for the Greek,
But I don't enjoy it half as much as dancing cheek to cheek.

While Byron fought in Greece, Shelley stayed in England, where he became razor sharpener to the Duke of Gloucester. Shelley was happy in his work, as we know from his classic poem, Hail to thee, blithe strop, but no matter how he tried he was never able to get a proper edge on the Duke's razor, and he was soon banished to Coventry. (This later became known as The Industrial Revolution.)

One wonders how Shelley's life—and the course of English poetry—would have differed if Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades had been invented 200 years earlier. For Personna is a blade that needs no stropping, honing or whetting. It's sharp when you get it, and sharp it stays through shave after luxury shave. Here truly is a blade fit for a Duke or a freshman. Moreover, this Personna, this jewel of the blade-maker's art, this boon to the cheek and bounty to the dewlap, comes to you both in double-edge style and Injector style. Get some now during "Be Kind to Your Kisser Week."

But I digress. Byron, I say, was in Greece and Shelley in England. Meanwhile Keats went to Rome to try to grow. Who does not remember his wistful lyric:

Although I am only five feet high,
Some day I will look in an elephant's eye.

But Keats did not grow. His friends, Shelley and Byron, touched to the heart, rushed to Rome to stretch him. This too failed. Then Byron, ever the ladies man, took up with Lucrezia Borgia, Catherine of Aragon, and Annie Oakley. Shelley, a more domestic type, stayed home with his wife Mary and wrote his famous poem:

I love to stay home with the missus and write,
And hug her and kiss her and give her a bite.

Mary Shelley finally got so tired of being bitten that she went into another room and wrote Frankenstein. Upon reading the manuscript, Shelley and Byron got so scared they immediately booked passage home to England. Keats tried to go too, but he was so small that the clerk at the steamship office couldn't see him over the top of the counter. So Keats remained in Rome and died of shortness.

Byron and Shelley cried a lot and then together composed this immortal epitaph:

Good old Keats, he might have been short,
But he was a great American and a heck of a good sport.

Truth, not poetry, is the concern of Personna, and we tell you truly that you'll not find a better shaving combination than Personna and Burma-Shave, regular or menthol.

Ombudsman

A resolution was submitted recently to the Faculty Senate to set up an Ombudsman on campus. There was a suggestion made with the resolution for setting up a joint faculty-student study committee to look into this measure and report back on it by next fall. At present the resolution lies tabled.

What is an ombudsman? What does he do? The history of the ombudsman goes back to 19th century Scandinavia. The ombudsman was appointed by the parliament to inquire into complaints against administrative officials and to cut administrative red tape. This idea has been adopted on several campuses most notably Michigan State and Stony Brook.

The college ombudsman would be first of all a visible symbol of help. He would be someone to see when a problem arises and an individual doesn't know where to turn in the bureaucratic maze. Though he could not make policy decisions, the ombudsman could suggest changes on the basis of his investigative findings.

The office of the ombudsman would be a place to turn to for explanation of a bureaucratic decision which appears arbitrary but after investigation turns out to be correct. The ombudsman would take the side not only of the student but would handle problems involving faculty and administrative personnel. He would be invested with no real power to force his decisions on anyone but would have the prestige necessary to persuade administrators, department heads, etc. to listen.

An ombudsman is needed to heed the forlorn cry in the bureaucratic wilderness. The sooner work is begun on this measure, the sooner the cry can be answered.

The Editors

Equal Rights

The Supreme Court has recently handed down another decision that represents a step forward in the Negroes' fight for equal rights. In a 5-3 decision, it decided that a person could be prosecuted for blocking Negroes' access to restaurants, hotels and other public places that were desegrated, at least in name, by the Civil Rights Act of 1964. A maximum 10-year prison sentence and a $5000 fine may be delivered for conspiring to deny Negroes their rights.

This decision came as a result of the indictment of four Braselton, Georgia men accused of beating a group of Negroes who stopped at a service station there. The case was dismissed but now the indictment may be reinstated.

Negative as it is in its approach to the Negro problem, this ruling is a significant advancement in combatting the racist antics of such organizations as the Ku Klux Klan. Combined with the new Civil Rights package just passed by the Congress, this measure helps to ensure the black population of our country that the fight to give them their natural rights is nearing victory.

Dr. Drum Draws Criticism

To the editor:

Today for the first time I attended a lecture by the Eminent, notorious Dr. Drum of the Botany department.

My immediate response to his entrance was how could any University student allow this fuzzy adolescent to make a mockery out of them, their education, and the accumulation of years of research in the field of Botany. His game in front of the audience certainly would have puzzled Freud had he been around to witness this "erotica botanica" demonstration. Yet almost one-hundred students awed him in the Colonial Lounge while he sat in the front divided from us by his dark glasses making foolery of the entire group.

I guess as students we are still immature enough to be taken in by a person like this, and need our administration and worthy faculty to remove this charlatan from our midst.

Having majored in Botany for four years at the University, I commend in contrast the fine professors of the Botany department from whose scientific endeavor I have gained wisdom in the field.

If you like Drum—I'll pass you another Brownie!

Flagrant Violation Of Editorial Writing

Dear editor:

I feel compelled to write this letter after reading the atrocity that appeared in the Daily Collegian on April 16. I refer, of course, to the editorial "Change, Become American." I have never seen a more flagrant violation of editorial writing in my life. It appears that Mr. Baskin has let his emotions prevail in the writing of this editorial.

It is obvious to me that Mr. Baskin is a typical New Englander, quick to condemn the South in all ways yet he has probably never ventured further south than south Massachusetts. He lumps all those with views different to his into one large category of hatefulness. He then alludes himself to Lincoln, Ghandi and America. Why not include Mother and apple pie too Mr. Baskin?

Mr. Baskin, it is not the George Wallace's and Barry Goldwater's we should fear, rather it is people such as you. It is you who denies to these people the right of expressing their beliefs in the grand American tradition. It is you who is determined to tear apart our American society. In your overzealousness you forget that Thomas Jefferson also lived so that men might not have to fear to express views contrary to popular opinion. It is these people who have the courage to speak out while you hide behind your cloak of middle class society.

If George Wallace must leave, then you too must prepare to go with him. You, the blind zealot, are of a greater threat than Mr. Wallace can ever be. You change, Mr. Baskin. You become American but not in your own phony sense of the word, rather in its true meaning.

Candidates' Forum

(Special run off election today Treasurer '70)

To the editor:

I think Tuesday's primary elections were a fairly good indication of the extent to which apathy prevails on campus. Of all the members of the class of '70 less than five hundred saw fit to vote. The issues involved in this election concern not only sophomores but the whole student body. The class of '70 will be putting on next year's Winter Carni. A matter of $100,000 is nothing to be apathetic about. As the tie between Mr. Floreen and myself in Tuesday's primary proves, every vote counts. Therefore I hope every sophomore will make an attempt to vote in today's runoff election between Mr. Floreen and myself, and, of course, in the regular elections next Tuesday. As I have stated before, I believe myself qualified for the office of Treasurer and ask for the opportunity to prove myself to you.

Yvonne Mullen
Candidate for Treasurer
Class of 1970

To the editor:

Tuesday's primary election was unusual. For the first time in a long while, a tie resulted, causing a runoff today between Miss Mullen and myself. This tie forces out in the open the real issues, the issue of experience. I feel that I have had far more experience in class affairs, experience that is vitally necessary for the important office of Junior Class Treasurer. The Junior Class runs Winter Carnival, a $60,000 event. I have seen the budget for next year and know the reasons behind the various appropriations made.

Class treasurer is an extremely responsible and demanding position, a position that I am willing to assume. Because of my active work on executive council, Homecoming Committee, and Senate Finance Committee, I have the qualifications to do the job, qualifications that surpass others. Thank you for your vote, for as Tuesday proved, your vote does count.

Dave Floreen
Candidate for Treasurer
Class of 1970

Prisoners Riot in North Carolina

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A hail of buckshot fired by guards into a crowd of more than 400 rioting prisoners Wednesday left five inmates dead and 75 wounded at North Carolina's Central Prison in Raleigh.

Two prison guards and two highway patrolmen were hit by ricocheting shots, and another guard was struck in the face by a thrown brick. None of the officers was seriously injured.

The gunfire abruptly halted a demonstration which began as a sitdown strike by about 500 prisoners at the maximum security prison Tuesday and erupted into a torch-throwing melee about 1:30 a.m.

State Correction Commissioner V. Lee Bounds said guards and state troopers regained control of the prison after skirmishing less than 10 minutes after the gunfire.

The strike began when prisoners refused to return to work after the noon meal Tuesday. They presented a list of grievances to prison officials. They said they would not leave the prison yard until they could discuss their grievances with Bounds, who was out of the state at the time.

Bounds returned later in the day but refused to negotiate under pressure from prisoners. "I talk to inmates daily," he said later, "but I do not yield to inmate demands that I do anything."

Central is North Carolina's only remaining maximum security prison. About 500 of the more than 1,000 inmates confined there are classified as the most dangerous criminals in the state's 10,000-inmate correctional system.

Volunteers Are Needed for N.H. Summer Children's Camp

Camp Fatima in Gilmanton, New Hampshire is holding its 8th annual Exceptional Children's Week from August 25 to September 1, but is in great need of male counselors.

When questioned about conferences held on campus during vacations, Noffsinger pointed out that "somehow we have a responsibility to support these conferences . . . it is a public service to the commonwealth." The demand for funds is at such a peak, that students may be charged for rooms during vacation.

Noffsinger noted that UM receives very little aid from its state legislature when compared to other states. Other Universities have received subsidies that help to keep costs low.

In closing, Noffsinger cited the action of Central Area: "A few years ago, it would have been unlikely that the Central Area would come on as strong as they have. I appreciate that very much."

President Jim Collins noted that the Trustees have granted two additional open houses each weekend until the Trustees meet to deal with the Open House Proposal, May 3.

Collins also stressed that Dr. William F. Field, Dean of Students, will be speaking on the open housing proposals, April 22, at 8:00 p.m., Mahar Auditorium.

House Presidents, Heads of Residences, and House Judiciary members have been invited to attend. Students interested are also invited.

Film About Ravi Shankar Is Now In Production

Messenger Out Of The East, a dramatic full length color feature film, is currently being produced about the brilliant Indian classical musician, Ravi Shankar.

The film will seek to explore both his enormous success in the Western world and the difficult task that has become uniquely his—that of bridging the two divergent cultures of East and West. In a concept that looks to the source—to the roots—the film will try to discover the meaning of Ravi Shankar himself—a meaning locked deep within the culture and traditions of Indian music, art, philosophy, religion and life.

The film will show how music is far more than music in India. It will explore the mystical union of music and religion inextricably entwined in the daily life and seasonal cycle of the people and the land. It will point to the significance of a musical sound for every moment; for every ceremony; for every mood: birth, death and marriage—the softness of dawn and the sadness of dusk—morning, afternoon and evening—all have their own particular and special musical expression found in ragas.

The Goodell Library will be open Patriots' Day, Friday, April 19, 1968, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Track Team to Run in B. C. Relays

The UMass track team will send its top relay combination and some talented individuals to the Annual Boston College Relays which will be held tomorrow and Saturday.

Friday the 440 yard hurdles will be run and UMass will supply three able performers. For the varsity, John Andersen and Marc Levefer will compete. Andersen is the UMass record holder for this event with a time of 54.3 seconds. He placed second in the BC Relays 440 hurdles event last year with a time of 55.5.

Levefer, UMass' top 120 yard hurdler, will be trying the 440 hurdles for only the second time. On the freshman level top frosh hurdler Gerry Spellman will go after his UMass frosh record of 57.1 which he set last week in the NU-BU meet.

Freshman Tom Derderian will be doing hurdling of a different type as he will compete in the difficult 1500 meter steeplechase.

Saturday morning is set for the time of the field event singles and relays. The UMass field event men are coming off strong performances at the Holy Cross scrimmage held Tuesday.

Bill Wilen, who won the hammer throw against Holy Cross, will be an individual performer at the BC Relays. Gary Wilson, Rocco Pettito and Dave Parker will make up the javelin relay. The discus relay will be comprised of Dave Schlatka, another first place man against Holy Cross, Wilen and Baker. The freshmen will also have a discus relay made up of George Ball, Bill Austin and Steve Maurar.

The running relays begin Saturday afternoon. The frosh 440 relay composed of Ed Heywood, Dave Canterbury, Butch Gaynor and Walter Mayo will be going for the frosh record of 43.5 seconds.

The varsity 440 relay team manned by Dave Marble, Bob Hasselbaum, Steve Chase and Steve Burrell have recently set the Redman 440 relay mark at 43.7 and they will be out to break that Saturday. The same group of varsity runners with the exception of Steve Wiseman in place of Hasselbaum will run the 880 relay.

The sprint medal relay, which could turn out to be the top team UMass sends to the relay, will be made up of top UMass quarter miler Andersen running his specialty, 220 stars Hasselbaum, and Chase, and the top Redman half miler to date this year Dave Evans.

The two mile relay will again be composed of top UMass runners. Bill Donaldson will lead off, and he will be followed by Paul Hoss, Diego Gonzalez and Bowman.

The Little Redmen will enter a distance medley that should fare very well. Larry Paulsen will lead off with a half mile, Chuck Barry will follow with a quarter, then frosh half mile record holder Elliot Stevens will run the three quarter of a mile. Ron Wayne, top frosh miler will anchor the relay.

The afternoon action will be concluded by the varsity and frosh mile relays. Running this event for the varsity will be Andersen, Hasselbaum, Gonzalez and Evans. The frosh team will be manned by Taylor, Stevens, Gaynor and Spellman.

Crew Travels to Philadelphia For Second Kerr Cup Regatta

Saturday is the "moment of truth" for the UMass crew team as the Redmen travel to Philadelphia for the Second Annual Kerr Cup Regatta. The regatta is named in honor of Dr. Thomas Kerr, crew coach at Drexel Institute of Technology for twenty years.

Crews from Drexel, Georgetown, Holy Cross, Trinity, LaSalle, as well as UM, will be entered in the freshman, junior varsity, and varsity races. All races will be run on the 2000-meter Olympic course located on the Schuylkill River.

The U M varsity and jayvee crews will be out to avenge their losses in last week's race with Wesleyan College. The freshmen, meanwhile, will be trying to extend their winning streak to three. Coach Dave Clarke and Coach Mike Faherty have been making last-minute changes in their varsity and freshman boatings respectively. The final seatings will be announced the day before the races.

This year the team to beat in all three races is Georgetown University, which boasts one of the best small college crew teams in the country. Last year, in the Kerr Cup, Georgetown won the freshman and junior varsity events and was just edged out by LaSalle in the varsity race. On the strength of that victory, LaSalle can be counted on as a definite threat to take varsity honors.

BASEBALL PREVIEW . . .

Pitching appears to be the Catamounts' greatest weakness. However, Coach Jim Cross has a starting rotation of captain John Packard, a righthander, along with senior righthander Don Schneider and junior righthander Charlie Brucato. All performed well on the Southern trip.

Packard, when not pitching, plays first base and is the backbone of the infield. An All-Yankee Conference selection at first last year, Packard led Vermont in hitting on the Southern trip with a .353 average. When Packard is on the mound, sophomore Tom Sivret takes over for him.

The rest of the infield is solid defensively. Second baseman Jim Rapoport is a promising sophomore who hits with power and has good speed to go along with his fielding prowess. Another power hitter is junior shortstop Dave Lapointe, a returnee from last year who captained the Vermont basketball this winter.

Veteran Steve Kunken plays third base. A defensive whiz, Kunken led the team in runs batted in last year.

The outfield is suffering from the graduation of Joe Soldano, who batted .429 last year. Sivret and sophomore Brendon Foster start in right and center field respectively but neither player is a powerhouse at the plate.

The only outfielder to do any hitting on the southern trip was junior left fielder Terry O'Leary. Senior veteran Don Fitts will start when Sivret moves to first.

Last year UMass swept the Catamounts, 4-3 and 11-3. Vermont was 8-5 last year, finishing third in the conference.

Lacrosse Downs Middlebury, 13-7

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Scoring five goals in both the first and third periods, the UMass lacrosse team defeated Middlebury College yesterday, 13-7, in the Redmen's home opener. The win was UM's second straight in th New England competition, while the loss drops the Panthers to 1-1.

Marty Kalikow, Gary Vassar, and Kevin O'Connor were the offense stars of the game. Kalikow, playing at his midfield post, was outstanding all afternoon.

Kalikow broke a 1-1 tie at 6:18 of the first period, when he made an individual effort before firing home the goal from about 15 feet. Then in the third period he made possibly the finest goal of the game when with UMass two players short due to penalties, the senior midfielder spun by three defenders and rifled in the goal at 3:40 of the third period.

Kalikow added his third goal at 7:09 of the same period.

Meanwhile, Vassar and O'Connor, UMass' two leading scorers last season are well on their way to doing the same this year.

O'Connor opened the game's scoring at 2:23 of the first period on an assist by Vassar. After Middlebury had tied the contest at 10:14 of the second stanza on Ralph Sexton's second goal, O'Connor put UMass out in front to stay on a brilliant individual score.

After Greg Norton, who was standing at midfield throughout, had scored for the Redmen, on a Steve Connolly assist, O'Connor with Vassar assisting again this time at 14:09.

Vassar scored UMass' only two goals in the second period. O'Connor returned the favor with a fine set up pass for Vassar's first goal at 4:56. Vassar scored again at 8:36, to give the Redmen a 7-3 halftime lead.

Early in the third period UMass broke the game wide open and then had to watch as Middlebury completely dominated the last period and most of the third.

Vassar scored his third goal at :46 seconds of the second half. Then after Bob Florin narrowly missed a goal by hitting the post, Don Agnoli who played much of the game at Attack scored 2:54 on a Steve Anderson assist.

After Kalikow's two straight scores, the second of which was set up by Gerry Forgit, Middlebury fought back with two straight goals, one by Tom Harrington and the second by Kingsley Parker, the former at 10:22 and the latter at 12:14.

Vassar picked up his fourth goal unassisted at 12:14 as UMass went into the last period leading 12-5.

Middlebury however, controlled all the play in the final period and were it not for the Redman's big lead and great defensive work by goalie Mark Schlossberg and Billy Devore, this game could have been easily lost.

As UMass coach Dick Garber said, "Throughout the half we were lethargic and played fundamentally poor. It was definitely not our best game.'

Middlebury scored at 39 seconds of the last period on Parkers second goal and added one less than a minute later on Sexton's third. However, they could not score again despite dominating the play winning all faceoffs.

Schlossberg made several brilliant saves in the period including one when he saved a shot knee high from a close-in attempt and then deflecting a shot on a partial breakaway.

O'Connor closed out the scoring at 13:47 on a fine setup by Brad Herling.

Garber had praise for both Schlossberg and Devore and also was pleased with O'Connor and Vassar. However, overall he was disappointed saying, "Whenever we got ahead, we would go ahead and make dumb plays."

The Redmen will play again on Saturday afternoon in a home game against Tufts. Garber expects a rugged and physical contest against the Jumbos.

"They are probably the biggest team, physically we play this year. They have big boys all around."

Garber went on to say that to beat the bigger team from Medford, UMass must pressure them throughout and fast break. However, Garber said, "If we play our best, there is no reason why we can't win."

UMass Varsity Wallops Williams, 10-0

By HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

Diminutive righty Rich Rappoli fired a two-hit shutout against Williams as the UMass baseball team broke open a close game with eight runs in the seventh inning to erase the Ephmen, 10-0 yesterday on Varsity Field.

The junior hurler was catching the corners with his slider, thus setting up the hitters for fastballs, and insuring Rappoli his first complete varsity effort and initial collegiate triumph against two losses.

With one gone in the opening frame, shortstop Joe DiSarcina walked and stole second. After Bob Hansen popped up, 2b Don Ferron rescued the run with a single over shortstop.

There was no more scoring until the Redman half of the seventh. Catcher Tony Chinappi walked with one out and Rappoli beat out a bunt for a hit. The bags were filled when 1b Ray Ellerbrook reached on an error by Eph shortstop Bob Quinn. DiSarcina got an rbi when his dribbler down the third base line was fumbled by third baseman Kim Montgomery, scoring Chinappi. UM left-fielder Bob Hansen slapped a single past Kelly's outstretched glove at first, plating Rappoli and Ellerbrook. A Hansen steal of second was followed by a walk to Ferron, loading the bases again.

Alex Vyce, who had replaced Ted Mareno in right in the sixth, reached on a fielder's choice as Montgomery threw wildly to the plate on his ground ball, DiSarcina crossing. Centerfielder and football safety Steve Rogers lashed a single to center, plating Hansen with the fifth run of the frame. With two outs, Chinappi smashed a vicious liner to the right field corner, clearing the bases. The junior backstop was thrown out at third, however, as he hestitated while rounding second. But the damage was done and eight unearned runs had crossed for the Redmen. The first five runs came off Williams starting hurler, lefty Lou Buck. Chinappi's shot was a hit off reliever Bob Groban.

In the home eighth, the Redmen added another marker. Rappoli led off with a walk, went to second on Ellerbrook's sacrifice, and to third on DiSarcina's fly ball to center. A wild pitch plated Rappoli before Hansen could get another rbi when his liner dropped in front of the centerfielder with two out.

Eleven Eph men in a row went down before Rappoli issued a walk to pinch hitter Bower in the ninth. The righty notched his twelfth strikeout of the afternoon after that and, two fly ball outs later, Rappoli had his first triumph.

Ace hurler John Canty, who injured his elbow while pitching against Dartmouth last week, is reportedly now able to throw on the sidelines but will not see any action in the weekend doubleheader with Yankee Conference rival Vermont. Starting time Friday is 3 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m.

Redmen Set to Defend Baseball Championship Against Vermont

By GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

U Mass opens its defense of the Yankee Conference baseball crown this weekend with a pair of home games against an unpredictable Vermont team. Tomorrow's Patriot's Day contest will start at 3 p.m. while Saturday's affair will get underway at 1.

It is very doubtful that senior lefthander John Canty, recovering from a shoulder injury, will see any action in either game. Coach Dick Bergquist has indicated he will go with sophomore John Kitchen and junior Norm Elliott.

The two UMass games open Vermont's regular schedule. The Catamounts did play on a Southern trip, but these games were counted as just exhibitions. Their record was 2-4, beating Fairleigh Dickinson and Columbia, and losing to Hofstra, West Chester, Villanova and Rider. The latter two are two of the best teams in the east.

Vermont lost twelve players from last year's team, and are relying on as many sophomores. The losses included the leading outfielder, the three best pitchers and a veteran catcher.

Frosh Belt Worcester Academy, 8-2

By STEVE SHAMBAN
Staff Reporter

Led by the strong-armed pitching of Lou Colabello, the UMass freshman baseball team trounced Worcester Academy 8-2 for it's first win of the season evening the Little Redman's record at 1-1 and dropped Worcester's to 2-1.

UMass drew first blood by scoring 5 runs in the bottom half of the first frame. Leadoff batter Mitch Salnick walked and then scored on Bill Greeley's triple to rightfield. Greeley's shot was well stroked although it appeared that Worcester rightfielder Eisenstock had difficulty in tracking it out of the sun.

Greeley scored on a wild pitch by Worcester right-hander Paul Mitchell and Wike Minkos walked. Shortstop Duane Brown then poked a single to left and took second on a poor throw with Minkos going to third. Minkos later scored on a passed ball, Brown advancing to third.

Rick Matuszak took first after being hit by a pitch, putting men on first and third. A delayed steal was the result of this situation. Matuszczak broke for second and drew a poor throw from the catcher allowing both he and Brown to score.

In the second inning, UMass scored 2 more runs as Brian Herosian replaced Mitchell on the Worcester mound. Salnick singled off the third baseman's glove and stole second. Greeley then walked and Salnick stole third and scored on the catcher's errant throw. Mike Minkos then hit a single that the shortstop couldn't handle deep in the hole, putting men on first and third. Greeley subsequently scored as Herosian attempted to pick Minkos off of first. At this point, UMass led 7-0.

Worcester scored it's runs in the sixth and eighth innings as leftfielder Buddy Martin did all the scoring. The first run came following 2 singles and an error and the second came on a two out single with two on. UMass' final run came on a bases loaded single through the hole by catcher-first baseman-rightfielder Bob Willman.

For the record, lefty Colabello had 15 strikeouts and Mitch Salnick pilfered four bases. The Little Redmen's next game will be at home against Amherst this afternoon. Starting time is 3 p.m.

UMass Boston Chancellor Dr. Ryan Resigns

By JAN CURLEY
Issue Editor

The resignation of Dr. John W. Ryan as chancellor of UMass-Boston was announced Saturday. The resignation, which came as a surprise, will take effect July 1. Dr. Ryan is to become vice president for six regional campuses of Indiana University. Dr. Ryan earned both his master's and Ph.D. degrees at IU.

Dr. Ryan has been the chancellor at UMass-Boston since it opened in 1965. During that time he has been the main force behind the drive for a high rise campus to be built in a core city, and he has become embroiled in the controversy over the site for the university.

Two of the five sites now under consideration are at Columbia Circle and the former Watertown Arsenal. The other prospective sites are near Park Square, near the North Station and at Fenway Park, assuming a new stadium is built.

In a statement Saturday, Dr. Ryan said, "I firmly believe that an appropriate site for a permanent campus can be found." He went on to say, "UMass at Boston can become the finest urban university."

John W. Lederle, president of UMass, in paying tribute to Dr. Ryan said, "he is one of the brightest young academic administrators in America today. We are going to miss him."

An Indiana University spokesman said that Ryan will be working with 15,800 students on the six regional campuses, four of which have urban locations.

UMass Boston is now housed in the former Boston Gas Company Building on Arlington Street near Park Square. By September there will be 3400 students attending classes there, and the first class of 800 will be graduated in June, 1969.

Dr. Ryan, in an issued statement, said that the Boston branch had made "significant progress in a remarkably short time." In addition to a growing enrollment, he said, "We have brought together 200 faculty who are recognized as high-quality teachers-scholars."

This is the second time that Dr. Ryan has left UMass for another post. He had been secretary to President Lederle at Amherst before going to Arizona State University in 1963 as vice president for academic affairs.

Grad Student Dies in Fall At Smith

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) —A Yale University graduate student working at the new Smith College Center for the Performing Arts fell 30 feet to his death last night when a cable snapped.

Police identified the victim as Roger Luken, 25, of Wilmington.

Luken, hired as a technical director for an upcoming series of productions, was working on a set backdrop when the cable supporting the framework snapped. He fell to the basement through a two-foot wide opening between the stage floor and the wall.

The death was the second in the same building in the last four days. On Thursday Catherine M. Millwid, 20, of Winnetka, Ill., a junior at Smith, plunged 25-feet to her death during the course of a traditional scavenger hunt for class pins.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE — Mike Prusky and Les Titcomb rehearse a scene from the University Theatre production, The Madwoman of Chaillot, to be presented this week.

University Theatre To Stage 'The Madwoman of Chaillot'

The final University Theatre presentation of the season, The Madwoman of Chaillot, will be presented this week in Bowker. Opening night is Wednesday, and curtain time is 8:30 p.m. The show will run through Saturday night.

Madwoman is a play about the victory of love and joy over the ever-threatening forces of evil. The audience is left to ponder who is really insane as the Madwoman succeeds in thwarting the plans of the powerful Destroyers, the demonic worshippers of the Gold Brick who propagate their faith with money, machines and inhumanity.

Director Jim Young has made this play into a fantasy by thrusting the cast of fifty madcap characters into the audience.

Carolyn Miller, a senior, plays the Madwoman of Chaillot, and grad student Gail Herman portrays her counterpart of St. Sulpice, the virgin Madwoman of Gabrielle. Ann Agard, a junior, plays the Madwoman of La Concorde.

Junior Thomas Babson plays the romantic young Pierre; Mike Prusky, a senior, plays the Ragpicker and grad student Leslie Titcomb plays the subterranean Paris Sewerman. Peter Stelzer, a senior, plays the Prospector.

Tickets can be obtained daily from 9 - 5 at the Box Office at Bowker Auditorium.

Students To Vote in Nationwide Presidential Preference Ballot Sponsored by Time Magazine

About six million college students, many of them too young to vote in 1968, will have an opportunity to cast a presidential preference ballot Wednesday in Choice 68, the first nationwide student poll.

The ballot lists 13 contenders and a write-in space and also seeks student opinion on three questions: military action in Vietnam, bombing in North Vietnam and government spending priorities on urban needs.

For UMass, the voting will be held in the S.U., near the entrance to the ballroom, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. ID's are required. All students enrolled in the University (undergraduates, graduates, part-time, and foreign students) wil be able to vote. The Student Senate is the UMass sponsor.

The presidential candidates on the ballot are: Fred Halstead, Mark O. Hatfield, Lyndon B. Johnson, Robert F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King, John V. Lindsay, Eugene J. McCarthy, Richard M. Nixon, Charles H. Percy, Ronald W. Reagan, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Harold E. Stassen and George C. Wallace.

Robert Harris, 25, executive director of the $250,000 project sponsored by Time magazine, said that the results will be analyzed by computer and will be announced in New York May 2 or 3.

Harris predicted that the large-scale polling would have more political significance than the New Hampshire primary.

Harris said the poll would be taken at 1,454 colleges and universities with an enrollment of nearly 6 million, about 85 per cent of the nation's total. He estimates that 2 million to 2.5 million students will vote in the poll. About 40 per cent of these will be old enough to vote in the November election, he said.

State Colleges Flunk Test On Negro Enrollment Figures

In a test administered last Thursday to the state colleges in Massachusetts it was revealed that there are only 85 Negro students enrolled in the 11 state colleges out of a total of 80,000 students.

Members of the State Colleges Board of Trustees, in an effort to insure that schools do better in any future survey, prescribed a one word remedy-recruit.

The Board, meeting at the state College at Westfield, unanimously adopted a resolution instructing the colleges to map plans for recruiting more Negro students.

Mrs. Sol Weltman termed the present status of Negro enrollment in the state colleges as "woeful". She was instrumental in bringing the matter to the attention of the board.

She suggested a plan whereby Negro students enrolled in the colleges and faculty devise a plan to recruit more Negro students.

"The times call for something drastic. Of all the groups, the state colleges must do something," she stated.

The resolution orders Task Forces on Urban Education, which are already in existence at the colleges, to convene in the "very near future . . . to develop . . . a plan for recruitment of Negro and, or, disadvantaged students for the state colleges."

UMass has already announced a planned program to bring more Negroes and students from disadvantaged areas to the University.

FBI Issues New Identification For Dr. King's Alleged Assassin

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—FBI agents have been given a new identification for the man they seek in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., but the new identification seems to have muddled even more the mystery of who fired the single shot that killed King here the night of April 4.

The FBI had issued a conspiracy warrant last Wednesday for Eric Starvo Galt. Two days later the agency said a comparison of fingerprints found in the King investigation revealed that Galt in reality was James Earl Ray, a 40-year-old escapee from a Missouri prison.

A murder warrant issued here in Galt's name subsequently was amended to carry the name of Ray.

The second identity was only the latest in a series of puzzles which have surrounded the few known facts of the investigation.

Witnesses who said they saw the alleged assassin run from the flophouse from which the fatal bullet was fired said he appeared to be between 26 and 31 years of age. The FBI's Wednesday announcement said Galt had given his birth date as July 20, 1931—which would make him 36. Friday the FBI said Ray was 40.

The FBI also said Galt was said to be an avid dancer and took dancing lessons in New Orleans in 1964 and 1965, in Birmingham during September and October 1967 and in Long Beach, Calif., from December 1967 to February 1968.

But during the time Galt allegedly took dancing lessons in New Orleans, Ray was serving part of a 20-year term for armed robbery in the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City.

At the time Galt was attending a bartending school in California, a duplicate Alabama driver's license was mailed to him at a rooming house in Birmingham.

Welsh Poet to Give Poetry Reading

Welsh poet Dannie Abse will read from his poems with commentary at UMass today at 8:15 p.m. in Room 120 of the School of Business Administration.

A qualified medical practitioner who works in a London Chest clinic, Mr. Abse has published five volumes of poetry including "After Every Green Thing;" "Walking Under Water;" "Tenants of the House;" "Poems, Golders Green;" and Dannie Abse, Selected Poems." He has also written two novels—"Ash on a Young Man's Sleeve" and "Some Corner of an English Field."

His "Poems, Golders Green" was a Poetry Book Society Choice and one of his plays, "House of Cowards," won the Charles Henry Foyle Award in 1960.

In recent years, he has read poetry widely in Great Britain for the Arts Council and Center at several British theaters including the Royal Court, the Prince of Wales, the Belgrade and the Victoria Theaters. He has also made a reading tour of British universities and a recording of his readings was issued by Argo Records.

Soldier Killed, Three Wounded By North Koreans Yesterday

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—North Koreans opened fire on an American patrol in the demilitarized zone Sunday afternoon, killing one U. S. soldier and wounding three others, a U. S. military spokesman said Monday.

The shooting occurred in the 2nd U.S. Infantry division sector. It was the second major border incident in the area involving Communist North Koreans in a week.

Last Sunday, four United Nations Command soldiers — two Americans and two South Koreans — were killed when they were ambushed by Communist raiders near the Panmunjom conference site. Two other American soldiers were wounded.

In the latest incident, the spokesman said the Communists opened fire first and sporadic shooting lasted for about two hours. He said the shooting began at around 4:30 p.m.

The spokesman said three of the eight Communist soldiers who crossed the military demarcation line were killed in the firing exchange. But he said their bodies apparently were dragged back to the north later during the dark hours because they could not be found Monday morning.

Cytogenecist To Visit Campus

Many people are wondering why Bell's Pizza is so thick, why it is so tastee, so delicious. Do they put something magic on it? Are they really magicians?

No, we don't have any magic power; we are not magicians. We simply put the best ingredients there are on the market on our pizza. We put plenty on too! For example, we put twice as much cheese on Our pizza than is on an ordinary one.

Of course the best costs more, but our policy is not only to make profits for ourselves—we like to share some of our profits with our customers. After all, in the six months we have been open, you have helped us to become one of the leading restaurants in the area.

So why settle for less when you can get Bell's pizza for only 95¢? As for our grinders they are already famous throughout the area.

Correcting Parking Problems

To provide suitable access to the available educational facilities remains a major obligation of a university. The present system in use on campus is far from suitable. In response to the growing concern among faculty, staff, and students, both resident and non-resident, the student senate has proposed, for the consideration of the administration, certain policies to alleviate the problem.

The first portion of the recommendation deals with the obvious necessity of accommodating students required to walk substantial distances to classes, library, meals, study areas, lectures, social and cultural events. The bulk of the inconvenienced students lies in the southwest area and the southwest complex. In an attempt to facilitate this exceedingly large group, the Senate has proposed a continuation of the shuttle bus service, and further has suggested a serious study to determine the possibilities of expanding the service to better serve the university community.

Such considerations are well warranted and would be well worthwhile. Time is an important commodity and this plan would indeed save an enormous amount of time for those who would otherwise be required to walk.

The remainder of the recommendation concerns the restrictions levied on motor vehicle operators. To eliminate the absurdities of the present situation, a system of priorities has been formulated. It provides for allocation of parking facilities with first consideration given to faculty and staff and secondly, to all non-resident students authorized the use of motor vehicles for commuting purposes. In addition, however, the administration would be required to assign these facilities with respect to the academic necessities of the applicant. Thus, both priority and convenience would be weighed.

Receiving third, fourth, and last priorities, would be all resident students authorized to maintain and use motor vehicles, conference parking, and student storage, respectively. These, in turn, would be weighted with convenience as far as possible.

The recommendations of the Senate are wise both in theory and practicality. If it is the obligation of a university to provide accessibility to academic facilities—and it is—then it is mandatory that all possible steps be taken to meet this obligation satisfactorily.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Rules Are Made To Be Enforced

Well men, you're about to receive your badges. Now that doesn't mean I want you men to forget all you've learned in this police training program, just because you'll be out on your own. All you've learned here will find practical application once you assume your jobs on campus.

I noticed a lot of you guys were a little timid with each other during those simulated arrests. You can't be that way with the kids. You've got to give them a good three-quarter nelson with both arms.

Those kids who claim they've had a mental breakdown and beg to be taken up to the infirmary are especially dangerous. Oh, they may cry and shake a little bit, but it's all an act. An act, do you hear! So don't fall for it. Treat them like all the others.

If given the chance, they will try to become aggressive with you. This is psychology, men; I learned it when the counseling office gave their one-day comprehensive course in advanced behavioral deviances. It's got to do with the kids taking out their hostilities against their fathers through you men as authority figures. So be sure you grab 'em, throw them in the cruiser, and keep physical control of the situation.

And it helps to realize that a police record is just what a kid often needs to straighten the little S.O.B. right out; so don't sweat making any arrests. Besides, the more arrests you make, the more it shows you're on the ball where the trouble is.

Of course, our main concern on campus is parking violations. Now let's face it. We control this entire campus; but we can't let this control go to our heads. But, by the same token, we've got to let them know we are in control. Here's a little jingle I once wrote to encourage you men in your work:

The parking problem we will lick it
By giving every car a ticket
Our great power we will show 'em
'Cause after tagging, we will tow 'em
They may complain, but that's just yak
Besides, it's worth it to get kickback!

I've had that ditty on the inside wall of my revolving home bar for the last four years, and it never ceases to inspire me. Now I want you men especially to ticket on those rainy days.

Remember, in the rainstorm last March, you were shown how to tag, tow, and be out of sight in 47 seconds while that kid on crutches just went to mail a letter? That's what I expect from you men consistently.

McCarthy was fired from the force last week when he made an exception to the rule and allowed a student to park in front of the towers while he unloaded five footlockers and an electric organ. Damn it, men, there are NO exceptions. Before you know it, one exception leads to two exceptions, and we certainly can't have chaos like that.

O. K., men, so remember the new psychology: when in doubt, club 'em one, ticket everyone, and enforce all rules at all times. Do it this way, and you'll have no trouble fitting into the force.

Dorms Are Gracious And Materialistic

To the editor:

UMass, as an Eastern State University, attempts to provide an opportunity for education to students from "honest working class" backgrounds. The faculty seems to consider its job to be to introduce such students to gracious and affluent living. The goal seems to be to prepare idle gentlefolk somewhat on the English "public" school model. Actually, the model here is much more materialistic—it decries materialism, but at the same time it emphasizes creature comforts not common in England—private phones, central heating, and American plumbing.

The dormitories, and the special programs in them, best illustrate these emphases. The dorms are as gracious and materialistic as possible. Our students shouldn't be like the non-materialistic hippies—our students should pay about twice as much for living accommodations and board as they pay for tuition, all fees, and all supplies. The State keeps tuition low to make education available to more students, while the University raises the cost of education by trying to teach gracious living. There are many complaints about the dining halls and the dorms because the students pay so much for them, probably the students expect even more luxury than they pay for?

Are there any students on campus who would like to reduce their expenses by living less opulently? The University could build one of the new dorms on more of a barracks style and have one dining hall which would be more like an army mess or even a soup kitchen. This would not be practical unless there are some students who are willing to give up some of their comforts and conveniences in return for paying less. This is contrary to trends in the United States—except for the hippies— but it is being considered in at least one part of Canada where the faculty are concerned that the cost of room and board may be keeping some students away from the university.

Perhaps the current situation of having only high cost rent and board is part of a current philosophy in our wider society: every person innately deserves the best of everything, so it is undemocratic for anyone to live simply in sub-luxurious housing, whether they are willing to do so or not.

Problems Of Uncertain Commencement Date

To the editor:

The University catalogue and the original calendar of events for 1967-1968 listed June 2nd as commencement day. Yet, the seniors in ROTC and the senior nursing majors were told early this semester that graduation was going to be June 1st.

Those seniors informed of the change told other seniors. However, since no general announcement was made, most seniors believed that the change was merely a rumor. Many seniors proceeded to make arrangements in accordance with the June 2nd date.

For example, some seniors who believed that June 2nd was commencement day have booked flight and hotel reservations accordingly. I made arrangements to be married on June 1st.

After I heard "rumors" about the change of date of graduation day, I called the scheduling office. At this time, and in answer to repeated calls my friends and I made to the scheduling office, June 2nd was given as commencement date.

Since "rumors" of the change persisted, I went to President Lederle's office where I spoke with a woman who is a member of the Commencement Task Force. She said that the date of graduation was changed to June 1st.

When I said that the scheduling office gave the 2nd as the date, she said that probably the scheduling office hadn't been notified of the change. I told her that many seniors had already made arrangements in accordance with the June 2nd date, and she answered, "Isn't that a shame."

She gave the reason for the change as being the fact that other colleges in the area were having their graduation exercises on the 2nd, so, for convenience sake, UMass changed its date.

I asked the woman to at least make an announcement in the Daily Collegian notifying the seniors that the date had been changed. So, about two to three weeks later, the announcement appeared (April 3).

It seems to me that many of the planning difficulties of the seniors could have been avoided if the channels of communication between the Commencement Task Force and the seniors had been adequate.

Why did the seniors have to wait until they had made many graduation arrangements and until graduation was less than two months away before they found out that the date had been changed?

Why was it UMass and not one of the other colleges that deviated from the tradition of a Sunday commencement?

Candidates' Forum

Class of 1969

To the Class of 1969:

The treasurer of a class especially our class, which will be responsible for next year's graduation exercises, any Senior Class get-togethers, and a lecture series—must be a person who is capable, dependable, and sincerely interested in the class and its affairs. Such terms seem very abstract unless considered in relation to the candidate's past experience. Thus, my 3 years on the 1969 Executive Council (this year as your Class Treasurer); 3 years on Homecoming Committee, now Secretary, involvement with the Women's Affairs Committee for 2 years; and work on the Index this year make capable, dependable, and sincerely interested seem definite and concrete!

So Juniors, please re-elect JILL WOLFF as treasurer this Tuesday.

Jill Wolff

Class of 1970

To the class of 1970:

First of all, I would like to thank all of you who supported me in the primary election. I can assure you that your vote was a wise one. I am currently serving as treasurer of Scrolls, which gives me the experience that is necessary for the office of treasurer of the class of 1970.

As treasurer of Scrolls, I have served as chairman of the Finance Committee, which put me in charge of all fund-raising events. Thus, I am quite familiar with RSO policy and procedure. I am also a member of the class executive council.

As is well known, our class will be sponsoring next year's Winter Carnival. This being such a large undertaking, experience such as mine will prove to be beneficial. Keeping this in mind, I hope that you will show continued confidence in me on Tuesday, April 23.

Lyn Nevins

To the Class of 1970:

As a candidate for your treasurer for the upcoming year, I would like to tell you what I consider the duties of a Junior Class Treasurer.

Since the primary function of the Junior Class is to sponsor Winter Carnival, all my efforts would be towards creating the best possible weekend at the least possible cost to you, the student. As I look at the office of Treasurer, I don't see it as the class bookkeeping department. In fact, I firmly believe that keeping the books is by far the secondary role of the Treasurer. Surely the books must be kept accurately and up todate, and this I will most certainly do. However, developing a sound, responsible, and consistent financial policy for all class business is much more important. No Matter how accurately you keep the books, if you have no organized method of spending, the books cannot be orderly.

There have been many ethical questions raised this past year about class expenditures, and very notably the Class of 1970 has been absent from all wrongdoing. As your Treasurer, I will see to it that this honesty is continued.

Again I ask you to look at the qualifications of the two candidates. Examine closely who knows the most about what is necessary to run a $60,000 weekend and to run it well, not just run it. I hope that I will be your choice for your Class Treasurer.

Dave Floreen

To the Class of 1970:

For the past two years I have served as Treasurer for the Class of 1970. In this capacity, I helped to conceive and perhaps more important, help put into effect such activities as the Sophomore picnic and SEND-OFF. But the officers of the class of 1970 felt that although social activities are a prime responsibility of class government, the class owes a responsibility to the class to take a public stand on important issues, such as civil disobedience, and this we did do. In addition, along the lines of responsibility to the University community at large, the class sponsored Mr. William Baird in lecture.

In next year's budget, which I as treasurer helped to formulate, we have planned for an increase in speakers which we hope will be used to make us more aware of the problems around us, as we did this year with Mr Baird. We also have kept the present high allotment for entertainment, and all without raising the Junior Class tax.

Steve Weisman

To the Class of 1970:

Although I am running unopposed for the office of class Secretary, I feel I should explain to you what I think the role of class government is. The main function of class government is to sponsor social activities for the benefit of the class and campus. Although this is not its only function, the role of class government cannot be undermined by taking on other responsibilities which could be best undertaken by other branches of student government. I hope to serve you by concerning my self with this social function, specifically Winter Carnival 1969.

By understanding what the role of a class officer should be, I think that I can honestly say I know what I should do to carry out this role and how I should do it. I hope you place your confidence in me and vote Tuesday, April 23.

Ina Goldstein

To the Class of 1970:

I wish to thank all of you Sophomore's who voted for me in the class primary on April 16. Unfortunately, I have seen fit to formally withdraw from the race for a number of personal reasons, however, my name will remain on the ballot due to a technicality.

I strongly urge all of you who did support me to cast your vote for Jerry Bly in the final election on April 23. Thank you.

Robert Keating
Class of 1970

To the Class of 1971:

I am one of the candidates for the office of Secretary of the Class of 1971. Why am I a candidate? I feel that I am . . .

Just the person for the job of secretary, because I AM involved Actively in the functions of my class and school. For example: Not only have I contributed to the class, but I am also Managing Editor of the Exit — the weekly supplement of the Daily Collegian.

Communication improvement would be a principal goal. I believe that this could be accomplished through closer ties with the student government, dorms and the individual. As Publicity Co-Chairman and co-editor of the Freshman newsletter. "Debutante 71" I have gotten ideas as to how this goal can be achieved.

Kind of person who cares about your class functions. I would like to see not only fine social events, but also academic and community wide activities.

Serving as Interim Secretary of the Class of 1971 has given me an opportunity to gain valuable experience in this office.

On the Executive Council, President's Council, Christmas Sing Committee, Freshman Weekend Committee, and the New York Trip Committee.

Now I would like to be elected to the office of Secretary of your class, so that I may continue to help support our class and our activities.

I urge you, not only as a candidate, but as a member of the class and an interim officer to take a moment to cast your vote for the future of our class.

Bonnie Jackson

To the Class of 1971:

I would like to express my appreciation to all those who supported and voted for me in the primary election as their candidate for class secretary.

Experience in student government is a prime factor in the make-up of a good class officer. Last summer as a swingshift freshman I was elected to the summer Exec Council and served on several committees, the Summer Statesman, and participated in dorm government.

Returning to UMass in January I was appointed to our Exec Council and served on two committees.

The future success of class government depends on the ability of the class officers to competently handle large sums of money in their endeavor to organize all class social functions and other class affiliated projects. The class secretary, by no means merely a typist and note-taker, must assume a full share of these responsibilities.

Experience and a dedication to the class which are the aims of class government are what I offer you.

Bonnie Proshan

To the Class of 71:

I am writing this letter in the hope of introducing myself to those of you who do not know me. My name is Martin Shapiro and I am a candidate for treasurer of the class. I served as treasurer last semester until I resigned for academic reasons. When in office and then following my resignation I served the class in various ways. I was on the Christmas Sing Committee and the Freshman Weekend Committee. I was also active in planning the class trip to New York.

As the future Sophomore class we will be expected to sponsor many more functions as well as to take a more active role in the university. It will be the responsibility of your class officers and the Executive Council to organize and direct these activities. It is the responsibility of the class at large to participate in these functions and to make the class more successful.

You must have faith and trust in your class officers and your Executive Council if they are to serve you in the best manner possible. It is for this reason that I ask for your support in my election for Treasurer of the Class of 1971.

Martin Shapiro

To the Class of 1971

My name is Larry Woods. In Tuesday's election, I shall be running for Senator at Large. There are two reasons why I am seeking this office. The first is because the Senate interests me. The Senate, as the student organization representing the entire campus, as the student organization controlling $250,000 in student taxes, has great potential. As Senator, I would do my best to convert that potential into a Senate better serving the student body.

In working towards a better Senate, I feel I could do a better job than the incumbent. This is my second reason for running. Attending the last four Senate meetings, I have not seen the incumbent speak in debate once. In fact, she is not even there for all of the debating—or voting. She has not yet attended an entire meeting since I have been watching the Senate, but has consistently left early before adjournment. The class of 1971 is not getting the representation it deserves.

Should you want better representation — representation that attends full meetings, representation that takes an interest in debate which affects you—you should vote Larry Woods your Senator at Large.

Larry Woods

To the Class of 1971:

It has been a great honor to serve as Interim Vice President for the Class of 1971.

Before assuming the responsibilities of Interim Vice President, I served the class as Chairman for the Frosh Christmas Sing, and was elected to the President's Council. Due to a resignation, I was then appointed by the Executive Council to serve as Interim Vice President for the second semester. In this position, I have worked closely with the officers and the Executive Council in planning and carrying out all of our class functions. I have also been a member of the Student Senate Public Relations Committee for the past year.

A problem that faced our class this year was communication. I would like to see an Executive Council that, through the possible addition of dorm and commuter representatives, reaches each and every member of our class. The idea of publishing and posting minutes, committee reports, and other important notices is something we have to strive to see a reality.

I have enjoyed serving our class this year and would consider it a privilege and honor to be elected to serve you again next year. The knowledge and experience I have gained this year would help me in my attempt to see that our problems were overcome and that our future goals were fulfilled.

I would like to thank you for your support last Tuesday and ask you to Vote tomorow, April 23, for Betty Pugh Vice President of the Class of 1971. I will serve you to the best of my ability.

Betty Pugh

To the class of 1971:

Since my election as president of the class six short months ago, I have felt a personal responsibility to present to the class as many well run functions as possible. Starting with the Christmas sing of last semester I have attempted to initiate a program of ever increasing frosh run events going far beyond the programs of previous frosh classes. Although hindered by a small budget, it is with pride that I point to the "firsts of the Freshman Class." We held a Frosh weekend highlighted by the biggest all college mixer of the year and capped with the very refreshing and enjoyable Bonnie and Clyde Night club.

The class of 1971 sponsored The New York class trip, this was the first such trip ever undertaken by Freshmen for Freshmen. Looking ahead I see many areas next year that the class of 1971 can go beyond past years. I am looking for a Sophomore weekend second only to Homecoming and Winter Carni, with reduced ticket prices for Sophomores.

I have a number of plans, I am calling for a proposal for a broader executive council to enact for next year, I ask you to look at the record and to consider me for re-election as President of the class of 1971. Thank you for your kind attention.

THE U.S. SPACE PROGRAM
11:15 A.M. – April 25
Bowker Auditorium

In the second decade of its development, the New York Pro Musica continues to contribute to international music, providing its audiences with the musical masterpieces of the age that produced the genius of Shakespeare, Leonardo da Vinci and Dante. The group will appear here tonight at 8 p.m. at the Student Union Ballroom under the direction of John White.

Ten soloists of medieval voice and instrument will perform the concert.

New York Pro Musica's concert tours this season take them from coast to coast. In addition, they recently performed in a symposium on early music at the Meadow Brook School of Music, Oakland University in Michigan, and another at Stanford University.

John White, former Professor of Music at Indiana University, was appointed Musical Director of the New York Pro Musica after that post was left vacant by the death of the group's founder and first Musical Director, Noah Greenberg. White took up his new position in July of 1966.

Garber singled out Agnoli and Herling for their offensive contributions. He was pleased that his fourth and fifth attackmen picked up the scoring slack when the Redmen first had some troubles scoring.

Walt Alessi, Bill Devore and Tom Tufts paced the UMass defense in front of goalie Marl Schlossberg. Schlossberg did not have too many shots to stop but was there when called upon to make a save.

Next action for the Redmen will be tomorrow as they take on the Holy Cross Crusaders at Varsity Field. Game time is 3.

Frosh Nine Drops Pair to Amherst, 4-1, 7-1, As Bats Fail

By STEVE SHAMBAN
Staff Reporter

It was a tough weekend for U Mass frosh baseball coach Arlan Barber's Little Redmen as they dropped two games to the Amherst freshmen 7-1 and 4-1. The lack of timely hitting by U-Mass was the leading factor in both defeats.

In Thursday's 7-1 game at UMass, pitcher Jack Bernardo was breezing through a one hitter after 5 innings until he met his downfall in a six run sixth. Two walks, a wild pitch, three singles and a two run triple by first-baseman Jim Donn did the damage.

UMass' only run came on a triple by Bob Willman and a single by Bernardo in the fifth. Amherst starter Skip Landers scattered eight UMass hits in going the route. UMass pitchers, meanwhile, allowed only six hits, but unfortunately, at the wrong times.

A three run first inning was all Amherst needed Saturday to bring home it's second victory, at Amherst. The Lord Jeffs jumped on starter Gary Damon for two hits, a single and a double, and took advantage of a walk, a wild pitch, a stolen base and two passed balls to score their runs.

The UMass run came in the eighth on an error by the right-fielder as Stan Winston, who reached on a double to left, scored. Don Anderson, who relieved Damon in the fifth, gave up the final Amherst run on a solo home run by Mike Marinucci. Anderson pitched well from then on, allowing only one hit and striking out seven over the remaining 4 2/3 innings. Amherst starter Bottiggi scattered seven hits in a complete game while UMass allowed eight.

Coach Barber was understandably disturbed at the fact that his team could score only two runs on 15 hits in two games. UMass, for example, had bona-fide scoring opportunities in six different innings Saturday, but the lack of timely hiting produced only one run. Hopefully, things will change in Tuesday's home game versus UConn at 3 p.m.

Redmen Sweep Pair from Vermont, 6-3, 5-4

UMass Begins League Play; Kitchen, Katz Hurl Wins

By GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Opening its defense of the Yankee Conference baseball title, UMass had to come from behind twice this weekend as the Redmen swept Vermont in a pair of home games. Sophomore John Kitchen went the route in Friday's 6-3 win over the Catamounts, and a collision between two Vermont outfielders in the ninth inning of Saturday's game gave the Redmen a 5-4 triumph.

It took two three-run innings in Friday's game to give UMass its first Yankee Conference win. Kitchen got off to a shaky start as Vermont reached him for one in the first and two in the fourth.

The opening run came when Dave Lapointe singled with one out, stole second, and came in on Terry O'Leary's single.

The score was stretched to 3-0 in the fourth on a single by John Packard, a double by O'Leary and a single by Tom Civret that scored both Packard and O'Leary.

UMass tied it up in the fifth inning when Vermont starter Charlie Brucato lost his control, giving up five walks in the inning. Steve Rogers started it off with a walk, and Steve Stanford reached on a fielder's choice as both runners were safe.

Tony Chinappi then drew a walk, loading the bases. Brucato walked in the first two runs of the inning as he yielded passes to Kitchen and Ellerbrook. The tying run then came across as Joe DiSarcina hit into a force.

The winning runs scored in the seventh as Kitchen led off with an infield hit, Ray Ellerbrook reached on a bunt single, and DiSarcina laid down a sacrifice bunt. The throw went to third but Kitchen was safe and the bases were full.

Bob Hansen then drove in two runs with a single to right, and DiSarcina scored on a delayed double steal as he beat the return throw from second. That run made it 6-3.

STEALING THE SHOW — UMass outfielder Steve Rogers (15) who knocked in the winning run on Saturday, is shown stealing a base, in last week's action.

In the meantime, Kitchen settled down from his rough start and allowed only one infield hit after the fourth. It was the third win in three decisions for the sophomore righthander.

Saturday's game was decided in the last of the ninth, an exciting contest which also saw the Redmen fight from behind. A single by Steve Rogers, made possible by a collision by two Vermont outfielders, drove in the winning run and gave reliever Dave Katz his first win of the year.

Red-hot Hansen led off the winning rally in the ninth with his third hit of the game, a line drive single to right. After a fly-out by Don Feron, Ted Mareno laced a drive to right which Don Fitts couldn't reach. However, a slick decoy by Fitts kept Hansen from going to third.

Chuck Espanet, pinch hitting for Steve Stanford, forced Mareno at second, with Hansen moving to third. Then Rogers, also pinch-hitting, sent a drive to deep left center which leftfielder Terry O'Leary, got his glove on. However centerfielder Brennan Foster ran into O'Leary, the ball popped free and Hansen was home with the winning run.

Vermont drew first blood in the first inning when with two outs, Jim Rapoport singled to center, moved to second on a wild pitch, and scored all the way from second when John Packard beat out an infield hit. Rapoport, running on a 3 and 2 pitch, beat Ray Ellerbrook's throw to the plate.

UMass came back with two runs in the bottom of the first. Hansen unloaded a line drive which hit high off the right field fence, scoring Joe DiSarcina, who had reached on a walk. Hansen then scored when pitcher Packard uncorked a wild pitch.

The Catamounts got to starter Norm Elliott in the third, scoring three runs. Dave Lapointe led off with a homer to right, followed by a single to center by Rapoport. Packard reached on an error by Elliott, and a fielder's choice left runners on first and third.

Tom Sivret then lined a single to right, scoring Rapoport, and Steve Kunken lined one to left, scoring O'Leary. With the score 4-2 in favor of Vermont, Katz relieved Elliott and ended the rally.

DiSarcina and Hansen teamed up again in the bottom of the third, as DiSarcina singled and Hansen boomed another triple off the right field wall to score DiSarcina. Only a beautiful diving catch by Foster in center on a drive off the bat of Don Ferron kept the tying run from scoring.

UMass tied it up in the sixth when DiSarcina tripled up the alley in right center, and a sacrifice fly to center by Ferron scored him.

Katz kept Vermont in check for the rest of the game, allowing just three hits and striking out seven. In all, the senior southpaw pitched six and two-thirds innings.

The two wins put UMass atop the Yankee Conference standings ahead of Connecticut, who beat New Hampshire on Friday. The Redmen, now 6-5-1 overall, host UConn in an all-important conference game tomorrow afternoon.

Stickmen Overwhelm Tufts, 13-2

By WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

Led by a solid defense and a balanced scoring attack, the UMass lacrosse team blasted Tufts Saturday, 13-2, at Varsity Field. The win was the third in a row for the Redmen while Tufts has dropped three straight decisions.

Gary Vassar, Marty Kalikow, Bill Mushovic, Don Agnoli and Brad Herling paced the UMass offense with two goals apiece. Vasar also had four assists giving him six points for the day.

The game was not as much of a rout as the final score indicated. The Jumbos made it tough for the Redmen in the first half as UMass had only a 4-1 margin at the halfway point.

Mushovic opened the scoring for the Redmen scoring from a scramble in front of the Tufts goal. Steve Connoly tallied the second UMass goal a minute later, firing a 15 footer while cutting to the right of the goal.

John Pollard pulled the Jumbos to within one goal early in the second stanza but Herling gave the Redmen a two goal margin when he scored on a Kevin O'Connor assist. Kalikow closed out the first half scoring with his shot high into the net with 24 seconds remaining.

UMass put the game out of reach with a four goal outburst in the third quarter. Mushovic opened the scoring as he deflected Vassar's passout from behind the net past Tufts goalie Glen Drew.

O'Connor, who had tough luck all afternoon, finally tallied his first goal on an assist from Vassar. Don Agnoli and Vassar scored within 37 seconds late in the quarter to give the Redmen an 8-1 lead going into the final quarter.

Herling picked up his second goal of the game early in the fourth quarter after Steve Chambers had made a nice individual dash down the field to set up Herling.

Vassar scored the tenth UMass goal at 6.06 but Pollard broke through the UMass defense to get the Jumbos second goal at 7.03.

Captain Bill Sinclair picked up his first goal at 8.48 on an assist from Vassar. Kalikow scored on the best individual goal of the game as he spun away from two Tufts defenders and his shot caught the corner of the net.

Agnoli closed out the scoring late in the quarter on a setup from Herling.

UMass lacrosse coach Dick Garber had praise for the whole team indicating that they played a much better game than they had against Middlebury in their

Course Caucus Day Favored by Senate

by JUDY LEONARD
Issue Editor

A resolution to make this Wednesday and Thursday Course Caucus Days at UMass was passed favorably by the Student Senate on April 10.

The events of the past three weeks prompted this action. A flyer distributed yesterday throughout the campus cited the murder of Martin Luther King, Jr. whiles he was seeking justice for strikers, the resultant riots which exploded across the nation, the urges of men like Stokey Carmichael that force be used against the "white enemy" and Mayor Daley's orders that the looters be shot on sight, as reasons for concern.

Further Reasons

Also given as reasons were the withdrawal of President Johnson from the 1968 presidential race, the promised de-escalation of Vietnam bombing while present levels continue to be maintained, and the negotiated settlement for a Vietnam settlement that is still unnegotiated.

Irrelevancy of Courses

A group of concerned students and faculty felt that a confrontation was called for between these pertinent issues and the often irrelevancy of many university courses.

The group came to the Student Matters Committee of the Student Senate to gain Senate sanction for their proposed caucus. Favorably received by the Committee, the bill was then passed by the Student Senate.

In its final form, the bill read: Whereas, the Student Senate feels that there should be greater relevancy between course material and contemporary life and problems: therefore

Resolved, that the Student Senate recommend to the University Community that on Wednesday, April 24th, 1968 and Thursday, April 25th, 1968, class periods be devoted to a discussion on the problems of today preferably related to the subject matter of the course.

Caucus Purpose

The purpose of the planned Caucus, Senator Dev Cochrane, a member of the Senate Matters Committee, stated was "to sponsor a student teacher dialogue which will make us more aware of how the material being taught can help us understand contemporary issues."

Senator Cochrane went on to say that "we should like to see more course material related to real issues confronting contemporary society."

Senate President-elect, Paul Silverman, felt that this would be an attempt to bring the "relevancy of life into the classroom. Academics should be more than books; it should be intellectual curiosity and pursuit."

Participation Urged

Speaking for the Student Senate, Senator Cochrane said that on "Wednesday and Thursday we encourage students and teachers alike to break away from the regular course plans and participate in this course Caucus Day."

Dean Field Optimistic About Open House Passage

by SHARON SAMUELS
Staff Reporter

A meeting between Dean William Field, Senate President James Collins and dorm presidents to discuss the open house policy was held last night in Mahar Auditorium.

Field and Collins both expressed their strong, optimism that the proposed policy would be passed when it comes before the Board of Trustees on May third.

Step toward Responsibility

Collins cited the importance of the policy as another step in having more responsibility taken on by the government at the student level.

"Almost everyone is convinced this version is worth a try," stated Field in reference to the chances for passage of the policy.

He emphasized that the policy will be a "house grant of privilege and not a University right."

Field further described the policy as a "liberal privilege." In explanation of this he stated that only the most responsible houses and students would get and keep the privileges provided by the policy.

Determines House Responsibility

DEAN WILIAM FIELD

When questioned on what would determine whether a house was responsible, he explained that this was a differential thing. According to Field, the ultimate responsibility of determining good and responsible houses rests with the offices of the Dean of Students. However, he stated, the way in which this decision is reached is a "relatively cumbersome" process.

This process involves the head of residence of a house and the area coordinator, who, according to Field, has the greatest responsibility in reaching decisions about a certain house.

The responsibility of a house is determined by how good or bad the government and procedures within the house are. This in turn is determined by the house government, the head of residence and the area coordinator. Together they would be capable of deciding if a house were in trouble.

Field continually mentioned the importance of the individual house government's developing a good open house policy. This would be necessary to make this experimental system a success.

A major topic during the discussion was the permission cards for participation in the open houses by those under 21 years of age.

Parental Newsletter

According to Field, a parental newsletter is being prepared to be sent out before graduation which will explain the policy. Cards will be sent home during the summer to be signed by parents and returned.

He emphasized that the desire of the proposal is to make a student's responsibility of complying with parental wishes solely on an honorary basis. There would be no judicial action taken against individuals not complying. However, it was emphasized by Field, a house having a great number of students not complying would put the house in danger of losing its privileges.

SENATE PRESIDENT COLLINS

Sign In-Sign Out

Another important aspect concerning the policy, according to Field would be the development by the individual houses of a good guest sign-in and sign-out procedure. This would be necessary to insure that non-guests not be present in the residential area of the dorm.

The discussion ended with Field expressing his hope for the passage of the policy by the Board.

Floyd McKissick To Be Guest Speaker Thursday in Distinguished Visitors Series

Floyd B. McKissick, director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), will be speaking Thursday, April 25 at UMass. He is one of the final speakers in the 1967-68 Distinguished Visitors Program. He will speak at 3:30 in Bowker Auditorium.

Floyd McKissick was born in Asheville, North Carolina. His undergraduate work was undertaken at Morehouse College and North Carolina College.

After military service, he attended the University of North Carolina Law School, the first Negro ever admitted to that institution. He graduated in 1950 and was admitted to the bar the following year.

Long in Negotiations

Always a dynamic civil rights activist, McKissick has served as North Carolina Youth Director of the NAACP, and has been a long-term participant in negotiations. During the historic 1963 "March On Washington" McKissick represented CORE in place of James Farmer who was in jail in Plaquemines, Louisiana.

Countless demonstrators arrested during the "Freedom Ride" campaign of the early 1960's and subsequently have been defended by McKissick. A successful lawyer with an extremely lucrative practice in Durham, North Carolina, McKissick gave it up in order to accept the office of National Director of CORE.

FLOYD McKISSICK

Prior to his acceptance of this position, McKissick served as National Chairman of the organization for three years.

Cites Three Elements

McKissick constantly states that "Phase two of the civil rights movement means total equality."

To achieve this, three elements are necessary:

- "An improved self-image for Negroes and other minority groups.
- Development of economic power.
- Development of political power."

News in Brief

JOHANNESBURG, So. Africa (AP) — The So. African member of the Int'l. Olympic Com. called on all members of the IOC's executive board Monday to resign.

Reg Honey termed the action of the board "illegal and immoral," in unanimously recommending that So. Africa be barred from the summer games at Mexico City in October.

The 9-man board, in an extraordinary meeting at Lausanne over the weekend, bowed to tremendous pressure and unanimously urged the 100 membership to reverse a previous stand and bar South Africa from the Games.

The IOC in a majority vote announced at the Winter Games in Grenoble Fr., in February readmitted So. Africa to the Games after receiving a promise that the apartheid nation would field a mixed team of whites and non-whites.

The decision set off a world-wide explosion of protest. Led by the African nations, some 40 countries announced they would boycott the Mexico City Games. The powerful Soviet Union and its Communist satellites issued threats.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was told Monday that a New York law that requires public schools to lend textbooks to parochial students aids religion and thus violates the First Amendment.

Marvin E. Pollock, attorney for 2 school boards that asked the court to decide the 3-yr.-old law invalid, said its provisions are so vague that religious schools might play a major role in the selection of books.

He suggested this could come about should a religious group gain a majority voice on a school board.

But he said he assumed in response to a question from Justice William O. Douglas, that New York's Board of Regents would have the ultimate choice in books.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nation-wide telephone workers' strike persisted Monday as a federal judge in Kentucky threw out 1 of 2 state court orders which union officials said blocked chances of settling their walkout.

Attorneys for the AFL-CIO Communications Workers, representing some 200,000 strikers in 40 states, were also reportedly asking a federal judge in Mobile to void the Alabama state injunction.

About 140,000 employees of state Bell Telephone companies in 15 states whose contracts have expired also are striking.

"All hopes for a quick solution have faded," J. A. Beirne said Sunday after an 8-hr. strike review here with his 13-man union executive board.

U. S. Dist. Judge J. Gordon said once the union brought the case into federal court, the state court injunction could not be enforced.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon all but ruled out Monday the probability that he will win the nomination for president on the first ballot at the Republican convention next Aug.

But he asserted publicly for the first time that he has developed strong second-choice support in nominally uncommitted delegations.

In a news conference in Cheyenne, the former V.-Pres. said, "No one has the nomination wrapped up," and in another response, "it will not be locked up in the present reading."

On his second choice strength Nixon said:

"I should say that we have developed and do have a great deal of second-place support in many of those states where their leaders, the governors, are not committed. And once their leaders release them, they will move in another direction."

Nixon said that Wyo. Gov. Stan Hathaway has told him "he wants the Wyoming delegation at this time to be uncommitted."

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Interstate Commerce Comm. examiner ruled Monday, in an unprecedented step, that the ICC has the power to tell railroaders how to run their passenger trains.

Actors, Writer Experiment in Play Presentation in Amherst

A recently-formed company of young actors will present an experimental play "Buffalo Meat" by Fred (Chico) Garvin of Montague Center. Performances will be sponsored by the brothers of Theta Xi fraternity of Amherst College and will take place at their open-air stage at 62 Snell St., Friday and Saturday nights, April 26 and 27 at 8:30.

The play was originally written in four scenes, but new ones based on the reactions of the actors to his words have been written as the group has rehearsed. The work is still amorphous and changes will be made up to opening night. The play will be completed only as it is being performed.

Fed Actors in Play

Appearing in the play are Mike and Deirdre Haley of Montague Center, Kitty Warner, a senior at Amherst Regional High School, Carl Serbell of Northampton, Barry Keating of Amherst College, and Illa Howe of the Austin Riggs Players in Stockbridge. Mr. Haley and Mr. Serbell are doubling as directors.

Rave Review

The play was successfully introduced to the public on March 22 and 23 in Lenox. A rave review by Berkshire Eagle critic Milton Bass followed. He stated: "It was a combination write-in, act-in, love-in, and the love and devotion and dedication shine through. In a composition of this type it is difficult to tell where the author, director or actors stand as far as individual contributions go, but it is obvious that all worked in complete harmony and dedication. This is a talented ensemble, a whole greater than the parts." The play was sponsored by the Berkshire Theater Festival Playwrights Workshop of Stockbridge.

The 30-year-old author is married to the former Christine Consolati of Lee. Deirdre Haley is her sister. The Garvins and Haleys are living in Montague, from which Mr. Garvin commutes to his job. He drives a school bus daily for Shumway's of South Amherst.

There will be a one-dollar request for donations. Playgoers are asked to bring blankets and suitable warm clothing.

Kennedy in Ind.

Vincennes, Ind. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy swept through southwest Indiana Monday calling for help in putting this country together again.

Addressing a session of businessmen at Vincennes, Kennedy said: "Each of us, in his own way, has built his own piece of America. And the pieces do not match. I am here to tell you that this condition is not our nation's destiny."

Juilliard String Quartet Returns to UMass April 29

The Juillard String Quartet will conclude a series of UM concerts on Mon., Apr. 29 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Aud. The group has given three other concerts on campus this year. Due to the highly favorable response from the community, the quartet has been engaged for three concerts in the academic year, 1968-69.

Quartet's History

Quartet - in - Residence of the Juilliard School of Music in New York, the group was established in 1946 by William Schuman, then president of the school. The artists conduct classes in ensemble playing, participate in discussions and student workshops, give individual instruction and, naturally, present a number of concerts at the school.

The Group's Members

The Quartet's first violinist, Robert Mann, was born in Portland, Ore., where he received his initial musical training. A Juilliard alumnus, he studied violin under Edouard Dethier in addition to composition. Mr. Mann made his debut in 1941, touring from then on as soloist as well as first violinist of the Albuquerque Festival String Quartet. He still appears as a soloist and has recorded a number of solo works, among them the Bartok Sonata for Unaccompanied Violin.

Second violinist, Earl Carlyss, also a Juilliard alumnus, is a native of Chicago. He made his professional debut with the Pasadena Symphony, toured Scandinavia twice and also appeared at the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico. 1962 marked his recital debut in New York.

Raphael Hillyer, violinist, born in Ithaca, N.Y., studied at the Curtis Inst. of Music in Philadelphia. After having received his M.A. from Harvard, he played with the Boston Symphony under Serge Koussevitzky, with the NBC Symphony under Arturo Toscanini, and toured with Stradivarius and NBC String Quartets.

An exotic touch is added by the Quartet's cellist, Claus Adam, who was born of Austrian parents in Indonesia, the son of an ethnologist and a lieder - singing mother.

He too is an acknowledged composer; his Piano Sonata, among other works, was performed at the 30th anniversary celebration of the International Soc. of Contemporary Music in Salzberg.

Varied Repertoire

Since the Juilliard Quartet began its activities in 1946, they have built up a repertoire of 135 works, ranging from the classics — Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert—to the moderns—Bartok, Ravel, Webern, Schoenberg.

They are particular champions of American composers, bringing before an ever increasing public works by Copland, Schuman, Sessions, Piston and Carter. It was the Juilliard Quartet that presented the world premieres of Elliott Carter's Quartet No. 2 and Alberto Ginastera's Quartet, the Humphrey Searle Quartet and Leon Kirchner's Quartet # 1.

One of the projects closest to their hearts, though, is the complete cycle of Beethoven Quartets, a gigantic undertaking which they have realized at MIT, Cambridge; Univ. of Cal., Berkeley and Hunter Coll. in N.Y.C.

Music circles abroad have become more and more interested in the Quartet; this led to an ever increasing range of foreign tours. In 1961, the Juilliards were the first American string quartet invited to visit the Soviet Union. "Magnificent harmony and purity of sound and deep penetration into the conceptions of the composers," commented the music critic of the Tass News Agency on their first Moscow concert which ended with four encores and a standing ovation.

As for the reaction of their fellow Russian musicians, in the words of Alexander Sveshnikov, Director of the Moscow Conservatory, "they played as if the instruments were parts of their bodies." The Quartet returned to the Soviet Union for another triumphant tour in May and June, 1965.

Arnold Air Soc. Is Honor Squad Of New England

The Allan B. Bunce Squadron of Arnold Air Society representing the UMass was awarded the distinction of honor squadron of Area A-1 (New England) at the Arnold Air Society's 20th National Conclave held in New York City from April 7-10.

The Bunce squadron is made up of a select group within the campus Air Force Reserves Officer Training Corps. Criteria used in selection for honor squadron included squadron activities, pledge program, service projects and publicity gained for Air Force ROTC.

Among the service projects undertaken by the University squadron was a pioneering cooperative effort consisting of an educational and instructional program outlining the many opportunities offered by todays' Air Force with local Civil Air Patrol units.

Also announced at the conclave was the recipient of the Arnold Air Society's Outstanding Professor of Aerospace Studies and Advisors Award. Major David L. Oakes, Professor of Aerospace Studies at UMass, was the winner for Area A-1.

The award recognizes significant contributions to aerospace education and national security through distinguished leadership in Air University's Air Force ROTC.

In addition, the commander of the Bunce squadron, AAS Cadet Major H. Bruce Low won the outstanding commander of Area A-1 award.

Student Senate Leads Students

Education is probably most useful, most enjoyable, and most successful when it relates to everyday life or to the significant events of the day. A good teacher attempts to bring about this relevant educational experience each class meeting. But it is obviously a little difficult for the mathematics instructor to get to the heart of the problems of contemporary life.

This week the entire University community is being asked by the Student Senate to devote class periods on Wednesday, April 24th and Thursday, April 25th "to a discussion on the problems of today preferably related to the subject matter of the course."

The Student Senate adopted the resolution, written by its Student Matters Committee, at the meeting of April 10th. It came just six days after a major failure of contemporary life was impressed on us all and a little more than a month after the publication of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders report. (The riot report said, "The major need is to generate new will.")

"I don't feel comfortable in the country today," was how Student Senate President Jim Collins explained his support of the resolution.

Hopefully in our academic environment there is a commitment to question where we are going as individuals and as a nation, how we are going there, and why. There have been many peripheral manifestations of concerns—lectures, demonstrations, petitions, letters-to-the-editor, vigils, and others—. But we have never, as a community, pledged that "there should be greater relevancy between course material and contemporary life and problems."

For the first time in a long while, the Student Senate has undertaken to lead the students. It remains for each student to make what he will of his education.

Students, Choose, Make History

In two ways, CHOICE 68, probably three candidates and Time magazine's national presidential primary for college students, will provide for interesting analysis. It, not Indiana, will be the first face-to-face meeting of Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy. Secondly, it promises to provide a national picture of Presidential fortunes as well as an index of college-age opinion.

There's just no doubt about it, the results of this election will be analyzed by Time, by the candidates, by the national press, by the student press, and by just about everybody that hears about them. So it becomes all the more urgent for UMass students to participate in Wednesday's balloting.

In terms of pre-election analysis, it seems that the effect of CHOICE 68 will be felt most in influencing the men who will be the nominees of the respective parties. Students will not choose between two candidates most likely to be nominated in order to indicate a preference—simply because the Democrats have probably three candidates and because the Republicans have only one avowed candidate.

It seems more likely that students will vote to have someone like their choice nominated. The board of directors of CHOICE 68 seem to agree with this last conclusion since they provide for second and third choices.

It may be true that students in this election will vote for the candidate they think will make the best President. The highest vote-getters will be considered by the analyzers as the candidates the under-25 group favors for President.

Under the best circumstances the collegiate voice will be heeded by the national conventions. Under the worst circumstances the votes cast will mis-represent the nation's students—but this would be likely only if the turnout to vote is poor.

You are urged to "make history."

"Change, Become American," Author Replies

To the editor:

Since Mr. Rogers in his letter of April 18 (Flagrant Violation of Editorial Writing) attacked me personally I should like to answer him openly and personally.

First of all, I must agree that the editorial "Change, Become American" was emotional. It was written about twenty minutes after the news of the death of Dr. King was announced. Perhaps, if it had been printed a little earlier it would not have appeared so overly emotional. The piece was more of a plea than an editorial.

Secondly, Mr. Rogers stated that I was a typical New Englander, whatever that is; that I'd probably been no farther south than Massachusetts, and that I was quick to condemn the South. For his benefit may I say that I have seen first-hand negroes' shacks in Tennessee and North Carolina, and that in 1964 I had the enlightening experience of being threatened and spat upon by black Americans in Newark.

Moreover, I have a friend who when she lived in Atlanta was attacked by whites for observing that blacks and whites are equal, and another who has told me of his experiences in Houston last summer apropos of Texans' attitudes toward Negroes. Moreover, my father was a Virginian, so I do not speak from ignorance.

I do not condemn the South, but rather certain individuals, many of whom are southerners, who preach hate. I sympathize with the south for having dug itself into a hole and for having been wounded both by its people's racism and by history. In many ways, the racial reforms in the south have exceeded those in the north, and the south has lately produced some fine reformers, such as Mayor Allen of Atlanta.

I can only assume that Mr. Rogers has some sort of guilt complex about the south and felt that by attacking Messrs. Rockwell and Hitler I attacked the south at large. I'm sorry that he lumps the two concepts together.

Mr. Rogers said I would deny George Wallace a right to speak his beliefs. That is not so. I do not care what Mr. Wallace, or Mr. Goldwater, thinks or says, and I feel he has a right to speak his piece. I just wish Mr. Wallace and his followers would change their views on non-whites and non Christians. And I do fear what a George Wallace would do, and has done, in power. I do want his type of racial attitudes to leave America, once and for all.

As for Mr. Rogers' "grand American tradition" an Iowa senators said about King's death, "once again violence has struck in America, it is the curse of the land." A great deal of our tradition has been racism, lies, broken promises and out and out murder.

Mr. Rogers called me a zealot. I must admit rather ashamedly that my only efforts for civil rights have been writing editorials and treating all men as equals. However, if it is being a zealot to want racists and demagogues and their followers to change and become true Americans in the really "grand American tradition" then I am what Mr. Rogers called me. If it is being phony to feel all men are equal and that Wallace and company hurt America, then I am a phony. I don't really want Mr. Wallace or Mrs. Hicks to leave physically. I just wish they'd give all men an equal opportunity to find happiness— that little bit of phoniness is not mine, but is found in the Declaration of Independence, Mr. Rogers.

Lastly, Mr. Rogers stated that I alluded myself to Lincoln, Ghandi, etc. I am not that self-centered. The "I" was rhetorical, as I believed all who read it would realize. The "I" stood for this generation of young people who really believe in civil rights for all, freedom of domicile, equal education, and equal job opportunities. "I am Ghandi, I am America, etc." meant that "I" was the spirit of good-will, the brotherhood of men, the great ideals which make men like Dr. King do what they do. "I" meant the spirit of America at its best. I am sorry that "I" offended you, Mr. Rogers. I guess I was a bit naive to feel that "I" is America. What I obviously should have written was "We—minus one."

Try to Relate Community to Courses

To the editor:

Martin Luther King, Jr., was murdered in Memphis, where he was seeking justice for striking sanitation workers.

Riots exploded in urban areas across the nation.

The day of the King assassination, Stokeley Carmichael urged black people to bear arms against the "white enemy"; one week later, Mayor Daley of Chicago ordered that looters be shot "on sight".

Johnson has withdrawn from the 1968 presidential race. At that time he promised substantial deescalation of the bombing in Vietnam; however, the level of bombing has been maintained.

The President has committed himself to a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam conflict; after three weeks, the administration is still negotiating for a site for negotiations. CONFUSED?

There will be two days of student course caucus for the purpose of confrontation with these and other pertinent issues, on Wednesday, April 24, and Thursday, April 25, 1968. Classrooms may be used as forums for relation of the University Community to course material.

Detroit: April 5-7, 1968 Commentary

Something Like the "Late Late Show"

(Editor's Note: The following article is a first-hand account of the events which took place in Detroit immediately after the assassination of Martin Luther King. The commentator is Alvin E. Winder of the School of Education.)

I was in Detroit on April 4, 1968, the night Martin Luther King was slain by an assassin's bullet. I was located on the edge of the Wayne State University campus about a mile and a half from downtown Detroit and a few blocks from an area of the Negro ghetto, which was in some places still blackened and burned-out from the massive riots of the summer of 1967.

Detroit was a city without newspapers; the local newspapers had been on strike sometime before the assassination and news had to be disseminated by radio and television.

The night of Dr. King's death there were several incidents. Early in the evening a police car became the target of a machine gun, the result being two bullet holes in the squad car and two wounded Detroit patrolmen. Later that same night store windows were broken and looting occurred. This looting seemed to be the work of teenagers, and television newscasters reported that five were shot by police, two of whom died.

The following afternoon the city learned through repeated interviews with Governor Romney and Mayor Cavanaugh that the city was under a state of emergency. All businesses were asked to send their employees home and an 8 p.m. to 5 p.m. curfew was imposed upon the city and surrounding areas. Finally it was announced that 3,000 National Guardsmen had been sent into the city.

From Friday afternoon through Sunday the city took on an eerie aspect. Except for the center of town, shops closed down and traffic seemed to have disappeared from the streets. The area around Wayne State was virtually deserted.

Restaurants and food stores were closed. The grocery at the corner where I had bought some goods the day before now had a large jagged pane of broken glass, not completely hidden by a hasty job of boarding up—a partial dressing on a wound inflicted the night before. The hotel where, only the day before we had held our workshop sessions, was not locked; one door was open, but that was closely guarded by a white employee, a revolver strapped to his belt.

I who had so freely walked in and out of these doors the day before could not gain admittance. Neither my business nor my whim to enter were a sufficient reason for subjecting the premises to the danger I might bring with me. It was clear that by being a person on the street I was now suspect, a potential danger to all men, white or black.

Saturday afternoon I boarded a bus headed for the center of the city. Most of the passengers were Negroes. They sat silently, their faces set in a grim non-communicative mask.

As I stood observing the passengers, a seat became available directly in front of me. I asked a heavy-set middle-aged Negro woman who was standing next to me if she would like the seat. She turned away from me without acknowledging that she had heard my remark. A few minutes later, she crossed the aisle and sat in another seat that had just become vacant.

Walking back to the hotel late that afternoon, I was again impressed by the empty silent stretches of wide boulevards that only yesterday were teeming with noisy traffic. My walk, however, was rewarded with the eventual sight of human activity —a sight, in fact, that I was to see several times in the next day and a half. First there appeared a jeep with two soldiers in combat dress. This was followed immediately by a military lorry with twelve or more National Guardsmen, fully equipped for combat, steel helmeted, full field packs, and rifles held ready in their hands. Once they had driven past, the streets again assumed their silent emptiness.

Their presence did not leave me with a feeling of security, rather I had the sense of a city under seige. I was reminded of scenes I had seen on the "Late Late Show" when the film was about some South American country struggling through a revolution—the silent streets, the truckload of soldiers—and the shuttered windows. I had never associated these scenes with either an American city or with my own life. I have always accepted them as belonging to Hollywood sets and as pertaining to a locale in the Southern hemisphere.

But this was really happening to me, and the street signs were in English and familiar and this was Detroit, U.S.A.!

It was through these impressions and the uneasy feeling of fear that accompanied them that I began to sense the real meaning of civil disorder and of a great city trying to hold itself together through military control. The fear, as I examined it, was not of violence, but rather of a social climate where the familiar amenities of civilization could suddenly disappear. The ordinary flow of traffic, the purposeful activities of people on the street, the simple willingness of the grocer on the street to exchange goods for paper called money, and the willingness of strangers to view you with openness and friendliness had all disappeared.

Reflection upon my experience has led me to believe that the effects of the rift between black and white men in our cities must be measured not just by the millions of dollars of property destroyed or tens of lives lost, but by an even more threatening consequence—a fear that robs men both black and white of their humanity and makes them perceive each other with suspicion and hostility.

Civil Liberties Union To Discuss Draft Issue

In response to growing public interest, the Hampshire County Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union will present a program titled The Draft, Law, and Morality: An inquiry into the young man's dilemma.

An unusual format has been devised to discuss and clarify all of the issues. Amherst College students, Nicholas Cobbs and Felix Springer, will each present his personal stand in relation to the draft. Both draft resistance and draft compliance will be discussed, defended, and debated.

Prof. Havard will be advocate

Presiding over the meeting will be Winthrop Dakin, Amherst area lawyer and well-known town moderator. Acting as advocates for the students will be Professor William Havard of the UMass government department and Professor John Ratte of the Amherst College history department.

The meeting is designed to clarify the basic beliefs of law and conscience at the root of student draft resistance and compliance. The two students will be examined and cross examined by the advocates.

Positions to be Drawn

Their positions and arguments will be clearly drawn and summarized with the meeting thrown open to questions from the audience.

The program will take place on Wednesday, April 24th, on the UMass campus in Amherst. The public is cordially invited to attend and take part in the discussion.

Supreme Court Ventures Into Antipornography

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court told the states Monday they have a right-even a duty—to decide what kind of sex material youngsters may see and read.

"The well-being of its children is of course a subject within the state's constitutional power to regulate," Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said in a 6-3 decision.

Moreover, Brennan said, parents, teachers and others who have the prime responsibility of rearing children "are entitled to the support of laws designed to aid discharge of that responsibility." The ruling was the court's first venture into a growing kind of antipornography law-one designed for children.

A New York statute was specifically endorsed. And in a companion case, the court threw out a Dallas ordinance geared to movies, because the justices found the classification standards vague.

Here, too, the court said—through Justice Thurgood Marshall—that "a state may regulate the dissemination to juveniles of, and their access to, material objectionable as to them, but which a state clearly could not regulate as to adults." The vote was 8 to 1.

Justices William O. Douglas and Hugo L. Black filed a dissent in the New York case. Commenting wryly that "the juvenile delinquents I have known are mostly over 50 years of age," Douglas described the court as "the nation's board of censors."

Student Recital Tonight In Education Auditorium

The University of Massachusetts will present a program of instrumental and vocal music at a student recital Tuesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the School of Education Auditorium.

Eleven UMass graduate and undergraduate students will perform at the recital, which is open to the public without charge.

St. Cloud, Minn., will perform on the clarinet and piano in Wanhal's Sonata for Clarinet and Piano.

Soprano Gale Sakaris, a junior from Peabody, will sing Bach's "Aria: Seufzer, Tranen, Kummer, Not" accompanied by Nancy Shuch of Miami Beach, Fla., violinist, and Carol S. Miller, a sophomore from Norwood, pianist. Trumpeter Gerald Mirliani, a junior from Amherst, will be accompanied by pianist Patricia Virga, a senior from Clifton, N.J., in Haydn's Concerto for Trumpet.

Hue's First Solo de Cornet a Pistons will be performed with Anthony Swiercz, a freshman trumpeter from Easthampton, and Karen Tarlow, a junior from Revere, pianist. The program will conclude with Beethoven's Duo for Clarinet and Cello performed by clarinetist Donald Craig and Margaret Wilmeth, a graduate student from Iowa City, Iowa, cellist.

McCarthy Denies Mansfield Named

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy repeated Monday that Secretary of State Dean Rusk should resign and added he could name eight or 10 persons he would like to see in the job.

The Minnesota Democrat arrived by plane from Indiana and was asked at a news conference about a comment that he would like to see Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield in Rusk's position.

"I didn't really propose him Mansfield," McCarthy said. "I was asked to name someone and didn't really offer him that position."

Mansfield said he wouldn't accept anyhow.

McCarthy didn't name the others he had in mind.

About 150 persons, mostly students, greeted the Democratic presidential hopeful at Burke Lakefront Airport on the first stop of an 18-hour campaign visit, his first to Ohio.

Earlier McCarthy visited three industrial towns of northern Indiana, aiming his campaign at college students and the labor vote.

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to all those who contributed to the Collegian Art Contest, and to the judges, Mr. John Grillo, Mr. Walter Kamy, John H. Dean, Jr., and Ronald LaBrecque. Entries may be picked up Thursday, April 25, 1968 at the Collegian Office between 10-11 a.m. and 12-2:30 p.m.

UMass Student Bound Over For Grand Jury

Two University of Massachusetts sophomores were bound over for the Grand Jury by Judge Luke Ryan in Hampshire District Court on Thursday.

The youths are both 19, and are roommates in George Washington Tower at the university. They were charged with illegal posession of a narcotic, namely, marijuana.

They had been arrested by university police in their dormitory room, on March 20. Both have been free on $1,000 bail.

A motion to suppress evidence, submitted by attorneys, was denied by Judge Ryan. During a probable cause hearing, a quantity of marijuana was produced by Sgt. Francis Mazzei of the University Police.

Judge Ryan ruled that probable cause had been found, and the youths will appear before the Grand Jury at its next sitting in June.

Upward Bound's Third Season At UMass Will Begin in June

Upward Bound's third summer at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst will offer a wide educational range and will stress classroom skills in reading and mathematics, its director, William Madaus has announced.

This will give us an opportunity to provide a program which will help to insure that our seniors will be successful in entering college and will enable us to make proper educational placement for the other 73 students we started with two years ago," Madaus said.

The renewal of the OEO grant will fund the UMass Upward Bound program at the same level as those of the two previous years. Upward Bound at UMass is one of 279 such programs at U.S. educational institutions. Its aim is to boost the educational chances of secondary school students with potential who have been handicapped by educational, economic and cultural deprivations.

Six and half weeks

Since the program began at UMass in the summer of 1966, the pattern has been a six and a half week summer session on the Amherst campus, with concentrated counseling, class work and cultural programs, alternated with a follow-up program of counseling and tutoring through the school year in the student's home community.

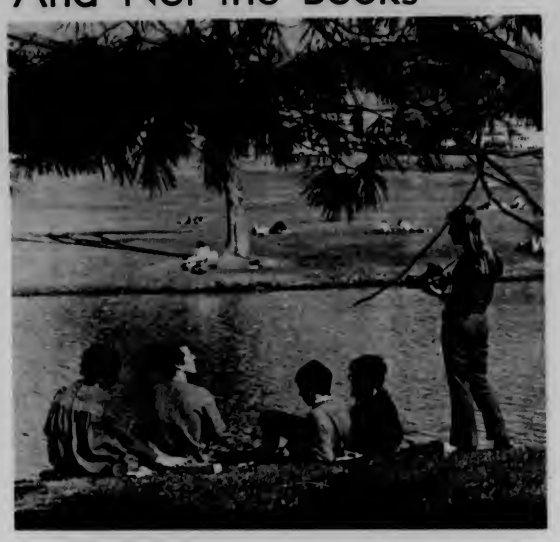
Upward Bound students come from 24 secondary schools, both urban and rural, in western Massachusetts. Total enrollment this summer is scheduled to be 108. Of these, 24 will be "bridge students," scheduled to enter college or other institutions of higher education this fall; 61 will be scheduled to begin their final year of high school this fall and the remainder will be new members of the program scheduled to begin their junior year of high school this fall.

Planned for the summer session this year is a stepped-up reading program. The bridge students will be taking an actual college-level English program taught by UMass English department instructor Bernard Bell. The course will offer two transferable college credits and is designed "to give students a feeling of what college courses entail and what college professors are like," Madaus said.

Study Skills Program

For the non-bridge students, a reading and study skills program will be conducted by UMass School of Education instructor Marsha Rudman. The two aims of the program will be to offer remedial training for Upward Bound students below grade level and to aid in increasing the reading and study comprehension of those at par or above grade level.

There will also be a remedial-type math course which the Upward Bound director described as "an overview of the whole subject of mathematics to acquaint Upward Bound students with topics they might not have been exposed to." The emphasis will be on algebra, he added.



Arts and Crafts Program

The summer session will run from June 24 to Aug. 3, with classes in the morning and a fairly wide variety of cultural and educational offerings in the afternoon. An arts and crafts program at the nearby Leverett Craftsmen and Artists center will be continued. Upward Bound students will work in ceramics, drawing and painting under the center's staff instructors.

There will also be a regular nature biology sessions at a nature area in Leverett, a drama program, a newspaper and yearbook, a series of community service projects and attendance at cultural events in the Five-College area. An afternoon tutorial service will be provided for students with high school deficiencies to make up. Instructors from the Five-College area have been asked to volunteer for a series of evening Upward Bound seminars on social studies. This series will emphasize current problems such as race relations, the urban crisis and drugs.

"Upward Bound seems to me of all programs sponsored by OEO to hold the most promise," Madaus said. "It allows young people to escape from poverty in the very best way—through education."

Umies Hit the Ground, And Not the Books

MDC Photo by Ken Bates

Beautiful weather at UMass the past two weeks has resulted in many students relaxing around the campus pond. At this time of year, a startling increase of class cuts is observed by many professors, who perhaps wish that they too could forget about courses and other practical aspects of life.

UMass Latin Course Opened to Area Colleges

Elementary Latin, which was not offered this year because of lack of staff, will be offered in the fall in two sections. As an experiment in cooperation with the neighboring colleges, this course in the fall term will be open to students from U. Mass., Amherst, and Smith. Students continuing with Latin 120 in the spring will have their choice of Classical or Medieval readings.

Latin 130, the intermediate course will offer readings in Latin poetry. Virgil's Aeneid (Book IV) and selections from Catullus and Virgil's Eclogues will be studied as representative modes of poetic expression.

The course is recommended not only as a means of fulfilling the language requirement (with Latin 140 in the spring), but also as background for the study of European poetic traditions (epic, lyric, pastoral).

In the spring term selections from Horace's Odes and Ovid's Metamorphoses will be read.

Advanced Course Proposed

An advanced Latin course in history and biography (Latin 327) has been proposed for the fall and is presently pending consideration by the Board of Trustees. This course will treat Livy, Tacitus, and Suetonius. Readings will be done in English and Latin.

The course is open to students with three or four years of high school Latin, and is especially recommended to history majors.

Two New Members

Two new faculty members will join the Department of Romance Languages' Classics staff this fall. They are Mr. Robert Goar, who will receive his Ph.D. from Harvard University this June and has taught at Boston University and the United Nations International School, and Miss Mary Donovan, a prospective June honors graduate of U. Mass., who will be a graduate student in Comparative Literature and a teaching assistant in Classics.

Any questions concerning Classics at U. Mass. and the neighboring colleges should be addressed to Gilbert Lawall, 251 Bartlett, 545-2827.

For those interested, on Thursday, April 25, at 4:30, there will be an informal Classics meeting in the Worcester Room of the Student Union. Professor Charles Beye of Boston University will speak on "Imagery in Lucretius."

Yale University professor Kenneth B. Wiberg will visit UMass Thursday, April 25, as part of the Four-College Lecture Series in Chemistry. He will also visit Smith, Amherst and Mount Holyoke Colleges Friday and Saturday.

Professor Wiberg, who taught chemistry at the University of Washington and Harvard University before joining the Yale faculty, is conducting research in areas of kinetics and mechanism organic oxidation reactions. His studies have focused on the preparation and reactions of bicyclic small compounds and have involved special physical techniques such as nuclear magnetic resonance spectroscopy.

He will speak on the "Reactions of Cyclopropylcarbinyl and Cyclobutyl Cations" at UMass on Thursday, April 25, at 8 p.m. in Peters Auditorium of Goessmann Chemistry Laboratory.

On Friday, April 26, at Amherst College, he will lecture on the "Calculations of the Course of Small Ring Reactions" at 8 p.m. in Moore Chemistry Lecture Hall.

"Properties of Small Ring Compounds" is the subject of his lecture at Smith College Saturday, April 27, at 10 a.m. in McConnell Hall 103.

Prof. Wiberg will be at Mount Holyoke's Cleveland Hall L2 at 2 p.m. on Saturday to lecture on the "Synthesis of Small Ring Compounds."

Former Guggenheim Fellow

He is a graduate of M.I.T. and Columbia University where he received his Ph.D. degree. A former Guggenheim and Sloan Fellow, Prof. Wiberg has also been a member of the Chemistry Advisory Panel of both the Air Force Office of Scientific Research and the National Science Foundation. His studies of reaction rates and mechanism have contributed greatly to the knowledge of the molecular shape and thermochemical properties of small ring compounds.

His talks are open to interested students, faculty and members of the public.

BOWLING
with Dick Weber
ALL-PRO CHAMPION

Bowling Instruction

To assist you with your game and improve your scoring, I will demonstrate the Four Step Approach as it is taught by the AMF Staff of Champions.

STARTING POINT. Place both heels at the foul line, take 4½ brisk walking steps from the foul line and turn around. This is your correct starting position.

STANCE. Left foot forward, right foot back. Stand erect, knees slightly bent. Support the weight of the ball in both hands. Place your fingers and thumb into the proper holes and hold the ball to the right side.

FIRST STEP, the pushaway, is the first and most important step. As you move your right foot forward, push the ball forward and down in one easy motion.

SECOND STEP. Once in an arc motion, the ball starts into the backswing. Keep your arm close to your body. Move your left foot forward. Your left arm swings away to a natural balancing position.

THIRD STEP. The ball reaches the top of the backswing, not above shoulder level. The right foot is forward, shoulders parallel to the foul line. Lean forward and down.

FOURTH STEP. As your left foot slides, your right arm comes forward in one simultaneous motion. Perfect timing is achieved when your sliding foot and right hand reach the foul line together. Left knee is bent, shoulders are at right angles to direction of delivery, your right arm comes through to lift the ball over the foul line.

FOLLOW THROUGH. Upon releasing the ball your arm should follow through over your right shoulder. Hold this position, balanced on your left foot until the ball hits the pins. If you cannot maintain this balanced position, your delivery has not been smooth and easy.

UMass-UConn in Crucial Conference Game

REDMEN BASEBALL

Redmen 2-0, Huskies 1-0

by MARTHA CURRAN
Sports Day Editor

Right-hander Rich Rappoli takes the mound here today for the UMass baseball team and UConn, shut out in two games this season by southpaws, will have a reprieve when they meet the Redmen at 3 o'clock at varsity field. John Canty, UMass' outstanding lefty pitcher is in the second week of recovery from a torn muscle in his pitching elbow . . .an injury that may take another two weeks to heal.

"This is a crucial game" Coach Dick Bergquist said, "an important one in conference play. We feel we're ready." UMass is 2-0 in conference play, 6-5-1 overall.

Rappoli, who struck out twelve batters as he pitched a two-hitter against Williams College, will be backed by Ray Ellerbrook at first, Don Farron at second, Joey DiSarcina at shortstop and Steve Stanford at third. Catcher Tony Chinappi rounds out the infield.

Bob Hansen, who leads the team in batting average with a .435, will play left field, Ted Morino, second in batting with a .326, will take right field. Steve Rogers completes the outfield at center.

With only one conference game — and a victory at that — on its 1968 records, UConn comes to UMass with great ambition. Overall record for the Huskies is 5-5. Pitcher Eddie Baird, who has a 1-1 record, an earned run average of 1.96 and 28 strikeouts in 23 innings to his credit, will start today for UConn.

Jeff Filmer will be at first, Richie Friedman at second, and Bill Flood will catch for UConn. Bud Pepin at shortstop and Fred Malan at third lead the Huskies in batting, both with averages of .282. Malan, like UMass' own DiSarcina and Ellerbrook, plays varsity basketball in season.

George Greer, an All American selection last year, joins Peter Depgen and Jack Melen in the outfield for UConn.

Tennis Team Edges UNH, 5-4

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

The varsity tennis team brought their season's record to 2-1 as they squeezed past tough New Hampshire 5-4 in a home match Saturday. The win was iced when Carl Clemm, playing fourth singles, won his match over Bill Rothwell, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

The score gives no indication of the toughness of the match. It took over three and a half hours. On one occasion an "average" point was timed, and it took 115 whacks of the ball to decide it. A spectator left, went to the Hatch, returned with a drink, and saw the conclusion of the same point.

Coach Steve Kosakoski called the Clemm-Rothwell match "one of the most disciplined matches I have ever seen. Both boys made sure that they put the ball over the net, and Carl was fortunate that he did it more often. But that's what college tennis is all about."

Koz also had high praise for Steve Cohen, sixth singles, who took his match in three sets and then teamed with Mike Katz to win at third doubles. The other two Redmen points were grabbed by Scott Sheppard, fifth, and Tom Johnson, third. Johnson is undefeated in singles competition.

Today the Redmen travel to Tufts, and on Friday they host URI. The Rams, along with UConn, UMass and UNH, are all contenders for the Yankee Conference title to be decided next month.

The Litle Redmen will start their season this week and will meet Amherst at home on Thursday. The UMass frosh boasts Al Goldberg and Billy Serus, the Bay States' second and third best schoolboys last spring. Goldberg took the Eastern Mass honors while Serus was runner-up to state champ Tommy Shure in the Western half of the state.

Shure is playing second singles for the Amherst frosh. Their leading player is a nationally ranking junior player. This meet will delight devotees of fine tennis.

REDMEN CREW

Crew Dampened In Philadelphia

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

PHILADELPHIA—For the second straight week the UMass crew team failed to come up to par as the freshman, JV and varsity crews finished fifth, third and fifth respectively out of a field of six in the Kerr Cup Regatta in Philadelphia.

The freshman crew, previously undefeated, were the victims of a collision with LaSalle which cost them valuable time. The Little Redmen were unable to recover and finished the 2000-meter course 3½ lengths behind winner Drexel.

The Drexel frosh finished the race in 6 minutes, 23.9 seconds followed by Trinity, 6:31, LaSalle, 6:33, Georgetown, 6:33.6, UMass, 6:39 and Holy Cross, 6:45.

The only bright spot of the day was the third place finish by the UMass JV crew. Back in fifth place for half of the race, the Jayvees picked up at the 100 meter mark and passed LaSalle and Drexel before the finish. Trinity College was an upset victor over Georgetown. The finish was: Trinity, 6:15, Georgetown, 6:19.1, UMass, 6:28.1, LaSalle, 6:35.7, Drexel, 6:39 and Holy Cross, 6:45.

Last week against Wesleyan and MIT, the UMass varsity was unable to maintain a high stroke . . .Saturday they had a high stroke and finished at a 41, but were unable to row smoothly. Georgetown was a walk-away victor in 6:13 with LaSalle, 6:20.8, Drexel, 6:32.2, Trinity, 6:32.9, UMass, 6:36.1, and Holy Cross, 6:40.

Commenting on the outcome, Coach Clarke said, "My boys definitely have the size (average weight, 193 lbs.), strength and endurance. But they will have to smooth out their style and harness their power."

Clarke added, "If these boys improve their style, UMass will definitely come back strong and we should find ourselves in the finals of the Dad Vail Regatta."

Frosh Stickers Win

For the second game in a row, the UMass freshman lacrosse was overpowering. Following a 20-0 rout in its opener, the Little Redmen routed a highly-regarded Wesleyan freshman team, 10-0 last Friday.

Attackman Mike Henry was again the scoring leader. Henry fired in four goals and also added two assists. Ed Sacco, supported Henry with two goals.

John Orr, UMass goalie notched his second straight shutout still unscored upon. He was helped by a fine effort from his defensemen.

UMass coach John Bamberry was especially pleased with the balance of his attackmen. The four other goals were scored by four different players, Larry Diamond, Steve Hershcopf, John Gannon and John Catell.

The frosh next meet Dartmouth in an away battle Saturday.

Redmen-Crusaders Lacrosse

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Although they won three straight games, the UMass lacrosse team has no time to rest or look back at past successes. The stickmen go back into action today when they meet Holy Cross at varsity field. The game is scheduled for 3 p.m.

Holy Cross is leaning heavily on sophomores. Last year's squad was heavily hit by graduation, which left only six lettermen. But Crusader coach, Ham Perkins says, "The boys have worked hard and have a great desire to play."

Leading Holy Cross for the third straight year will be co-captain John Vrionis at attack. Vrionis was last year's leading scorer with 14 goals and also led last fall's Crusader football team in scoring.

He will be joined on attack by veteran Kevin Tepas and a promising sophomore Mark Doherty. Doherty is termed by his coach "a really outstanding excellent player."

Only two players return to midfield, hockey player Bill Butler and Neil Hourihan and the defense is entirely made up of sophomores. The goal will be manned by junior Tony Moscati.

Holy Cross mentor, Perkins doesn't expect miracles this season but said, "The spirit of the team is good and we'll work hard for everything. I'll play my best ten men as long as possible."

UMass is expected to start with Bill Devore, Walt Alessi and Tom Tufts at defense, and Kevin O'Connor, Gary Vassar and Bill Sinclair at attack with Mark Schlossberg in the goal. The team will probably again go with three midfield units.

The performance last week of attackmen Don Agnoli and Brad Herling was especially encouraging since it gives the Redmen added depth at the position.

After the Holy Cross game, UMass rests until Saturday until it travels to Dartmouth for the first of three straight away games. Actually today's game will be the next to last home game as the Redmen close with three straight away contests.

Support for Rockefeller Promoted By New Campus Organization

By RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

"We want to see how many people are willing to support a Rockefeller movement on campus." These are the words student Steve Kalish used to address a sparsely attended meeting of the Students for Rockefeller organization held in the Plymouth Room last night.

According to Kalish, the new campus group has three immediate aims. These are: To organize support for Rockefeller in today's "Choice 68" election; To recruit student support for Rockefeller with petitions and buttons; And to conduct further support for the New York governor with possible summer recruitment.

Beyond these points Kalish stated that the new group does not "really have any specific program in mind."

University of Masaschusetts student Karen Sacks said that the Rockefeller organization has been in existence "just recently," and is affiliated with the Students for Rockefeller in Boston and the Massachusetts draft movement for the governor coordinated by Howard Hughes.

Miss Sacks continued that the Rockefeller organization was previously attached to the Young Republicans but is now "independent." She added that the group may take RSO papers if and when it wants.

The Rockefeller group is presently trying to get cooperation with other schools in the Four College Area.

"There is very little around, little money," added Kalish, and the state of the organization at present is indefinite. "All we can do is get petitions signed, mailed to him, and see what he does."

The New York governor has stated that he is not a candidate at this time.

One student at last night's meeting told the Collegian that he believes the Rockefeller movement will "never become a big success like the McCarthy one." He added that the group will do a "significant" job and help to "overcome student apathy" on campus.

The primary function of the organization, continued the unidentified student, is to "show Rockefeller he has student-faculty support."

"There is a large degree of faculty support on the University campus, but it is non verbal," he continued.

Karen Sacks expressed the group consensus that a Rockefeller movement must try to keep an "open convention" and "let Nixon and others in the party know that he, (Nixon) doesn't have the convention sewed up."

Another meeting of the Rockefeller group is planned for next Wednesday night in the Plymouth Room.

Students Want to Hold Action on Cook Report

By BILL DICKINSON
Staff Reporter

An ad hoc committee of concerned students hopes to convince a meeting this afternoon of the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences to withhold action on the Cook Committee Report, according to Mary Sayre, a spokesman for the students.

The meeting is scheduled for 3:30 at SBA 120. The student group has been given permission to send 50 students to listen to the discussion of the report, although they will not be allowed to speak, according to Miss Sayre. The program for recruiting disadvantaged students and the honors program will be discussed and a vote will be taken concerning certain sections of the report, including the speech and foreign language requirements.

Miss Sayre said her group will pass out handbills to the faculty members "to try to persuade the College of Arts and Sciences to delay any action on the Cook Report until students who are concerned with curriculum reform have had a chance to become involved in the decision-making process."

The ad hoc committee has been asked to set up committees of students within some departments to make recommendations to their department heads who have been requested to include the students' ideas in their reports to Prof. John Maki, chairman of the faculty curriculum reform committee. However, Miss Sayre said, "Overwhelmingly, our research shows that student opinion has not been sought or taken into consideration for either lack of time or inclination when the department heads wrote their evaluations of the Cook Report."

She said that currently there are such student committees functioning within the mathematics, English and sociology departments "but they have not had sufficient time to complete their evaluations and submit them."

"We're afraid" Miss Sayre explained, "that in light of this meeting that they'll be trying to implement the Cook Report piecemeal, rather than as a whole, and without letting the student body become involved."

According to Miss Sayre the student group actually feels that the Cook Report is really just "a reshuffling of courses" and it would prefer "that it be used as a basis for an open dialogue on curriculum reform at all levels of the University."

Czechoslovakia Warns Against Russian Interference; Threatens Party Walkout

PRAGUE (AP)—Czechoslovakia's liberal government warned the Soviet Union against interference in its internal affairs Tuesday and told Moscow it would walk out of a world Communist meeting in Budapest today if criticized there, reliable sources report.

They said the leader of the Czechoslovak delegation, Jozef Lenart, secretary of the party Central Committee, had been authorized to tell his Soviet counterpart that "interference in Czechoslovak internal affairs" must stop.

The threat of a walkout meant that Czechoslovakia was ready to assume renegade status within the European Communist world, joining Romania, Yugoslavia and Albania. None of the 3 is represented among delegates gathered in Budapest.

Behind Czechoslovakia's stand was the Soviet Union's backing of conservative elements with the Czech Communist party who are opposed to the liberal course of First Sec. Alexander Dubcek.

The situation was strained by unconfirmed reports that Soviet Ambassador I. V. Chervolenko had several meetings earlier this month with Antonin Novotny, the party leader and president ousted by Dubcek.

Novotny, a Soviet-type old-liner, retains a seat on the Central Committee and still has the allegiance of about a third of its members and thousands of party apparatchiks, or bureaucrats.

The sources reporting on the threat of a walkout in Budapest said Lenart prepared a statement demanding recognition of the principle of independence, sovereignty and equality among Communist parties as spelled out in the Prague regime's new action program.

Recognition of these principles, the sources said, would be considered a condition for Czechoslovak cooperation in plans to be worked out at Budapest for a world Communist summit in Moscow at the end of the year.

Trinity Sit-in Favors Negro Scholarships

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)— More than 200 students held the Trinity College administration building yesterday, saying they would stay until a student-proposed Negro scholarship program is approved.

"This is the sit-in switchboard" was the response to calls to the college's main number.

"I have no comment," Trinity President Albert C. Jacobs said today.

Demonstrators from the 1,300-student men's college jammed a corridor outside a second-floor meeting room for more than 3 hours Monday night, preventing 9 trustees and Jacobs from leaving the building.

The protest group moved food and bedding into the building after Jacobs and the trustees left and said they would stay until approval of the program was granted.

Smith Cancels Big Opening Because of Recent Deaths

NORTHAMPTON — Smith College has abandoned plans for a gala opening of its $5 million Center for the Performing Arts because of two accidental deaths at the site within four days.

Smith College President Thomas Mendenhall, expressing great sorrow and regret at the "tragic coincidences" in the deaths of Miss Catherine M. Millwid, 20, Thursday and Roger Luken, 25, Sunday evening said any opening celebration of the center, even at a later date is inappropriate.

The building, being rushed to completion by the general contractor, Daniel O'Connell's Sons of Holyoke, was scheduled to open May 3 and 4.

Luken, of 5 North St., Wilmington, a Yale graduate student, was killed instantly in the sprawling center Sunday when a scenery frame being prepared for the opening fell 27 feet into a pit where he was working.

Miss Millwid, a Smith College junior had died two hours after plunging 25 feet into an open ventilating shaft outside the building during a campus treasure hunt Thursday night.

"In the light of these tragedies, any formal celebration of the opening is out of place," Mendenhall said.

Police Chief James L. Whalen reported that Luken, slated to be the center's new technical director, was painting scenery with his wife in the empty theater section of the center when the accident occurred. Mrs. Luken, the former Margalee Oelrich, said her husband attempted to move a huge 30-foot-square wooden scenery frame into position.

Electrical motors, used to move the scenery, became inoperative and Luken descended a ladder into the two-foot wide pit to investigate, his wife said. A 3/8th inch wire cable holding the scenery frame apparently snapped, lunging the apparatus to the pit bottom, pinning Luken between the scene frame and a concrete wall. A pulley attached to the cable and sunk into the pit floor was found pulled out by investigators.

Medical Examiner Thomas F. Corriden of Northampton, ruling the death accidental, said Luken suffered multiple rib fractures, pulmonary contusions and internal injuries.

Mrs. Luken rushed from the building and summoned help from Richard Spreda, a Northampton Commercial College student at a nearby dormitory. Firefighters, police and college security and maintenance forces rushed to the scene and extri-

House of Commons Gives First Approval to New Racial View

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons gave first approval Tuesday night to a bitterly contested government bill to outlaw racial discrimination in wide sections of British life. But the measure faces a tough battle in committee.

The Conservative opposition, which tried in vain to kill the bill, was split on the issue and its leadership embarrassed by a speech made by Enoch Powell touched to gunpowder.

Powell was dismissed from the party leadership for it and given an elegant tongue-lashing by Conservative chiefs in the one-day Commons debate.

Workers in a half dozen plants staged token strikes in support of Powell and hundreds of tough London longshoremen marched on the House of Commons to shout their support for him. As they stood outside, they jeered individual Negroes and Indians going in to watch the debate.

The key vote came on the Conservative move to prevent the bill from receiving a second reading-approval in principle. Liberals backed the Labor government for a vote of 313 to 209 turning back the Tory move.

Soviet Editorial Indicates Communist Rule In Red China Facing Possible Overthrow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist rule in China could be overthrown because of "a surging wave of discontent" created by the policies of Mao Tse-tung, the Soviet Communist party said Tuesday.

An editorial in the Soviet party's theoretical journal Kommunist indicated that the Kremlin is despairing of China's returning to a calm, stable form of communism.

Instead, the Kremlin appeared worried that China might cease to be a Communist country. What might succeed communism in China was not suggested.

"What is now taking place in China is causing growing concern and anxiety among Marxists-Leninists throughout the world," Kommunist said.

"Already clearly in sight is the danger of a change in the nature of government in the country and, hence, a real danger to the Socialist Communist gains of the Chinese revolution."

The editorial added that Mao's policies are harming the Communist and revolutionary movement by leading China away from the world movement and converting China "into a force hostile to the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries."

The editorial appeared on the eve of a meeting in Budapest by many of the world's Communist parties to organize a world Communist conference against "imperialism" in Moscow.

Looking over the history of communism in China, Kommunist reached the conclusion that Mao never had really been a true Communist.

"It has now become evident," the editorial said, that Mao was "guided mainly by nationalistic reasons" in building up Communist power in China.

Virginia (l.) and Frank (r.) are:

A. Interviewing an African couple. B. Visiting a Nigerian University. C. Exchanging ideas with Nigerian University students.

Actually, Virginia Blount and Frank Ogden are doing all these things. As members of the 500-student World Campus Afloat-Chapman College, these two Arizona college students had the opportunity to talk with students at the University of Ife, Ibadan branch, Nigeria.

With the help of Nigerian students and professors, the Americans compared religions, art, anthropology, educational systems, economic developments, geography, drama, music, and dance of the two countries. This is the regular course work aboard Chapman's shipboard campus, the s.s. Ryndam.

Virginia and Frank transferred the credits they earned back to their home colleges, Arizona State University and Northern Arizona University, and are going on for their baccalaureate degrees. Chapman College is currently accepting enrollments for the 1968-1969 academic year with the World Campus Afloat program.

Questionnaire Concerning Requirements Lacks Depth

Each senior in the College of Arts and Sciences recently received a questionnaire, entitled "your reaction to your educational experience in the college."

Explaining the questionnaire's purpose, Dean Hunsberger wrote: "You know that the College of Arts and Sciences is carrying out an extensive review of its educational program, particularly of the requirements for graduation. It is of great importance to our review that we gain some specific knowledge about student opinion relating to the College's educational program."

- It seemed in more than one case that the answers in the questionnaire were subjectively chosen, leaving the respondent either no choice or a choice to which he could not fully subscribe.
- That the University's Office of Institutional Studies is cooperating in the survey is surprising. Past experience has indicated that the Office has high standards of professionalism and a sense of integrity.
- The questionnaire omitted all mention of the Cook Committee report although it was obviously based on the committee's work.

A couple of examples explain the three-pointed reaction. Above. After asking the student how greatly (choices: greatly, moderately, slightly, or not at all) the language requirement helped him to develop his skill in the foreign language he studied, the following question was asked with the responses as below:

"23. I think that the foreign language requirement should be: (a) unchanged, (b) discontinued as a requirement but retained as an elective, or (c) required only by some departments." To begin with, the range of answers here omit the choice of recommending that the language requirement be continued but improved (a choice offered elsewhere in the questionnaire).

More importantly, the questions ignore the proposal of the Cook Committee that "students be allowed to choose between the study of foreign languages and the study of conceptual mathematics or formal logic.... since both are to a degree 'tool' subjects."

The best answer in response to the requirement aspect of the question would be, in the words of the Cook Committee, enough credits to guide the student without undue restriction or enough credits to prepare students to determine an adequate program of study.

Even as the Cook Committee rejected in general that particular courses should be universally required, so should students dispose of the idea that there can be a universal number of credits required.

As can be seen from these two examples the questionnaire lacked depth. Additionally the questionnaire ignored the Cook Committee's ideas on the honors program.

Seniors, who will not be affected, have had the least motivation to read the report. They also have many other pressures and interests to deal with at this time of the year.

The usefulness of this questionnaire is in serious doubt. It is very disappointing that the College, which has the resources available to undertake a survey of the entire senior class, has made so little of its opportunity.

Over-reaction to Chicago Riots

In the aftermath of the April 4th-11th nation-wide riots, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley issued orders to his police department that could distinguish him as the man who set off the outbreak of revolution or guerilla war in American streets. He ordered his police force to "shoot to kill" arsonists and "shoot to maim or cripple" looters when necessary to arrest them.

Choosing to ignore the Kerner Riot Commission Report which warns against the use of excessive force, Mr. Daley's stand can only further aggravate the already tense relationship between police and the community. And how well the lessons of the past summers serve to enhance the Kerner Report which states overreaction may "be inflammatory and lead to worse disorder."

Moreover, those cities which did adhere to the recommendations of the Report escaped relatively well the all out rioting which marked last summer. The effectiveness of restraint exercised by police and national guardsmen can be measured by the low overall toll of the outbreaks that followed the death of Dr. King. Deaths from the rioting in 168 cities and towns—more than erupted in the entire year of 1967—totalled only 43; and that many died in Detroit alone last year.

There were few snipers on the rooftops, and gunfire, so usually prevalent in last year's riots, was conspicuously absent. In Newark where 13,000 rounds of ammunition were expended during last year's outburst, only one shot was fired. In fact the most serious outbreaks occurred only when police over-reacted.

For instance in Kansas City the day after King's death, police hearing noise from a church basement hurled tear gas inside where 1,000 Negro youths were assembled to pay homage to Dr. King. The result: 250 fires, $500,000 in damage from fire and looting, and 6 deaths.

Despite the evidenced results to over-reaction and with more violence sure to follow, Mr. Daley has decided to make his police force potential killers. It is hoped that he hasn't at the same time made his city a potential battleground.

Restructuring the Ghetto; Rehumanizing Society

To the editor:

A more appropriate question than that posed by Dr. Wilson in his guest editorial last week would be, "Where do Americans go from here?" Amid calls for "cooling it" in the ghetto and days of commitment for whites, can we crystallize some immediate goals which will help achieve significant ultimate ends?

Some of my pessimistic contemporaries hold that the American Negro will never become assimilated, in any meaningful sense into "middle class American society," i.e., he will never enjoy the privileges (rights) of pride and respect as a fully contributing member of the ongoing social scene.

They attribute this to a sick society, one filled with hate, racism and ignorance. Given that we accept assimilation as a desirable goal, as Martin Luther King did, we must embark on a therapeutic program that will change the societal structure as it now stands. Universities, our university must be the vanguard.

Accepting and working within the present framework at the present pace is not enough. Does the imminent passage of yet another civil rights bill and other legislation ensure changes of sufficient magnitude?

If white America's answer to this is affirmative the summer of '68 will be only the first of many ravaging infernos which will gradually move out of the Negro ghetto and into the white business and residential areas where they deservedly belong.

Mere objective changes will not sever the arteries of venom that flow in the racist and infects his children; nor do they touch the unconcerned, the great majority of Americans who are not involved and who will never become so unless violence directly touches them.

To combat the ignorance and to overcome the sickness I propose a two prong attack which if implemented would be a major step towards black and white brotherhood in a restructured society.

Initially, the gross economic and educational inequities which now shackle the ghetto Negro can and must be mitigated. The $400 billion freedom budget which seemed ludicrous to congressmen, is now gaining supporters, you, the college population of students and administrators, can do much to prod the respective representatives to overcome this most crucial, yet elementary hurdle.

Secondly, I challenge Dean Allen of the School of Education and Provost Tippo to absolutely require indoctrination of their vast forces of prospective teachers and even more generally all of you prospective parents in the art and understanding of human relations.

We need revolutionary changes in teachers' approaches to education. We must sensitize them to stop viewing education as a custodial process and to see in the microcosm of education the larger significance of all that is (and all parents) to go out and in turn infect others with a positive virus of understanding.

This is a two stage process, we must then insist that the teachers we train are capable of indoctrinating, and that word is not too strong, the children they teach, especially on the elementary level; we must insist that schools have a minimum of two or three hours weekly set aside in which this process explicitly takes place, where contact, both physical and intellectual is forced on the youth of the country.

We must support a call for unlimited bussing where it is remotely feasible, not only to get the Negro youth out of the ghetto, but to bring the white youth into the ghetto. Only in this manner will we get sufficient concern from suburban parents to insist on equally good education in the city as well as the suburb. This step would logically lead to the formation of the metropolitan school district, a step which would considerably facilitate contact. Finally, we must look toward integrated housing as the ultimate and most meaningful way of bringing about contact.

Indoctrination and contact are the initial ways of shaping existing structures, of bringing about more than a day of commitment. However trite it may sound, "a sick America needs your love and action now."

Col. of Agriculture Needs Part in Building Budget

To the editor:

In any building drive such as the University's, a set of priorities must be established. The application of these priorities entails a certain minimum of inequity among departments vying for limited funds. Those injured by the operation of the system must be patient and await their turn on the budget.

The students of the College of Agriculture have watched, certain that their turn at the top of the priority list would soon come. To date it hasn't and we are wondering if it ever will.

We at the University are proud to have a large herd of prize-winning registered Morgan horses and a many times champion stallion, Bay State Flintlock. These prize-winning animals must have open pasture in order to maintain the bloom which has made the University a recognized Morgan breeding center across the country. Breeders from as far away as Southern California have entered requests for our top quality stock. Yet year after year we have watched the University strip us of our desperately limited pasture.

We feel, further, that our turn on the building budget is due. In our rush to upgrade the quality of our other departments, we must not lose sight of our foundation as a school of agriculture.

Broad Viewpoint

- That is, thinking about all those term papers that are piling up, or about those summer job interviews at HOME, or about that New York trip that you've been planning to take as soon as you get the chance.
- Time to beware of "sudden, long lost friends" — they might even go so far as to ask you out for this weekend.
- Time to procrastinate making any decisions. Maybe you'll still go if there's nothing better to do that weekend.
- But the concert is kind of expensive — maybe you should just go with a group of girls.
- There are quite a few free events — you could ask him to those — while you're at it, be a sport, take him to the concert. But make sure that you gripe about how much it costs, and that you are going to have to starve for weeks because of it.
- By all means, wait until the last minute to ask him. Thursday night is a good time; Friday around 8:30 is even better (provided he hasn't already gone home).
- When choosing your date, definitely do not ask the guy you've been friendly with lately — ask his best friend.
- Tell your date the plans for the evening — but be sure you call him at least four times to change the plans.
- Don't forget to tell him what everybody will be wearing, but make sure it is wrong.
- And be sure to have a good time. Give him the time he deserves...

Feminine Wiles Fail the Course

A professor is placed in a difficult position when a student comes to him with an excuse concerning work missed or a bad grade. Because he is a human being, the professor is inclined to sympathize with the problems of a student, but at the same time, he has to determine the genuine problems from the sob stories.

He has to be perceptive enough to discern the clever performances. Repeated performances by a particular student immediately tend to make suspicious skeptics out of ordinarily kindly professors. By the time a student's ninth grandfather has died, his story does tend to lack its initial impact.

According to several UMass professors interviewed by "Squaw Talk", feminine wiles (batting eyelashes, for example) do not affect their judgement.

Crying females, on the other hand, tend to have an unnerving effect. It had taken one professor ten years to overcome his fear of nearly hysterical females. He now simply ignores the sobbing and continues to talk in a calm, rational manner. He even keeps a box of tissues on his desk for such occasions.

Surprisingly enough, some male students give the unsettling effects of their lovelife as reason for poor performance on an exam. A professor can then offer him sympathetic understanding and advice (providing of course the professor is a romantic at heart). His grade remains the same, but the student may solve his love problems in the process.

In most cases of students complaining and pulling ingenious little stunts, the professor holds his ground and doesn't change the grade. As one professor put it: "It's tough luck that the grade can't be changed, but it didn't hurt the student to come in."

After all these unpredictable little visits by students brighten the otherwise routine day of a professor.

Contraceptive Comments Around the World

Charleston, S. C. — It was a common enough occurrence: The plane landed safely in Charleston, the passenger alighted and made her way to the baggage counter only to find that her luggage had gone astray. The airline promised to find it. She went off to her hotel—annoyed.

At 11:30 p.m. the station manager received a call from the lady who was inquiring, with some urgency, whether her luggage had been found. It hadn't been. She explained that it contained pills that had to be taken at once. The station manager offered to get her the medicine if she would tell him what it was. Then, his report continued:

Crisis: Lost Luggage: Missing Pills

"She advised that it was birth control pills and they must be taken immediately and we would be responsible for any child born. She wanted to know if I would be willing to take the child if it was born. Advised her that if it was a girl would be more than happy to as only had boys."

The problem was solved when one pill was obtained. It cost the airline 20 cents plus $2.00 for cab fare to deliver it to the anxious passenger.

The station manager's memo reporting this affair concluded, "With the world population explosion as it is I feel each of us should do our part in helping to curb the birth rate. Surely the first thing that will help in this is the prompt delivery of the passenger's luggage!"

Liverpool Gets Breathing Room

Liverpool, Eng.—This item appeared in a British newspaper recently:

"The birth rate in Liverpool is now 19 per thousand and falling. The pill, says Liverpool's Chief Medical Officer of Health, Professor Andrew Semple, has played a major role in bringing about the change.

"It has given us a breathing space in which to sort out our housing problems.

"Another bonus is that we are just beginning to see the first of the better-spaced children coming to school. Because their mothers have had more time to spare for them they tend to be brighter and to settle down more easily."

Mosques Call The Faithful

Ankara, Turkey—Faced with a runaway population—and an illegal abortion problem that takes an estimated 11,000 lives a year —the Turkish government has reversed its forty year ban on contraception, making family planning a matter of national policy.

The call to family planning is coming not only from physicians' offices, public health centers, hospitals, and clinics, but from mosques, which usually perform the religious task of calling the Moslem faithful to worship.

It seems that one persuasive gynecologist, a British-born physician enthusiastic about birth control, enlisted the help of imams, priests in charge of mosques, in his family planning campaign. He may now announce family planning classes over the mosque's loud speakers. Drifting over the minarets is a voice chanting: "A small family is a happy family," and urging young wives to come to class.

The finals will be held in Bowker April 30 at 8 p.m. This is the first time the event will be held over three days.

This year, the pageant will again be held under the auspices of the Junior Class and the Amherst Junior Chamber of Commerce. It will be the largest local pageant ever held in the state of Massachusettts, featuring approximately thirty girls who have been nominated by dormitories, sororities, fraternities and the class of 69.

The contestants will be judged in three areas: evening gown, swimsuit, and talent in accordance with the Miss America Pageant to be held in Attleboro, Mass. in July. If she should be successful at the state level, she will represent Massachusetts in the Miss America Pageant which will be held in Atlantic City, New Jersey some time in the fall.

The prizes this year will consist of scholarships donated by the junior and senior classes, trophies, gifts and expenses which the winner will incur at the state pageant. The emcees for this year's pageant will be Wayne Thomas and Neal Whitman along with the current Miss University, Carol Willard. Miss Willard distinguished herself as well as the University in last year's Miss Massachusetts Pageant by walking off with a talent award.

Golfers Sweep Two Weekend Meets

Making good use of three double win performances, the UMass golf team swept two weekend meets from Dartmouth and Vermont, 5-2 and 6-1 respectively. The wins upped the Redmen's mark to 3-1.

UMass' senior golfers had rough luck in both meets. Gary Gasperack, who has been away from the game for a couple of years, lost to his Vermont opponent, two down, and was defeated by his Dartmouth foe by the same score.

Co-captain Bob Nowak split his two matches, defeating his rival Catamount, one up, but went down to his Hanover adversary one down.

Junior Eric Lekberg had an outstanding weekend. Besides sweeping his two matches, seven and six and six and five, Lekberg shot the low medalist round of 77. Bill Dunsmore split his two matches, losing to Vermont, five and six and defeating his foe from Dartmouth two up.

Three sophomore golfers clinched both wins. Keith Queneville won his two matches, six and five and one up, Dick Barber won his five and three and four and three, and Dick Starsiak took his wins, four and three and one up.

The golfing Redmen meet Maine and New Hampshire at Durham today. But UMass will be looking ahead to later in the week. On Thursday the Redmen will entertain Boston College and Holy Cross. On Friday, UMass will travel to Kingston, R.I. to meet URI in a dual meet. This confrontation will have special interest; the Rams are undefeated in their last 15 dual meets.

UMass coach Dick Page is pleased with his team's progress thus far. He is also pleased with the balance of the squad. "There is really not much difference between our third and last man," said Page.

Redmen Defeat UConn, 6-2, on Hansen's Homer

Rappoli Hurls Victory; Chinappi Also Homers

By GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

A "second chance" homer by slugger Bob Hansen provided the go-ahead run which enabled the UMass baseball team to beat Connecticut, 6-2, yesterday at the varsity field. The win made the Redmen the team to beat in the Yankee Conference.

Junior righthander Rich Rappoli, thrust into the starting role that a healthy John Canty would have had, went all the way for his second win in a row. In addition to Hansen's home run, Tony Chinappi also clouted a round-tripper for UMass, one of three RBI's for the UMass catcher.

Hansen's homer, his fourth of the season, came in the sixth inning with the score tied, 2-2. Leading off the inning, Hansen hit a foul pop which UConn first baseman Jeff Filmer caught, but just beyond the out-of-play stripe.

Hansen then took advantage of this second chance by murdering Huskie pitcher Ed Baird's next delivery, line driving it against the wind and sending it over the right field wall, some 370 feet away. The red-hot sophomore's hit put the Redmen ahead to stay in a game in which they had to come from behind.

Rappoli got off to a somewhat shaky start, giving up three hits in the first inning. But one of the baserunners, Richie Friedman, was caught stealing. Bud Pepin then singled to left center, followed by a single to left by George Greer. But Pepin, trying to go to third, was nailed by Hansen and the threat was ended.

However, the Huskies went ahead by scoring two runs in the fourth. With one out, Pepin singled to left and moved to second on a wild pitch. A walk to Bill Flood put runners on first and second, and Fred Malan sliced a triple to right field which scored Pepin and Flood.

That was all the Huskies had to howl about. In the bottom of the fourth, two UConn errors handed UMass a run, gift-wrapped and all. Don Ferron took two bases when third baseman Malan threw wildly to first, and scored when shortstop Pepin uncorked a similar miscue off the bat of Ted Mareno.

In the fifth inning, a brisk wind that was blowing toward the plate stopped just long enough for Chinappi to poke an opposite field shot against the scoreboard in left field, 360 feet away. That tied the score at 2-apiece and set the stage for Hansen's go-ahead homer in the next inning.

UMass gave Rappoli plenty of insurance by scoring three in the eighth inning. Ferron started it off with a single to center and moved to second when Steve Rogers singled to center.

Sophomore Steve Stanford then drove Ferron in with a single to left center. A wild pitch by Baird moved Rogers and Stanford to second and third, and Chinappi lined one to right, scoring two more and giving UMass a comfortable 6-2 lead.

The victory gave UMass a 3-0 record in the Yankee Conference, and the Redmen are now 7-5-1 overall. UConn, regarded as the Redmen's main competition in the conference, dropped to 5-6. The two teams will meet in a rematch at Storrs next Tuesday.

UMass travels to Rhode Island tomorrow for another important conference game. Coach Dick Bergquist will pitch sophomore John Kitchen against the tough Rams.

Snakebeaters Whip Holy Cross, 20-3

By PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Completely dominating the game from start to finish, the UMass lacrosse team overwhelmed an overmatched and undermanned Holy Cross team, 20-3, at varsity field yesterday. It was the Redmen's fourth straight win against no losses.

Getting scoring from 11 different men, it was an easy win for UMass. Midfielders and attackmen had easy times making offensive plays, while Holy Cross had difficulty much of the time making it out of their own end.

UMass jumped to a quick 3-0 lead after five and a half minutes. Gerry Forgit rifled in the first two goals on assists from Paul Mushovic and Kevin O'Connor. Then, O'Connor picked up a loose ball and scored. Just minutes previously, after UMass had kept play in the Holy Cross end for virtually the whole period, Bill Sinclair had been foiled by Crusader goalie Tony Moscati on a breakaway.

The Redmen added their fourth goal when Don Agnoli scored at 12:26. O'Connor, on an Agnoli assist, closed the period's scoring at 14:08 as he whipped in a blistering drive from the left corner.

John Vrionis, Crusader captain and high scorer got Holy Cross in the scoring column at 2:43 on an unassisted score. The Crusaders then had the tough break of having a goal disallowed minutes later.

UMass, however, could not be contained any longer. Steve Connolly scored at 5:41 as he eluded one man, ducked by another and shot from in front. At 7:20, Greg Norton made it 7-1 on a bouncing shot from in front.

Co-captain Bill Sinclair scored UMass' eighth goal at 8:12 as he leaped high in front of the net to snare a Connolly pass and scored.

Holy Cross made their only rally midway in the period as Neil Hourihan scored two goals within 15 seconds to make the score 7-3. It was to be the closest the Crusaders would come all day.

Sinclair scored two straight goals at 11:44 and at 12:37, one on a close-in flip and the other on a great assisting pass from Marthy Kalikow. This second goal was also aided by Forgit who carried and passed to Kalikow. Kalikow on a one man effort ended the half's scoring at 13:56, making the score, 11-3.

The second half saw UMass use its reserve for most of the period and still control the game's action. Peter Scoville took over the goaltender's chores from Mark Schlossberg who was tested infrequently in the first half. The defensive alignment was also changed as Frank Bositis, Bill Chevett and Bruce Fulton took over the back line duties, Tom Tufts, Bill Devore and Walt Alessi taking a rest. It din't make much difference in the game.

O'Connor scored his third marker on a shot from the corner at 1:37. Gary Vassar, who was stopped for most of the game by the scrappy Moscati in the Crusader goal, scored a gift goal at 4:41 as a clearing pass from Moscati, who was behind his net, went over the head of its intended destination into the stick of Vassar, he shot the ball into the wide open net.

O'Connor scored number four for him on a great set up by Connolly as Connolly passed to O'Connor all alone at the side of the net. The score came at 7:35.

Connolly made it 15-3 at 8:02 on a solo performance. Two reserves who have seen little action during the season closed out the period's scoring for UMass. Senior midfielder George Zebrowski scored from in front at 11:30 and Parker Simonds, on a Tom Voisin assist, scored at 12:59. The period ended in a whopping 17-3 lead for UMass.

The Redmen picked up three more goals in the final period to make it an even 20. Bob Lachance scored his first of the year at 1:08. Then Don Legg, scored also on a Simonds assist.

The 20th marker was one to remember for the Redmen. Coach Dick Garber, bowing to popular demand, inserted his first string defense in the game at attack. They responded like offensive stars as Tufts scored from in front at 12:07 on an assist from Devore to close out the scoring and give the Redmen a one-sided win.

Garber, of course pleased by the win did not completely enjoy the score. "I hate to run up the score and will try to avoid it," said the coach, "but when I use my reserves they don't want to just go through the motions and neither would I want them to. Therefore, more goals are usually scored."

HE DID IT ! — Holy Cross goaltender deflects this Redman attempt for a score. However, 20 other U Mass shots found their way into the goal as the Redmen clobbered the Crusaders, 20-3, for their fourth straight victory.

Little Redmen Edge UConn, 4-3

By KEN SCHWARTZ
Staff Reporter

Scattering eleven hits, the Little Redman baseball team beat the UConn frosh 4-3 yesterday, at the frosh field.

While behind 1-0 in the first, UMass came back to tie the score on a two out single by Mitch Salnack which scored Bob Willman from second base. UConn went ahead once again in the third, 2-1, but couldn't hold the lead for long.

UMass came back in the last half of the fourth, scoring two runs. Both Willman and Salnack walked, moving up on a passed ball. Bill Greeley then sent Willman across the plate with a sacrifice fly, and Stan Winston scored Salnack with a single.

UConn notched one run in the top half of the eighth inning, to tie the score at three runs apiece, but the Little Redmen scored again in the bottom of the same inning to nail the win. Salnack scored the deciding run, riding home on a Greeley single to right field.

Colabello has now been credited with both frosh wins this year. Their record now stands at two wins and three losses. They travel to Rhode Island tomorrow for their next game, and play Holy Cross Saturday afternoon at home.

Varsity Trackmen Bow to Springfield

SPRINGFIELD — Overwhelmed by Springfield College in the field events yesterday, the varsity track team bowed to them, 83-66. The freshmen, on the other hand, bolstered by a strong field events team, clobbered the Springfield frosh, 89-60.

For the Redman varsity, Greg Bowman won the mile in 4:20.3. Marc Lefever won the hurdles in a time of 15.3. Steve Burrell and Steve Chase both took their dash events, Burrell took the 100 yard dash in 10.1 and Chase won the 220 dash in 22.1.

In the mile events, Dave Evans took the half mile in 1:55, and Paul Hoss won his specialty, the two mile, in a time of 9.27.6.

Bill Tindall swept three jump events; the board jump at 21'4"; the high jump at 6'2" and the triple jump, 42'7".

The varsity swept 10 of 18 events, but as Coach Ken O'Brien said, "The Springfield depth was in the second and third places, and this told the story in their win."

In the field events, Bill Wilen took second place for the Redmen. Rocko Petitto was third in the javelin as he set his best mark of the year, 187.5 feet. They were the only UMass men to place in the field events.

In the frosh win, Walter Mayo won the 200 and 100 yard dashes. Gerry Spellman, also a two event winner, took the 120 hurdles in 15.3 and set a new frosh record. in the 440 hurdles he set a record and freshman field event record with a time of 57.4.

In assessing the overall performance of the freshmen, O'Brien stated, "We had too much depth in the distance and the sprint events for Springfield as we took first, second and third." He went on to say that this performance, coupled with the overall team performance, and the fine work of the field event men combined to produce the frosh win.

Clarence Gaynor won the broad jump with a height of 20'-4". Cal Carpenter and Mark Eaton won in the high jump events. George Ball and Bill Austin placed in the hammer and shot put events.

Negro Students Protest at B.U. and Columbia

Demonstration ends peacefully at Boston University

BOSTON (AP) — A day-long demonstration by some 300 Negro students who barricaded themselves behind chained doors ended peacefully at Boston University last night with student acceptance of the university's answer to a list of demands.

A university spokesman said Dean of Students Staton R. Curtis delivered to the demonstrators, sitting-in at the administration building, a point-by-point answer to the Negroes' demands for scholarships and more Negro teachers.

The answer was prepared by the university's council with President Arland Christ-Janer.

The spokesman said the demonstrating students took the reply inside, discussed it, and then one of their number announced from a balcony that the answers had been accepted and the demonstration was over.

The Negroes began moving out of the administration building a short time later.

The student spokesman who appeared on the balcony declined to identify himself.

"This demonstration of good faith," he said, "will create a good atmosphere."

The terms of the university answer were not immediately disclosed.

One demand was that the School of Theology

Statement from BU News

The following is the formal statement issued by UMOJA at the end of yesterday's sit-in at BU. The statement was dispatched to the Daily Collegian by the BU News.

"Our efforts have been fruitful, the University has accepted our demands and has issued a formal statement that it will act positively and immediately in implementing these demands.

"This demonsration of good faith on the part of B.U. will help create a legitimate atmosphere for all students.

"UMOJA will keep in close contact with the University and will lend its intellectual and moral support to the immediate implementation of these proposals."

The Daily Collegian correspondent at the scene of the demonstration at BU reported that the most noticeable aspect of the sit-in was the organization and unity of those participating. The demonstration was very peaceful, and there was never any real threat of calling in the Boston police by BU President Christ-Janer to disperse the protesting students.

Columbia students sieze control of buildings, hold hostages

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University's campus was all but sealed off yesterday after several hundred rampaging student demonstrators seized control of two buildings. They held three school officials behind makeshift barricades for 24 hours, and wrecked the office of President Grayson Kirk.

Night classes were cancelled, the 70 buildings locked and all but two campus entrances closed, amid reports that Harlem Negroes planned to join student sit-ins in the two buildings.

As 500 other students gathered in a rainy spring dusk to heckle the demonstrators and throw eggs, Associate Dean Alexander B. Platt urged them to disperse.

He told them: "If you try to handle this yourselves there will be violence and we can't afford violence at this time. We can't afford violence at all."

During two days of disorder and vandalism, the demonstrators polarized into two groups—Negroes protesting a new university gymnasium, and whites opposed to the war in Vietnam.

Students from other universities in the city were said to have joined in, as well as some non-student Negro militants.

OPEN MEET TO BE RESCHEDULED

The open meeting scheduled for Thur. evening, Apr. 25th, which planned to discuss the "Cook Committee" Report has been cancelled. James G. Collins, President of the Student Senate, made the decision following discussions during which time it was found impossible to identify the location or time of the scheduled meeting.

Faculty members and administration figures, tentatively scheduled to appear, were also unable to learn anything further of plans for the meeting.

Richard W. Story, new chairman of the Senate's Academic Affairs Committee, has promised that a better-publicized date will be announced shortly.

Student Senate Allocates $300 for Baird Support

by NICK COSTA
Senate Reporter

The Student Senate, last evening, gave further support to the commitment of Bill Baird by voting 35 - 22 to allot over $300 to help transport 250 students to the April 30th demonstration in Boston.

Mr. Stafford Steehan, a representative of Parents Aid Society, noted that the demonstration was well organized and that permission has already been granted for the march and stand outside the state house.

An earlier motion, introduced by Senator Pat Beharry, requested that the newly formed campus Parents Aid Society be given $30 for publicity purposes. It was defeated.

Senator Charles Hopkins spoke against the appropriation for the Boston demonstration, making it clear that "the emphasis should be on educating the people in Western Mass." He added that only one segment of society, mainly college students, would be participating. Senator Neil Giroux allied with Hopkins, pointed out that "if we establish a precedence for supplying money for protest... how are we to control the requests?"

Senator Chris McGahan, supporting the measure, asked "this is more than a moral committment . . . When it comes to being really committed, where do we stand?" Senator Joe Doucette added, "we definitely have a momentum going."

The cost per student was raised from the original $1 fee to $2 per student in an amendment introduced by Senator Sandy Olken.

Other Senate action included passage of bills appropriating funds to aid transportation costs of students to the National Student Leadership Conference, being held May 4, in Boston. Readings of the WMUA, Student Senate, and Engineering Journal were presented by Budget Committee Chairman Brad Johnson.

The Collegian budget will be on the floor at the next Senate meeting, Thursday, May 2nd.

In an unexpected move, the administration announced last night that they would concede their stand for uniform room rates. Mr. Robert Brand, Associate treasurer, stated that because of defective heating the Southwest dorms would find additional costs.

Mr. Brand noted that the main reason for his being present was to find out if the Student Senate would consider graduated room rates.

Senators Alan Gauthier and Fred Hartweil presented a resolution supporting the graduated room rates.

Lt. Governor Francis Sargeant Delivers Address in Colonial Lounge

by RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

Massachusetts Lt. Governor Francis Sargeant said yesterday that he is greatly concerned "whether or not we in America are having a nervous breakdown at present." Sargeant's statement highlighted an address made to students and interested guests in the Student Union's Colonial Lounge.

Lt. Gov. FRANCIS SARGEANT

Appearing at the request of the University's Young Republican Club the Lt. Governor told his audience with the Vietnamese war and urban-racial problems at home "this nation has never faced more complex problems than it does today."

"We are becoming more puzzled every day," Sargeant stated on the war, "how we got into it and how to get out."

The Lt. Governor devoted most of his brief speech to the domestic crisis and the recent violence following the asassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

"It is frightening and appalling to admit," he added, but "crime is rampant across America. We are not able to go into the streets of America with safety."

Sargeant sighted involvement as the key to solving the urban-racial problem. "We learned on April 4th that we can no longer look away. We must become involved, deeply involved." It's a 'problem for every American."

Hunsberger Questions Student Participation in Cook Report

by ROSE MILLER
Staff Reporter

"Has there been adequate student-faculty dialogue. . .", how seriously will comments about, criticism of, and alternatives to the Report, be taken, were students involved as working members of the Cook Committee? "Will students be allowed to vote . . . should students be denied the right to participate in the shaping of their education?" were the important questions asked of the faculty of the College of Arts and Science to consider before voting for the proposed motion at their meeting in SBA 120 yesterday afternoon.

Dean Hunsberger of the College of Arts and Sciences opened the meeting explaining the necessity of prohibiting the attending students from speaking. He explained that he was not informed sufficiently ahead of time to work out needed arrangements. In fact, Dean Hunsberger called the proposed amendments "minor."

Following Hunsberger's statement, Items I, II and III on the agenda were quickly discussed. Item IV concerning the proposed motion was introduced for discussion and voting by Prof. John Maki, chairman of the faculty curriculum reform committee. The proposed motion read in brief: 1) Speech 101 requirements could be fulfilled by taking 101, 105, 107, or 150; 2) the English requirement of 111, 112, 125 (or 127), and 126 (or 128) would be reflexible with four options open for the sopohomore sequence of 125, 127, 126, 128. Besides the present courses, a year at sequence in comparative literature, or foreign language literature, or finally one of several year-sequences established by the English Department, will be offered to cover the requirement; 3) Candidates for Bachelor Arts degree can either take a year sequence of history or two one-semester 3-credit courses in Philosophy.

Other attempts to survey feeling on "educational experience" was the polling of the class of 1968. The general reaction of the faculty came in reports of 2 to 6 pages. Maki outlined the general feelings as 1) approval for English alternatives 2) approval for an honors program 3) criticism for the definition of a liberal education 4) criticism of the degree of compromise but very few specific alternatives were suggested. An increase of credits from 2 to 3 for English 111 and 112 along with Speech 101 were proposed by the respective departments.

On asking for a vote Maki called for "direct specific action —not a philosophy of a liberal education." It was clarified that the faculty could vote separately

The first annual State Legislators Day will be held tomorrow on the UMass campus. The event, sponsored by the Senate Public Relations Committee, will bring to Amherst a number of representatives and senators from all areas of the state.

Bruce Balboni, chairman of Senate P.R., said the committee invited the lawmakers to the campus to give the students an opportunity to meet their legislators and also a chance to acquaint the lawmakers with the problems of the campus.

The day will start with a coffee hour in the Colonial Lounge from 9-11 a.m. The legislators will be greeted by constituents and student senators. President Lederle will address the gathering. All students are invited to the coffee hour. From 12-1 p.m. the legislators will lunch at Southwest Dining Commons No. 7.

In the afternoon from 1:30-3 p.m., the legislators will be addressed in the Union Ballroom

Urbanist Whitney Young Advocates White March on Washington, D. C.

NEW YORK (AP)—Negro leader Whitney Young, Jr. suggested Tuesday that top echelon white leaders organize a huge "white march" on Washington to demonstrate white America's commitment to racial equality.

Such a march of hundreds of thousands of whites, followed up by white marches on city halls all across the country, is "the last chance" to avoid rebellion by poor and frustrated Negroes, the executive director of the National Urban League said.

"Black people have marched for a long time . . . and it hasn't gotten us much more than sore feet," he told about 700 newspaper publishers at the American Newspaper Publishers Association annual meeting.

Young said the white march would demonstrate to congress it must regard the urban crisis as its top priority. It would tell white Americans, he said, that they must end their "conspiracy of silence and injustice" toward the Negro and it would show the Negro that there is cause for hope in a white-dominated society.

He called on such men as industrialist Henry Ford, financier David Rockefeller and labor leader George Meany to lead the march.

"I used their names," he said at a news conference later, "because I think they are symbolic of white American leadership. If that stature of leadership fell in line nobody could call them crackpots or starry-eyed."

"White people own the industries, the newspapers, the housing," he told the publishers. "They reap the benefits of our way of life, and theirs are the rewards of this society. It is their future whch is at stake, perhaps more than that of Negroes, who, after all, have the least to lose."

He said emphatically that he envisioned the march as distinct from next month's "poor people's campaign" organized by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. That would bring poor people of both races to Washington to demand antipoverty legislation.

Birth Control Marchers Prepare for Boston

On Counseling day, April 30, at noon, UMass students will march from the B.U. Student Union to the Statehouse. There a petition will be presented to Governor Volpe urging repeal of the state birth-control laws and expressing support for birth control crusader Bill Baird. Over 3,000 signatures have been collected for this petition already.

The march and petition are sponsored by the UMass Parent's Aid Society. P. A. S. had planned to provide several buses from Amherst to Boston, but a denial of Student Senate funds has made this impossible. A bus may still be hired, but many private cars are needed, as about 200 students wish to attend the march. Those who wish to sign the petition, to attend the march, or who can drive people to the march, should go to the P.A.S. table at the Student Union today or tomorrow.

There were no reports of violence.

Dr. Arland Christ-Janer, the university's president, spent 90 minutes with the barricaded students inside the administration building and later told newsmen he found their proposal reasonable.

"There might be difficulty," he said, "in putting them into effect as quickly as the students desired."

Later Christ-Janer and the University Executive Council met for two hours with representatives of the sit-down group, then left to formulate answers to be submitted to the group.

The protest group calls itself UMOJA, which a spokesman explains means "unity" in Swahili, an African language.

The sit-in, apparently taking the University by surprise, began about 8 a.m. when the Negroes entered the building and chained the doors. Christ-Janer was admitted through a service entrance some three hours later.

Student demands also included increased scholarship aid for Negroes, late admission this summer of 100 additional Negroes, naming a Negro professor to the Martin Luther King Chair of Social Affairs recently announced by the Trustees; and establishment of an "Afro-American Affairs Coordinating Center" for Negro students at BU.

spokesman said: "The place is a complete mess."

Later, 800 students attended a rally sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society. SDS called for a general student strike on Thursday.

Crowds dispersed by late evening, but an estimated 75 students continued a sit-in in President Kirk's office. More than a dozen city and campus police encircled the building.

WHY DID ÆTNA AGREE TO BOND EX-CONVICTS IN A PIONEER EXPERIMENT?

Men with prison records generally have been considered poor employment risks. Employers are chary of assuming such a risk without some kind of guarantee. In the past insurance companies have been reluctant to supply that guarantee.

Ætna Life & Casualty decided that at last one insurance company should.

Today, in cooperation with the Federal government and civic leaders, pilot programs are underway in two major cities.

We undertook this revolutionary step of bonding "unbondables" to help people with criminal records to become self-supporting, productive members of society.

We constantly try to act like a good corporate citizen.

Our business may be selling insurance.

But our concern is people.

"U. S. and Latin America" Teach-In To Be Presented at Smith College

Four-College Amigos will sponsor a teach-in on April 27 at Smith College on "The United States and Latin America." The public is invited to attend.

The program will include speeches, a panel discussion, and workshop-seminars addressed to the impact of U. S. foreign policy on social change in Latin countries.

An undergraduate organization, the Amigos includes students at Amherst, Mount Holyoke, Smith and the University of Massachusetts. The group was organized in 1966 by two Amherst students to carry out community development work in rural Mexican villages during the summer months. During the academic year, the Amigos meet weekly to study Mexican history and culture and discuss future projects.

Speakers for Saturday's teach-in, which is to begin at 10 a.m. in Wright Hall, will be: Ramon E. Ruiz, professor of history at Smith; Robert A. Potash, professor of history at the University of Massachusetts; David Tobis, Yale University graduate student; and Robert V. Elam, instructor in history at the University of Massachusetts.

Mr. Ruiz, who holds a Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley, was a Fulbright Professor at the Facultad de Economia, University of Mexico. His publications include "Cuba: The Making of a Revolution" and "Mexico: The Challenge of Poverty and Illiteracy."

Mr. Potash, a Foreign Service Reserve Officer from 1955 to 1957 and since 1964 a consultant to the State Department, has written "El Banco de Avio de Mexico" plus numerous articles.

A Williams College graduate, Mr. Tobis was a Fulbright Scholar in Guatemala, two years ago. He is the author of "Foreign Aid: The Case of Guatemala," which appeared in the January Monthly Review and is currently doing graduate work in sociology at Yale.

Mr. Elam earned his Ph.D. at the University of New Mexico where he was also lecturer in a Peace Corps training program. He did research in El Salvador in 1964 and his specialty is Central America.

Afternoon sessions will include a panel discussion among the four speakers at 2 p.m. in Graham Hall on the Smith campus and workshops beginning at 3 in Wright Hall.

Post office is distributing change of address cards to dorms — cards for personal mail—also for magazine publishers—these should be sent as quickly as possible as it takes up to 6 weeks to effect a change of address with magazines.

Ratte Addresses Phi Beta Kappa; UMass, Yale Profs. To Be Inducted

The University of Massachusetts chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will induct William C. Havard, Jr., Professor and Head of the Department of Government at the University, as its first honorary member, and Theodore Delevoryas of the Class of 1950, Profesor of Biology and Curator of Paleobotany of the Peabody Museum of Natural History at Yale University, as its first alumnus member, in ceremonies Friday evening.

Speaker of the evening will be John Ratté, Assistant Professor of History and president of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Amherst College. The initiation and Professor Ratte's address, "Perfection, Profession, Politics," will be at Mahar Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. and are open to the public. Four juniors, 90 seniors, and 2 graduates of 1967 will also be inducted at this time.

A student of American government and politics, Professor Havard was graduated from Louisiana and at the University of Florida, where he was director of the Public Administration Clearing Service. He is currently president of the New England Political Science Association.

PROF. JOHN RATTE

THEODORE DELEVORYAS

Professor Delevoryas was graduated summa cum laude from the University of Masachusetts in 1950 and received the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Illinois. He served as a member of the Botany Departments of Michigan State University, Yale and then the University of Illinois before assuming his present position at Yale. He has been secretary-treasurer, chairman of the Paleobotanical Section, and a member of the Council and the Editorial Committee of the Botanical Society of America and was the holder of a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship in 1964-65.

Professor Ratté was a Phi Beta Kappa magna cum laude graduate of Harvard University and spent 1957-58 as a Henry Fellow at Pembroke College at Oxford University before returning to Harvard as a Woodrow Wilson Fellow to complete the Ph.D. degree. While at Harvard he served as a tutor in the Department of History. Since 1962 he has been on the faculty of Amherst College, where he was a Trustee Faculty Fellow in 1965-6. He is also a Fellow of the Society for Religion and Higher Education, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Common School of Amherst, and has served as director of the core course of the Mount Hermon School Liberal Studies Program.

King Social Action Council Meets

The recently formed Martin Luther King Social Action Council will hold its first meeting tonight in Hasbrouck 20 at 8 p.m.

According to Gilbert J. Salk '68, founder of the organization, the purpose of tonight's meeting is "to introduce the University community to the Council's proposed programs."

"Our major areas of interest will parallel those of Dr. King," said Salk, "which include race relations, poverty, and the war in Vietnam." The initial focus, Salk noted, will be on Civil Rights activities.

"Our efforts will be directed mainly at the University and the town of Amherst," he said, "but will be flexible enough to embrace more widespread activities as well."

The Council is composed of interested students, faculty, and administration. It was formed shortly after the assassination of Martin Luther King.

Presently working with Salk on the initial programs are: Jim Collins, Student Senate President; Dr. Mark Noffsinger, Associate Dean of Students; Professor William Wilson, Sociology Department; Reverend Ronald Hardy, Southwest Protestant Chaplain; and Andy Griffin, Jr., Director of Northern Educational Services in Springfield.

Tonight's meeting is open to the public, and Salk has urged all those who are interested in working with the Council to attend.

Five Are Fined $500 for Selling 'Underground' Newspaper, Avatar

Five vendors of the "underground" newspaper, Avatar, were found guilty in Middlesex superior court yesterday of selling obscene material to minors.

Judge Samuel Tisdale levied a fine of $500 on each, but stayed collection pending disposition of an appeal to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

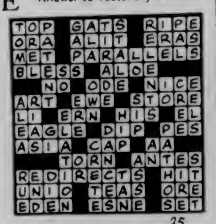
Judge Tisdale, trying the so-called "Avatar cases" in a jury-waived session, found 23 other vendors not guilty on charges of selling obscene material and five of those 23 not guilty also of selling to minors.

Those found guilty were John D. Wilton, 27, of 7 Fort Avenue Terr., Roxbury; Mrs. Faith Gude, 25, of 2 Fort Avenue Terr.; Ethel Nagel, 22, of 92 Worcester St., So. End; George Peper, 23, of 1 Fort Avenue Terr., and Stephen Kovaka, 22, of 37 Hereford St., Back Bay.

Wilton is a son of Lt. Gen. J. G. N. Wilton, former chief of staff of the Australian ministry of defense, and Lady Wilton.

Atty. Harvey Silverglade of Crane, Inker and Oteri, counsel for the Avatar group, lost no time in filing the appeal yesterday afternoon, since Wilton's status, as an immigrant seeking naturalization, might be affected adversely by the court's finding.

In court, Silverglade countered a demand by Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Day for jail terms with an assertion those on trial were "not bad people."



He noted that after a wave of arrests last Winter the Avatar staff had agreed with Cambridge police not to sell the newspapers to minors.

"Since that time," said Silverglade, "the newspaper has somewhat tempered itself."

Where Your Money Goes

There has undoubtedly been many a senior at UMass who upon receiving a bill tagged "graduation fee" has begrudgingly paid out his $24 and sloughed it off as another one of those "little pains" in the seemingly endless torrent of fees, payments, and bills which plague all of us from freshmen orientation to senior commencement. And doubtless, it is probably fairly safe to say that relatively few people know exactly where their money goes, and for that matter, probably fewer care.

Well, for those of you who are a little money conscious, and who could find other uses for $24, here is what your graduation fee goes to cover:

1. $10 — Student Activities Fee
2. $14 — Commencement Fee

The latter is incurred so as to make the commencement program self-supporting.

With this explanation, possibly some seniors or future seniors can rest easier knowing that the money goes for something concrete and does not end up in a miscellaneous fund for some obscure or unknown purpose.

Best Course for South Vietnam

(Reprinted from Springfield Daily News)

Whether peace talks take place now, or a month or a year from now, the success or failure of a settlement in Vietnam will turn in large part on the role played by the South Vietnamese government.

It is important, of course, that Saigon assume a greater share of the burden on the battlefield than it has so far. An increased effort by South Vietnam, in terms of manpower and willpower, would undoubtedly enhance all chances for an allied victory and accelerate Hanoi's slow pace toward the peace table.

There is some encouragement, thus, in statements by Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford to the effect that the South Vietnamese have "acquired the capacity to begin to insure their own security through their own efforts. They are going to take over more of the fighting."

However, the reality of the situation is that, despite an increased show of determination by Saigon, good intentions do not win wars. The United States has borne the brunt of the fighting in Vietnam for several years and must be prepared to carry the same load in the future.

What is crucial in South Vietnam is not the extent of Saigon's military effort but what it will do when U.S. troops are gone. A military victory will be of little consequence unless the South Vietnamese, both government and people, are prepared to work out their own affairs.

In the long run, some sort of coalition government may be necessary which will give representation to the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong in South Vietnam. Although South Vietnam is leery of any coalition which would give too much power to the NLF, a peace table compromise seems inevitable.

The best thing South Vietnam can do now is to concentrate on the political realities of the future, which will have greater significance than any military victories.

The Letters from Prison

Cher Bettnoir,

The rain is disorienting. Each pellet is a drop of moulten crystal as it forms along my skin. I am walking in it, trying to write as I walk. The ink is beginning to run down the damp paper, and soon the paper will be an illegible blur (like onion soup) if I don't get under this tree.

Settled. The bark of the tree has softened with the rain; it imprints my back. As I look up, the thousands of buds, each bursting into a system of leaf, are weighted slightly with water but are holding their own with the spunk of flowers stretching their necks to the sky. The land is flat. There are plains of trees, all blooming, and the prison itself, half a mile distant through the trees, is a palace of gray in the midst of all this green. Its towers are square and sturdy and look like fat pipe bowls from here.

An ant has crawled up my arm, looking for shelter. He will have to go home when I leave, but when I tell him I'm going, he'll just walk right off and search his earth, somewhere near this tree, in this fantastic rain.

Criticism of ISTC Summer Jobs

To the editor:

To all students planning to work in Europe under International Society for Training and Culture — don't. You can save yourself a lot of money and aggravation by not doing business with ISTC. First, you pay a $100 placement fee, which "guarantees you a job", but when I went, a girl in my group got to London and found that she didn't have a job. She spent three weeks following up help-wanted ads before she found a job, and by then she had used up all of her traveling money.

ISTC also claims that it comes around to all the workers; it places to make sure that the working conditions are adequate, neither I nor any of those with whom I talked saw any representative of ISTC while we were employed. ISTC or ISIS also states that it will help you with your working permits. Their instructions to me were to try to break the laws of Switzerland by trying not to get a permit.

Also, don't be surprised if ISTC tells you that you will be a waiter, and you wind up a dishwasher, as happened to the boy who worked with me. If you write to Brussels and complain to ISTC, they write you a nice letter telling you that your father had to do things that he didn't like doing, so be a brave soul and bear up—it's only for a summer! Meanwhile, you've only been deceived and cheated.

ISTC also overcharges on their flights by over $100. You pay enough to go first-class on a jet, instead you go over the Atlantic in a jet-propellor. It's only a twelve-hour trip, if you're lucky. When you land in London, they give you two luxurious hours to roam the swinging city, just enough time to get lost before you have to get on a train to Dover. You get to the channel and take the five-hour boat ride over in the middle of the night, without a place to sleep, and out on deck in the cold night air. Meanwhile you're still dressed for summer and haven't had a chance to sleep or change your clothes.

But, the fun is just starting. The timing is just perfect. You have to wait for an hour, standing, on the wharf at Calais, because the French customs office doesn't open until five a.m. Then continue on by train to Brussels, sleep and eat where and if you can. Finally, at Brussels, the ISTC group leader, a student who had suckered twenty-five people into becoming ISTC participants doesn't really know where the hostel is. And going to the hostel is imperative, for we have to get oriented. Orientation consists of a picture-taking session, the pictures to be used for the ISTC propaganda magazine.

You've only gone without sleep for about thirty-eight hours. They tell you to have fun. After all, you're father did things he didn't like doing, and if my father had gone to Europe with ISTC, he probably would have clued me in.

Candidate Thanks His Supporters

To the editor:

At this time I would like to offer for sale seven-hundred "April 23: A Day of Alchemy?" broadsides, suitable for framing, worship, wall-paper and wrapping fish. No reasonable offer refused.

In my attempt to buy the Presidency I spent $5.78, plus tax. No contributions were received but they are still welcome. I am also calling due my election bets. You can imagine what a disaster this would be if I had bet on myself. Soini's not losing an election but gaining a fortune in Israeli warbonds.

I would like to thank the voters for conducting themselves. And thank God for television and radio for keeping the Collegian a little more honest. You don't have Soini to kick around anymore. I'd like to thank the many, many people behind me without whom my campaign would have never even gotten out of the chair. And I'd also like to thank my opponent, our distinguished treasurer and our present President, for being the ingenious and plucky devil that he is to beat me.

Wayne Soini

P.S.—Two of my supporters were home sick on election day. Consequently the true margin of defeat was but 301. Which proves that I could win without a moustache—next year!

UMass Forestry Club to Present Trophy at Woodsmen's Weekend

by Neal Novack

Warning to all Mass Grassers—if you're having illusions of falling timber and buzzing saws while you're lying around the campus pond area this Saturday and Sunday (9 a.m.)—it's not because you're getting too much sun! It's the UMass Forestry Club's 22nd annual Intercollegiate Woodsmen's Weekend.

Vieing for the E. Quillian Brazel trophy and five other trophies to be presented by the Forestry Club will be teams representing Colby College, U-Maine, Dartmouth College, University of New Hampshire, Paul Smith's College (who won the coveted trophy last year at Colby College in Waterville, Maine), U. S. Military Academy at West Point, Middlebury College, and Nichols College.

The fifteen events in the competition are designed to test the participants' abilities in the traditional skills of the outdoorsman. Among the first events are fishing (spin & fly casting), round robins (pulp toss, log rolling, and scoot loading), splitting, and fire building. The purpose of the pulp throwing event shall be to throw by hand pulp wood between two stakes for accuracy. Scoot loading consists of loading logs for transport onto a scoot.

Trophies to be presented this weekend.

After lunch the wood events will continue with pole felling, crosscut sawing, buck sawing, race. The fastest and perhaps the most dangerous event is speed chopping. In the pack board race a six man team must lash a blanket-wrapped, closed sandbag weighing 50 pounds, and a 10" diameter frying pan to a pack board and run a course (about one mile) relay with the load for speed.

On Sunday the meet will conclude with three canoeing events, singles, doubles and portage. In the latter, one man shall paddle a canoe over a specified length of water, land, carry the canoe, and return to the finish line by paddling another specified course. The trophies will be awarded after this event. The campus community is cordially invited to watch this unique sporting event.

UMass Equestrian Club Wins Prizes at Kiwanis Horse Show

Five ribbons and over $40 in prize money was the reward for two UMass Morgan horses, Bay State Instructor and Bay State Helena at the April 20th Bernardston Kiwanis Youth Services horse show. The show was held at the Stoneleigh Prospect Hill School for Girls in Greenfield. The horses won two second places, two third places, and one fourth place.

Riders for the horses were two members of the UMass Equestrian Club, under the direction of UMass riding instructor Mrs. Judith Connell. The students were Luanne Burnside of 4 Tetreault Dr., Walpole, and Linda Taber of 352 Kingston St., N. Dartmouth. The horses were entered in eight Morgan pleasure classes.

The Equestrian Club will be sponsoring a horse show May 4th at 1 p.m. at the University's stable. The show is open to all students presently taking riding in physical education class and Equestrian Club members.

Coeds: "Awake, arise, you are the Super Sex,"--Dr. James Holleran

The female ego could almost have blown its mind at an Associated Women Students banquet at the University of Missouri recently with the build-up given it by an assistant English professor, the Maneater reports.

In a speech titled "Where Little Girls Go," Dr. James Holleran said they go the same place big girls go — "to the top." He told coeds "Awake, arise, you are the super sex — you outstrip (surpass) men. You are stronger, more intelligent, more beautiful." To further inflate the female ego, Holleran said women are also more loving and sophisticated. "You invented the fork, charm school and etiquette book and you are an enemy of elbows on the table."

Woman is articulate, he said, adding he had never heard a woman say "No comment" or refuse to answer. He agreed with Hamlet's definition of a mother-in-law — "Words, words, words." He concluded his speech by presenting five awards to great women in literature.

The sex award, given in a crowded field including such figures as Fanny Hill and Candy, went to Helen of Troy, who not only could launch 1,000 ships but also was able to get Liz Taylor to play her part. Winning over Snow White, Little Nell and the Brownie Scouts for the award for "most innocent woman in literature" was Little Red Riding Hood. The prize was a movie date with Lawrence Welk to see "Mary Poppins." The award for the "woman behind the man" went to Mrs. Sigmund Freud, who outlasted Mrs. Aristotle, Mrs. Shakespeare and Mrs. Attilla the Hun. Mrs. Freud received the award for patiently "sitting on her id while others occupied her couch."

The American Medical Award, for a woman who suffered hard times, went to Lavinia, who was stabbed by her own father in Shakespeare's "Titus Adronicus." The price — a do-it-yourself heart transplant kit. Holleran described the winner of the final award — for the most outstanding woman in literature — as beautiful, wanting to teach, wearing proper clothing, doing well in school and studying faithfully. He said, "She is one of you — she is the Tigress in the 1971 University Bulletin, and the prize — your applause."

Following the music for brass choir, will be two numbers of the woodwind choir. The woodwind choir will play the work Cantilena by Arthur Frackenpohl and Adagio for Strings by Samuel Barber

Sunday's performance will be the world premiere of the concert band arrangement of this work.

The program will close with selections from Carousel and the rousing Finale from the West Point Symphony of Robert Dvorak. Based on traditional songs from the heritage of West Point, the West Point Symphony builds to a thunderous climax.

Quakers Aid Poor Peoples' Campaign

The Poor People's Campaign, initiated by the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), will be supported by the Mt. Toby Monthly Meeting of Friends, Thomas Hancock, acting clerk, announced this week.

At a monthly Meeting for Business, the Amherst area Quakers adopted a resolution which reads in part: "Because we believe that all men are brothers, that poverty, destitution, lack of opportunity, are a denial of this brotherhood, we of the Mt. Toby Monthly Meeting of Friends do endorse and support the Poor People's Campaign. We will do what we can to assist them in their efforts to achieve a constructive solution to this most urgent of social problems."

The Poor People's Campaign, which will take place in Washington, D. C. will involve the young and the old, jobless fathers, welfare mothers, farmers and laborers, Negroes, American Indians, Mexican Americans, and poor white people. They will conduct nonviolent demonstrations on the issues of jobs, income, welfare, health, housing, education, and human rights.

Most of those participating at the beginning of the Campaign will be poor, but SCLC is encouraging others from all walks of life to join, both in sponsoring activities in their own communities and in going to Washington.

project bridge

project bridge is an idea designed to help close the communication gap between students and faculty

The idea is that willing teachers would ask their students to submit constructive written criticism of their classes.

And that teachers would postpone one night's assignment as an indication of their serious desire for criticism, thus allowing students sufficient time for conscientious efforts.

And that teachers, having collected and read the criticism, would spend at least a part of a class day responding to points raised by their students.

And that, in addition to class criticism, students would submit, separately, through one of their teachers in their major department, their written opinions and recommendations concerning the Cook Report.

The necessity for "project bridge":

I. There is a communications gap within classes between teachers and individual students.

Teachers are working hard on their classes, yet they still fail with many students.

Teachers, in order to make less of their effort wasted, want to know what students dislike about their classes. Students know what students dislike.

Project Bridge

II. There is a communications gap between students and department heads concerning curriculum.

Department heads have been asked to involve students in their evaluations of the Cook Report; and yet, according to a rough survey of all department heads in the College of Arts and Science, students have not been significantly involved in most cases.

Most department heads want to involve students, but can not get them involved. And yet, at the same time, students are sick of taking courses they do not want to take and would like to do something about it.

Project Bridge

If implemented to its fullest extent, "Project Bridge" is a chance for every individual student to give his personal opinions and recommendations on matters affecting his daily life.

"Project Bridge" is a chance for students to collectively have some influence on the decisions that affect them.

What it would mean to individuals:

For Students

—A chance for you to address each of your teachers in writing, saying directly what bothers you about their course.

—A chance for you to say what you would like to see your instructors change now, before the end of a semester, when there is still a possibility that changes can be implemented to benefit you directly.

—A chance for you to express in writing your opinion of present University requirements, your opinion of proposed University requirements (e.g. Cook Committee Raport), and your personal recommendations for future curricular reform.

For Teachers

—An opportunity for you to discover some of what bothers each of your students.

—A chance to hear ideas about possible changes in your present course format and presentation.

For Department Heads

—An opportunity to gather student opinion and recommendations on the Cook Raport.

Some suggested guidelines for written criticisms:

I. CLASS CRITICISM

Individually think over your experience in each class, talk over your ideas with friends, and then write. Write freely — say what you want to say. Say what irritates you and get it all off your chest; but at the same time, be responsible and constructive.

Also be specifically personal. Instead of generalizations relate everything to you: your personal experiences, your personal frustrations, your personal ideas. (For example: If it is the case that discussions are pretty good but that you personally do not participate in them; then do not say "discussions are generally good." Say that you never participate in them and go on to say what the teacher might do differently to get you involved. It might be that the teacher has discouraged you by not taking student opinions seriously enough. In any case, figure out what it is in your own personal situation and write it down.)

When you have completed your personal observations, read through the following list of suggested areas for criticism and make any additional comments that you think are appropriate.

A. Course Material: relevance, usefulness now and in the future, worth of text books and other course materials. What specific changes would you recommend?

B. Classes: necessity of attending, value of note-taking, balance between lecture and discussion, hindered by repetition of materials in text books, other digressions. Did the circumstances of the class enhance or discourage your interest in the subject matter? What specific changes would you recommend?

C. Instructor: knowledge of subject, speaking ability, preparation and organization, personality, availability, ability to draw students out, general method, responses to questions, interest in material. What specific changes would you recommend?

D. Outside Work: worthwhile, interesting, or dull? Too time-consuming? What specific changes would you recommend?

E. Evaluation: examinations, quizzes, papers, grading, general fairness. What specific changes would you recommend?

Be constructive. For every criticism be sure to make specific recommendations to your teacher concerning possible improvements.

II. CORE REQUIREMENT CRITICISM

Criticize present University Core requirements (summarized on pp. 29 - 30 of 1967 - 1968 Undergraduate Catalog)

Criticizes Cook Report recommendation for the Core Curriculum. Cook Report Recommendations are summarized below:

(Note: in the event of advanced placement credits the English composition and foreign-language requirements may be satisfied, at least in part, without taking courses.)

a. A two-course sequence in English composition each of three credits with advanced placement possible (We refer to this sequence as English 111-112 although it will differ from the present sequence with the same numbers.) 6

b. English 125 3

c. One of:
(1) English 126
(2) Comparative Literature 201
(3) Comparative Literature 202 3

d. One of:
(1) Intermediate proficiency in a foreign 12
(2) A three-course sequence in conceptual mathematics 9
(3) Two courses of the sequence in conceptual mathematics followed by a course in applied mathematics specifically designed to follow the concaptual mathematics sequence 9
(4) A three-course sequence in formal logic, or in a combination of logic and conceptual mathematics 9

e. One of:
(1) A two-course sequence in history, chosen from an approved list
(2) A two-course sequence in philosophy, chosen from an approved list. 6

f. Any two courses chosen from among the social sciences 6

g. One of:
(1) A two-course sequence in a single department and one course in the same or a different department chosen from among the physical sciences
(2) A two-course sequence in a singla department and one course in same or a different department chosen from the biological sciencas 9
(On this alternative see Section 11 c 2 e, Natural Sciencas Alternative.)

h. A single course in the appreciation, history or theory of fine arts 3

Total Credits 30-48

Your own personal recommendations.

III. CRITICISM: ANONYMOUS OR SIGNED?

ANONYMOUS: Anonymous criticism can be completely honest with the possibility of retaliation eliminated. To be certain that your criticism is anonymous, either type it or ask someone else to write it for you. Exchange essays with your roommate or a friend so that handwriting cannot be linked with the critic.

SIGNED: Signed criticisms allow a teacher to respond directly to his critics. If certain points in a critique are unclear, he can question the author further to discover his exact meaning. And, of course, by signing, a student commits himself to responsible, constructive criticism rather than irresponsible mud-slinging.

Tougher Firearms Bill Passed by U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee voted Wednesday to cement into a broad anticrime bill a section providing tougher federal controls over firearms sales.

But, contrary to Pres. Johnson's recommendations, the new restrictions would not prohibit interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns to individuals.

However, they would ban such sales of other firearms, including concealable weapons like pistols and revolvers.

There also would be an outright ban on sales to persons under 21 years of age.

The bill would make it unlawful for any person other than a licensed dealer to transport or receive in his state of residence any firearm other than a rifle or shotgun purchased or otherwise obtained outside his state.

This prohibition is extended to a rifle or shotgun if the purchase of such a weapon would be unlawful in the state where the person resides.

The present firearms act, enacted in 1938, has a similar prohibition. The new bill is designed to make it more enforceable.

Lt. Governor Speaks...

Jobs and better education and housing are needed in the ghettos and "private enterprise must become more involved than it is, continued the Massachusetts Republican.

As acting governor during the violence which followed Dr. Martin Luther King's death, Sargeant told the group that his great problem was "how to react and not over react." The main thing state and city leaders were trying to do was "cool it."

The Lt. Governor said that the way to cope with violence is to deal with the causes that create it.

Before entertaining questions from his audience Sargeant made an appeal to "all young people" to become involved in their society, especially in government.

We need new energy and vitality, desperately, he concluded. "Above all else we need someone in the White House to unify the nation." Sargeant pointed to Republican John Lindsay of New York City and the late President John Kennedy as examples of what he meant.

When asked if he would support a conservative such as Richard Nixon in the '68 election, Lt. Governor Sargeant said he "may" but future months will tell."

Sargeant closed by answering a question on the state's birth control laws saying "Massachusetts is backward in this respect," and "behind the nation, I think."

Whitmore Administration Building To Be Dedicated on Saturday

Whitmore Hall and approach ramp from northern end.

An open house at the University of Massachusetts Whitmore Administration Building will take place from 1:30 to 4 p.m., Saturday, April 27 in Amherst.

Designed by Campbell, Aldrich and Nulty of Boston, the $3 million glass and concrete structure was completed last summer by Daniel O'Connell's Sons, Inc. of Holyoke. The three stories, one underground, house more than 250 administrative personnel.

The building is named for Philip F. Whitmore, a UMass trustee who died in a Massachusetts Turnpike accident in 1962. A 1915 graduate of UMass, Mr. Whitmore was a trustee for 33 years. He was a selectman in Sunderland from 1935 to 1950 and was town moderator for 38 years. From 1950 on he was elected biannually to the state legislature from Franklin County. He was former president of the University Alumni Association and of the National Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions.

Unveiling of the plaque will take place at 2:30 p.m. Attending will be Mr. Whitmore's widow, Mrs. Philip F. Whitmore of Sunderland, their son William of Elm Grove, Wisconsin, and their two daughters, Mrs. G. David Shilling of Kingston, R. I. and Mrs. Frank McClintock of Concord.

The public is invited to attend the open house.

Friday's Biggest U. S. Nuclear Blast Brings Opposition

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The mightiest nuclear blast to be fired in the U.S. is set for Friday, and the federal government is feeling shock waves in advance.

Protests against possible danger or damage have come from citizens, scientists, labor leaders, peace groups and from the organization of Nevada's biggest spender, billionaire Howard Hughes.

The test of a hydrogen device will pack the wallop of one million tons of TNT or more and is expected to be felt, earthquake style, for 250 miles or more.

A test last January rated at a little less than a million tons rocked buildings in San Francisco and Salt Lake City and residents of the Northern California coastal town of Eureka, 700 mi. distance, said they felt it. It cracked pavement on bridges 12 mi. away, but caused no serious damage. Its purpose was to determine if even larger tests could be safely staged.

The AEC says no damage is expected from Friday's test. It is set for 6 a.m. in a chamber 3,800 ft. under Pahute Mesa at the Nev. Test Site 100 mi. northwest.

V-Pres. Hubert H. Humphrey's office in Washington confirmed receipt of letters of concern from Nevada residents. Gov. Paul Laxalt said he had similar letters from "scientific people" in Nev.

The Howard Hughes organization, which has invested millions of dollars recently in hotel casinos and other Nevada real estate, asked for a 90-day postponement to study possible test effects.

A Hughes spokesman said it has received telegrams from several scientists, including:—Prof. Phillip Morrison of MIT, saying "it would be very unfortunate to have a radioactive venting or a peculiar degree of seismic damage at this crucial point in diplomatic negotiations."

—Leland Steward, executive director of the Conf. on Science and Religion, saying a test "seems poor judgment at this time—pending Vietnam negotiations."

—Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel prize winning scientist, also protested, the Hughes spokesman said.

The Hughes group holds that the test could contaminate underground water, emit radioactivity into the air or touch off earthquakes.

The AEC said it will evacuate buildings near the site and close a few roads as a precautionary measure. It the test causes no damage, a spokesman said, even larger ones may follow. The Friday test has been termed essential to weapons development.

Sen. McCarthy Does Well in Pa. Primary

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Backers of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy cheered his showing Wednesday in Pennsylvania's primary, but he can count on only a handful of the state's 130 Democratic convention votes.

McCarthy's name was the only one on Tuesday's primary ballot, and he far outdistanced write-in candidates.

"As a result of the preferential primary, it's fairly obvious he is a great favorite and a great vote getter," said Michael H. Malin, chairman of the Pennsylvania McCarthy for President organization.

McCarthy, D-Minn., had no immediate comment.

In the voting, McCarthy's totals were 7-1 over the write-in votes for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a Democrat from New York, and 10-1 over Vice President Hubert Humphrey. On the Republican side, former Vice President Richard Nixon forged a 3-1 write-in lead over New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Only McCarthy and Kennedy campaigned at all in Pennsylvania, the nation's third largest state. Because the votes for candidates in the Pennsylvania primary are not binding on convention delegates, few delegates campaigned as supporters of any one man.

Malin, claiming outright 15 delegate votes for McCarthy at Chicago, said contests involving about seven possible McCarthy votes were still undecided.

College Work-Study Program Aids 300,000 Students in '68

More than 217,000 students who need money to attend college will be helped by the federally supported College Work-Study Program during the second half of this year, Wilbur J. Cohen, Acting Sec. of Health, Education, and Welfare has said.

More than $82 million in Federal grants will be made available by the U.S. Office of Education during the six-month period, he said.

"Our goal is to remove the financial barrier that stands in the way of any qualified young person who seeks a college education," Mr. Cohen said. "This program, which provides paying jobs for students, is one of the ways in which we are working to remove that financial barrier."

During the current school year, more than 300,000 students are being helped through college by the program.

The Office of Education has allocated grants in support of the program for the second half of '68 to 1845 institutions of higher education in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico.

From July 1 through Aug. 19, 1968, the Federal Government will pay 85% of the wages of student workers, with the remainder provided by the college or off-campus employer. After Aug. 20, the Federal share will be 80 percent.

Student employment consists of on-campus jobs such as teacher assistant, library aide, lab assistant, maintenance worker or administrative aide. Off-campus work may be public or private nonprofit agencies in such activities as health, welfare, education and recreation.

Students may work an overage of 15 hrs./wk. while in school and up to 40 hrs./wk. during vacation.

Any student unable to enter or to continue in college for lack of funds may apply for participation in the Work-Study Program to the financial aid office of the college he attends or plans to enter.

The college or university presents its overall request for Federal assistance to a regional panel set up by the Office of Education. These panels are composed of local college officials and Federal student financial aid officials. The U.S. Commissioner of Education makes awards on the basis of panel recommendations.

Dr. William M. Irvine will administer grants of $34,800 from the NSF for two years and $10,400 from National Aeronautics and Space Administration for six months to continue his theoretical studies on planetary atmospheres and cosmic dust.

A $35,400 grant from the NSF will be used by Professor Edward R. Harrison to support theoretical studies on the formation of galaxies.

These grants bring the total face value of current federal support in the department to almost one million dollars. According to Drs. Gluckstern and Irvine, these federal grants were made possible through generous support from the state to initiate these research programs.

Miniskirt Fashions Are Out

LONDON (AP) — The miniskirt is indeed on its last legs.

The British ready-to-wear trade, which invented it, gave it the coup de grace in their autumn sample show Wednesday for foreign buyers.

Rosalind Gersten, one of Macy's buyers here for the opening, said approvingly: "Well, they've killed off the mini for us. Most of these skirts are about the length we're wearing at home—2 in. above the knee."

Some 40 manufacturers of ready-mades showed half a doz. day and evening dresses each, under the auspices of the Clothing Expert Council of Great Britain. Top trends were shirtwaisters and shifts, with few prints but lots or shadow plaids and checks, stripes, and contrasting plain colors.

It was uncertain whether the mass market ready-to-wear manufacturers were ready to fall into step, but they did Wednesday with the exception of two or three die-hards.

Two UMass Juniors Receive Summer Study Scholarships

Two University of Massachusetts juniors majoring in zoology have been selected to receive scholarships for summer study at the Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratory, it was announced recently by Dr. L. M. Bartlett, UMass professor of zoology and chairman of the Woods Hole Scholarship Committee.

Miss Alice Martin of Williams St., Housatonic and Mr. Robert Goff of 125 Glendale Rd., Scarsdale, N.Y., will take six-week courses at Woods Hole, one of the foremost marine stations in the world. Miss Martin will study invertebrate zoology and Mr. Goff will study experimental botany.

The scholarship stipend will cover the first six-week course of study. It the student is invited to remain for an additional six weeks of post-course research, the stipend will be extended for this purpose. The scholarships will be awarded by Prof. Bartlett at Honors Day ceremonies on May 9.

Geology Dept. Members Take Research Cruise

Two members of the University of Massachusetts geology department are cruising aboard the Research Vessel Chain of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute southeast of the Georges Bank.

Professor Gregory W. Webb and graduate student Stewart C. Farrell are on board for the two week research trip studying the New England seamounts located near the Georges Bank.

Dr. Elazar Uchupi, chief scientist at Woods Hole, will assist the group in studying the seamounts, underwater volcanoes under a thin layer of sediment. The scientists will try to dredge some of the peaks with the aid of bathymetry and magnetometry, they hope to learn something about the composition of the materials of the seamounts and their ages. Using seismic profiling, the group will attempt to establish the probable fracture zone running through the seamounts and the kinds of sediments surrounding them.

Physics and Astronomy Depts. Receive Twelve Federal Grants

Twelve federal grants totaling $559,900 have been awarded to the University of Massachusetts department of physics and astronomy, according to Dr. Robert L. Gluckstern, head of the department.

Six grants were awarded within the physics program including a contract of $145,000 from the Atomic Energy Commission for one year to be administered by Drs. Janice Button Shafer and S. Steven Yamamoto to continue their studies in high energy experimental physics.

Drs. John J. Brehm and Leroy F. Cook, under a two-year grant of $108,600 from the National Science Foundation, will continue their studies in high energy theoretical physics.

A grant of $16,600 from the NSF for one year will be used by Dr. Norman C. Ford to continue his experimental studies on the scattering of laser light by a liquid at low temperatures.

A matching grant of $39,000 from the AEC and UMass will be used to purchase a Van de Graaff accelerator for the instructional program at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Dr. Arthur R. Quinton will administer the grant.

The NSF awarded a $7600 grant for one year to be used by Dr. Raymond A. Patten who is supervising the program of research participation by undergraduate majors.

Four other grants were awarded within the astronomy program, according to Dr. William M. Irvine, chairman of the program.

NASA awarded a $ 93,100 grant to support balloon studies of the solar chromosphere being conducted by Dr. John D. Strong.

Grants of $41,300 from the Office of Naval Research and $16,000 from the Air Force will support studies in infrared spectroscopy. Dr. John D. Strong will administer the grants.

UM Student Faces Three Auto Charges

A University of Massachusetts student had court ordered pleas of innocence entered on his behalf in Hampshire District County Court this morning by Judge Charles J. O'Connor after being charged with three automobile offenses.

He was charged with operating without a license, registration or insurance. Because of his age the case was continued until May 3. He was released on his personal recognizance.

Baseball Team Travels to Rhode Island

Redmen Seek Fourth Conference Victory; Rams Have Good Pitching, Poor Hitting

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

Sophomore righthander John Kitchen takes the mound this afternoon as the UMass baseball team goes after its fourth straight Yankee Conference win in a 3 p.m. game against Rhode Island at Kingston, R. I.

Rhody, considered by many to be a contender in the Conference, has gotten off to a poor start, 3-6-1. However, this is the Ram's first league game and they could be in trobule.

Last year's game at Kingston was unforgettable. It took 16 innings before the Redmen got two runs and defeated Rhody, 8-6. In the other game at Amherst, John Canty pitched and batted UMass to a 3-1 win.

Rhode Island has gotten excellent pitching this year but has been plagued by poor hitting. Probably the best hitter on the team is third baseman-outfielder Jack Coppolino, who missed Tuesday's game against Springfield due to an injury.

Another good hitter is centerfielder John Sartini, along with first baseman Ed de Cruz. The catcher, Art McKenney, was named first team all-New England last year. He has a great arm. Another defensive standout is shortstop Mike Valois, a fine fielder but not much of a hitter.

Umass, which is leading the Yankee Conference despite the injury to ace lefthander Canty, has been getting great pitching from Kitchen and Rich Rappoli. With the Redmen in the midst of six big Conference games in a row, Canty's loss has been felt, but Kitchen and Rappoli, along with reliever Dave Katz, have been getting the job done.

The big story so far for the Redmen has been the slugging of sophomore Bob Hansen. The big left fielder from East Boston has been tearing apart the pitching of his opponents. Hansen currently sports a .440 batting average, including four home runs.

UMass has also been getting god hitting from sophomore Steve Rogers (.344) and senior Ted Mareno (.300).

After today's game, the Redmen will return home Saturday to host New Hampshire. Another important Conference game looms next Tuesday as UMass and UConn meet in a rematch at Storrs, Connecticut.

BLOCKED AT THE NET — Redman Richard Mahoney (23) makes a valiant effort for a goal in Tuesday's game against Holy Cross. The goal attempt was blocked, and Mahoney failed to score.

Golfers Defeat Maine, 4-3, Lose to New Hampshire, 4-2

PORTSMOUTH, N.H.—Three extra hole wins enabled the UMass golf team to defeat Maine Tuesday, 4 - 3, in a match played at Portsmouth Country Club. New Hampshire, however, the participant in the matches, defeated the Redmen, 4 - 2½.

Sophomores Bill Dunsmore, Dick Starsiak and junior Paul Johnson all won their matches on the 20th hole one up from their Maine rivals. Their wins were the key victories in the match.

Captain Bob Nowak also won his Maine match three and two. Nowak tied for medalist honors with his 80 in this match.

Eric Lekberg also scored 80 in his Maine match but was defeated two and one. John Ariansen and Jim O'Brien also lost their matches against the Black Bears, Ariansen, three and one, and O'Brien, four and three.

Against New Hampshire, the Redmen could not really get going in the cold, windy weather as the Wildcats won four matches.

Ariansen lost his match four and three, and Dunsmore his, two and one, while Johnson was defeated five and four and O'Brien, four and three.

Nowak won his match, five and four and Starsiak, two and one. Lekberg tied in his New Hampshire encounter.

UMass's Dick Page, while not making excuses, felt that the absences of front line golfers, Gary Gasperack, Keith Quenneville and Dick Barber due to exams, played a big part in the defeat by UNH.

Quenneville and Barber are undefeated in their matches this season, and they were sorely missed. However Page was still pleased with his team's play despite their defeat and is looking eagerly toward today's match with Boston College and Holy Cross.

Celts Beaten By Lakers, 123-113

BOSTON (AP)—The Los Angeles Lakers led by old pros Jerry West and Elgin Baylor, got help from unheralded Tom Hawkins and overpowered the Boston Celtics 123-113 last night, squaring their showdown for the National Basketball Association championship.

The victory sent the Lakers home all even with the third game of the best-of-7 series set for Los Angeles tomorrow night. Los Angeles nailed down the decision with an outburst early in the third period. The Lakers tallied 11 straight points to take a commanding 73-60 lead in the decisive explosion. The Celtics never got closer than seven points the rest of the way.

John Haylicek led Boston scorers with 24 points and Don Nelson added 20.

Tennis Team Scores 9-0 Win Over Tufts at Medford Tuesday

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Playing steady tennis at every position, the UMass Redmen scored their second consecutive win over Tufts, 9-0, at Medford Tuesday. The win gave the Redmen a season mark of 3 - 1.

All the Redmen were in good form, especially Mike Katz. Katz, playing fifth singles, destroyed Steve Foldes, 6-2, 6-0. Katz then teamed with Steve Cohen at third doubles to polish off Foldes and Tom Fischgrund, 6-1, 6-4.

The only Redmen to have any kind of trouble were Cohen, playing sixth, who needed three sets to defeat Fischgrund, 6-0, 3-6, and 6-2, and the second doubles team of Carl Clem and Tom Johnson who needed the limit to beat John Winslow and Rick Shapiro, 6-4, 2-6 and 6-3.

Coach Steve Kosakowski said, "Everybody played well and was fortunate to win. Mike Katz looked good and is really coming around for us."

The Redmen are slated to meet Rhode Island tomorrow in a home match. This is a big one as far as Kosakowski is concerned, and he advises, "Anyone who wants to see good tennis should come to this match. It should be a dandy."

CORE leader Floyd McKissick spoke in a DVP lecture last night.

CORE Leader McKissick: "Integration Is Dead"

by BILL DICKINSON
Specials Editor

"We want to be what we are," said Floyd McKissick yesterday, summing up the current philosophy of the black people's movement in the United States.

The National Director of the Congress on Racial Equality discounted what critics have called the "racism" of the black power movement. Instead he likened it to Chinese communities, such as New York's "Chinatown" where most businesses are owned and run by the Chinese.

In the U.S. today he claimed "Integration is a concept that is dead . . . only ten per cent of the black folks want integration and that number is dwindling." According to McKissick, the early civil rights movement was concerned with gaining legal, not social equality. "It didn't mean that we were trying to change our complexions . . . we want our own culture."

He then outlined what he called "the six points of black power" for the audience of six hundred in Bowker Auditorium:

- The growth of black political power.
- The building of black economic power.
- The improvement of the black man's self-image.
- The development of black leadership.
- The enforcement of Federal human rights laws and an end to police brutality.
- The mobilization of black consumer power.

McKissick, often shouting during his speech, declared, "We've got a white world and a black world" and to illustrate his point he asked how many of the whites in the audience had heard the current hit song by the late Otis Redding, "Sitting on the Dock of the Bay." Then he read the lyrics and said what the song is trying to say is "If you're black in this country it does not matter whether you're in the North or South, people still treat you the same."

He said that he is amazed when asked how black people can burn down "their own homes" in riots; then he explained that "they don't care because blacks don't own their own homes."

McKissick also wanted "to shatter some of the illusions" of the audience. He shouted "I ain't no Negro. I'm a black man or an Afro-American . . . I didn't ask to be brought over here." This was met with loud applause.

"What you don't realize is that this is the white people's problem too . . . this society is rotten to the core." He went on, "The same morality being used against black people in this country is being used against the Vietnamese." He said the U.S. is forcing its culture on them whether they like it or not.

Commenting on Martin Luther King's assasination and subsequent events he said, "Looking around, you'd think there was only one bad white man in the whole country—the one who shot him."

Describing King's funeral, McKissick said, "All the people who marched with King day by day were crowded out of the church by the politicians and hustlers and pimps."

Students Protest Across Nation; Classes Cancelled at Columbia

NEW YORK (AP)—College students angry over a wide variety of grievances, have brought tumult to campuses from coast to coast this week.

In a rare display of militancy, some groups occupied college buildings and forced cancellation of classes.

Black and white student militants widened their beachhead at Columbia University's Ivy League campus to four buildings Thursday. Across town, in the more prosaic setting of a converted Brooklyn theater, Long Island University students seized control of the acting provost's office.

Both demonstrations involved racial issues, although at Columbia a number of white students also protested the Vietnam war. New York City police stood by on both campuses, but made no attempt to confront the rebellious students.

An estimated 2,500 of Columbia's 10,000 day students were barred from classes by the demonstrators, who held three classroom buildings and President Grayson Kirk's office.

Some students were angry at being turned away, and threatened reprisals against the demonstrators, whose strength was estimated at between 200 and 400. School officials said some nonstudents also had joined the demonstration on a campus that adjoins Negro Harlem.

The primary demand of the Negro demonstrators at Columbia was for cancellation of an $11.5 million gymnasium construction program in a section of Morningside Park leased from the city. They claimed the expansion would rob Harlem children of play space.

White demonstrators at the 214-year-old university also sought Columbia's withdrawal from the Institute for Defense Analysis, calling it a Defense Department research project in furtherance of the Vietnam war.

A sit-in by 300 Negro students behind the chained doors of the administration building at Boston University ended Wednesday with a promise by the school president to increase the number of black students and offer a course in Afro-American history. The school has 22,690 students.

A group of 250 Boston State College students protesting the firing of an assistant professor of physics staged a sit-in at the administration building, but broke it up Wednesday when they learned that Miss Margaret Delaney, 50, an associate profess of education, had died of a heart attack. Boston State has 4,400 students.

A row over University of Georgia rules which coeds contend discriminate against their sex wound up in court. A judicial order was issued Tuesday to halt student demonstrations inside university buildings and school officials promised to alert the rules next fall.

The coeds complained of premidnight curfews and a ban on drinking by women students. Male students are permitted to drink off campus if they are 21.

This week's incidents climaxed weeks of campus unrest across the country.

In most cases the activists were a small fraction of the student body.

P. A. S. Announces Plans For March to Boston

The Parents Aid Society announced last night that 250 students will be able to travel to Boston for the April 30 march on the State House at a reduced rate. Originally, the cost was to have been four dollars a student, but because of funds appropriated to the newly-formed group by the Student Senate, the fare will only be two dollars.

Seats will be awarded on a first-come-first-serve basis. It was announced that all interested students should try to sign up at the Parents Aid Society's booth in the Student Union before Tuesday. Those planning to go should be in front of the Union at 9 a.m. Tuesday. The busses will leave at 9:30.

The UMass marchers are scheduled to arrive at The Boston University Student Union, the starting point for the march, at 11:30 and the parade will leave from there at noon.

The UMass group, to be joined by other groups along the way, will arrive at the State House at 1 p.m.

Once there, a delegation will present the petitions collected on the campus to Gov. Volpe. The petitions, which contain over 3,000 signatures, ask for reform of Chapter 272 of the General Laws, the so-called "Crimes against Chastity."

At a meeting of the UMass Parents Aid Society last night, Claire Moriarity, chairman of the petition committee, requested that all petitions still circulating on the campus be turned in by Sunday at the latest.

It was also reported at the meeting that attempts are under way to get a large supporting group from Boston area schools to join the UMass group.

One member suggested that all students who hold meal tickets

Goldberg Formally Resigns from U. N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson discussed Thursday the long-anticipated resignation of Arthur J. Goldberg as ambassador to the United Nations and announced a surprise successor: former Undersecretary of State George W. Ball.

Goldberg, a former labor lawyer who has held high federal posts since the first day of the John F. Kennedy administration, had made no secret recently of his desire to return to private life.

Advance speculation about a successor did not touch the 58-year-old Ball, who resigned as No. 2 man in the State Department nearly two years ago to return to law practice.

Johnson, announcing the U. N. shift, at a brief news conference in his office, described Ball as a distinguished public servant "who serves me unofficially in many advisory capacities at the present time."

When Ball left government in 1966, he was widely regarded as more "dovish" on Vietnam policy than Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The President, who said he accepted Goldberg's resignation with regret, said the former secretary of labor and Supreme Court justice probably would remain at the U. N. until early June "while certain matters that he now has underway are being handled and disposed of."

He said Goldberg is leaving for personal reasons—Johnson did not specify them—but "would be available to the government to consult and help out with any problems that we might feel he was equipped to help us handle."

Goldberg said Thursday that he was quitting his job as Chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations because he believed he could do more for Vietnam peace as a private citizen.

The 59-year-old ambassador did not elaborate, but he indicated that the burdens of his office limited his possibilities. He was careful, however, to avoid any criticism of U. S. policies on Vietnam and he praised the March 31 decision of President Johnson to order a partial halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

Goldberg made his statements at a news conference a short time after the President in Washington had announced he was resigning the U.N. post. He said he had made no plans for the future, but that he probably would return to private law practice.

Goldberg left the Supreme Court bench July 20, 1965, to take over as successor to Adlai E. Stevenson. It had been known for some time that he was anxious to quit, but he indicated his final decision came after Johnson announced he would not be a candidate for re-election.

The resignation was actually handed in two days ago. Goldberg agreed to continue on the job until the end of the current session of the U.N. General Assembly which is expected about June 1. He will be succeeded by former Undersecretary of State George W. Ball. He praised Ball as an able successor.

Despite reports that Goldberg was unhappy with the Johnson administration's Vietnam policies, he would go no further than to acknowledge there had been differences on policy within the government. He said, however, that was not the motivating reason for his resignation.

Referring to the decision to halt the bombing, he said: "The President's decision in all its aspects was an unparalleled act of patriotism and political courage."

He said the journey ahead is bound to be difficult and frustrating, but "the door to peace has been thrust ajar. Whatever the discouragements, it must not be permitted to close."

Goldberg did not spell out how he expected to contribute to the peace efforts. He simply said:

"I believe the best way I can serve the cause of peace is to be a private citizen free from the intense preoccupations of this office."

Student Organization Seeks Funds To Help Ghetto Students at UMass

Students voiced overwhelming support of the Martin Luther King Social Action Council's plans to aid 125 ghetto students at the University next fall. In a meeting last night, the leaders of the council told interested students of their plans to seek recognition from the Student Senate, and of their hope to gain state funds for their project.

The Council seeks a $40,000 budget from the Student Senate for their program of providing ghetto students with tutorial help. A promise of State aid, according to the Council's leaders, might mean Ford Foundation financing of the program.

Suspect in King Assassination Released by Mexican Authorities

HERMOSILIO, Son., Mexico (AP)—An American arrested by Mexican officials because they thought he resembled pictures of the man wanted in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King was released Thursday after questioning.

Daniel David Kennedy, 41, of Baltimore, had nothing but praise for Mexicans upon his release.

According to police in Hermosille, an FBI agent identified only as Mr. Smith, said Kennedy did not look like James Earl Ray, the fugitive wanted on charges of slaying King.

He had been detained 24 hours after police in nearby Caborca arrested him.

"I guess anyone else would be mad, but I can't be angry with these people," Kennedy said. "They thought I looked like James Ray and they were only doing their duty."

Kennedy arrived in Mexico March 27 and was hiking to Baja, California when he was arrested about 80 miles south of the border.

WHY DID ÆTNA AGREE TO BOND EX-CONVICTS IN A PIONEER EXPERIMENT?

Men with prison records generally have been considered poor employment risks. Employers are chary of assuming such a risk without some kind of guarantee. In the past insurance companies have been reluctant to supply that guarantee.

Ætna Life & Casualty decided that at last one insurance company should.

Today, in cooperation with the Federal government and civic leaders, pilot programs are underway in two major cities.

We undertook this revolutionary step of bonding "unbondables" to help people with criminal records to become self-supporting, productive members of society.

A Change Is Due

Until Section 21a was added to Chapter 272 of the General Laws of Massachusetts, it was illegal for anyone to dispense birth control information in this state. This new section, which allows such information to be given to married women, is a step in the right direction, but it should be the first step.

Such a ban on family planning information is obviously antithetical to the state's welfare programs, since those families which continue to grow also continue to draw more aid. Taxpayers are now being deprived of such information, and at the same time they are paying for the actions of others who are also unable to obtain this information.

The $36 million in federal aid, which will be lost if the Massachusetts legislature does not revise this law, is the best example of the social and economic repercussions which will result if it is not changed.

Chapter 272 (Sections 19-21a) of the General Laws of the State of Massachusetts must be revised.

House that Jack Built

Probably prodded into action by the death of Civil Rights Leader Martin Luther King, several colleges and universities are making new attempts to help increase enrollment of and aid to Negro students. Whether this is only an emotional reaction or a true realization that the educational world has not made enough of an effort to attract Negro students, it is still a step in the right direction. It is especially important for the New England schools, which have an unusually low number of Negro students compared to the total population, to find some way to offer an opportunity for advanced education. Harvard and Yale have pledged either scholarships, promises of a specific quota within a few years or intentions to spend more time fighting discrimination, poverty and inadequate education. Financial aid and special consideration of promising Negro students will definitely increase their enrollment.

At times, it seems as if we are fighting "the house that Jack built." The Negro child often starts out in a family where the parents seldom speak in complete sentences and do not clearly distinguish vowel and consonant sounds. From a home where he is given little cultural background even in simple childhood stories, he goes into first grade and finds the teacher speaks in complete, articulate sentences which he must become accustomed to or give up learning before he begins. His plight continues until he gets either a high school diploma signifying in actuality only three or four years of education or leaves school.

Trying to remedy the situation when the child is eighteen years old is very late but is better than waiting to correct the earliest deficiencies first. By past experience, we know that a lot is promised but little done. At least, we have found some place where we can work and possibly succeed. The greatest strain, unfortunately, will be placed on the Negro student who will have to make-up possibly for his complete educational career in a few semesters.

The University of Massachusetts is also trying to aid Negro students by waiving admission requirements for them. It is beginning to realize that the racial imbalance has to be corrected and that, until the social problems involving both white and Negro poor are worked on, special effort must be made to assure them a change for a college education. Next year, UMass will start working seriously on a problem which can not be overlooked—the creation of a Negro, college-educated, middle class. This has to become the reality and the educational system has the duty and the best opportunity to do this.

A Chance for Communication

Project Bridge is an excellent opportunity for students and faculty at the University to discuss the strong and weak points of their courses.

Although some departments, such as Chemistry and Physics, seek student opinion concerning the quality of their teachers and the rele[illegible]ce of course material, wide-scale communication of this natu[illegible] limited. It is this very type of discussion which must precede intelligent academic change and experimentation.

Understanding "why and how" one approaches class material is an important part of education. I urge faculty and students to utilize Project Bridge as an integral component of their class material.

The Final Episode — Reader Has Last Word

To the editor:

I was glad to see that Mr. Baskin took full advantage of his position as an editor and twice as much space as I was allowed to answer my letter on his questionable editorial. Yet, I must say he astounds and amazes me everytime he puts pen to paper. He is so self-righteous yet misguided that I almost hesitate to answer his letter. But let it not be said that I failed to rise to the challenge.

I am glad to see that he admits his editorial was emotionally based for in doing so he condemns himself as an editorial editor. If what he wrote was a plea as he says, perhaps he'd best resign his post and concentrate on emotional pleas as they seem more fitting for his talents.

I congratulate him that he has seen fit to venture forth from New England and Massachusetts in particular. He has taken a giant step forward but his point of Negro shacks is lost for they are in evidence in other areas, not only in the South. To his statement of what he has heard from his friends and such I say "big deal." He believes he does not speak from ignorance but until he has lived in the South for a length of time as I have, he does speak from a lack of knowledge.

The last thing the South wants is your sympathy, Mr. Baskin. It is your type of pseudo-intellectual who, in many ways, is responsible for the plight of the South. Unless you wish to offer some help or aid, just stay away, we don't want you.

I do not know where you got the idea of guilt and Rockwell and Hitler, certainly not from my letter for you were first to mention both. I have no guilt complex (whatever you are trying to imply by such a term) about the South for I would much rather live there than here where people such as yourself are loose on society.

Your entire problem lies in four words "I don't care." You do not care what Mr. Wallace says or what Mr. Goldwater says as long as they change their views to agree with yours. This is the main point of my argument; you would silence those of differing views as you indicate in your letter. Do not deny it for it is there. To put it in simple terms, you Mr. Baskin, are a hypocrite. On one hand, you promote equality and on the other, you squelch dissent.

Yes, you do offend me with your "I". For your "I" is not America as you claim nor are you fit to speak for this generation of young people or for any generation. I urge you to stop writing now, Mr. Baskin, now before you write yourself into believing your delusions.

Restore UMass Safety Valve

by HAROLD LeVANWAY

Yahoo should be revived for the amusement of University of Massachusetts students and the irritation of their elders.

UMass trustees on Monday delayed their decision one month, it being argued that not all members of the board had received sufficient advanced material. At the May meeting they must decide on reinstatement of the university's campus humor publication.

Some of the trustees, doubtless will be reluctant to vote for Yahoo's revival. They still smart from the verbal lashings they received two years ago over the cartoon panel showing a rabbit emerging from a communion cup held by a priest. As Vice - Chr. Joseph P. Healy noted on Monday, Massachusetts legislators were angry at the university because of this apparent mockery of Christianity.

Whether this anger has truly slowed growth of the university is questionable. If so, those responsible for legislative reprisals were more narrow-minded than the students responsible for the cartoon's publications. Legislators are supposed to be adult. Penalizing Massachusetts youth for the size of a few smart-aleck teen - agers is hardly a mature reaction.

Trustees and legislators alike should consider this saucy action in the light of reason. The offense was objectionable but not horrendous. In fact, when one considers the activities on scores of other university campuses, UMass at Amherst is comparatively sedate and orderly. Not even Mother of Voices can equal the underground publications at other institutions for pornography and rebellious attitude.

A publication such as Yahoo is a safety valve that should be allowed. It gives expression to the somewhat juvenile sexual expressions of college-age young persons. Its rabid remarks are mild compared with the current crop of best-sellers and nationally-circulated magazines. Parents and elders take such campus efforts far more seriously than do the students who have more important matters demanding their attention.

Legislators and trustees also must be facing matters of greater moment than a state university humor magazine. So let us allow the students their fun and get on with the more serious business of building a comprehensive educational system for the people of Massachusetts.

Study of UM Frosh Shows

ED, EC Backgrounds 'Lower,' Aims Higher than National Norms

This year's University of Massachusetts freshman class tends to come from backgrounds where educational and economic levels are lower than the national freshman average, yet its plans for postgraduate study are equal to or higher than the national average.

This is one factor that emerges in a comparison of this year's freshmen with their counterparts at 385 other U.S. institutions. The comparisons are made in the annual American Council on Education (ACE) Survey on National Norms for Entering Freshmen, Fall, 1967.

Data on the occupation of fathers indicates the UMass freshman class tends to have a more working class background than the national average. At UMass, 14 percent of freshmen have fathers who are skilled workers, 7 percent who are semi-skilled workers and 3.1 percent who are unskilled workers. Corresponding national figures are 10.1, 5.3 and 2.3 percent.

Family income level for UMass freshmen is below that of the national freshman average, the ACE figures indicate. For example, 45.3 percent of UMass freshmen come from families with yearly income less than $10,000. Nationally, the figure is 33 percent. Only 5.2 percent of UMass freshmen come from families where the annual income level is over $20,000. The figure nationally is 14.5 percent.

Comparison of parents' educational backgrounds with the national norms shows generally that UMass freshmen come from homes where fewer parents went to college. The survey indicates 20.8 percent of UMass freshmen have fathers with college degrees and 16.3 percent have mothers with college degrees as opposed to 21.9 percent and 19.2 percent nationally. Corresponding figures for postgraduate degrees are UMass fathers, 9.9 percent; national fathers, 14.1 percent; UMass mothers, 2.3 percent; national mothers, 3.9 percent.

The aspirations of UMass freshmen toward earning a master's degree show as significantly higher than those of the national average. At UMass 45.9 percent of freshmen indicate plans to try for at least a master's degree. The corresponding national figure is 33.7 percent. Similar figures on Ph.D. aspirations show UMass freshmen and those surveyed nationally to be within .2 of a percent of one another—14.2 percent from UMass planning to seek a Ph.D. and 14.4 percent nationally.

UMass freshmen are more likely to help pay for their own education, the compilations indicate. At UMass, 30.6 percent of the freshmen listed savings of personal earnings as their major source of support during their freshman year, 7.6 percentage points higher than the national average of 23 percent. Similarly, 13.9 percent listed repayable loans, 2.4 points above the 11.5 percent national average. Parental support or family aid financed 58.5 percent of UMass freshmen in the first year; nationally the same figure was 63.2 percent.

The sharp competition for admission to the University is reflected in the figures that compare high school grade averages. These show over three-fourths—77.7 percent—of UMass freshmen in the B category in high school while only 59.2 percent of freshmen were so placed nationally. C and D students accounted for only 10.1 percent of the UMass freshman class, as opposed to a similar figure of 17 percent nationally. In the A category, UMass rated below the national norms—12 percent for UMass and 24 percent nationally.

Over-Emphasis in Social Sciences Causes Lack of Qualified Engineers

Today's college generation is so oriented to the social sciences that engineering schools cannot meet a growing demand that almost guarantees starting career engineers $10,000 a year.

K. G. Picha, dean of the University of Massachusetts School of Engineering, who has done much thinking about the problem, admits there is no quick explanation.

In a Daily Collegian interview, the dean also touched on these points:

- There is a serious underenrollment in the major engineering schools.
- The School of Engineering at the University is expanding and experimenting with new courses.
- The school stresses the importance to continued recruiting of well-qualified professors.

Dr. Picha expressed concern about the future of this nation because of the lack of qualified engineering students to meet the demands of an expanding, growth-oriented society. He cited the underenrollment of the major engineering schools throughout the United States, compared to the sizable number of engineering students in Japan and Russia.

The United States has produced about 30,000 engineers a year for the last decade. However, Russia and Japan produce 130,000 and 100,000, respectively.

"Our economic growth is based upon first-rate technology," Picha said, "and our scientists and engineers have kept us in a superior competitive position." While American engineering schools could "easily expand enrollment by 25%", today's students are not attracted into engineering fields even though the average starting salary is around $10,000 a year for a student with a Bachelor of Science degree.

"Because society is very much concerned about America's social problems," Dr. Picha said, "students have placed greater emphasis on the various social sciences rather than on engineering."

In order to meet the demands of society for solving its complex problems and to make U.S. engineers as highly trained as possible, the School of Engineering at the University has undertaken several programs.

With support from the Federal Government, the University is working on deep sea submersible problems in an effort to explore and utilize the resources of the oceans.

Currently, the school is experimenting with a cooperative engineering program which provides the student with a "chance to see what the real world is all about", said Picha. In his 1967 progress report, Picha said that the new program provides a "balance between academic training a student receives and the creative design aspects of engineering which characterize the practice of engineering". He added that returning students have renewed self-confidence and a better understanding of the problems they will have to face in the future.

The cooperative program is not official, but the school is learning about the problems of administering the program. This will be helpful when they propose it as a formal program of the school to the administration, Dr. Picha added.

Picha also explained such programs as the "Environmental Engineering Group", which deals with problems such as water and air pollution included in the "whole spectrum of wastes". In the Industrial Engineering Department, a group is applying mathematical techniques to problem solving: for example, the optimal design of hospitals and the various problems associated with heavy automobile traffic.

Cosmos 218 Poses Security Threat

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Thursday announced launching of a new Cosmos in terms that might mean it was the first test of an orbital bomb system since the United States declared this country seemed to be developing such a weapon.

It simultaneously announced another launching of an unmanned spaceship on a new type of orbit whose purpose was not explained.

Robert S. McNamara, then U.S. secretary of defense, disclosed the suspicions about a Soviet orbital bomb system at a Washington news conference Nov. 3. He said it could become combat-ready in 1968.

As described by McNamara, the system would consist of a nuclear warhead launched into a low orbit, from which it would be dropped on its target before the earth had been circled once.

Diplomatic sources here said afterward the Soviet Union was believed to be using its Cosmos space program as a cover for testing the system. They said that as of then 10 tests seemed to have been made.

The feature of these Cosmos flights which caused them to be suspect was that no orbiting time was given, as for others in the series. This suggested they were brought down before completing one orbit.

The Soviet Union announced Thursday the launching of Cosmos 218, giving no orbiting time. The announcement said the Cosmos reached a maximum distance from the earth of 130 miles and a minimum distance of 89 miles, and moved at an angle of 50 degrees.

This was similar to the flight pattern for other Cosmos believed to have been testing war-head re-entry.

Dollar Drain Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's hopes to cut $3 billion from the international dollar drain this year suffered a severe jolt Thursday when the Commerce Department reported the first monthly trade deficit in more than five years.

Imports exceeded exports during March by $157.7 million, the first merchandise trade deficit since January of 1963 when there was a $101-million deficit during a longshoremen's strike.

The report underscored what to date has been the sourest note in the program President Johnson outlined on New Year's day to stem a dollar outflow which reached $3.57 billion last year.

Deadlock Remains Over Peace Talk Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives met again Thursday in Laos but did not come to agreement on a site for preliminary peace talks.

But the fact that North Vietnamese charge d'affaires in Vientiane, the Laotian capital, invited the U.S. ambassador over for a 30-minute chat was seen here as a possibly hopeful sign of Communist interest in breaking the deadlock.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey predicted Thursday that "in a very short time a place will be agreed upon for the preliminary talks."

Humphrey speaking at Oxford, Miss., forecast success for peace negotiations provided both sides have the will for a peaceful solution.

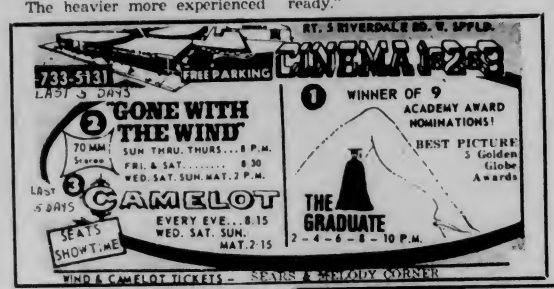
Crew Club to Race Unbeaten Worcester



Tomorrow the varsity crew club faces its toughest challenge of the season as they host unbeaten Worcester Poly Tech. The junior varsity also race Worcester, and the freshmen will be rowing against Amherst as well as Worcester. The first race starts on the Connecticut River in Hadley at 2 p.m.

UMass varsity coach Dave Clarke has once again shaken his boatings in an attempt to find the right combination. The varsity placed fifth in a field of six last week at the Kerr Cup Regatta in Philadelphia.

Practice sessions this week have been hampered by equipment breakages. The varsity broke a rigger Wednesday, and it is doubtful whether it will be repaired by tomorrow.

The heavier more experienced Worcester boat has beaten Holy Cross and American International. There is also speculation that this crew may be extended an invitation to row in the eastern sprints next month.

The UMass freshmen, after a fine start but losing last week in Philadelphia, are also looking for a win. "They should win," says Coach Mike Flaherty. "We corrected some glaring mistakes during the week, and we're ready."

Golfers Beat HC, But Lose to BC

The golf team split a pair of matches yesterday as they defeated Holy Cross, 4 - 3, and lost to Boston College by the same score, 4 - 3. This brings the season mark for the Redmen to 5 - 3.

For the Redmen, Gary Gasperack defeated Holy Cross one up, and he lost to Boston College, two and one. Erik Lekberg defeated his Holy Cross opponent one up and lost in the Boston College match by the same score.

John Arianson lost to Holy Cross, three and one, but he defeated Boston College, six and five. Dick Barber also lost to Holy Cross, four and three, and also lost to Boston College by a four and three score.

Keith Quenneville lost both matches against Holy Cross and Boston College by identical scores of three and two.

Bill Dunsmore and Paul Johnson, were the only Redmen players to win both matches against Holy Cross and Boston College. Dunsmore defeated Holy Cross three and two and Boston College six and five. Johnson defeated Holy Cross five and three and Boston College three and two.

Lekberg's one up win on the nineteenth hole made it possible for UMass to beat Holy Cross. Johnson was the medalist for the Redmen with a score of 78.

The Fifth Column

The Celtics The Greatest Hoop Team—

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

As long as people are going to talk about sports and greatness, Bill Russell and the Boston Celtics are going to rate near the top of any list.

Russell and his Celtics did it again by performing the near impossible, winning three straight against the almost invincible Philadelphia 76ers to take their series 4-3.

The Celtics are deadlocked with Los Angeles, 1-1, in the final round of the NBA playoffs, but this series is almost anticlimatic. It would be better to look back at the phenomenal record accomplished in 12 years by Russell and the Celtics.

For starters, they have won the world championship nine times, eight of them in a row, and they could make it 10 if they can take three of the next five with the Lakers. They have compiled the highest winning percentage in nine of those seasons. They have never lost a seventh playoff game, and they are the only team to win a series after trailing 1-3.

The last accomplishment was done by a "bunch of tired old men" whose death was greatly exaggerated. Russell looked like he was 24 instead of 34. It was a magnificent thing to watch him neutralize such an awesome man as Wilt Chamberlain. Probably the most noticeable thing about the series was the way in which the Celtics never blew their cool.

But keeping cool is a Boston specialty. It started when a rookie named Tom Heinsohn scored 37 points April 13, 1957, and it has never stopped since. Probably the best time was April 15, 1965, when John Havelicek did his specialty, stealing the ball.

This year's title, if and when it comes, will have a special meaning. It will shatter the myth that a man can't coach and play at the same time. Last year people were saying that when the 76ers started their short-lived reign. Russell made them swallow their words.

What it comes down to is, Russell is quite possibly the greatest athlete of our time. He revolutionized the game of basketball with his shot blocking skills. He will now probably become the first playing coach to coach a world champion.

No other athlete has dominated a sport for such an extended length of time. No team has ever continuously won their sport championship with such regularity. This is

Baseball Team Nipped 5-4 by Rhode Island

Rams Stop Four-Game Winning Streak; Drop Redmen to Second in Conference

by GLENN BRIERE
Staff Reporter

KINGSTON, R.I.--Superb relief pitching by Ed Tymko gave Rhode Island a 5-4 win over UMass here yesterday. The loss was the first for the Redmen in Yankee Conference competition.

Tymko pitched the last six and one third innings in relief of starter Mike Stecyk and gave up just one hit. Four of the five runs that UMass gave up were unearned, including three in a disastrous fourth inning.

UMass got off to a quick start, pushing across four tallies in the first three innings. The first came in the opening inning when leadoff batter Ray Ellerbrook beat out an infield hit and took second on a wild throw by shortstop Mike Valois. Joe DiSarcina sacrificed him to third, and Bob Hansen drove him in with a single to right.

In the second inning, Steve Rogers hit a Texas league single to left, one of three hits for him. Tony Chinappi singled to center, and Alex Vyce hit into a double play, but Rogers moved to third. A throwing error by Rhody third baseman Vince Sheehan on a grounder by Steve Stanford scored Rogers.

UMass made it 4-0 in the third as DiSarcina walked, moved to third on a single to left by Don Ferron, and Rogers grounded a single to center to drive in DiSarcina with Ferron moving to third. Ferron then came in when Chinappi lined a single to right.

That was it as far as UMass was concerned. The Rams got to starter John Kitchen in the bottom of the third, scoring two runs. John Sartini led off with a double on a fly to right center which was misjudged by centerfielder Rogers and rightfielder Vyce.

Jack Coppolino then singled to left scoring Sartini with the first URI run and moving to second on the throw. Ed DaCruz followed up with a grounder to short which DiSarcina threw wide. Coppolino scored from third on an infield out by Bob McKenney.

The fourth inning was a nightmare for the Redmen, as Rhody got the three unearned runs which won the game. A throwing error by second baseman Ferron gave Dave Crowther two bases to start it off. Catcher Chinappi, trying to pick Crowther off second, threw the ball into centerfield, and Crowther moved to third.

Kitchen retired the next two batters, but Les Goff then walked and stole second. With Sartini up, a wild pitch scored Crowther from third and Goff all the way from second with the tying run. This cost Sartini two RBI's, because then he clouted a homer over the right field fence to put Rhode Island ahead, 5-4.

Relievers Norm Elliott and Dave Katz held the Rams in check for the rest of the game, but Rhody's Tymko did the same to the Redmen. Tymko, who relieved Stecyk in the third, allowed only two base runners in the last six and a third innings, a single by Rogers in the sixth and a hit batsman in the ninth.

Rhode Island's win broke a four game win streak by UMass, and dropped the Redmen to second place in the Yankee Conference. Rhode Island is now 4-6-1 overall, and 1-0 in the Conference, while UMass is 7-6-1 overall and 3-1 in the Conference. The loss was also the first in four decisions for Kitchen.

Little Redmen Clobber Winless Rhode Island Freshmen by 7-2

KINGSTON, R.I.—The UMass freshman baseball team evened its record at 3-3 with a 7-2 victory over the Rhode Island frosh here yesterday.

Bill Powell went all the way for the Little Redmen, recording his first win of the season. Powell gave up seven hits, struck out 10 and walked four.

UMass scored first in the second inning. Mike Minkos led off with a single, Joe Ruskaitis hit into a fielder's choice and both runners were safe. Rick Matuszczak reached on an error by the Rhody shortstop to load the bases, and Minkos scored on a balk by Ram pitcher Caffrey.

The Little Redmen added two more in the third when with two outs, Bob Willman walked and scored all the way from first on a single by Mitch Salnick. Salnick stole second, and made it 3-0 when Rhode Island shortstop Stramm committed another error, allowing Salnick to score.

Rhode Island's frosh came back with two in the bottom of the third when with one out Benjamin singled, Caffrey doubled him home, and Ricchardi singled Caffrey home.

UMass retaliated with three runs in the next inning to put it out of reach. With one out, Matuszczak singled and stole second. Pete Silva and Bill Greeley walked, loading the bases, and Willman singled in two runs. The third run scored on an error by Caffrey on the same play, as he dropped the relay throw to home.

The Little Redmen added one more in the ninth without a hit. Willman was hit by a pitch, stole second, moved to third on a flyout by Paul Sulzicki, and scored on a passed ball.

The Rhody frosh saw their record fall to 0-2. The Little Redmen are back in action tomorrow at home, a 2 p.m. contest against Holy Cross.

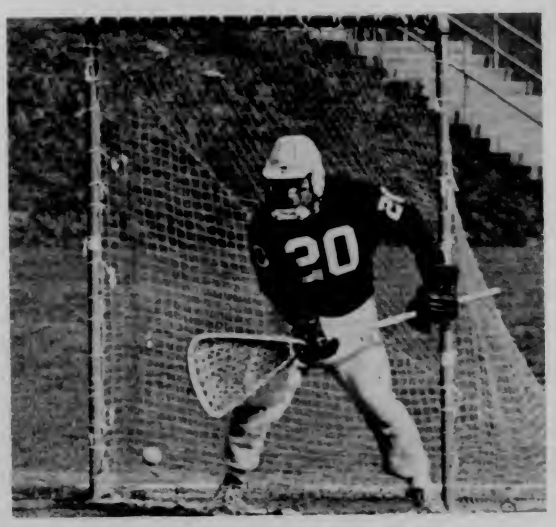
Stickmen To Clash Tomorrow With Favored Dartmouth Team

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

It has been a pleasant lascosse season for the UMass stickmen. The Redmen have swept through four straight games, winning all by impressive margins. But Saturday, all that has to be forgotten as UMass travels to Hanover, N.H., to meet Dartmouth in probably the bigggest game of the year thus far.

Dartmouth is having a slow start this season, losing three of their first four contests. Virginia, Brown and Yale have all sent the Indians down to defeat. The only win is over Baltimore College. But all Ivy League schools are tough and are rated usually a shade better than the rest of the New England schools.

This difference is becoming vastly overrated though, as witnessed by UMass' 14-6 trouncing of Dartmouth last year. However, UMass coach Dick Garber still calls this game "our toughest so far."



Dartmouth is led by attackman and captain Bob McCormack who last season was a 27 goal scorer and was honored as an All-Ivy first team selection and received All-American honorable mention.

The Indians' greatest strength, however, lies in its midfield. Their three top midfielders are Bill Rich, Wells Chandler and Dave Reichgott. Jeff Norton, a football defensive tackle, leads the defense.

Dartmouth has only nine returning lettermen so much of the team is relatively inexperienced. However, Garber warns, "They are all good athletes and good lacrosse players."

UMass will go with the same starters that have led them through the first four games. They will be Mark Schlossberg in the goal, Kevin O'Connor, Gary Vassar and Bill Sinclair.

President Lederle Dedicates Whitmore Administration Building

by ROSE MILLER
Staff Reporter

The Whitmore Administration Building was formally dedicated at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. President John W. Lederle officiated over the ceremony held in the main entrance lobby of the building.

President Lederle stated, "This is a great moment in the history of the university. Philip F. Whitmore was a trustee on the board when I arrived. He had been a trustee for approximately the past thirty years. He was past president of the University Alumni Association and of the National Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions. He was a leader both inside and outside the Commonwealth. I am very happy to see so many leislators here today. It is also a pleasure to have Bill (his son) and Martha (his widow) here."

The red cover was removed from the brown plaque with old lettering which reads:

At the conclusion of the ceremony, APXRN conducted a guided tour of the three story building.

No Amnesty To Be Granted To Columbia Demonstrators

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbia University's professors voted yesterday against amnesty for the student demonstrators who have snarled campus life since last Tuesday and urged them to end their sit-in at five university buildings.

But as the senior faculty members drew up their prescription for peace, the student rebels stood fast for amnesty and demanded an end to what they called the administration's "repressive rule."

School estimates put at 500 to 600 the number of students commanding four campus buildings and occupying the offices of the university president, Dr. Grayson Kirk, in the fifth, Low Memorial Library.

Between 40 and 50 Negroes—some not students—occupied Hamilton Hall, the major classroom building of the Ivy League University, whose overall enrollment is 27,500.

Their protest led to a suspension of night classes three days last week and finally to the suspension of the day session Friday. The university has stopped construction of a gymnasium on a slice of a Harlem park abutting the university, a major concession to the protesters.

Cancellation of the gym project has been one of the demands of the protesters, who contend it would deprive Negro youngsters of needed play space. Another target has been Columbia's participation in a defense-oriented government research project.

The faculty resolution, approved by a vote of 466 to 40, was in effect a stamp of approval for the university board of trustees' decision Saturday against granting the demonstrators amnesty as a precondition to ending the sit-ins. The faculty resolution also pledged "effective continuing communication" with community residents.

During the professors' meeting, the student sit-ins ratified a statement demanding "real people's control" in university decisions. "Our goal is to create a functioning participatory democracy to replace the repressive rule of the administration and trustees of the university," their statement said.

Students, Ten Legislators Swap Views On State Legislators' Day at UMass

by MARK SILVERMAN
Staff Reporter

Ten out of an expected twenty-six State Legislators attended the State Legislators' Day Friday, a service of the Student Senate Public Relations Committee. The program was designed to give Legislators a chance to visit the campus, and to become acquainted with its students' interests and problems.

The Legislators present toured the Campus, ate in a Dining Commons, heard presentations concerning the Fine Arts Center and the new library, heard Student leaders speak, and participated in a question and answer period at the end of the day.

The proposed Fine Arts Center and the New Library were both hailed by the legislators as absolutely necessary for the University. Senate President James Collins spoke on Human Relations in the University community, and was met with reserved approval. Collegian Editor-in Chief John Dean's speech concerning the history of the paper and its present crusade to change the State's Birth Control Laws was treated as a sticky political issue by the lawmakers and was generally hedged in the question and answer period.

The Legislators, when questioned why so few of them were present, said that this was "a very busy time of year, and Friday is usually a very busy day."

Sixty of the over 300 state legislators responded to the invitation extended to them by the Senate. Thirty-four declined the invitation, and fifteen of those who accepted did not come.

Representative Lincoln P. Cole (Lexington) apologized for the difficulties the University annual-

$14.4 Million Contract Awarded For Chemistry Complex Buildings

Daniel O'Connell's Sons, Inc. of Holyoke and Granger Construction Co. of Worcester have been awarded a joint contract to build a 17-story graduate research center at UMass.

The building is the first of two phases aimed at developing a three tower complex to be devoted mainly to chemistry according to University officials.

The low bid for the building and the foundations of the other two towers was $14.4 million, said the University spokesmen.

The first high-rise structure will include wings for a computer science center and physical science library. Equipment costing $1.6 million would be housed in the building.

Federal grants will account for nearly $3 million in the first phase of the project, University officials said.

O'Connell's Sons cited a target date of September, 1970, which, one university spokesman said, "was much better than we had anticipated."

The Bureau of Building Construction located in Boston will not award the contract until late May he said.

Since the bidding opened last Tuesday, Fontaine Bros. of Chicopee and a New York firm had also submitted bids.

The two other tower structures, one with 16 stories, the other with 15, will be built as part of the second phase of construction. The complex will be located on North Pleasant Street behind Goessmann Laboratory on the site of the old Abigail Adams Dormitory which was torn down last year.

Construction of the entire complex is expected to take three years.

STUDENTS TO ATTEMPT PRESENTATION OF BIRTH CONTROL PETITIONS TO VOLPE

Buses will be leaving from in front of the Student Union tomorrow morning at 9:30 for those who will be going to Boston with the Parents Aid Society. The fare will be two dollars.

Seats will be awarded on a first-come-first-serve basis. It was announced that all interested students should try to sign up at the Parent's Aid Society's booth in the Student Union before tomorrow. Those planning to go should be in front of the Union at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The UMass marchers are scheduled to arrive at the Boston University Student Union, the starting point for the march, at 11:30 and the parade will leave from there at noon.

The UMass group, to be joined by other groups along the way, will arrive at the State House at 1 p.m.

Once there, a delegation will present the petitions collected on the campus to Gov. Volpe. The petitions, which contain over 3,000 signatures, ask for reform of Chapter 272 of the General Laws, the so-called "Crimes against Chastity."

It was also reported at the meeting that attempts are under way to get a large supporting group from Boston area schools to join the UMass group.

One member suggested that all students who hold meal tickets and are planning to go, should pick up box lunches at their dining commons before leaving.

Acting President Dana Tibow, recognizing that many students will not be able to go on the march because tomorrow is Counseling Day, stated, "Those who can't come with us can show their support and help defray the costs of the march by donating $2.00 at our table in the Union.

President of World Council Of Churches to Give Lecture

Dr. Martin Niemoeller, one of the six presidents of the World Council of Churches, and probably the best known German churchman outside of Germany, will speak on "Christianity, Capitalism and Communism" tomorrow in SBA 120 at 8 p.m. His appearance is under the general sponsorship of The United Christian Foundation, in cooperation with The Distinguished Visitors Program.

In the 1930's Pastor Niemoeller became one of the leaders of German Christian opposition to Hitler. He was suspended from his parish and imprisoned from 1937 to 1945 in the concentration camps of Sachenhausen and Dachau. After the war he was a leader in the reconstruction of German Protestantism and the development of the World Council of Churches.

Dr. Niemoeller has visited the United States several times since World War II.

His writings include The First Commandment, God Is My Fuehrer, and The Niemoeller-Blake Conversations.

He will be on campus until May 3 under the general sponsorship of the United Christian Foundation.

News in Brief

International

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's military-backed regime celebrated its first year in power Sunday night with nationwide observances. Strongman Premier George Papadopoulos was cheered as he entered a rally in Athens.

Some 80,000 persons packed the white marble olympic stadium to watch military demonstrations and folk dancing and listen to a brief address in which Papadopoulos praised the army takeover April 27, 1967.

The celebrations were postponed until a week after the anniversary because Greek Orthodox Easter fell on April 21 this year.

LEAMINGTON SPA, Eng. (AP) — Leaders of 20 immigrant organizations merged Sunday in a Black People's Alliance intended to unite a million immigrants for militant action against racism.

The 50 delegates included leaders of the principal Indian, Pakistani and Negro organizations in Britain. Among them was Chairman Roy Sawh of the Black Power movement here.

SAIGON (AP) — The office of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky issued a statement Sunday labeling as "gross fabrications" a report before a U.S. Senate subcommittee alleging that Ky took advantage of a CIA-backed sabotage operation to smuggle opium from Laos to Saigon.

The report was disclosed April 18 by Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, head of the Subcommittee on Foreign Aid Expenditures. The report accused Ky of using U.S. planes for the alleged smuggling while he commanded Vietnamese pilots in Operation Haylift in 1963-64.

The U.S. Embassy in Saigon also labelled the report false and the State Department issued a similar statement in Washington.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told his Cabinet Sunday that Israel's Independence Day parade through Arab and Jewish Jerusalem would be held Thursday as scheduled despite United Nations objections.

Final preparations for the 20th anniversary parade were in full swing and the parade route was festively decorated.

In another development, the army announced in Tel Aviv that a patrol wiped out 13 Arab saboteurs north of Jericho and that there was a one-hour artillery duel in the same desert region Sunday evening.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Poor People's Campaign reaches Washington, its representatives should be received by Congress with the same regard given lobbyists, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Sunday.

Percy said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., cannot hope to make good his threat to seek censure for any senator who advocates "bending the knee" to Negro leaders of a drive for legislation to aid the poor. The leaders will start calling on members of Congress today.

Percy gave his views on the ABC television - radio interview program Issues and Answers.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass (AP) — A blind Harvard Law School student and his draft board don't see eye-to-eye.

Harold Krents, 23, of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., who has been completely blind since he was 9 years old, said Saturday he has been reclassified 1-A by the Mt. Vernon board.

Every year, he said, the board classifies him as 2-S, and every year he writes them to say he should be classified 4-F. Last Thursday he got notice of the 1-A status, he said, and was ordered to report for pre-induction physical examination.

"I'm particularly anxious to take the eye test," he joked, adding, "All I can say is we must be losing the war. "I'll go — as long as somebody aims me."

He said the draft board had told his father that blindness should not hinder him from taking the physical.

Senate Discusses Housing, Board

by PAT PETOW
Senior Reporter

In a special meeting last night, the Student Senate cleared many motions from its agenda in an effort to provide adequate time for consideration of the budget act. The final consideration of next year's budgets is expected to come at the next to the last meeting before finals.

The Senate gave approval to two recommendations regarding housing and boarding on campus. In a motion authored by Sen. Elinor Needle, the student government recommended that seniors, Greeks, and students 21 or over be exempt from meal tickets in the Southwest Complex. The proposed exemption would bring SW into line with the rest of the campus.

Concerning housing, the Senate passed Sen. Frederic Hartwell's motion opposing "the administrative establishment of residence halls or significant portions thereof which are open only to members of one class." The bill also calls for Senate consultation before the establishment of "isolated, experimental residence halls" by class designations.

If this act is accepted by the administration, it is unlikely that "senior" houses can be established. Although with the present class priorities followed in room choosing, a large number of seniors may sign up for one house, the house would still be open to juniors, sophomores, and freshmen if there were vacancies.

Sen. Hartwell arguing for the bill expressed the view that upperclassmen have an obligation to contribute to the residence hall system. In his opinion, the Senate has considered this obligation in recommending social reform legislation. The act also would prohibit an all-freshman dormitory which is reportedly under consideration.

Other Action

At the beginning of the meeting, the Senate gave its "philosophical" support to Spring Day. Spring Day is a UMass tradition of illegally cutting classes which is encouraged most years by a clandestine committee. Informed sources indicate that an attempt will be made this year.

A motion by Sen. Hartwell that "the Senate agree in principle to accept an equitable share of any additional costs accruing from the implementation of" the Senate's open house proposal was given approval after discussion which brought out several qualifications to the financial obligation. It was hoped that the motion might support the proposal when it goes before the Board of Trustees, May 3.

The Student Senate also gave approval to a recommendation to review the physical education requirement of the University. A study committee was included by the author, Sen. Chris McGahan. Earlier this year, the Faculty Senate rejected a faculty request to review the requirement.

Other bills considered by the Senate included a recommendation that the Football Team leave the Yankee Conference, several constitutions and an amendment to the Activities Act, a change in Senate by-laws, and resolutions concerning the Communications Board, the apology of Mills House, and the Senate's softball teams.

Two principal arguments which lead to the passage of the football resolution were that the non-Yankee Conference games have brought in the largest box-office receipts and that the University would be free, as an independent, to substantially increase its football scholarship aid. The bill was written by Sen. Charles Hopkins.

The Activities Act, which provides for the constituting of campus organizations, was amended to cover, with specific regulations, honor and leadership-service societies.

The Senate unanimously endorsed a resolution urging compliance with requests made by the Communications Board that members of the University community appear before it. One of the main arguments for the action was the refusal of an administrator to go before the Board for a hearing including allegations of action he had taken. He later invited Board members to his office.

INTERNATIONAL TALENT—A talent show for all the foreign students was held Saturday night. For the grand finale, all the participants appeared on stage.

'Victory for Black and White'--BU President

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University president Arland Christ-Janer says he views the end results of last week's student takeover of an administration building "a victory of the university —black and white alike."

Some 200 Negro students staged a 12-hour sit-in Wednesday after which Christ-Janer acceded to nearly all the group's demands, including promising to admit up to 100 Negro students to the freshman class next fall.

Christ-Janer said Sunday night that with a confrontation such as the sit-in "somewhere along the line, communications failed to communicate."

But, he added, the meeting with Negro leaders had proved successful.

"It was a victory in the sense that we may have come closer to a real and effective means of communication with a segment of the student population with whom obviously we had not been in contact really before."

The president said that in the meeting he was concerned with not making firm commitments the university could not meet. "They the students were all realistic," he said.

The major demand which Christ-Janer did not agree to was the students' demand to change the name of the School of Theology to honor Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Christ-Janer said he did not have the authority to authorize such a change, but that a professorship had been set up for Dr. King which "seems to fall in line with the nature of his young people."

Christ-Janer made his remarks in a taped interview to be broadcast over WBZ "Newsmakers" radio program.

Amherst College Names Associate Admissions Dean

Amherst College has announced the appointment of Edward B. Wall as Associate Dean of Admission. Wall, director of admissions at Lawrence Univ. in Appleton, Wis., will assume his new responsibilities at Amherst, July 1.

He is to succeed Van R. Halsey, who this month became director of admissions at Hampshire College, the new co-educational liberal arts institution which is scheduled to open in 1970 in South Amherst.

Wall received his A.B. degree in English from Yale University in 1956. He has been director of admissions at Lawrence since 1966 and before that was assistant director of admissions at Cornell University. From 1960 to 1965, he served as admissions officer at the Phillips Exeter Academy.

After service with the U.S. Marine Corps from 1956 to 1959, he was an instructor in English and history at the Searing School, Somers, New York.

As Associate Dean of Admission, Wall will join Dean Eugene S. Wilson in administering the admissions program within a small college whose entering classes number approximately 300 men.

Amherst, with a student body of 1,200, has in recent years received 2,000 or more applications annually from prospective freshmen. Students come from most of the 50 states and many foreign countries. Two thirds are from public and one third from private secondary schools.

Smith College to Present Chekhov's "The Sea Gull"

The Smith College department of theatre and speech has announced the cast of the forthcoming production of Chekhov's The Sea Gull. The play will be presented in Theatre 14, the Center for the Performing Arts May 8, 9, 10, and 11 at 8 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the theatre box office beginning April 29 and on the evenings of the performances.

"The Sea Gull" is being directed by Mme. Eugenie Leontovich, artist-in-residence at Smith College. She has double cast certain roles in keeping with repertory company procedure followed by the Moscow Art Theatre where "The Sea Gull" was first produced in 1898. Double casting affords more actors the opportunity to play various roles.

Mme. Arkadina, an actress, will be played by Sarah Harris, a junior at Smith from Raleigh, N.C. Miss Harris has appeared in several Smith productions and played the part of the Widow Begbick in the recent Amherst College production of "A Man's A Man." Two graduate assistants at Smith, William Cwikowski and Jerry Zaks, will alternate playing the part of Mme. Arkadina's son, Konstantin Trepleff. Cwikowski played leading roles in the recent Smith productions of "Noah" and "The Investigation."

Denton Snyder, a member of the theatre and speech faculty at Smith, will play the part of Boris Trigorin, a literary man. Snyder has directed, designed and appeared in numerous Smith productions.

Other members of the cast are: Stephen Barker, a senior at Amherst College, as Sorin; Ellen Parks, a sophomore at Smith, as Nina; Stephen Edelstein and Robert Emerson, graduate assistants at Smith, alternating as Shamraev and Yakov; Susan Haddad, a senior at Smith, as Masha; and graduate assistants at Smith, Johanna Albrecht-Bezel, John Pendleton III, and William Yaggy, as Pauline, Dr. Dorn and Medvedenko respectively.

ly has in getting its budget passed, but reminded students that there has been little interest shown by legislators' constituents on the matter of higher education. He said that to get things passed, there must be public interest, and also added that the Board of Trustee's annual presentation of the Budget is usually very uninteresting.

Adding to Mr. Cole's explanation, Senator William Saltonstall suggested that Students organize lobbies and interest groups in the behalf of public support of higher education.

Senate PR Committee chairman Bruce Balboni called the day a "failure in the number of legislators who attended, but a success in terms of the impression made on those who did attend. We plan another program like this for next fall, and we feel that we can expect a much bigger turn out."

On Boston and B. C.

Busses will be leaving the Student Union for Boston at 9:30 tomorrow morning, hopefully full of students committed to changing the birth control laws of Massachusetts. For once students can act rather than talk. But it will mean making a few small sacrifices.

The Student Senate has unanimously endorsed William Baird and his efforts to change the laws, and has provided tangible support in the form of a 50% subsidy of the trip. The other $2.00 should be paid by the individual student, the Senate believes, as part of his commitment to the cause. This is only fair.

More than 300 students signed a list at the Parents Aid Society table promising to make the trip when the time came to present the petition to Governor Volpe. Now the time has come. Nearly 5,000 signatures have been collected on the petition, and now those who signed the list, along with any others who feel strongly on the subject, should make an effort to go.

It's obvious from the poor turnout at Friday's "Legislator's Day" (10 out of 320) sponsored by the Student Senate Public Relations Committee, that the State House won't come to us. Therefore we'll have to go the the State House.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Brotherly Love

An interesting phenomenon occurring at UM during the frivolities of Greek Week is that seven day period known affectionately by some as Heck Week. Heck Week is sponsored by the Greeks on campus and consists of crtain acts that a pledge of a fraternity must undergo before he makes the big leap to becoming a brother. I spoke with the pledgemaster of one of our stellar fraternities to ascertain the rationale behind Heck Week.

* * * * *

"We feel that Heck Week is a character building experience that develops good will between the pledge and brother," said the pledgemaster.

"In what way do you foster this good will?" I asked.

"Our brothers feel that paddling someone or making him drink a 'barf cocktail' or forcing him to engage in perverted acts helps build the character of a pledge and also makes him more sensitive to his environment.

"Exactly how does being paddled make a pledge more sensitive to his environment?"

"Are you kidding? After you've been paddled by our loving brothers for a solid hour, you're more sensitive to anything."

"Does paddling accomplish anything else?"

"Why yes. It also gives our pledges a sense of identification. And sometimes when we feel our pledges don't have a proper sense of identification we brand them with dry ice," he said with obvious glee.

"How would you summarize the reasons for a pledge period," I asked.

"By belting a kid until he bleeds, you instill in him a sense of brotherhood. Forcing him to commit perverted sexual acts makes him humble. And making him drink a 'barf cocktail' until he pukes gives him a taste of fraternity life."

"That sounds reasonable," I said.

"In short, Heck Week gives us a chance to evaluate our prospective brothers and any pledge who can't see the humor of Heck Week just isn't good enough for our fraternity."

Letters from Prison

Cher Bettnoir,

I am in the watchtower alone. The guard is walking the planks along the top of the wall and will not disturb me. It is early evening. The sun is going down behind the last clouds of the day, streaked with pink and orange. The mountains in the distance all around are the deepest purple, as if in royal requiem.

My heart is beating as if it were about to burst out over the entire land. Every strand of muscle and vein in my body is pulling me to set out after the sun, but it is beginning to rain, and I am too filled with joy to move. We are having a sunshower. I am one with the earth's last colors. I inhale the grass, the lilacs, the flowers of all France. I smell the rain and edelweiss coming over the mountains in the east. I turn slowly, and I am in delirium.

For I am having the loviest vision of a small Swiss boy, his flute tight under one arm, running bright across the darkening fields, headed toward a vast, exquisite rainbow, headed home.

Campus Comment

". . . best man for the Office of President . . ."

To the editor:

On April 30th you have the right to name the man that you want nominated by the Democratic Party at the Convention this summer. To exercise your right, you need only vote in the April 30th Primary.

We are candidates for District Delegate to the Democratic National Convention from the First Congressional District. Each Congressional District is allotted two Delegates and two Alternates. We are running as Delegates favorable to the nomination of Senator Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.). We believe that he is the best man for the office of President of the United States. He is a man of maturity, wisdom and moral courage.

Senator McCarthy's program is based on a realistic and enlightened assessment of our current situation. His views on Vietnam, the gold crisis, urban unrest, racial problems and domestic economic policy all stand the test of critical examination. His program for America is designed to return America to her real priorities—the need for peace and justice at home and the need for peace in the world.

We hope that you will seriously consider Senator McCarthy's candidacy and what it promises for America. If, after reflection, you decide you want Senator McCarthy to be the next President of the United States, then vote for him on April 30th. At the same time you have the opportunity to vote for delegates that will work on the floor of the Convention for Senator McCarthy and the policies he favors.

If you will give us your support, we will give you a voice at the Democratic National Convention.

No Alternative to Survey Courses

The recommendation that two semesters of philosophy be offered as an alternative to History 100 and 101 is unacceptable. History includes the study of sociology, government, economics, art, and literature, as well as philosophy.

Before offering philosophy alternatives, the History Department should decide why history is important; if it is, let's have some history alternatives to the survey courses.

If and when these are discussed, I hope students will be consulted.

A Ballad Of Room Rent

To the editor:

It fell about mid-April time
The trustees came to meet,
The agenda it was decided upon
As they drove up the street.

A black and evil scheme they had
To raise the room rent high,
There'll be no campus elite," said they,
"No apple pie in the sky."
We'll force them all to pay the same,
"Van Meter to Southwest."
The students wrung their hands and cried
For they were sore oppressed.

A protest sounded on the Hill
And all the old dorms round,
Two hundred and ten the rent was set,
To live in Amherst-town.

"Why pay the price of luxury,
To live in boxes small?"
So down to Whitmore Fort they went
To raise the hue and call.

They stood in lines, they carried signs,
The trustees did delay.
The scheme fell down 'til May-time round,
Hopes there it ever will stay.

A Prominent Culinary Figure

To the editor:

The Student Senate of the University of Colorado recently approved a motion of considerable symbolic value, the renaming of the University's Roaring Fork Grill in memory of Alfred E. Packer, a prominent figure in American culinary history. We feel such tributes, where appropriate, have great merit. Consequently, we would suggest that Dining Commons No. 5 be renamed the Herman Webster Mudgett Memorial Dining Facilities, in recognition of the high standards of professional service and product quality the staff has striven to maintain.

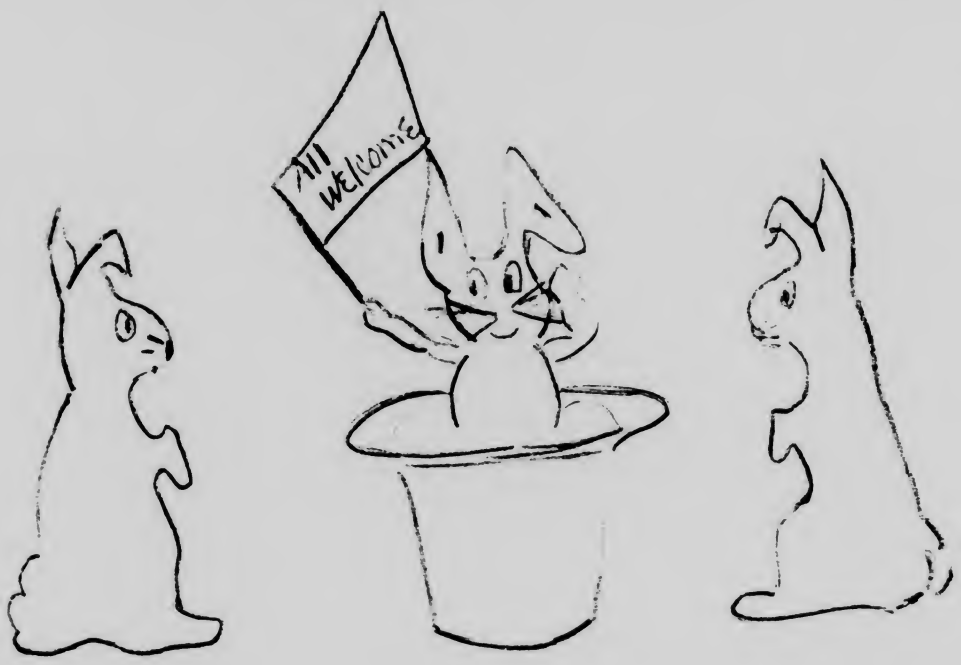
Alfred E. Packer was a Colorado prospector who is apparently unique in American jurisprudence—the only man ever to be convicted of cannibalism in a trial by jury. He was sentenced to a forty year term and died in 1906.



The following brief biographical sketch of Herman Webster Mudgett is taken from The Guinness Book of World Records, Harris and Ross McWhirter, eds. (revised ed., NY, 1968, pp.287-288:

> The most prolific murderer known in recent criminal history was Herman Webster Mudgett (born May 16, 1860), better known as H. H. Holmes. It is estimated he disposed of some 150 young women 'paying guests' in his 'Castle' on 63rd Street, Chicago. After a suspicious fire on November 22 [sic], 1893, the 'Castle' was investigated and found to contain secret passageways, stairways, and a maze of odd rooms, some windowless or padded, containing hidden gas inlets and electric indicators. There was also a hoist, two chutes, a furnace, an acid bath, a dissecting table, a selection of surgical instruments and fragmentary human remains. Holmes was hanged on May 7, 1896, on a charge of murdering his associate, Benjamin F. Pitezel.

Harvard Prof. to Lecture On Child Development

Jerome Kagan, professor of developmental psychology, department of social relations, Harvard University, will deliver the Albert F. Blakeslee lecture in Wright Hall, Smith College at 8 p.m. tomorrow. The public is invited to attend his lecture which is entitled "A Theoretical Look at Child Development."

After receiving his Ph.D. from Yale University and teaching at Ohio State University, Kagan served in the U.S. Army from 1955-57. During this period he did a research study on attrition at West Point involving young men who resigned or were dismissed from the Academy. According to the January 1968 issue of Psychology Today, "Kagan found that the poor risks were youths who were aware of a bad or hostile relationship with their fathers." After his army service, he taught at Antioch College until he joined the faculty of Harvard University in 1964.

In 1963 Kegan won the Hofheimer Prize for Birth to Maturity, a publication which resulted from his research at the Fels Research Institute, Antioch College.

Telephone Service Near Normal As Strike Continues

BOSTON (AP) — New England Telephone Co. said yesterday phone service in the five-state area remained near normal despite a strike of 13,500 installers and repairmen.

More than 50 per cent of the non-striking operators, the company said, crossed picket lines and management personnel helped man the switchboards.

The company operates in all New England states except Connecticut.

As the strike of the International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers IBTW entered its third day, a company spokesman said delays could be expected on calls for information, service, long distance and credit card calls.

The IBTW spokesman said the union had accepted an invitation to meet with a federal mediator Wednesday to begin negotiations.

The union ordered its 13,500 installers and cable splicers off the job Friday afternoon. A spokesman said picket lines were set up at some 500 sites in the five-state area serviced by the company.

The independent union was joined in its strike by 550 members of Local 1302 of the Communications Workers of America.

The dispute centers on wages and the systems for promotions and pay hikes. The company has offered a 7.5 per cent increase in pay, while the union said it wanted 10 per cent. Wage scales vary with different classifications.

Small Turnout Expected for Mass. Primary

BOSTON (AP) — About 25% of the state's 2.6 million registered voters are expected to vote tomorrow in a presidential preference primary in which Democrat Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and Republican Gov. John A. Volpe are running unopposed.

Unless a write-in candidate scores an upset victory, Massachusetts' 72 Democratic convention votes will go to McCarthy on the first ballot as required by state law.

No candidate has conducted an intensive write-in campaign, but some write-in votes are expected on the Democratic side for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy D-N.Y., and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Volpe is virtually assured of winning the state's Republican national convention delegate as a favorite son candidate, although write-in votes are also predicted for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Frosh Win in Lacrosse, 9-1

HANOVER, N.H.—A goal was scored on the UM frosh lacrosse team for the first time, but that was the only dark spot in an otherwise impressive performance, as the Little Redmen crushed the Dartmouth frosh, 9-1. It was the third consecutive win for UMass

John Orr, UMass frosh goalie, after 156 minutes of shutout play was finally dented for an enemy score at 6:36 of the third period. By then, UMass was leading, 6-0, so that it was hardly even noticed.

Larry Diamond opened the game's scoring at 11:06 of the first period as he scored on a Mike Henry assist. This was the opening stanza's only score.

The same combination of Diamond from Henry made it 2-0 at 2:43 of the second period. Henry scored on an Al Ruggiano assist at 8:01 of the same period, as the Little Redmen opened up its offense. Steve (Whale Winters ended the half's scoring as he scored at 11:56 with Henry again assisting.

John Gannon opened the second half's scoring with a goal, an unassisted marker at 1:57. Bill Weigle made it 6-0, for UMass, as once again Henry made the setup.

After the Dartmouth goal closed the third period's scoring Steve Herschoff, on a solo effort put the stickmen up 7-1 at 3:57. Gary Brennan made it 8-1 at 12:04. Mike Vengrow on a Brennan closed out the scoring 11 seconds later.

The frosh, who haven't been ertended yet, have outscored their opponents in the three games, 39-1. Perhaps the Dartmouth frosh coach said it best, when, while congratulating UMass coach John Bamberry, said, "You have a truly great college team there."

Netmen Split Two Meets

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

UMass' tennis team split two 5-4 decisions over the weekend, defeating Rhode Island on Friday and losing to Holy Cross Sunday. The weekend split gave the Redmen a 4-2 season's record.

The two outstanding UMass players over the weekend were Steve Cohen and Mike Katz. Cohen playing at sixth singles both days, defeated Fred Brown of URI and Art Schick of Holy Cross by the scores of 2-6, 6-0, 6-2 and 6-4, 6-1, respectively.

Katz playing second singles downed Bob Woods of Rhode Island 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 to take a key point. Against Holy Cross he started slowly against the great John Mayotte before righting himself. He lost, 6-0, 7-5.

The duo paired up to take both their doubles matches. Against URI, they needed the limit to down Andy Yasinoff and Fred Brown, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5. They won the last four games in a row to take the point and, as it turned out, the match. On Sunday, they took Hal Johnson and Al Bighane, 8-6, 6-4 to tie the match at 4-4.

Other Redmen point getters over the weekend were Al Davis, one, Tom Johnson, three and Scott Sheppard, five who each split their matches.

Coach Steve Kosakowski remarked, "Cohen is playing great tennis for us. He and Katz are playing the best doubles I've seen here in years."

This week, the Redmen travel to Connecticut on Tuesday, W.P.I. on Friday and A.I.C. Saturday. They play their final home match May 8 against Springfield.

collected a double, single and three RBI.

This was the first Northern game in which UM's hard-hitting Bob Hansen was held hitless. Slick-fielding shortstop Joe DiSarcina looked brilliant in the field, making some sparkling stops. In the eighth, 1b Ray Ellerbrook booted a grounder which rolled several feet behind him, but he recoverd quickly to make a fine throw to Rappoli covering for the out.

Ace hurler John Canty, out with an injured elbow, is reportedly experiencing some difficulty in throwing and his return in the near future is doubtful. Rappoli needed only 96 pitches to notch his third win Saturday.

The Redmen now stand 4-1 in Conference play and 8-6-1 overall. New Hampshire is 1-2 in the league and 2-7 for all games. The squad travels to Storrs tomorrow.

UMass Stickmen Clobber Dartmouth, 10-4

Redmen Remain Unbeaten; O'Connor Paces Fifth Win

by PETER PASCARELLI
Sports Day Editor

HANOVER, N.H.—Turning in a superb all-around effort, the undefeated UMass lacrosse team kept its perfect record intact with a 10-4, drubbing of Dartmouth, Saturday at Chase Field. It was the Redmen's fifth win against no losses, while dropping the Indians to 2-4.

Displaying the offense that has scored 70 goals in five games, UMass poured in five last period goals to break open what had been a tense defensive duel.

Both teams appeared tight in the early going, probably feeling the effects of a wet, chilly day in Hanover. Dartmouth controlled much of the first few minutes but failed to capitalize on any scoring chances. Redman goalie Mark Schlossberg and defenseman Tom Tufts, who was magnificent throughout, were especially effective during this time.

UMass finally broke the scoring ice at 7:38, when co-captain Bill Sinclair took a pass from midfielder Steve Chambers and fired in the score past Dartmouth goalie Peter Harter. The play was set up by an accurate long clearing pass from Schlossberg to Chambers.

The Redmen made it 2-0, at 12:36, when Steve Connolly made a good move from the side of the net and tallied.

However, Dartmouth came right back at 12:43, just seven seconds later, as Dick Sammis scored to end the period's scoring.

In the second period, Kevin O'Connor personally staked UMass to a 4-1 halftime lead. The high-scoring attackman, after Harter had robbed UMass on several occasions in the Indians' net, scored on an unassisted play as he rifled in a shot from the right corner at 2:13. O'Connor then put in a Gary Vassar rebound at 6:24 to make it 4-1. The rest of the period saw both teams foiled by fine goaltending.

UMass got its fifth goal when with just 30 seconds gone in the third period, Walt Alessi rushed well from his defense spot, deep into the Dartmouth end. O'Connor then took a pass from Alessi and set up Vassar near the cage for the score.

Great defense prevailed for much of the remainder of the period. Schlossberg made a number of fine saves, especially one from close in front, while his Dartmouth counterpart Harter, kept the Indians in the game with some great saves. He robbed O'Connor, Vassar and Bob Florin in one brilliant sequence.

Dartmouth captain and All-American hopeful, Bob McCormick brought the Indians closer with a score at 10:26 on a fine shot from in front.

The Redman then opened up its high-powered offense that had been checked for most of the game. Vassar scored at 2:17 on a set up from Chambers. However, Dartmouth hung close as Sammis scored from the ensuing face-off.

Then in quick succession, Umass put the game away. Keeping the play in the Dartmouth end by some good checking of Dartmouth defensemen, Sinclair scored his second on an O'Connor assist at 4:49

After Schlossberg made a save on a point-blank shot, the Redmen came back to score again. Connolly, on a solo effort scored from the right side at 7:48. Then at 10:30 O'Connor again set up a mate, this time Gerry Forgit to run the score to 9-3.

JUST CATCHING the lower right hand corner of the net is a shot by UMass' Gary Vassar (60), in action Saturday against Dartmouth. Indian defenders are defensemen, Peter Zacchilli (9) and goalie Peter Harter (2).

Dartmouth scored at 13:30 on a Don DeVries score. But with just 50 seconds remaining at 14:10, the Redmen hit the double figures for the fifth straight time as Dick Mahiney scored, with that man O'Connor again assisting. It was the junior attackman's fourth assist of the game and added to his two goals gave O'Connor six points in the game.

A delighted UMass coach Dick Garber said, after the win, "It's always great to beat these guys. We were a little tense in the first half but this team always seems to come up with a great team effort. Everyone has a hand in the scoring."

The Redmen next play when Wednesday they travel to Amherst, in an important contest.

Redmen Blank UNH, 2-0; Rappoli, Chinappi Star

by HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

Battery-mates Rich Rappoli and Tony Chinappi put the double-whammy on New Hampshire as the UMass baseball squad tamed the Wildcats, 2-0, in a Yankee Conference duel Saturday on Varsity Field.

Rappoli, the junior righthander who has sparked the Redmen since the loss of ace hurler John Canty, fired a brilliant two-hitter while facing only 30 batters. This was Rappoli's second two-hit shutout and third straight complete game this spring. Enroute to his 3-0 slate, the hurler has yielded but two runs in 27 innings pitched, those being scored by UConn in last Tuesdays 6-2 Redmen triumph.

Catcher Chinappi, inserted into the lineup only recently due to an injury to regular backstop Chuck Newell, has continued to prove that he doesn't belong in the number eight slot in the hitting lineup, slamming a long two-run homer in the seventh inning to account for the games' only scoring.

The game was played on a cold, gloomy day, taking only one hour and 52 minutes to complete. Shortly after Chinappi's payoff poke, rain fell steadily without letup until the action was almost over.

The diminutive righty from Somerville was catching the corners all afternoon with sliders and curveballs. Rappoli yielded a leadoff triple to deep left center by Wildcat shortstop and standout football halfback Bill Esty in the opening frame. Estey was the last UNH runner to reach third base. Second-baseman Jim David then lined a shot which Redman shortstop Joe DiSarcina snared for the first out. Rightfielder struck out and Rappoli got out of the jam by inducing cleanup hitter Bartlett to ground to 1b Ray Ellerbrook.

Bill Chase, UNH third-sacker, started the eighth with a single to left for the only other visitors' safety. Rappoli got the next three batters in the inning and retired the Wildcats in order in the final frame. He struck out five and walked only two.

UMass didn't exactly knock the ball around the lot, either. Southpaw Buddy Walsh scattered seven hits in his route-going effort. Oddly enough, Walsh did not walk anyone nor strike out any Redmen during the contest.

The home club's only other scoring threat came in the sixth when Rappoli started things by beating out a drag bunt down the third base line. Ellerbrook sacrificed him to second. DiSarcina then smashed a shot off the shortstop's chest which went for a hit, putting runners on first and third with one out.

Bob Hansen grounded to first and the throw was made to the plate in time to nab Rappoli. Don Ferron flied to center to end the inning.

The Redmen finally settled the matter in the seventh. With one out, UM rightfielder Ted Mareno slashed a single to center. Steve Standford then reached on a fielder's choice when his grounder to short forced Mareno at second.

Chinappi picked on a 2-0 pitch and drove it over the 375-foot mark in right center.

Around the bases—The Chinappi-Rappoli parley has been paying big dividends for the Redmen this spring. In Rappoli's 6-2 win over UConn, Chinappi had a homer, single and three RBI. Against Williams, Rappoli copped a 10-0 two-hitter as Chinappi

Fires 3rd straight win

TRY AND STOP THIS—UMass attackman Kevin O'Connor (11) seems to have this goal all wrapped up. However, Dartmouth goalie Pete Harter saved on the point-blank attempt. Looking on are Dartmouth's Charles Dorkey (23) and UMass midfielder Bob Florin (33).

UM Crews Sweep WPI, Varsity Takes Upset Win

In its finest performance of the year, the UMass crew team swept three races from Worcester Poly Tech Saturday on the swollen waters of the Connecticut River. The afternoon was climaxed with a two second come-from-behind victory by the Redman Varsity.

The Redman frosh had little difficulty in outpulling the Tech frosh. Although overstroked throughout the race, the Red boat just pulled away. Stroking at 36 strokes a minute, UMass grabbed a length at the start and increased that lead to seven lengths by the finish.

The time for the low stroking frosh was a good 6:24. Tech followed with 6:58, while Amherst refused to race. Coach Mike Faherty commenting on the victory said, "We rowed fairly well, it being a good time considering the conditions. Now prepare for Holy Cross."

A determined junior varsity boat gave UMass its second victory of the afternoon. Jumping off the starting line at 83, stroke Dave Kerling settled to a 35 for the body of the race. A strong head wind swept down the course as the UMass seconds were makink quick work of the Tech juniors.

The final time was 7:04 with Worcester out of sight at 7:46. Coach Dave Clarke complimented his sophomore studded crew saying, "They rowed well and should do well from here on out."

The varsity pull was a classic. The previously unbeaten, Eastern Sprint bound W.P.I. crew was the odds on favorite to take the UMass boat. The Redman boat, however, was not to be denied as they ran one length off the short stroking at 39.

The Maroon of W.P.I. gradually drew even with the Red boat. At the halfway point of the race, Tech was one half length out in front rowing at 35 strokes per minute. UMass coxswain Bill Crowe was content to give W.P.I. the small lead while keeping his boat at 33.

With 500 yards to go, the Redmen jumped to 35 and drew even with the Worcester boat. But Tech responding to the challenge upped to 38 and began to draw away from UMass. The Redmen, however, were not settling for seconds this week.

Now stroking at 38, the Red boat walked by the stunned Tech boat. The last five strokes saw the Redmen crew open up a half length lead. The final time was an excellent 6:08. Tech followed in 6:10.6.

Coach Clarke had nothing but praise for his first boat. "They rowed very well and the fact that we came from behind makes the victory even better," said the coach.

Looking ahead to next week's opponent, Holy Cross, Clarke said, "It's a big regatta and we will have to work hard to win." The home regatta will begin at 4 p.m. Three races are scheduled. The time has been changed in hopes of attracting a large H.E.R. weekend crowd.

Habs Win, 4-3; Gain Cup Final

MONTREAL (AP) — Rookie Jacques Lemaire whipped in his second goal of the game at 2:24 of an overtime period Sunday and staked Montreal to a 4-3 victory over Chicago, giving the Canadiens the National Hockey League's Eastern Division title.

The overtime victory gave the Canadiens a 4-1 edge over the Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup semifinal and sent Montreal into the finals against the winner of the expansion West Division.

Letterwinners in gymnastics, inloor track, wrestling, basketball, hockey, swimming and skiing may pick up their sweaters at the equipment issue window in the Boyden Building.

Former UMass Athlete Dies in Auto Accident

by PETER PASCARELLI
Sports Day Editor

Former UMass football star, Bernard (Bernie) Dallas, was killed yesterday morning in a highway accident in Camden, N.J. Dallas, who was 25, died and a companion, 21 year old Lynn Winters was seriously injured when the car they were travelling in crashed into a guard rail, near the New Jersey entrance to the Walt Whitman Bridge.

Dallas, a Philadelphia native, was one of the University's greatest student-athletes. He captained the 1965 UMass football team to a 7-2 record. Dallas was named to the All-Yankee Conference team for his play at center and defensive linebacker.

Active on Campus

Off the gridiron, though, Dallas was still every bit the all star. He was president of the class of 1966 for four years. Dallas was also a member of his class executive Council for four years. He served Kappa Sigma fraternity as its president and also was a member of the Interfraternity Council. Dallas was also chosen for Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

Following his graduation, Dallas served as middle linebacker for the now-defunct Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental Football League.

Dallas owned and operated a sandwich shop in Sommers Point, N.J. He was reportedly returning from the establishment when the accident occurred. He also managed a cocktail lounge in suburban Wayne, Pa.

Dean Field's Response

The campus community was understandibly shocked by the tragic news. William F. Field, dean of Students, said, "He was an astonishing guy. Bernie was incredibly loyal to the University. If you have to say one thing about Bernie Dallas, it was that everyone looked up to him and followed his direction."

"Leadership Qualities"

Athletic Director, Warren P. McGuirk was saddened by the news saying, "He was one of the finest people I have come to know in 40 years. I never recall meeting someone with the leadership qualities of him. The high regard held by all for him is a monument to a great young man."

Dallas's coach Vic Fusia was unavailable for comment.

Funeral arrangements are indefinite at this time. The Dallas family was reported to be under sedation following news of the death. Besides his parents, Dallas leaves an older brother.

State Primary Held Today; Indiana Campaign Nears End

While Massachusettts is holding its presidential primary today, the two major Democrat contenders for the presidency are campaigning in Indiana and Republican governor Nelson Rockefeller is expected to announce his active candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Massachusetts Primary

Massachusetts is holding its first test Tuesday of a new binding presidential reference law, but lack of contests made it dull.

The new law requires party delegates to vote for the presidential preference winners on the first ballot.

President Johnson's decision to stay out of the Massachusetts primary left only the name of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy D-Minn., on the Democratic ballot.

Volpe Favorite Son

Gov. John A. Volpe, who wants the GOP vice-presidential nomination, is alone on the Republican ballots as a favorite-son candidate for president.

McCarthy is the only candidate who has done much campaigning in Massachusetts, although Richard M. Nixon, the apparent front runner among the Republicans, made a visit or two.

What will be watched is the size of the write-in votes Democrats will give to native son Robert F. Kennedy, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and President Johnson, and the number of Republican write-ins for Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Massachusetts Democrats gave John F. Kennedy 91,607 write-in votes in the preference section of the ballot eight years ago.

Indiana Campaign

In Indiana, Senators Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy have launched into the final week of that state's presidential primary campaign.

Kennedy was in Gary, Ind., Monday, which is a vote-heavy industrial town with a number of white minority groups. Little resentment of Kennedy's pro-civil rights record however appeared in his long motor tour through the country.

While Kennedy is believed to be strong among large Negro populations, some of his strategists have feared his championing of Negro causes as attorney general and senator could produce a resentment vote among blue-collar white minority groups.

Kennedy is running against Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and Indiana Gov. Roger D. Branigin, the favorite-son candidate, in his first primary contest since he became a candidate more than five weeks ago.

Federal Failure

In an address prepared for delivery at Valparaiso University, he charged that the federal government is failing to cope with widespread starvation in the United States. "The fact is that we are not meeting the challenge of hunger today," he said.

McCarthy Campaign

McCarthy campaigned in Terre Haute, Ind., yesterday, where he spoke before two student groups.

The Minnesota Democrat asked one group whether America is prepared to spend billions to fight the war in Southeast Asia while devoting only a fraction of that amount to aid other troubled nations and in solving a host of domestic problems.

Current Problems

McCarthy said the problems included housing, health care, education of the young and re-education of some older people, and assurance that persons can get adequate jobs according to their ability.

"This is the form of choice that faces America this year," McCarthy said.

Rockefeller Announces

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is expected to declare his active candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination Tuesday at a news conference here.

Meeting Will Discuss Curriculum Revisions

by HELEN SULLINGER

"What happens Tuesday night may be crucial for the outcome of student participation in curriculum reform. All those who have concerns about their courses, requirements and professors should be present at this meeting. At last we will be able to see if the faculty is willing to listen to us seriously."

With these words, Mary Sayre, spokesman for a concerned group of students and faculty working for curriculum changes, announced that a meeting has been planned tonight to deal with the Cook Report. As a result of interest in this Report, demonstrated by this student-led group at a recent meeting of the College of Arts and Sciences, Dean Hunsberger arranged a meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Auditorium which will "be open for discussion of anything related to curriculum revision in the college."

Student Opinion Consideration

At this last college faculty meeting on April 24, 30 students and faculty members distributed leaflets questioning the lack of student participation on the Cook Committee, and their desire to be involved in the deci-

Miss University Winner Chosen Tonight from 24 Contestants

Miss University of 1968 will be chosen tonight from among 24 contestants at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The winner will be successor to Carol Willard, last year's entry in the Miss Massachusetts contest, for which this is a preliminary pageant.

Last weekend all the contestants had to compete against one another in the two rounds of preliminary competition which were held in the Student Union Ballroom. It was the largest field of contestants ever to compete in a local preliminary pageant in Massachusetts and it also marks the first time that a local pageant has been a three day affair.

Four Girls Won Round I

Four girls moved a step closer to the Miss University title by clinching victories in the preliminary rounds. The talent winners were Donna Lee Hayes who performed a lively vocal presentation from Funny Girl entitled I'm the Greatest Star and Christina Helena Niemyski who also did a vocal presentation from Smell of the Greasepaint Roar of the Crowd. Misses Elizabeth Pugh from Elmont New York and Linda Reeves McIntyre from Darien, Connecticut walked off with the swimsuit awards.

Suspense Added

To add suspense to tonight's final competition the preliminary evening gown winners were not announced. Even though these girls captured preliminary titles it does not guarantee that they will be one of tonight's ten semi-finalists because other girls may not have won preliminary titles but placed high in all competitions.

The ten girls who have scored the most points in all three preliminary competitions will be tonight's semi-finalists. In tonight's competition the semi-finalists wll go through all three competitions again.

Pageants Hosts and Judges

The emcees will be Neal Whitman, Wayne Thomas, President of the Junior Class and the reigning Miss University Carol Willard. The judges for tonight will be Mr. H. Evan Snyder, Assistant Secretary of Amherst College and a producer of college variety shows which have toured Europe; Miss Edith Sepanec who was one of last year's judges and operates Edith's Studio of the Dance; Mr. Frank Gartska, who is an assistant Director of Personnel at the University and who has judged many pageants in the Springfield area as well as being Space Scientist Predicts Rapid Growth of Soviet Space Program

by RICHARD LANE
Staff Reporter

One of the world's most noted space scientists, Sir Bernard Lovell of Britain, last night told guests of the Distinguished Visitors Program that he believes that "The Russians are rapidly moving into a position where they can circumnavigate the moon with men late this year or early next."

He said that as far as getting a man to the moon and back, there is no information now which would allow one to say for sure. "Both nations face terrible problems," Lovell added. Lovell has done extensive investigations into the Soviet space effort. He discovered and announced to the world that the Venus 4 had landed on Venus. Lovell is the only free world scientist to be allowed to visit Soviet space facilities.

SIR BERNARD LOVELL

Space Race Discussed

Speaking in the Student Union Ballroom, Lovell made his remarks on the space race following his main address on the origin of the planetary systems and the evolution of the universe.

Sir Bernard said he feels these two questions of evolution in space are two that are "puzzling mankind" at present. And after speaking in some detail on these two questions the British scientist summarized by saying that "I don't believe one will ever solve the problem of knowing what it was like then (the early history of the universe)."

News in Brief

International

PRAGUE—A top police investigator has hanged himself in the woods of a Bohemian spa, the fourth suicide of a high-ranking Communist official in 2 months, the Czechoslovak Interior Ministry reported Monday.

The announcement said Lt. Col. Josef Pocepicky, head of the Prague police investigation department, took his life Saturday in Marianske Lazne. It gave no further details but said an investigation is under way.

The suicide touched off rumors in connection with a high-level probe of senior police officers suspected of involvement in the Stalinist terror trials in the late 1940s. It could not be immediately established if Pocepicky also was under investigation.

PARIS — Using a new technique, French doctors have performed Europe's first heart transplant, but they said Monday they were worried about the patient's condition. He was unconscious and was kept in a respirator.

The doctors said the patient's new heart was beating normally and there were no signs that he was rejecting it. However, the surgeons feared brain damage.

"Our main worry now is the patient's brain condition," said Dr. Maurice Mercadier, chief of surgery at La Pitie Hospital where the heart transplant was performed Saurday night and early Sunday.

National

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg is making a determined effort both publicly and privately to knock down reports that his resignation was prompted by disagreement with Pres. Johnson.

In a statement issued Monday "in response to press queries" Goldberg said such reports "are entirely without foundation."

Some newspaper dispatches from Washington reporting Johnson's announcement of Goldberg's resignation last Thursday noted that while the President expressed regret he voiced no praise of Goldberg.

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon plans a major revamping of the military pay system that would put career servicemen on a straight salary comparable to government civil servants, officials said Monday.

They portrayed the present pay system as so complex and fragmented that few military personnel really know exactly how much they are paid.

A new study forwarded by Sec. of Defense Clark M. Clifford to Congress as part of a 4-yr. review showed that military men often underestimate their pay by as much as one-fourth.

In the long-run, the study says, the military system suffers because individuals often leave uniform for seemingly more lucrative, but actually only equal-paying, jobs.

In the next few months Pentagon officials plan to submit detailed legislative proposals to Congress.

WASHINGTON—U.S. officials reported Monday that the U. S. and N. Vietnam have quietly entered on a prenegotiating stage through their embassies in neutral Laos.

These officials appeared increasingly confident that agreement on a site for peace talks canu be reached.

However, State Dept. press officer Robert J. McCloskey cautioned that after two diplomatic exchanges in three days in Vientiane "no agreement on a site - which is the main effort—has been reached."

The No. Vietnamese Foreign Ministry charged the U.S. "cooked up the story about 'private discussions' being continued in Vientiane" and again accused the Johnson administration of delaying preliminary contacts with "artful maneuvers."

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, the Hanoi official Vietnam News Agency said the story about Vientiane talks was cooked up by Asst. Sec. of State William Bundy 'to sooth strong public obloquy against the obduracy of the U.S. government.'

McCloskey told State Dept. reporters that No. Vietnam has responded formally to 3 U.S. proposals suggesting 15 potential meeting places for peace talks. All 15 have been turned down.

At the same time the U.S. has rejected as not suitable the No. Vietnam proposals for talks in Phnom Penh or Warsaw.

This leaves a compromise site such as Paris the most likely solution, although McCloskey refused to comment on this.

NEWTON, Mass.—The 19-yr.-old daughter of Negro Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., plans to marry a white college student whose mother is a Democratic committeewoman.

Her intended is Donald R. Hasler, 18, of New Milford, N.J., a freshman engineering student at Monmouth C., W. Long Branch, N.J. His father, Eugene Hasler, is a machinist for Lever Bros. in Edgewater, N.J., and his mother, a Democratic committeewoman in Englewood, works for Stock Forms Co. in Englewood, N.J.

Miss Brooke said the wedding will be June 22, at her family's summer home on Martha's Vineyard if proper religious arrangements can be made, or otherwise in church. Both she and Hasler are Roman Catholic.

Columbia Sit-In Continues; Anti-Demonstrators Protest

BULLETIN

New York police early today broke the 6 day crisis at Columbia by moving onto the campus in force and arresting more than 600 students who had locked themselves inside five University buildings.

Educational Halt

Sit-ins by 500 to 600 militants have brought educational activities to a halt for most of Columbia's 27,500-member student body on the Morningside Heights campus in uptown Manhattan.

About 200 nondemonstrating students maintained a blockade to try to starve out 100 or so rebels holding President Grayson Kirk's office in the Low Memorial Library.

Paul Vilardi, a pre-medical student and former Columbia football player, said his group of blockaders are in sympathy with the aims of the demonstrators, but not with their sit-in tactics.

Refuse Supplies

Vilardi's group thwarted efforts to replenish the militants' food supplies from the outside.

The student demonstration began April 23, with a group of Students for an Afro-American Society protesting Columbia's plans to build an $11.5-million gymnasium on two of 30 acres in Morningside Park. The city-owned recreational area separates Columbia from Harlem.

The protestors, joined by white Students for a Democratic Society, contended Columbia's expansion onto city-owned park land deprived the Harlem Community of needed recreational space.

will never answer the problem, "Lovell went on, because "We are already at an observational horizon." He stated further that these are not problems of observation so much as those of a "philosophical" and "theological" nature.

No Knowledge of Present

Lovell feels that astronomical and cosmological studies are limited because "in astronomy we have no knowledge of the present. All that we have is the past." What's more, he added, "Everytime one felt he was about to make an observation and everytime one is made a whole group of uncertainties and problems comes up."

The director of the famed Jodrell Bank Astronomical Observatory, Lovell spoke out on biological explorations in outer space by saying efforts "must be placed on Mars." He ruled out Venus, however, saying that it was learned a year ago from the Russians that the planet is "inhospitable."

Lovell did point to the danger of techniques in biological exploration saying that certain space activities "may forever destroy the primeval situation on Mars for us and all future generations."

Concluding his speech by answering questions from the audience Lovell said that if one assumes that the present space programs of the Soviet Union and the United States continue, he expects an "exceedingly exciting race."

Absurd Inbalance

Though a strong advocate of space science, Sir Barnard feels that an "absurd inbalance" has been reached in the United States and Russia. Lovell pointed to the huge budget of NASA for space exploration yet the unwillingness of the United States government to spend $20 million for an optical telescope. And it is the lack of such a telescope which he believes "hinders our understanding of cosmology."

Lovell stated that he is "very worried" by this inbalance because he feels it will produce a great clash between space scientists and other branches of study and more important because of the many unsolved earth problems it leaves. The British scientist pointed to the Soviet Union where more is spent on the space budget than for housing.

When asked for his stand on UFO's Sir Bernard dismissed them with no comment.

sions made in curriculum reform. "Until student opinion is considered," the group expressed concern that action be withheld on the Cook Report which they considered "merely a reshuffling of courses and requirements; lacking in a philosophy of education corresponding to the wisdom of the latter part of the 20th century; and uncreative in its neglect to deal seriously with experimentation in course content, in interdisciplinary course structures, and in teaching methodology."

Four Amendments

In a memorandum to the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences, Dean Hunsberger stated that the meeting tonight is open to both students and faculty, and is preliminary to another meeting on Wednesday, May 1. At that time faculty will be asked to vote on four proposed amendments to current requirements in the departments of Speech, English and History.

According to Miss Sayre, "It had been understood by many students and faculty that this voting was to have taken place at the last meeting. Even though this was not the case, we were able to let the faculty know that we want a voice in the outcome of the Report and are concerned that our ideas won't be taken seriously. I hope that tonight will prove us wrong."

'Trashy Lit' Popular Course in Midwest

(ACP) — Strains from a Carter Family recording resound through the room and students glance through religious comic books while listening to quotes from recent issues of Readers Digest.

That's a classroom situation. The class is Popular American Literature, called Trashy Lit by instructor Ronald Tweet, at Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill.

It's an attempt to appeal to current interests of college students in mass culture and mass society. Says the Augustana Observer, "It ventures into that foggy realm between high and low literature which has produced such a multitude of best sellers."

Due to student interest, the class seems to be in session all the time—in the student union, in dormitory rooms, over a pitcher of beer at the local pub—as students banter over ideas expressed in the course.

The reading list includes frontier literature such as The Virginian by Owen Wister, the problem of the South as seen in Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin, legislated morality illustrated by Upton Sinclair in The Jungle and two short novels by Horatio Alger.

But those are only guidelines. Discussion may wander through Melville and Cooper to "Gunsmoke" and "Star Trek", interlaced with the philosophy of Marshall McLuhan.

In addition to showing the subject matter of popular literature, the course is designed to give a more complete view of American literary traditions. Says instructor Tweet, "There's a great deal to be learned from studying the popular as opposed to the great American literature."

Students seem to agree. What started out as a small group of English majors has grown to include some 90 students with major interests in many fields.

The UMass Musigals are holding tryouts tonight and tomorrow night in the Student Union from 6-8 p.m. Bass, baritone, lead and soprano voices are needed and all women are invited to tryout. William Warfield In Concert Here Friday Night

Acclaimed around the world as one of the greatest vocal artists of today, William Warfield, the distinguished American bass-baritone, will sing here on Friday, May 3 at Bowker Auditorium under the auspices of Concert Association. Achieving extraordinary triumphs at home each season, he tours the world extensively and has been hailed everywhere he sings.

Porgy and Bess Role

An experienced and gifted actor prior to his formal concert debut in New York, Warfield enjoyed his greatest success in the theater shortly after he had attained fame as a musical artist. This was in the role of the indomitable cripple of Catfish Row in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess". Porgy and the Gershwin opera have become indelibly associated with the name of William Warfield in the legitimate theater.

"De Law" of Green Pastures

In a straight dramatic role, Warfield is as impressive as in a singing part. His performance as De Lawd in Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures" provided one of the finest moments in recent years of television. This award-winning Hallmark production of 1957 on NBC had to be repeated live a few years later at public insistence.

Writing Workshop On Nantucket for Summer

An accredited, three-week Summer Workshop Course in Imaginative Writing will be offered from July 22 to August 9 at the University of Massachusetts facilities on Nantucket Island. Participants will enroll for three credits, graduate or undergraduate in English 345 or English 781. Housing is available from July 21 to August 10. Applicants are advised to make their travel reservations early because weekend transportation to the island is heavily booked.

The course will require intensive writing. Mr. Richard Kim and a visiting staff of professional editors and writers of stature will furnish literary and technical direction in both the novel and the short story. Students will work with their own manuscripts.

Sixteen Student Limit

Enrollment will be limited to twelve students in residence and to four day students who will be responsible for obtaining their own housing elsewhere on the island.

Writers from any disciplinary background are eligible, provided they qualify for upperclass or transient graduate status at the University and have work in progress.

Fees, including tuition, board, room and linen will be $150 for residents of Massachusetts and $165 for out-of-state residents. Day students will be charged $75 or $90 respectively. All students are expected to bring typewriters, informal dress and personal impedimenta such as beach towels. Free parking is available.

Richard Kim Principal Teacher

The principal instructor will be Mr. Richard E. Kim, who is a Professor of English at the University, and whose work includes The Martyred and The Innocent (Fall publication). Visiting lecturers and agents, among others will be Mr. Michael Curtis, Editor of the ATLANTIC MONTHLY; Miss Shannon Ravenel, Editor, Houghton-Mifflin; Mr. Peter Hyun, Senior Editor, Doubleday and Co.; Mr. Tamas Aczel, a Professor of English and a winner of the Stalin Prize for Literature whose books include the Ice Age and The Revolt of the Mind; Phoebe LaMore, Literary Agent; and George P. Elliott, novelist and literary critic of Syracuse University.

Deadline for applications is June 1, 1968. All applications must be accompanied by samples of the student's work in prose fiction only. The Admissions Committee will answer all applicants by June 15, and the Treasurer's Office of the University will bill successful applicants at that time.

All inquiries and requests for applications should be addressed to Professor John Mitchell of the English Department.

Smith Choir Competition And Concert Tomorrow

Smith College will hold its 43rd annual choir competition and concert in Northampton on Wednesday evening, May 1. The public is invited to hear several choral groups perform a varied program in John M. Greene Hall at 8:15 p.m. Conducting will be Iva Dee Hiatt and Catharine Melhorn of the music faculty.

To open the competition for the Morrow and Gorokhoff cups, Freshman Choirs Alpha and Omega and the Smith College Choir, whose members are sophomores, will give separate performances of Confitemini Domino by Alessandro Constantini. The choirs will then each sing a contemporary work.

Serving as judges of the choir competition will be members of area college music faculties:

The concert portion of the program will begin with works by Persichetti, Bartok and Bloch, performed respectively by the three choirs. Together they will be heard in Jacob Handl's O Magnum Mysterium, followed by the Smith College Glee Club singing two works of the 13th century, and Franz Schubert's Standchen.

The concert will close with the Glee Club presenting the first performance of Four Proverbs, composed by Edwin London of the Smith music faculty for the 1968 Smith College Chamber Singers. This group, whose members belong to the Glee Club, will tour Europe this summer with singers from the Princeton University Glee Club. Mr. London's Four Proverbs, with solos for soprano, two trumpets and bassoon, will be part of the tour repertoire.

The next musical event at Smith College will be the senior recital of Dorothy Siegel, clarinet, on Friday, May 10.

Unlimited Cuts Beneficial to Learning

Both the professor and the student share the common concern of a good education, either in providing or in receiving it. And it is with respect to this concern, that I suggest a general leniency toward an unwritten policy of unlimited cuts. As the present University policy allows attendence to be at the discretion of the individual professor, the professor holds the power to improve the system.

The responsibility of the professor to present a specified amount of material in a closed number of weeks is well recognized and appreciated. Yet, to demand that a student appear at a class defeats the purpose of the professor, as it does not assure either student attention or cooperation. On the contrary, it assures only the physical presence of an individual.

An interesting class will be attended regardless of the professor's attendance policy. And similarly, a boring class will be cut as often as possible. The unlimited cut policy could serve as a necessary and beneficial instrument to the professor. A consistently unattended class would indicate an immediate need for reform either in selection of course material or of course presentation. The consistently attended class would indicate a course well received and well worthwhile.

In this sense—that when a student cuts a class, he dismisses the professor—the student is the professor's employer. In temporarily dismissing his employee, the student would assure consistent improvements both in curriculum and class presentations. The professor and the student would thus be working together to further their common concern of a good education.

Regarded responsibly by both faculty and students the system could be an extremely beneficial asset to the University community. The student who cuts needlessly would endanger nothing, with the exception of his own grades. Chances are that these grades would be endangered with or without the unlimited cuts system. Furthermore, the professor would always be assured of the interest and cooperation of those in attendance. Thus the required material could be covered quickly and satisfactorily.

By providing a valid basis on which to evaluate course material and course presentation, by encouraging student responsibility, and by furthering faculty-student relations, the unlimited cuts system could be only advantageous.

Equitable Southwest Board Policy Needed

A bill was just passed in the Student Senate seeking action on compulsory board in the Southwest Residential College. The justification for this board policy is not clear, especially when in all other parts of the campus seniors, students over 21, and members of fraternities and sororities may be exempt from purchasing meal tickets. It is definitely unfair that Southwest students be forced to subsidize the other commons' loss of revenue from these exemptions.

There are two reasons for the present policy in Southwest. First, some years ago when the plan for a residential college was initiated, they decided to make it a "total living experience." When construction has been completed, the total number of beds will correlate exactly with the number of seats in the dining commons. In other words, there is a certain number of people living there and they have provided for just that number to eat there also. Therefore, due to planning on such an exact scale there is no wasted space, yet they are not overcrowded. Unfortunately the planners did not take into account the possible adverse reaction of the students.

The other reason is pure and simple—money. The University is deeply in debt because of construction loans, and the money must be repaid. The compulsory meal ticket plan brings in a great deal more revenue than does the plan used by the rest of the campus.

Since the Senate bill has passed, the Administration should then be expected to act on its suggestions. Hopefully a plan will then be drafted which will ultimately satisfy both student and Administrative needs.

This Issue Of Engineering Journal Possibly the Last

To the editor:

This may well be one of the last issues of the University of Massachusetts Engineering Journal.

In one of its recent meetings, the University of Massachusetts Student Senate Budget Committee voted on the operating budget for next year's Journal. The budget: $0.00.

The cost of printing an average issue of the Journal is approximately $800. Income from national advertising is approximately $600. The net deficit per issue is approximately $200. The total annual deficit for four issues is approximately $800. In the past, the Student Senate has plugged the gap with an appropriation from the S.A.T.F. (Student Activities Tax Fund).

The S.A.T.F. is maintained by a levy upon each undergraduate student at the University (you've probably noticed the category on your semester's tuition bill). The Student Senate Budget Committee processes the requests for financial aid by various campus clubs, societies, and publications, and recommends to the Student Senate how much money each group should receive.

During the Fall 1967 semester, a group of commuting students questioned the "constitutionality" of the S.A.T.F. system. They reasoned that, because they lived off-campus and didn't participate in the various activities offered by campus groups, they should not be forced to pay their share of the S.A.T.F.

The attitude of these students was logical (and selfish). In essence, they asked, "Why should we subsidize those activities which do not benefit us directly? Why should we help a bunch of kids learn scuba diving, or radio broadcasting, or newspaper publishing, when we're not involved at all?"

The Budget Committee seems to have sampled this peculiar logical brew before considering the Engineering Journal's financial requirements. The idea of "special interest groups" was again raised. After all, there are only a thousand or so engineering students. Why should they have a magazine of their own?

The danger of this type of selfish logic is evident: if carried to its logical conclusion, the Student Senate must question the funding of all campus organizations. Why should Liberal Arts students have a tax-supported literary magazine? Why should the Amateur Radio Club receive S.A.T.F. funds? Of course, we must have a campus newspaper . . . or must we? And how many students own . . . radios capable of receiving WMUA?

Logically speaking, every campus organization is a special interest group worthy of exactly as much financial support as the Engineering Journal . . . zero.

Let's leave logic aside for a moment. What would this campus be like if all the "special interest groups" were to disappear overnight? The Student Activities Tax on our tuition bills would disappear overnight, along with WMUA, the Daily Collegian, the Amateur Radio Association, the Index, and countless other societies, organizations, clubs, and activities which make UMass an interesting place in which to gain an education.

The action of the Student Senate Budget Committee on the Engineering Journal's budget threatens every campus activity. All "special interest groups"' on campus—no matter how "essential" they imagine themselves to be at the moment—could find themselves without funds after a trial by committee.

Should diversity of interest be sacrificed for economy? This is the question which I believe must be carefully considered by the Student Senate and the University community. Hasty and ill-considered pruning of "special interest groups" benefits no one.

Science Requirement Seen To Need Immediate Revision

by SHARON SAMUELS
Staff Reporter

"What is a liberal arts education? The Committee has no positive convictions regarding a liberal arts education, and it consequently has no firm idea about the contribution that a core curriculum must make to it."

So stated Professor Victor Swenson of the Department of History in reference to the Ad Hoc Curriculum Study Committee's Report concerning the Core Curriculum of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"The Committee has a hunch that core requirements are important but it does not trouble itself to investigate why," continued Swenson. "What are the educational needs of the students? Here the Committee is mute. It appears to assume, as I suppose we all do, that the UMass student is intelligent, naive and poorly trained."

No Conclusions Drawn

According to Swenson, "the Committee has not cared to inquire more deeply into the strengths and weaknesses of the student's preparation, nor has it drawn any conclusions about how the student's previous training affects our present educational task." Due to this, "The Committee's report lacks intellectual foundations. Its recommendations are, therefore, hesitant and unsatisfactory."

Three Changes Proposed

Moyer Hunsberger, Dean of Arts and Sciences, has called a meeting of the Faculty to discuss several proposed modifications of the core curriculum and has proposed three changes in the graduation requirements of the College of Arts and Sciences. Affecting Speech 101, English 125-126 and History 100-101, these changes provide assorted options to the present requirements.

While sharing Hunsberger's conviction that the requirements now carried by the students should be promptly lightened, Swenson stated that "the proper target for immediate curricular revision is the College's extraordinary science requirement." Explaining that he had examined the core requirements of the major universities and colleges in this country, he stated that he had "found no institution with as heavy a science requirement as that of the University of Massachusetts."

Science Requirements Unreasonable

"In terms of the needs of our students there is neither rhyme nor reason for the present science requirement," concluded Swenson. He proposes dropping the present requirement of science and math-science courses from six semesters to two.

Commenting on the need for students to be able to choose their teachers, Swenson stated: "Our students do not suffer because they cannot take philosophy instead of history or French literature instead of English literature to fulfill their requirements. They suffer because they cannot choose their teachers in multi-sectioned courses. Successful education must be based on the student's right to choose his master."

"Some people object that if the students are given free choice they will choose their teachers for the wrong reasons. I would reply," continued Swenson, "that a person who exercises responsible choice often learns most from his mistakes."

Swenson's Recommendations

In addition to the above observations and proposals which Swenson presented to the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences, he recommended the dropping of the speech requirement, the retention of the requirements in the social sciences, and the keeping of the history requirement for those students who are "unable to demonstrate a reasonable level of proficiency in European history."

Student Leaders Colloquium

The annual Student Leaders Colloquium will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Cage.

This year will bring a new approach to the event with an attempt to appeal to a wider segment of the campus community.

Guest speakers for the colloquium include Dwight Allen, Dean of the School of Education; William Field, Dean of Students; and the Reverend Jeffrey Campbell, minister of the Amherst Unitarian Church. They each will give their views on the student's role and responsibility in a growing university. During the night, President Lederle will present the Distinguished Senior Awards and the Metawampe Award.

General Court Selections Next Sunday

The Student General Court, highest student judicial body at the University, is holding selections for women of the Class of 1970 on Sunday, May 5 at 7:00 p.m. in the Duke's Room of the Student Union.

The General Court acts as an appellate body on appeals from lower courts and also has original jurisdiction over many cases. All offenses except academic dishonesty come under the purview of the General Court. Consequently the Court has heard a wide range of controversial cases throughout the year.

College Young Democrats Reaffirm McCarthy Support

The Executive Committee of the College Young Democratic Clubs of Massachusetts today reaffirmed support for Senator Eugene McCarthy in his drive for the Democratic Presidential nomination. In December, the annual convention of the College Y.D.'s of Massachusetts broke precedent to endorse Senator McCarthy before the nominating convention to be held in August.

At Sunday's Executive Committee meeting at Boston University, a poll of the state officers and club representatives gave McCarthy a substantial lead over the nearest challenger, Senator Robert Kennedy.

Denis Kanin, chairman of the Democratic organization said, after the meeting, "The majority of college Democrats and of all students have remained firm in their support of Senator McCarthy. We find his candor, intelligence, and above all, his policies toward Vietnam and the urban crisis to be a refreshing change from those of other politicians. He, alone, of all the candidates, speaks to college students and understands their ideals."

Avant-Garde Dance Troupe To Present Concert Thursday

The Fine Arts Council presents Murray Louis, noted avant-garde dancer and his company in a concert in Bowker Auditorium on Thursday, May 2 at 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Louis is also the leading dancer with the Alwin Nikolais Company of the Henry Street Playhouse in New York.

Kinetic Humor

Mr. Louis, noted for his deeply sensed movements which transform the ordinary into the exceptional, uses limitless movement ranging from the very surprising unexpected sequences which provide the kinetic humor of Reflections, to the very flowing lyrical movement of Chimera.

Junk Dances

His Callgraph for Martyrs is an array of designs for two bodies moving together which symbolize many images of martyrdom and punishment. He is also a successful comedian when he chooses. Junk Dances has received wide acclaim—it is a reflection on pop art and contains many of the gimmicks found in this style.

Members of the company are Ann Carlton, Bill Frenk, Phyllis Lembhut, Roger Rowell, and Mr. Louis.

Tickets are $.50 to the public and may be purchased a week prior to the concert at the ticket office in the Student Union, or at the door. Students are admitted free.

Honor Sections In Regular Courses Offered

Students with superior academic records are eligible to participate in the new program of honors sections of heavily populated courses. One such course, an honors version of Philosophy 105, is a great success this semester. On Counseling Day, students may be able to register for the new versions of the following courses:

Speech 101; French 110, 130, and 140; German 110 and 130; Spanish 130; Economics 125; Physics 106; Philosophy 105.

For further information, consult the office of the appropriate department head.

The Department of Government is also offering a course of interest to serious students with a good record—Government 160. The Department of English has a series of senior seminars open to students with good qualifications. For information about these courses, see the departmental offices.

Mount Holyoke Will Honor First Women Marines

Mount Holyoke College will honor the first graduating class of Women Marine Officers commissioned in the history of the United States with special ceremonies on the campus Tuesday, May 7.

The initial group of 54 Women Marine Officers were trained at the U.S. Marine Corps Women's Reserve Officers' Training School on the Mount Holyoke campus and were commissloned May 4, 1943.

Citation to President

Highlight of the day's events will be the presentation of a citation to President Richard Glenn Gettell by Col. Barbara J. Bishop, present director of the Women Marines, representing the Commandant of the Marine Corps, expressing the appreciation of the Marines for the cooperation and friendship of Mount Holyoke College.

The ceremonies will begin with a military formation led by the 40-piece Marine Corps Base band, Quantico, Va., flown in especially for the occasion. Maj. Edward J. Chapman, Jr., USMC, of the Springfield Marine Corps Training Center, will serve as adjutant. The training center will also provide a color guard.

Historical Gesture

In an historical re-creation of the last gesture of the Marines on the Mount Holyoke campus in 1943, flowers will be placed on Mary Lyon's grave by Col. Streeter.

The ceremonies will be followed by a reception at the President's home and dinner in Roswell Gray Ham Hall. Mr. Ham, a former Marine, was President of Mount Holyoke during the Marine's stay at Mount Holyoke.

The first detachment of Marine cadets arrived in South Hadley on March 13, 1943. Two classes of Women Marines were commissioned on the campus and a third trained until June 29, 1943. This group completed their train-in at the newly-built training base at Camp LeJeune, N.C.

UMass Horse Show To Be Held Saturday

The Annual UMass Horse Show will be held on Saturday, May 4th, at 1 p.m. in the lower riding ring.

Students from the physical education riding classes and the Equestrian Club will be riding in classes ranging from beginning equitation to obstacle course. This year's show will include an exhibition by the UMass Equestrian Drill Team. A new addition to the program will be the two divisions of showmanship in hand. Public admission is free.

Novices and Experienced

The show is a tradition at UMass. It introduces many novice riders to preparing a horse and equipment for show and to performing in the show ring. In addition, it will provide several experienced riders with an opportunity to prepare the Bay State Morgan Horses for the UNH Horse Show on May 11th and the 35 mile competitive trail ride on May 19th.

The Bay State Morgans have been shown successfully since the start of the herd in the late 1940's; the herd presently consists of 22 Morgans. The University has the distinction of being the sole breeder to have ever captured first, second, and third place in a single Dam and Produce Class at a National Morgan Horse Show. Several Bay State Morgans purchased from UMass are presently champions on the show circuit. In the past year, the UMass Morgans have placed well, including a Reserve Grand Championship won by Bay State Flintlock, the resident stallion, at the UNH Horse Show.

Dorm Kitchen Abuse Brings Council Warning

by MARTHA CURRAN
Staff Reporter

There's nothing worse than a dirty kitchen: unwashed dishes in the sink, grease caked on the stove and in the oven, sour milk in the refrigerator, ugh. Most of the kitchenettes in campus dormitories are so dirty, the University Health Council, on recommendation of the Department of Environmental Health and Safety, has issued warnings to ALL dormitories that continued abuse of kitchenette privileges will limit, if not completely stop their use.

"Kitchenettes," according to the Student Handbook, "are provided for house social functions and for preparing light individual snacks when permitted by the house governing body . . . The house government is responsible for seeing that residents maintain the kitchenette in a clean and orderly condition. Abuse of the kitchenette facilities, or the failure to maintain proper cleanliness, constitutes justification for closing the kitchenette . . ."

What's the secret of a clean and orderly kitchenette? Mrs. Lew Gurwitz, head of residence in Van Meter South, credits the success of South's clean kitchen to the girls who live there, "because they want it open, and House Council has assumed the responsibility for making and enforcing rules pertaining to its use." House Council members clean the refrigerator and oven; and general clean-up duty is assigned to each girl once during the semester.

In Van Meter North, the girls who cook most often do the cleaning, but the "light snackers" do not. The kitchenette policy in Van Meter North is detailed in its constitution: "Each user of the kitchenette is responsible for cleaning up after herself . . . if the kitchenette is not kept clean, it will be necessary to raise dorm dues for the following year so as to allow for a paid kitchenette service . . . if the kitchenette is continuously kept unclean, it will be closed by an executive councillor or the Board of Health INDEFINITELY . . ." Further limits are placed on the type of food allowed to be cooked, both in the oven and on the stove.

Mrs. Kevin Grennan, head of residence in Van Meter North, credits "the girls who clean up after themselves and the counselors on duty who check the kitchenette each night" with the success of North's facilities. She reinforced the statements made in both the Student Handbook and the Van Meter North constitution by agreeing that "Health Services should have periodic, regular checks of the kitchenette, as well as the right to close them."

A word to the wise—the Health Services intend to use their prerogative if unclean conditions continue in dormitory kitchenettes.

Players Turn Out for Spring Practice; Coaches Make Changes in Fall Lineup

by MARTHA CURRAN
Sports Editor

It was raining and muddy and an April robin was hunting for worms on the gridiron; September and pigskins seemed a long way away, but the Yankee Conference Champion Football team was down at Alumni Stadium for Spring practice.

"There are two objectives to Spring practice," Head Coach Victor Fusia said, "we analyze our personnel and place our players properly. We've made a few changes and expect to make many more. Our big job is to find replacements and our biggest job is to find a replacement for Greg Landry."

Tim Adams seems to be a likely choice. "I like the way he is taking command of the situation," Coach Fusia said, "He has quick hands and is a better than adequate passer." Ron Coltin, Ken Hughes, Mike Marchev and Mark Devitt are also competing for the quarterback position.

The search is on for offensive guards, and two candidates were found on defense and switched: John MacLean and George Crane are taking well to their new positions. Bruce Fulton, a returning offensive guard is playing Varsity Lacrosse now, but will be back for football in the Fall.

"We're inexperienced right down the middle," the Coach continued, "we have to fill in the holes, and find back-up men for defensive tackles and offensive tackles."

"On the plus side, we have much better speed in the backfield than we've had in several years. Starting fullbacks Bruce Cochrane and Ed Sarno will pick up where they left off; they're both strong, have good size, and adequate speed along with experience."

Bob Toole, a freshman this year, will be worked as defensive linebacker as well as offensive fullback.

Craig Lovell and John Decembrele, both experienced, are battling for tailback. Freshmen Mike Scavone and Joe Lang will be Jerry Grasso's closest competition for slot back position.

Team Co-captain Nick Warnock will play split end, backed up by Don Young and Jim Long. Al Becker and Nick McGarry are vying for tight end. Coach Fusia said "we're pleased with the way the ends have been catching the ball this Spring. These boys have good hands and better than average speed; they just like to catch that ball. They all run excellent pass patterns. If we can get the ball to them they'll catch it."

There's experience at both ends of the defensive line. Tom York, who underwent surgery for a shoulder injury last fall, and Randy Robinson will be at end in September.

Marty Scheralis, whom the Coach cited as having had a fine year last season, will start at left tackle. Mark Toner will be at right tackle.

"We're solid at middle guard; Roger Prefontaine and Andy Guarino are there. However, the only experienced linebacker we have is Dennis Gray." Gray, who hasn't been out yet for spring practice, faces surgery for a spur on his foot. Tim Porter and Larry Fortunoff are two inside linebackers with some game experience, and Bill Byron and Sroka, who move up from the freshman team this season, show potential.

All the deep backs have experience, all of them are returning: Billy Frye will be at left half, Steve Parnell at safety and Co-captain Mike McArdle at right half. Steve Rogers, regular safety last year, plays Varsity baseball now, but he will return to the gridiron in the fall. Don Dotson seems a likely choice for chief or monster position.

The beanpot, is it safe in the showcase for another season? "With hard work on the part of the squad and the coaching staff, we'll do it."

Golfers Lose

Despite shooting some of their best golf of the season, the UMass golf team lost to undefeated Rhode Island, 5½-1½, Friday at Point Judith, R. I. The loss brought the Redmen's record to 5-4 in duel meets.

Dick Starsiak was the only UMass golfer to win against the low-scoring Rams as he defeated his rival, two and one. Paul Johnson salvaged a tie in his match.

Bob Nowak shot his best round of the season, a 76 but was defeated two and one. John Ariansen also reached his season's best with a 77 but was also defeated two and one.

Gary Gasperack was toppled one up while Bill Dunsmore was beaten four and three. Dick Barber was also defeated four and three.

UMass takes on UConn and A.I.C. today before leaving for Maine and the Yankee Conference championships. UMass coach Dick Page is hopeful his team will make a good showing.

"I have high hopes of showing well," said Page, "We'll have all our golfers available for the first time in three matches.

Packers' Coach To Speak Here

Newly appointed head coach of the champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, Phil Bengston, will be the featured speaker at a Sports Nite May 3rd at the Newman Center.

Sports Nite, sponsored by the UMass Varsity M Club, includes a social hour starting at 5:30 p.m. and a buffet banquet served at 7 p.m. Tickets are $4.00 per person and the event is open to the public.

Bengston will also show an entertaining film of the Packers in action. The new Green Bay coach was an All American tackle at Minnesota. He was an assistant coach at Missouri and Stanford before becoming line coach of the San Francisco 49'ers in 1951. In 1959 he joined Vince Lombardi as defensive coach of the Packers and developed Green Bay into the professional defensive powerhouse of the 1960's. From 1960 through 1967 the Packers were never lower than third in fewest points allowed in the NFL.

On February 1st Lombardi retired at Head Coach but remained as General Manager. His first duty was to appoint Bengston as the new Head Coach.

Requests for tickets may be sent to UMass Varsity M Club, Memorial Hall, Amherst, or may be reserved by calling 545-2317 or 545-2319.

Stunned Campus Remembers Dallas

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away." What sense is there in death when it leaves a void in our lives that can never be filled? So it is, that Bernard Dallas,, a brother in the true sense, died a most tragic and untimely death in an automobile accident on the morning of April 29, 1968 near his Philadelphia home.

A man with the world at his feet, Bernie anxiously awaited his upcoming rookie year with the New York Giants football team. And yet, this dynamic leader of men had already made in his short time with us, a life to be envied by any man three times his age.

Following a fabulous high school record and a year at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Bernie came to UMass in his sophomore year. The following three years could easily be labeled as the "Dallas Days," in which he made his mark in every phase of college life.

Captain of the football team, president of his fraternity and president of his class, his record in school can hardly be equalled. Having distinguished himself in his studies as a Restaurant and Hotel Management major, Bernie soon made his mark in the outside world, by opening and successfully managing two restaurants in the Philadelphia area and continued his football career with the Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental Football League. His goal was to play in the National Football League and had recently signed a contract to play with the New York Giants.

A man who had overcome many obstacles, Bernie Dallas met with but one defeat, when he was informed by the Army that he was unfit for military duty because of his football-damaged knees. As much as any man alive, Bernie understood and longed to uphold his country's commitment in Southeast Asia.

A man on the football field, a man in the esteem of his peers and a man in the presence of Almighty God, Bernie Dallas had left his mark on every one who had ever had the honor and privilege of knowing him. Truly a man and a credit to the upbringing of his beloved parents, the image of his vibrance, assuredness and humble sincerity lives on with us forever.

The hearts and souls of the brotherhood of Kappa Sigma join with his family at this hour. His enviable past and his perspective future make his death all the more untimely, but his memory will remain close to all of us forever. The body of Bernie Dallas has gone, but the MAN remains.

"To have known him was a pleasure, to have been associated with him a privilege." ...

"A Pearl of Great Price"--Kappa Sigma's Homage

(Bernie Dallas' fraternity offered tribute with the following letter)

A stunned campus community paused last night to pay tribute to a beloved student — athlete Bernie Dallas. Dallas was killed in an automobile accident yesterday morning.

The tragic death to a person everyone looked toward for greatness, of course hit the closest to the football staff. Dallas was an outstanding grid star at the university, earning all-conference honors.

As close to Dallas as anyone was former UMass star Dave Kelley, who played on the Redman squad with Dallas for three years, and now serves as UMass frosh coach.

Kelley said, "Of course it was a tremendous shock. Everyone was just astounded. Bernie led a full life, and lived every second of every minute."

"Bernie was loved by all, Kelley went on. "He loved to have fun and loved to work. We all respected him as a person for he was the type you could rally around."

"We all used to say," Kelley remembers, "that Bernie would be the class' first millionaire and maybe be even president someday, for whatever he put his mind to, he could have done."

Dallas' line coach, Ted Schmitt was understandibly shocked by the news." He was a great kid, someone you respected as a man."

Coaches George Karras and Robert Graham remember Dallas the man. "He was a great human being," said Karras. "We are just crushed." Graham was incredulous. "I still can't believe it. He was like a son to us all. Society has been denied the chance to see him develop into greatness. Every adjective on the positive side can be used for him."

Backfield Coach Jack Delaney worked with Dallas for his entire career. Emotionally hit, Delaney could only remark, "There is really nothing we can say that does him justice. He was probably the finest student-athlete we ever had up here. There will never be another like him."

Words really don't mean very much when something like this happens. Maybe it is better to keep one's emotions to oneself. But, as a student at UMass, you remember Bernie Dallas when he had some of the greatest afternoons on the stadium turf ever enjoyed. Probably his greatest moment occurred in his senior year. Dallas, playing linebacker on the defensive squad, blocked a Holy Cross punt and raced 26 yards for a touchdown.

Dallas was scheduled to try out for the New York Giants this fall. He had a dream for pro football stardom. He never realized that or any other dream his budding greatness could achieve.

Though Bernie Dallas will never star on the gridiron again, or fulfill the overwhelming promise he possessed, he has accomplished something few but the great can accomplish. He has made the world a better place for us all to live.

Police Recapture Columbia; Students Charge Brutality

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City police stormed five occupied Columbia University buildings in the dead of night Tuesday and broke up a week-long student sit-in, which had paralyzed the Ivy League campus.

"We anticipate a full schedule of classes Wednesday," a university spokesman announced.

However, even as he spoke, undergrad militants sought to promote an all-out strike of students and faculty. Their target was Columbia Pres. Grayson Kirk, who called in the police to smash the disruptive demonstration.

Groups roamed the littered uptorn Manhattan campus, shouting, "Kirk must go! Kirk must go!"

Kirk said he had no intention of resigning.

In the club swinging, fist fighting, pushing and kneeing that marked the violent subjugation of the Columbia demonstrators, 100 youths and 15 policemen were reported injured, none seriously. There were 628 arrests, on charges of trespassing.

The early morning assault against the barricaded and occupied buildings turned the once-placid Morningside Hts. campus into a dark and seething uproar of students, who bled, wept, screamed and denounced police as "fascists."

There were complaints of police brutality against the 600-700 students whose sit-ins began Apr. 23. Columbia has an enrollment of 25,381.

New York Times reporter Bob Thomas said he had been severely beaten by police, and added. "I observed some really savage beatings given to students."

David B. Truman, the university's Vice Pres., conceded the occupied buildings could not be retaken "without some roughing up."

However, City Human Rights Comm. William H. Booth watched the removal of about 100 Negro demonstrators from Hamilton Hall, and said he saw no police brutality. Most of the Negroes walked out as directed, their hands in the air.

Police Comm. Howard R. Leary congratulated his policemen on "an excellent job." However, Mayor John V. Lindsay asked Leary for a report on the brutality charges.

Lindsay said in a statement: "Regardless of the merits of their cause, a few hundred students cannot be allowed to impose their will on a university of some 20,000 students through destructive, illegal tactics . .

"Only after a remarkable display of patience and restraint did the university file criminal charges of trespass and formally request the N.Y. City police to remove the students who had taken over school buildings. Once the charges were filed, the police had no choice under the law but to arrest and remove the trespassing students."

Rockefeller Defeats Volpe In Mass. Primary Election

by DON EPSTEIN Managing Editor

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York did the impossible Tuesday, without even trying, by defeating favorite son candidate, Gov. John A. Volpe in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary.

Rockefeller, who announced his candidacy for president several hours after the polls had opened in the state, captured the state's 34 Republican delegates votes.

Late Results

At 8 a.m. this morning with 95 percent of the precincts reporting Rockefeller led with 30,514; Volpe-29,182; Nixon-25,705; Reagan-1,813. Also receiving Republican write-in votes were McCarthy-9,393 and Kennedy-1,378.

The New York Governor, who said yesterday morning that he would not enter any primaries, won without having his name on the ballot. The only officially listed candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination was Governor Volpe, who ran as a favorite son candidate in order to hold the Mass. delegation in unity and to possibly foster his vice-presidential ambitions. Voters had to write in Rockefeller's name.

Also receiving write-in votes on the Republican ticket were Richard Nixon, Ronald Reagan, Eugene McCarthy, and Robert Kennedy. Rockefeller won the election without even stating his views on the problems confronting America today, including Vietnam.

It had been speculated that a big victory for Volpe, which most political analysts believed would happen, would spotlight the Mass. Governor as the most lucrative vice-presidential candidate. Yesterday's defeat in his home state almost kills any chance of the Governor getting into the national political picture.

Democratic Story

In the Democratic Presidential contest Sen. Eugene McCarthy was the only name officially listed on the ballot, and he walked away with the 72 Democratic delegate votes. These votes by law are now committed to him through the first ballot in the convention to be held in Chicago this summer.

At 8 a.m. this morning with 95 percent of the vote tabulated McCarthy-114,183; Kennedy-62,-172; Humphrey - 40,779; and

DVP Lecturer Calls For Socialism

"Christianity, Capitalism, and Communism" was the subject of DVP speaker Dr. Martin Niemoeller last night.

Appearing under the sponsorship of the United Christian Foundation of the University, Dr. Niemoeller told his audience that today the world (economically) "is on the way to socialism. We can't help it."

Baird, UMass Group March to Capitol; Present Petitions on Birth Control

BOSTON — A group of UMass students marched on the State House yesterday to protest state laws prohibiting the distribution of birth control devices and information.

The group had planned to present petitions collected on campus to Gov. John A. Volpe. However, Volpe was speaking at a luncheon on the other side of town. Instead, a delegation from the group had a fifteen minute conference with Volpe's chief aid.

The march began about noon at the Boston University campus with 75 people and proceeded to the Capitol building. At the head of the group were Stafford Sheehan of the UMass Parent's Aid Society and Bill Baird, nationally known birth control crusader, whose speech early this month sparked the campus' interest in the issue.

At the State House the protestors mounted the steps and Baird told them, "The laws are unfair and we have to change them . . . the poor people in this state should no longer have to suffer with unwanted children."

Then a delegation was chosen to go to the Governor's office to present the petitions which contain over 3,500 signatures.

The delegation included: Stafford Sheehan, Karen Morton, Dana Tibow and Helen Madden, all UMass students. Baird accompanied them.

Once in the office, they were informed that Gov. Volpe was speaking at a luncheon at Fanuel Hall, but that his Chief Secretary, Edward T. Martin would see them in the governor's office.

Miss Madden presented Martin with the petitions and he assured her that he would give them to Volpe and relay the group's feel-

Rockefeller Reverses Position, Plans to Actively Campaign

by RELMAN MORIN

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, reversing his previous position, threw himself into contention Tuesday for the Republican Presidential nomination and vowed to fight Richard M. Nixon for it, "right up to the last vote."

"I now commit myself to seeking this office—and to serve our nation—with all my heart and mind and will," he said. Rockefeller's expressions ranged from jut-jawed determination to breezy optimism as he made his announcement and then replied to questions in a news conference.

Just 40 days ago, in another news conference, the New York governor took himself out of the race for the nomination. A number of men who persuaded him to change his mind were present Tuesday.

In a conversation at his official residence later Rockefeller said to a reporter, "The country has changed. Never in history has so much changed in 5 weeks. Now I am giving the people an option."

At one point in his announcement, Rockefeller said he has been edging toward his decision to run over the past 10 days or so.

He said:

"...after discussions with so many of those who are present in this room, Mr. Sen. Thurston Morton and Mr. William E. Miller, only this weekend they came back from an extensive trip in which they felt and expressed to me their deep conviction that that was the right course of action, that this was in the interests of the party and that it was the desire of the people."

To a question about the handling of recent civil disorders in Washington and other major cities, Rockefeller replied:

"I feel that on the whole this country, going through a very difficult situation, is handling the situation with wisdom, maturity and with a sense of values for human dignity which is inherent in our Judeo-Christian heritage, and which is the essence of the concept of the Founding Fathers."

GOV. ROCKEFELLER

Reverend Jeffrey Campbell of the Unitarian Church in Amherst will be a guest speaker at the Student Leaders Colloquium to be held at 7 p.m. in the Cage.

Speeches to Highlight Student Leaders Colloquium

Tonight at 7:00 in Curry Hicks Cage, the Class of 1968 will present Student Leaders Colloquium —an event which is free of admission to all concerned students, faculty and administrators.

Student Leaders Colloquium, an event planned and formulated by a concerned committee of students, will present three distinguished speakers: Dean Dwight Allen, Reverend Jeffrey Campbell and Dean William F. Field. Dean Field will be speaking on the role of students and organizations in an expanding university community.

They will be stressing increased student responsibility and expanded roles which students and organizations should consider and possibly adopt as an integral part of their overall purpose.

The committee of a diverse representation of students, decided that a major overhauling of the traditional Student Leaders Night was in order for various reasons. They stressed that honorary societies, which are normally honored during this event, today comprise a rather small, but significant, representation of this large university's student leaders and that basically the old event had been geared for a smaller agricultural college.

As a result, they are preparing an event which shall pertain to the University Community as a whole and possibly present a wider scope of interests and outlooks with which they can apply their activity.

The first of the speakers will be the rather outspoken and controversial Dr. Dwight Allen, Dean of the School of Education.

The second speaker will be the Reverend Jeffrey Campbell. Reverend Campbell is minister of the Unitarian Society of Amherst.

As Dean of Students he is responsible for all extracurricular activities for all graduate ings to the chief executive.

Baird then asked Martin if it would be possible to have Volpe take a stand on his case, which is pending before the State Supreme Court. Martin replied, "It would be inappropriate for anyone in public office to comment on anything pending before the court."

Baird said that the group wanted to have Volpe take a stand on his case because "If I win, all you who, live here will win."

In reply, Martin said, "I think you're putting your emphasis on the wrong end." He suggested that group would be more effective if they worked on the legislators themselves, who have already defeated two reform laws this year, one the so-called "Linsky Bill." Martin said that the main opposition to the Linsky bill came from the Democratic side of the House and he cited sittistics to prove his point. He laid the fault with the Democrats who, he claimed, have been killing most Republican bills because of the governor's stand on reapportionment of the House, which would mean a loss of Democratic seats.

Martin said, "Speaker of the House Robert Quinn is the only one who is going to change their 'no-votes'."

"We thought if Gov. Volpe would show the way . . ." answered Baird. "But that isn't the way it's going to happen," said Martin sticking to his argument that the Democratic legislators have been blocking the reform bills.

Martin told the group to put pressure on their local representative. "The people in his district have to get the message across."

"What you are faced with is getting through to the individual legislators . . . One of the greatest ways to influence legislators is to write letters to the local papers," Martin told them.

The delegation thanked Martin for his time and left.

Outside on the steps, Baird once again addressed the marchers and told them briefly what Martin had said and urged the students to "pressure the Democrats." He continued, "It's a case of your political men not responding."

As the group prepared to return to Amherst, Baird told them, "I would not let your thrust today die."

pied since the beginning of the demonstration. Students left it with cigarette-charred rugs, overturned desks and chairs and a litter of blankets and half-consumed fruit.

In other occupied buildings, furniture was overturned or broken, and empty whisky and wine bottles left behind. In Mathematics Hall, someone had painted on the walls: "Lenin Won! Fidel Won! We Will Win."

The demonstrations were sponsored by white SDS and black Students for an Afro-American Society.

The Negroes, backed by the white group, protested construction of an $11.5-million university gym on 2.1 acres of Morningside Pk., a public area which separates Columbia from Harlem. They joined neighborhood activists in contending the gym deprived the Harlem community of a needed part of the 30-acre park.

The white students also called upon Columbia to sever ties with the Inst. for Defense Analysis, a research group which they said was furthering the Vietnam war.

Midway in the demonstration, as its crippling effects spread, the university agreed to a temporary suspension of the gym project. The demonstrators then demanded total amnesty as their price for ending the sit-ins. Kirk already was committed to disciplinary action against them for violating college regulations.

shall not survive" unless there is a "common world-wide system of planning, production and distribution."

The German churchman and Christian leader did not say that by socialism he necessarily meant strict control of the means of production, but rather the system and its extent would depend on the needs of the individual country.

In his lecture Dr. Niemoeller equated communism with socialism and said that he believes capitalism is becoming more socialist and socialism is headed toward the principles of capitalism. "They are moving toward each other," he added.

Niemoeller presented his views on the fundamental concepts of capitalism and communism by saying that it comes down to the basic question of should a government or economic system forget the individual or the whole of society.

According to the German theologian capitalism embraces a "selfish nature" and concern for individual welfare above others while communism is based on the "common cause" and cannot ex-

However, with his 114,183 McCarthy won another spectacular victory as he outpolled John F. Kennedy's Massachusetts Presidential Primary results in 1960. It is interesting to note that Sen. Edward Kennedy, a delegate to the national convention from Mass., must now legally vote for McCarthy on the first ballot.

Concert Assoc. Sponsors Bass-Baritone Warfield

Distinguished American bass-baritone William Warfield will sing at the University of Massachusetts, Friday, May 3, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

One of America's leading vocal artists, he has toured the world, including six stints as a cultural ambassador of the United States.

Mr. Warfield, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music with a B.A. and an M.A., made his recital debut in New York Town Hall in 1950 which propelled him into the front rank of concert artists. Each season since then, he has filled a heavily booked schedule of recital and orchestral engagements.

In his recital at Carnegie Hall in 1965, he was acclaimed for his rich voice and magnificent artistry. Critics noted the "technical skill" which enables him "to do just about anything with his voice."

Mr. Warfield made his New York debut with "Porgy and Bess" and has done both the stage and film production of "Show Boat." He also performed in television in Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures."

Mr. Warfield has recorded several albums, the best known of which is his version of "Ol' Man River." An indication of his popularity and recognition as an oratorio soloist is the fact that he has recorded Handel's "Messiah" with the New York Philharmonic under Bernstein and with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Ormandy. He has also recorded Mozart's "Requiem" with the New York Philharmonic under the late Bruno Walter.

His appearance at the University is sponsored by the Concert Association. Tickets are available at the Student Union box office.

Federal Mediators, IBTW Will Meet to Try to End Phone Strike

BOSTON (AP)—Although about 70 per cent of operators stayed off the job Tuesday, the New England Telephone Co. reported service almost normal.

Meetings were scheduled Wednesday with federal mediators in an attempt to end the strike begun Friday in five states by 13,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers.

The IBTW demands a $20 per week wage increase and retention of the promotion system, while management wants to give a $12 increase and introduce a system which IBTW says will mean promotion by supervisor's recommendation.

President Gerald J. Walsh of the IBTW said it was "too bad that the company is leaving the problem of resolving the strike up to federal mediators."

A company spokesman said eight minor cases of suspected sabotage were reported Tuesday, bringing to 30 the number of cases of damage the company feels was deliberate. So far no claims have been made for a $5,000 reward for apprehension of vandals.

The union has denied all reports of sabotage and blamed it on company incompetence.

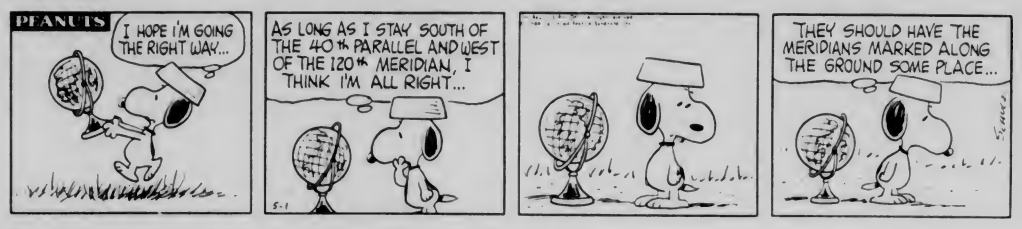
Negotiations continued Tuesday between the company and the New England Federation of Telephone Traffic Employees, which represents the 11,500 operators. That union is not on strike.

Phi Sig Runs Slave Auction For Muscular Distrophy Drive

In conjunction with their National chapter, Phi Sigma Delta is conducting a drive for Muscular Distrophy. Friday, May 3 at 4:00 by the Campus Pond a slave market will be set up with sorority girls to be auctioned off by auctioneer Robert Band Esq.

At the same time a picnic will be held to sell hotdogs and cokes. All proceeds will go to the Muscular Distrophy drive.

For the past year and a half Phi Sigma Delta has been the Muscular Distrophy Headquarters. Last semester they collected six hundred dollars by going house to house in Amherst.



Poetry Reading Comes Out of Nazi WWII Camps

"Poems from the Holocaust" is a group of poems from and about the Nazi concentration camps of the Second World War that will be presented this afternoon at 4:00 in the Worcester Room of the Student Union. This last reading in the "Oral Messages" series will be presented by Professor Normand Berlin of the English department.

Although the output of poetry from the camps themselves is tragically small, it is enormously moving, expressing both despair and hope with a power and immediacy seldom reached except in deeply felt poetry. Anyone believing literary art to be largely concerned with trivial or overly abstract matters might change his mind.

Professor Berlin, who specializes in Elizabethan and Tudor drama and is a member of the Continuing Education Committee, is also the author of The Base String, a recently published book studying underworld elements in late Renaissance English drama.

The public is cordially invited.

Discrimination in "the Houses"

Editor's Note: The following is not intended to single out any particular fraternity as currently practicing discrimination. It is to be seen as representative of some segment of the Greek system.

(The following account is true.)

While hitchhiking home last weekend, I was picked up by a man in his late twenties. Following the usual preliminary talk, ("Where you going? Where you comin' from?" etc.) he asked if I was in a fraternity. Answering negatively, I questioned his reason for inquiring.

"I went to New Hampshire and was in Llama Ki Elpha."

"Really. We have a Llama Ki at UMass. They p.o.'d a lot of people a few weeks ago."

"How was that?"

"Well, following King's assasination, about a thousand students marched in his memory. When we passed Llama Ki Elpha, about a dozen buffoons were hanging out the windows yelling 'White Power' and other ignorant phrases."

"I'm prejudiced, and I admit it. There are colored people and there are niggers," he flatly stated. "In fact, one of my best friends in the service was a colored fellow. But most of 'm are niggers."

"There's white trash, too," I replied.

"True, but I lived with niggers in the service. Have you ever lived with 'em?"

"I've got to admit I haven't had a great deal of contact with them; but, under their living conditions, I might act the same as them. I can't condone all their rioting, and it's nice to think that you wouldn't do it yourself, but you can't be certain."

Silence.

"Getting back to Llama Ki Elpha," I continued, "there've been rumors that they've got a clause against admitting Negroes to their house. Is it true?"

"Well, they had to eliminate the clause from their charter in '58 'cause it's unconstitutional. But now the national requires a snapshot of each new brother; if he's unacceptable to the national, he can't get into the local. 'Course if he's a light nigger, it's hard to tell. (short chuckle)"

"I've heard the rumors ever since I was a freshman," I said, "but there are so few Negroes at UMass that no one could really prove anything. There've been rumors about a few other houses, fraternities and sororities, but I'm not sure which ones. Next year, though, things could really start popping; about 120 Negroes have been accepted for next year's freshman class.

"I'll get off at the next exit.

"Thanks for the lift."

Those Opposed

Dissent, it may be, is essential to the mental health of a society, democratic or otherwise.

Of course it's unpopular. None of us likes to be disagreed with. Our opinions, as close to us as families or money, are extensions of our dear personalities.

But what happens without dissent?

Consider the Germans, Japanese and Italians under the dictatorships which preceded World War II. Iron rules and censorship held them fast. Those who questioned government policy went into concentration camps. The rest got the idea. The result was that all the people went crazy together, to their eventual sorrow and defeat.

And dissent is not necessarily conflict, as we see it nowadays in riots and various kinds of disorder.

It can make positive contributions.

Suppose a committee is given the job of planning a public building. It finally produces a pretty picture.

But an unpleasant little man in the corner says:

"Where's the chimney? Where are the front steps?"

That's why we have government by committees. The members are supposed to rub ideas with each other. If all thought alike, the office boy could handle any project.

Those who have read their American history see no reason to be surprised by present manifestations of dissent. The Boston Tea Party, now sanctified, was illegal. So was the American Revolution, until success made it otherwise. The underground railway, which enabled slaves to escape through the North to Canada, was illegal. (Human slavery was legal.) During Prohibition, dissenters patronized bootleggers, while complaints about violations of law and order were louder than they are now.

Indeed, dissent is inevitable. Families argue. Children can't get together on the rules of their games. While spectators cheer or boo, the ball player kicks and gets thumbed out by the umpire. In Congress there is impassioned partisan oratory, as in town meeting or the State House, and in a Presidential election opinions are so divided that one candidate may win by a fraction of a single percentage point.

And it often happens that dissent is the egg from which, after a time, a majority view is hatched.

Senate Proposal About Dorms for One-class Housing

To the editor:

It would appear that the Student Senate has managed to confuse a very important issue and, at the same time to act totally in contradiction to the wants of the University Student Body.

The issue involved is the Hartwell motion passed by the Senate Sunday night which opposed "the administrative establishment of residence halls or significant portions thereof which are open only to members of one class." The contradiction stems from the Collegian report that this motion would "prohibit an all-freshman dormitory which is reportedly under consideration."

First, allow us to present some facts, which it is now evident, the Senate did not have available on Sunday night, concerning the all-freshman dormitory "under consideration." The all-freshman dorm will be a reality next fall among the new dormitories in Southwest.

These will form a pioneering project in residential education called PROJECT 10, in which some 270 freshman will attend at least 40% of their classes together in their residential halls. These classes, in English, history, government, economics, philosophy and sociology will be taught by faculty who have offices in the residence halls.

The approach is one of getting these new students totally involved in their courses, generating discussions about their academic work by having students living together and going to some of the same classes together. The counselors are to be specially chosen "Undergraduate Teaching Residents," many of whom were among the original creators of the project. One of their functions will be to act as catalysts to this continuous idea exchange.

The really important fact is that this project was initiated and carried as far as it has gone by students. They gained the support of faculty and administration only by showing that they had a workable and worthwhile idea which would be of benefit to the University.

A year of work has gone into this project and now the Student Senate proposes to attempt to ruin it. This is a pioneering project which will see the addition of a number of interdisciplinary courses in the next few years. This is a major step toward what the student body (and the Student Senate) has been screaming for, curriculum innovation.

These students, living together and studying together will be discussing and criticizing their professors and courses. This may well cause a reevaluation of some courses and, therefore, changes, which will apply to the courses on campus as well. And yet the Student Senate has acted against this.

Perhaps not enough is known about Project 10. Certainly more information should be available to the student body. The Collegian can help in this. The Senate must reevaluate this motion after it reviews the subject with more insight into the repercussions of such proposals.

Students Complain of Security Police's Inefficiency

To the editor:

We would like to issue a complaint against the Security Police on campus. This past Saturday night our dorm was invaded by three fraternity "gentlemen" who proceeded to yell incoherently over the intercom, harrass the housemother, steal a girl's wallet, write on the wall, destroy a bicycle, and finally leave.

The Security Police were called and immediate service was promised. It has now been three hours and where are they?

It is now Sunday and a new situation has arisen. During a baseball game, girls vs. boys, a friend of ours fell and broke her ankle. Help was sought at the Security Police Station, the door was locked, no one was around. Does security take a rest on Sunday?

Finally, they arrived 25 minutes later, and then did not know what to do for her. Fortunately, one of the boys was a physical education major who could direct the "Security Police" in the rescue. Is that what we are being "protected" by?

Rockefeller, Reagan Coalition To Stop Nixon?

An AP News Analysis
By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's entry into active competition for the GOP presidential nomination points toward a coalition of convenience with California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The necessity of preventing former Vice President Richard M. Nixon from sweeping to a first ballot nomination at the Miami Beach, Fla., convention may force New York's Rockefeller and Reagan into a cagy embrace even though they are presumed to occupy opposing poles in Republican policy thinking.

Between them Rockefeller and Reagan are expected to control the bulk of their states' 176 votes toward the 667 needed for the nomination.

Only by sticking together and attracting favorite sons to their coalition banner can they hope to force the multiple roll calls which could swing the nomination to one of them—or possibly to a dark horse.

Reagan is strong in the South where Nixon's most compact strength lies and where Rockefeller could expect little more than a pleasant greeting from party workers.

The chief stumbling block to team action is that neither governor can admit publicly he is clubbing with the other to stop Nixon.

Miss Kay B. Leining of Sheffield, Massachusetts dairy princess, presents coveted H. P. Hood Premier Chowman Award to senior Edward Gould, at conclusion of the University of Massachusetts Stockbridge School 33rd annual Bay State livestock classic. Dr. Richard C. Foley, professor of veterinary animal sciences, assists Miss Leining.

It would be politically unseemly, for example, for Rockefeller's backers to give public support to Reagan in the Nebraska and Oregon primaries, where the California governor is on the ballot against Nixon and the New York governor is not.

Rockefeller obviously is going to depend on Republican governors to back his bid for the nomination. But they are not easily herded in any single direction, as they have demonstrated repeatedly.

Some politicians think that Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio might be induced to back Rockefeller. But the canny Rhodes is likely to wait around for the New Yorker to demonstrate that he has a good chance for the nomination before he makes any commitments.

Nixon has some governors on his side too, and some potential favorite sons. Sen. John G. Tower, who expects to be the first ballot choice of Texas' 56-vote delegation, has made it clear he prefers Nixon or Reagon over Rockefeller.

Prof. Unterecker Speaks on Crane May 2, Mem. Hall

Professor John E. Unterecker, biographer of Hart Crane, will speak on Crane's "For the Marriage of Faustus and Helen" as guest lecturer of the University of Massachusetts Graduate English Society Thursday, May 2, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Prof. Unterecker is chairman of the committee on graduate work in English at Columbia University. His "Voyager: A Life of Hart Crane" will be published next year by Farrar, Straus & Giroux. Unterecker's poems have appeared in the Massachusetts Reveiw, Sewanee Review, Antioch Review, Transatlantic Review, The Reporter, Shenandoah and other magazines. An edition of his poems, "The Persons and Objects in the Room," will be published in 1969.

The public is invited to the lecture.

ist unless the idea of "charity comes alive."

The two economic systems have manifested themselves in the ideas of private property and common property. This division has in turn led to conflict and diversity in the church said Niemoeller, as the question is raised as to which system is more Christian.

Niemoeller denounced this conflict saying that the type of property owning or economic system may vary according to circumstances and that the real question is "what system serves humanity. Both have their temptations."

Dr. Niemoeller expressed his additional belief that "Communism is much nearer to Christianity than Capitalism," because according to early Christian teachings the "real meaning of human life is not to fulfill the self but service to others." And it is this service to fellow mankind which the German theologian regards as the prime concept of Communism.

The Magic of Bergman Ends With "The Silence" on May 5

"Audiences will find Bergman at his most powerful, Ingrid Thulin and Gunnel Lindblom giving performances of great fascination. They move through a world ready for war, a strange, unfamiliar world. They are individuals, irreducible, irreconcilable, horribly mangled in their emotion, fears and loves.

Ingmar Bergman holds them up to the light and to the dark in these wonderful, marvelous, shuddering performances that mean so much and so little—everything you are able to see in these flickering mirrors of humanity in trouble, living, traveling, dying and moving on. Again Bergman calls the tune on life, as it were, thinking out loud, making films out loud."

And so Archer Winsten, of the New York Post, understands "The Silence" of the great Bergman who has taken up habitation in Mahar auditorium this semester—as a guest of the Orchard Hill. This last, magnificent drama of his trilogy will be shown as the last movie of the series—in Mahar at the University this coming Sunday, May 5th. There will be two showings, one at 7:00 and 9:00. Tickets are just $.50 per person. So do come and "think out loud" with Ingmar Bergman's great film "The Silence."

LBJ Wants Quick Ratification For Plan to Create Paper Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson launched a drive Tuesday for a quick U. S. ratification of a plan for paper gold—the first basic change in international currency in more than two decades.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson said the United States, as a leader in the five years of negotiations which led to the plan, should be one of the first nations to ratify it.

He called the plan a landmark and a historic step and said failure to approve it "could turn the clock backward to the dark days of restrictive economic policies, narrow interests, empty ports and idle men."

If ratified by 65 nations with an 80 per cent weighted vote in the International Monetary Fund, the agreement will represent the first basic change in IMF operations since the Fund was established by the Bretton Woods conference of 1944.

The new money would take the form of a bookkeeping entry on government and IMF books and would be called officially a Special Drawing Right, or SDR in the Fund. Individual citizens would never see it.

It would be created when and as needed to supplement conventional world money-gold, dollars and British pounds—and the United States would receive one-fourth of any money created.

Redmen Bow to UConn, 2-0, As Bats Go Into Hibernation

Huskies' Drummond Fires Four-Hitter

by HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

STORRS, Conn. — A walk, a Texas Leaguer over first base, a wild pitch, and a line single to right produced two second-inning runs for UConn and sophomore righty Bruce Drummond made sure that they held up with a four-hitter as the Huskies edged the Redmen baseball squad, 2-0, yesterday in an important Yankee Conference duel on Christian Field.

The visitors lost a run in the top half of the second when UMass second baseman Don Ferron belted a shot to right center which landed on the top of the fence and bounced back onto the field as Ferron raced into third. Inches more and the Redmen would have broken the scoring ice. The runner was left stranded as Ted Mareno struck out and losing hurler John Kitchen flied out.

In the home second, catcher Bill Flood walked and went to third as If Paul Gruner's blooper over first landed safely. Kitchen then unloaded a wild pitch, scoring Flood and advancing Gruner to second. A line shot to right by centerfielder and hoop guard Jack Melen brought home footballer Gruner with the game's final tally.

A third-inning threat by the Redmen was in vain. Leftfielder Bob Hansen and catcher Tony Chinappi walked with two outs but were left stranded as cf Steve Rogers' hard smash down the left field line at the 340-mark was caught by Gruner.

Consecutive UConn singles by Fred Malan and Bud Pepin had Kitchen in trouble in the third but a neatly-executed double play, DiSarcina - to Ferron - to - Ellerbrook, got him out of the inning.

Leading off the fifth, Ellerbrook hit a slow roller to second and umpire Ed Marino called him out at first in a very close play which was hotly disputed by the Redmen. Marino's classic quote to the UMass bench was, "I admire your enthusiasm, boys, but he was out by half a step."

Senior lefty Dave Katz relieved Kitchen on the mound at the start of the seventh. The Huskies loaded the sacks in the eighth but were unable to add to their lead. George Greer, leading hitter in the Conference the past two seasons, slapped a single past 3b Steve Stanford, but was thrown out by Chinappi trying to steal second. Flood's walk was followed by a single to right by Gruner. Melen then bounced one to Stanford which the third baseman fielded quickly but his throw was wide and pulled Ellerbrook off the bag. The return throw to DiSarcina, covering third, was not in time to nab Flood. This call brought a look of disbelief from DiSarcina and prompted Dick Bergquist to come racing out of the dugout for a heated exchange with home plate umpire Joe Rafferty.

In the UMass ninth, Don Ferron walked with one out but Alex Vyce, who had doubled as a pinch-hitter for Mareno in the sixth, hit into a 4-6-3 double play to end the contest.

JOHN KITCHEN
Loser in tight battle.

The usually swinging Redmen bats have now produced a mere two runs in the last 23 innings since the three-run splurge in the fourth inning of the 5-4 setback to URI.

The game was played in two hours before an estimated crowd of about 1100 on a beautiful day for baseball.

Kitchen's mark now falls to 3-2 with his second straight loss. The Redmen are now 8-7-1 overall and 4-2 in the Conference. UConn's triumph ups their slate to 7-6, with a 3-1 league mark. The squad travels to Holy Cross today for a 3 p.m. tilt. Tomorrow the team leaves for Orono, Maine for a weekend encounter with Conference rival Maine. Friday's starting time is 2:30 and Saturday at 1 p.m.

AN APOLOGY

A glaring mistake was to be found on yesterday's sport page. Referring to the two articles concerning the tragic death of former UMass footballer, Bernie Dallas; their respective headlines got mixed up. "'A Pearl of Great Price' — Kappa Sigma's Homage" is the headline which belongs to the first of the two stories. The headline "Stunned Campus Remembers Dallas," goes with the second article.

Lacrossemen Invade Amherst for Vital Contest

WHERE THE ACTION IS!—A goal attempt by UMass' Kevin O'Conner draws the attention of three Dartmouth stickmen, typifying the fierce competition in and around the nets. More of the same action is promised as the Redmen fight Amherst today.

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Any crosstown lacrosse battle between UMass and Amherst is the highlight game for both games. But today's game at Amherst takes on even added significance. Amherst is the defending New England champion and undefeated in New England play this year, while the Redmen have charged through five straight impressive wins.

Amherst has won four in a row, its only loss of the year being to Farleigh Dickinson on the Lord Jeffs' spring trip. Amherst has since defeated Tufts, 8-1, Trinity, 17-4, M.I.T. 13-2, and Middlebury, 8-2.

The Lord Jeffs have 16 lettermen from last year's undefeated team, led by co-captains and defensemen Jeff Miller and Jack Widness. Along with sophomore Bill Clift, these three form a big and strong defense.

Amherst is also strong in the goal with Steve Koch doing the job. Koch was All-New England last year and an honorable mention All-American.

The attack also has fine strength. Sophomore Chip Norris joins last year's leading scorer Evan Bollinger and 6'7 Chris Brown. A strong and deep midfield is led by Larry Jones, All-New England pick Jim Taylor and Hilton Foster.

Last year UMass was outplayed in an all-around performance, 9-4. The Redmen lost the year before also although outplaying the Lord Jeffs.

UMass coach Dick Garber sees a great game tomorrow. He respects Amherst's ability saying, "They are the best drilled team we play. If you make a mistake against them you'll be in trouble."

Garber anticipates using the same lineup that has played so well all season. That is Walt Alessi, Tom Tufts and Bill Devore at defense, attackmen Kevin O'Connor, Gary Vassar and Bill Sinclair and goalie Mark Schlossberg. However, Garber hinted at a few new wrinkles in the Redmen's play.

But Garber added, "We can't beat them by finess but by doing what we do best. If we play like we have for the first five games, we'll be all right."

An added feature to the game is a trophy donated by the lacrosse alumni of both schools and given to the winner of the game. UMass hasn't seen the trophy for a couple of years.

Gymnastics, Wrestling Elect Captains

Gymnastics and wrestling held their annual banquets and announced next year's captains at respective affairs; gymnastics being held Thursday and wrestling last night.

Elected co-captains by the gymnastics team were senior Dick DelGallo and junior Mike Kasavana. DelGallo had an outstanding season the past winter, capped by an eighth place finish in the rings in the NCAA championships. He received an award at the banquet for the highest events average, a 9.11 in 11 meets while competing on the rings.

Kasavana was a versatile performer all season, specializing essentially on the trampoline and rings. Kasavana was awarded the team's most valuable player award at the banquet.

Other awards given during the affair included the 9.0 club award to Joe Reed, awards for 100% to Dave March and Toby Kasavana, and most-improved award to Clarence Fraser on the side horse and George Seibert on the rings.

Lettermen presentations for three years included, Fred Babakian, Steve Brown, Bob LeClair and Toby Kasavana; two years to Tom Adams, DelGallo, March, Fraser, and Seibert and to sophomores Joe Godwin, Mike Kasavan and Reed.

The wrestling banquet, held at Look Park, could very well have been termed the Gene Paltrineri show. Paltrineri was elected captain for the 1968-1969 season. He also collected the most valuable award, the Max Rappaport award for the most pins, and the Greek Wrestling Award for all-around ability, voted by the team and given also to a freshman. Tom Young won the frosh award.

A jug trophy was presented to Billy Goodwin for being the hardest worker and senior awards were presented to Ernie Smith and Fred Fitzpatrick in other presentations.

Bosox Bow, 7-6, To Minnesota And Boswell

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Dave Boswell cracked a homer and a run - producing double before needing relief help from Al Worthington Tuesday in the Minnesota Twins 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox for a sweep of a two-game series.

Boswell picked up his third victory in four decisions as Worthington bailed him out after the Red Sox had closed to within one run in the sixth inning. The loss, Boston's third straight, was charged to starter Dick Ellsworth.

Celtics Top Lakers, 120-117, Behind Nelson and Havlicek

BOSTON (AP) —The Boston Celtics blew a 14-point fourth-quarter lead and then bounced back behind Don Nelson and John Havlicek for a 120-117 overtime victory over Los Angeles Tuesday night, moving within one triumph of regaining the National Basketball Association championship.

Nelson scored five of his 26 points in the five-minute extra session in helping the Celtics take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 series, scheduled to resume in Los Angeles Thursday night.

Havlicek, going the distance once again like a true marathoner, hit for four crucial points in the overtime, finishing with 31.

The Celtics fell behind 115-113 with less than two minutes left but Larry Siegfried, who had only two field goals, grabbed a rebound for a lay-up to tie the count 115-all.

Nelson then took a rebound and went up through a traffic jam under the basket to put in a shot, sending the Celtics ahead 117-115.

Jerry West banged a jump shot to tie the score at 117 with 56 seconds left, but it was the Lakers' last gasp.

Havlicek hit on a jump shot with 38 seconds remaining. Then Boston player-coach Bill Russell blocked a shot by Elgin Baylor and Nelson picked off the loose ball and was fouled. He converted the free throw and time ran out on the Lakers.

Boston led 108-102 with 1:15 remaining but baskets by Baylor and West in the final 35 seconds sent the game into overtime.

Russell contributed 22 points, Bailey Howell 20 and Sam Jones 16.

West, playing with a heavily-taped left ankle, hit for 35 points in topping all scorers. Baylor had 24.

Gov. Rockefeller Contends American Policy Erroneous

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller called Wednesday for closer contacts with Communist China and the de-"Americanization" of the war in Vietnam.

"We should encourage contact and communication for the good of us both," he said. "This could significantly affect the whole future of our relations with the Communist world."

GOV. ROCKEFELLER

Rockefeller said American policies and methods, militarily and politically, have been erroneous. He pointed out that Hanoi, Moscow and Peking have "easily matched" the increase of American forces. He declared the pacification program "failed to attain its objectives."

Rockefeller continued, "From all this, the great majority of our people have rationally concluded that there can be no purely military solution."

A crowd of several hundred shrieking, banner-waving college students and young people massed in front of the entrance to the hotel where he spoke. They were like the groups that habitually greet Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York.

More than 1,000 persons attended the luncheon, filling the tables and overflowing into the galleries above. They rose, applauding, when the governor and his wife entered.

His speech drew applause only once—when he commended President Johnson for trying to open negotiations for peace with North Vietnam. "He has acted courageously in his initiative in seeking a just peace." Rockefeller said. "He has acted courageously in the national interest. He deserves the prayerful support of all of us."

Rockefeller's central theme was that events in the past two decades have outstripped American policy, that American diplomatic, military and economic concepts are out of date.

Without spelling out his exact meaning, Rockefeller appeared to favor a role in South Vietnamese "political life" for the National Liberation Front — the Vietcong.

He recommended convening a broadly representative conference of Asians, from Japan to Iran, to discuss political and economic problems without waiting for peace in Vietnam.

Weinerman, Levco Not Guilty; Consider More Legal Action

by RONALD J. LABRECQUE
News Editor

NORTHAMPTON—A Hampshire County Superior Court jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Stanley M. Levco and Chester S. Weinerman here yesterday. The two UMass seniors were appealing a decision of the Hampshire District Court which had found them guilty on charges of drunkenness stemming from an October 13, 1967 incident when they were arrested outside the Village Inn by Amherst Police.

The three day trial, reportedly the longest concerning drunkenness in Hampshire County Superior Court history, was highlighted by the testimony of a "surprise witness" for the defense. Colleen Hollhan, '69, gave testimony conflicting with that given by one of the arresting officers concerning an alleged conversation between she and the officer on the day following the arrest.

Defense Attorney David Burres, in an attempt to prove that Weinerman and Levco had been the victims of "mistaken judgment," submitted to the jury that the actions of the defendants at the time of the arrest were "consistent with their personalities" and were not the result of intoxication. Hollhan's conversation with arresting officer Richard L. Buckley substantiated

Burres' trgument as she testified that Buckley stated that immediately following the arrest he "knew they were not guilty" but felt it was too late to act otherwise.

A report of the arrest and an editorial comment written by Weinerman and Levco which appeared in the Daily Collegian (Oct. 16, 1967) brought campus-wide attention to the incident resulting in a number of similar incidents being reported by students to the editorial board of the newspaper. At that time Weinerman, who was Editor-in-Chief of the paper, and Levco stated that they hoped to make an issue of the incident in order to make people aware of what they felt were "injustices to students" made by the Amherst Police Department.

Testimony by witnesses for the defense, including James Collins, President of the Student Senate and Frances Boronski, Vice-President of the Student Senate, who were present at the time of the arrest, attempted to conclude that Weinerman and Levco were acting in a manner

Dr. Holesovsky Lectures on "Revolution in Czechoslovakia"

by NEAL NOVACK
Staff Reporter

"If the Czechoslovakian democratic revolution succeeds, it will be studied by historians as much as the Russian revolution of October, 1917," declared Dr. Vaclov Holesovsky.

Dr. Holesovsky, Assistant Professor of the Economics Department at the University, was guest speaker in one of a series of Great Decisions programs held last night in the main lounge of Noah Webster House on Orchard Hill.

Dr. Holesovsky was introduced by Vince DeAndrea, an instructor from the Economics Department, to an audience of some seventy people including government and economic students. Dr. Luther Allen, Associate Professor of the Government Department, was also present.

Alluding to the demonstration of international solidarity on May Day (May 1st), Dr. Holesovsky connected this annual event with the present international fight for freedom and democracy in Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Holesovsky excused the general unattention given to Czechoslovakian events by citing recent overshadowing events such as the Tet offensive, the gold crisis and the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Senate Passes Bill Concerning Alcoholic Beverages on Campus

A bill calling for the liberalization of University regulations concerning alcoholic beverages on campus has been passed by the Student Senate and is being forwarded to the University administration. The administration is expected to approve the bill and turn it over to the University trustees with recommendations.

The major effects of the bill on the student body would be twofold: first is the proposed creation of a "21 Room" in the Student Union where beer and wine would be served to those students 21 and over. (No hard liquor would be served as only beer and wine licenses are available). The Alcoholic Beverages Committee of the Student Senate has proposed tentative hours of 4 p.m.-12 midnight for the "21 Room".

The second major effect of the bill would be to legalize drinking in dormitory, fraternity and sorority rooms (with doors closed) and at closed social events.

The Committee has proposed two amendments to the Student Code of Conduct concerning use and consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus.

This first proposed amendment is that students are "strictly liable for disfunctional behavior resulting from, or associated with, alcoholic beverages including excessive noise. Such related offenses constituting a misuse of alcohol shall be treated more seriously than otherwise . . . Violations . . . may result in separation from the University.

The second amendment proposed by the committee states that alcoholic beverages are prohibited from all campus grounds and ways, as well as in class and administrative buildings, except when they are part of an RSO-approved closed social function. This also refers to all parts of dormitories, fraternities, and sororieties excluding private rooms with doors closed.

The basic rationale concerning drinking in rooms was that the University should reflect the needs of the community (i.e. maintain an educational environment) and no more except where specifically required by law. This refers to the situation of whether the University shall enforce the laws against minor drinking. The University is not, and the Student Senate specifically voted should not, be responsible for enforcing the law.

News in Brief

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Communist forces in Laos have called a halt to their massive drive against the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma, Western military sources said Wednesday.

Attacks on government positions by No. Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces, while still heavier than for many years, have dropped off significantly from the high level which coincided with the Viet Cong's lunar new year offensive in Vietnam, the informants said.

A spokesman for the royal Laotion army said it was possible the Communists were regrouping for a new onslaught, but some Western diplomats believe discreet pressure from the Soviet Union toned down the divided kingdom's shadowy jungle war.

In accordance with the 1962 agreement, the U.S. has no combat troops in Laos to defend such outposts or to help government forces meet the Communist attacks.

Boots thumped on the streets of Moscow, Peking and E. Berlin Wednesday while Prague's hippies and Boy Scouts marched out of step in May Day parades that showed the cracks and contrasts in the face of communism.

"Down with Zionists," "Shame on the Americans," placards in Warsaw said. "Make love not war," "Truth prevails but it is hard work," read those in Prague, where a wave of liberalization has made free speech possible and eliminated some of the name-calling reflexes of the orthodox Communist world.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Small municipal and cooperative electric systems face extinction if current trends in nuclear power generation continue, representatives of the agriculture and Interior Dept. testified Wednesday.

Except in Vermont, the large privately owned utilities that are promoting nuclear electric generating plants have denied the municipals and cooperatives a share in ownership and production, said Norman M. Clapp, head of the Rural Electrification Administration, an agency of the Agriculture Dept..

"The current trend threatens the survival of our pluralistic utility industry which is composed of systems small and large, public as well as privately-owned," said Kenneth Holum, Asst. Sec. of the Interior.

A bill introduced by Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y. and George D. Aiken, R-Vt. would guarantee the smaller electric companies a share in the ownership and output of nuclear plants, now being built mainly by combines of large utilities.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. John B. Williams said Wednesday he had been informed by his commissioner of public safety that 7 persons had been arrested in Marks, Miss., on various charges from creating a disturbance to stealing a flag.

He said one of those arrested was Willie Bolden, field director for the So. Christian Leadership Conf., organizers of the Poor People's Campaign in Washington.

The governor, talking to newsmen in his office, said, "It was apparently a staged incident." He said at mid-afternoon there had been no additional disturbances.

Marchers are to leave Memphis, Tenn., today on their way to Marks as the first leg of the Poor People's march to Washington.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pres. Johnson's campaign for a $10-billion tax increase was blasted out of deadlock Wednesday when the House Appropriations Com. agreed on an $18-billion total long and short range appropriations cut.

The committee action, adoption of a resolution setting out its intentions, does not guarantee that the tax-economy bill will be passed, or even that it will be submitted in the form outlined.

Republicans said they will carry on the fight for deeper cuts, and some Democrats are known to be ready to join them.

The 24 students toured the facilities at the University as part of an experimental curriculum in the Chester School System using Chester's new mobile classroom. Each of the five finalists were asked one humorous question and one serious question to give the judges an idea of each girl's personality.

Donna was asked how she would tell her father that she had wrecked his car and demolished the garage. She replied that she would appeal to his values and make him realize that materialistic things such as cars and garages really aren't that important.

When asked if this generation's hippie movement and fads might benefit society, Donna replied that the individual searching and questioning brought about by today's fads would benefit society.

She went on to say that today's abundance of leisure time enables each person to think deeply about and search for answers to today's problems.

The judges had a difficult time choosing 12 semi-finalists from the 22 contestants. They were originally supposed to choose ten semi-finalists, but because the girls were so talented and poised, the judges decided to choose 12 semi-finalists.

The Miss Congeniality Award which was decided upon by the contestants themselves was presented to Shirley Turner.

Carol Willard, Miss University of 1967, said in her farewell speech that her happiness in crowning Miss University of 1968 would be mixed with a bit of envy for the wonderful year awaiting the new Miss University. Carol thanked all those people who made her reign possible and then said to the University as a whole: "Thank you for making it possible for me to represent you."

Donna Hayes will receive a $300 scholarship, Linda McIntyre a $200 scholarship, and Kathleen Kounjian a $100 scholarship.

Donna will represent UMass at the Miss Massachusetts Pageant this July in Attleboro, Mass.

Firearms Legislation Needed

With a summer of impending urban strife rapidly approaching, Americans as never before are rushing to arm themselves. The Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency estimated that over the past two years gun ownership has increased by 25 per cent, and a Louis Harris Survey, taken before the shooting of the Rev. Martin Luther King, showed that there were guns in 54 per cent of American homes; the outbreaks following Dr. King's death, however, have spurred an even larger increase in gun sales, especially in those cities hardest hit by violence.

Apparently ignoring the consequences of this domestic arms race, Congress has remained reluctant to pass even the most benign of gun-control legislation. An amended version of Thomas J. Dodd's gun-control bill, first introduced after the assassination of John Kennedy, has been tacked on to the House-passed Safe Streets and Crime Controls bill. Limiting the interstate sale of mail-order pistols, the amendment is very weak, yet pressure from the 800,000 member National Rifle Association has tied up the bill in the Senate Judiciary Committee far after it had resolved to report the bill to the Senate on April 14.

It is alarming that when really stringent controls are needed to reduce the incidence rate of violence Congress won't even allow a minor controls bill to be made law. What is really needed is a bill outlawing mail-order gun purchases and limiting the purchase and possession of firearms to small caliber hunting weapons that would have to be licensed. However, Congress has shown itself unwilling to even consider such a proposal, as it contents itself to look the other way while citizens arm. If no action in the right direction is taken, it will become increasingly more difficult for Congress to avoid shouldering at least part of the blame for any future violence.

Project Bridge

We are constantly swearing and complaining about teachers, tests, the way classes are run, and the courses that we have to take. However, for the most part, we waste breath. We complain to each other instead of to the teachers and the department heads who might help alleviate our problems. Project Bridge is an opportunity for us to redirect our complaints into the channels where they can have some effect.

We have shown our dissatisfaction by means of the Cage meeting. Now let's go one step further and show that we are capable of serious thinking and constructive recommendations. Let's all pull together so that we may become a far stronger force directing our college life rather than the terribly weak force we are today.

Curriculum requirements are in need of liberalization; many classes are in need of reform. Let's each do our individual parts to bring about this change. If your teacher gives you the opportunity to participate in Project Bridge, don't pass it up.

Senator Clarifies "Project Ten" Issue

To the editor:

If the students who wrote the letter in the May 1st Collegian concerning one class housing and "Project 10" had taken the trouble to read the entire text of my resolution as enacted by the Senate, they would have found that "Project 10" is simply not affected by the motion. Contained within the resolve is the exception "This . . . shall not apply to . . . the formation of isolated, experimental residence halls."

It was not my intention of the Services Committee, or the intention of the Senate to impede "Project 10"; the issue was the possible formation of another Senior women's residence hall like Brooks House last year, or, for that matter, any such dorm.

Although admittedly skeptical of "Project 10," I am not opposing it at this time.

Asst. Professor Protests Treatment of Columbia Demonstrators

(Ed. Note: The following letter was sent to the President of Columbia University and is reprinted here as it should be of concern to the University community.)

Dear Mr. Kirk:

I am writing to you to protest your wanton disregard of the safety of your students and your campus. Surely a knowledge of the events that occurred in Berkeley and in Madison, Wisconsin and other college campuses during the past years should have led you to the realization that the police of this country are and will be unnecessarily brutal in their treatment of student demonstrators. The injuries suffered by your students are a direct result of your inability and/or unwillingness to deal with this problem without the use of the New York City police.

As an alumnus of Columbia University I pledge to you that I no longer will be willing to donate any funds to the University and I shall urge all my friends to withhold their donations also. I feel strongly that you have brought the name of Columbia University into disrepute.

yours truly,
Assistant Professor

The Things That Children Do

To the editor:

Some college students are adults, others are adolescents, but most are—from all too evident evidence—children.

Look around in the Dining Commons. See the child throw his food, throw torn Collegians on the ramps, toss apples and jello down the stairs. See him send pranks into the dishroom, leave his tray on the table, put salt into the sugar container, and grind food into the floor.

See the child in class writing on the desks. He has a pad in front of him, but he insists on using the desk to leave his words of wit for others.

See the child in the restrooms clogging the urinals and bowls with rolls of toilet paper. See him throw rolls of toilet paper out a window just to see it roll down a hill and flutter in the breeze. See him break light bulbs because he likes the sound.

These are things that children do, so let these students be known as children: let their friends look at them as children: let the bystanders see them as children; let themselves know that they are children.

When I see such behavior, I see many of you—Thoughtless Children—and I believe other observers think, and should think, the same.

There are other thoughtless acts, of course, too numerous to list here. Many of you know what they are.

Think of it! Do you do any of these things? Why do you do these things?

For a feeling of security? Get a blanket like Linus.

To be a big man? You are really a child.

To release hostility? Go to the gym.

Denying such actions does not make you a man; changing does.

There is a time and a place for everything; the mature individual knows when and where it is.

Sixty UMass Students Enter Bay State Livestock Classic

The 33rd annual Bay State Livestock Classic was held April 26 & 27, 1968, in Grinnell Arena at the University of Massachusetts campus in Amherst. There was an enthusiastic crowd of 350 persons present for the final events.

The Champion Showman of the combined show was Edwin Gould, Stockbridge Senior from Marshfield, Vermont, majoring in Animal Scitnce. He showed a Holstein cow on which he had worked for the past month, preparing for the show. He was also the winner of the Dairy Showmanship Contest held earlier in the day. The runner-up in the Dairy Division was Chris Gredler, Stockbridge Senior from Lexington. Third place and Honorable Mention went to Carolyn Root, University of Massachusetts Senior co-ed from Westfield, Mass.

There were 60 contestants in the Livestock Classic this year. All participants are students of either the Stockbridge School of Agriculture or the University of Massachusetts College of Agriculture. The students drew their animals by lot on March 27, and worked for the month of April learning skills involved with training, cleaning and caring for the animals. At least one hour per day was spent by most students in order to have a presentable animal by show time.

Patricia Foley '71, right, co-ed from Swansea, winner of the Co-ed Milking Contest at the Bay State Livestock Classic talks with Carol Carlson '69, runner-up.

The purpose of this event is to teach basic livestock skills by assigning students their own animals. One-third of their laboratory grade depended on how well the animals were fitted and shown.

Of special interest to the spectators were the Co-ed Milking Contest held Friday night and the Parade of Farm Babies which was held Saturday afternoon. After a close contest, Miss Pat Foley of Patterson Dormitory was proclaimed the best milker on campus and received a sugar and creamer donated by the American Guernsey Cattle Club. The runner-up, Miss Carol Carlson, who represented Mary Lyons Dormitory, was presented with a milk mug.

"not inconsistent with their personalities."

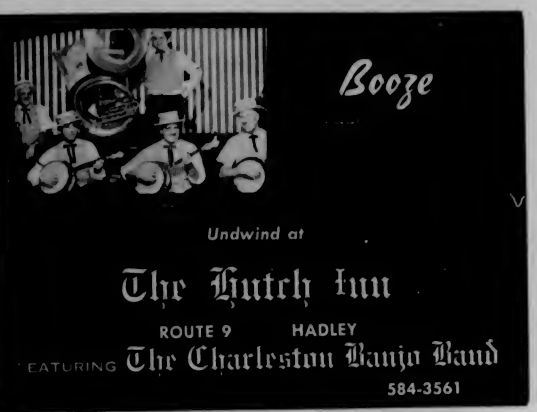
Weinerman, described by witnesses as "physically demonstrative of emotion" attracted the attention of the police, according to their testimony, when he was seen "Skipping across Amity Street." Subsequent joking between Weinerman and Levco, according to the arresting officers, led to an investigation of the situation and their arrest. The police charged that both were drunk.

Final summations of the attorneys brought a dramatic ending to what Superior Court Judge Levine termed "an important trial." Following the trial Weinerman and Levco consulted with Attorney Burres to consider future legal action.

King, Jr., Social Action Council Plans Programs And Recruits New Members

by JAN PORTER
Staff Reporter

Beginning Wednesday, May 1, a table will be set up in the Student Union Lobby which will attempt to publicize the newly formed Martin Luther King Jr. Social Action Council, and to recruit active workers. This council tentatively consists of a ten-man Board of Directors including administrators (Provost Oswald Tippo, Asso. Dean of Students, Mark Noffsinger, et al), professors (assis. Prof. of Sociology William Wilson, Assis. Prof. of English Robert Tucker, et al), students, and non university personnel (Andy Griffin of the N.E.S. branch in Springfield).



The Martin Luther King Jr. Soc. Action Council's stated purpose is "to explore and utilize the potentials of the university community to foster better human relations."

Programs are being planned to determine why no Negroes are employed on any of the federally financed construction on campus. If discrimination is the cause, steps will be taken to correct the existing policy. Jobs and housing discrimination in Amherst will be studied and action programs organized. Canned goods and money will be collected throughout the community to support the May Poor Peoples March on Washington. Afro-American culture programs will be scheduled bringing Negro poets, playwrights, and musicians on campus and to neighboring ghettos.

This fall 150 ghetto Negro students will enter the University of Massachusetts freshman class because of administration and faculty support. Normally, the lower SAT scores because of poor high school preparation would prevent these students from meeting the admission's requirements. Under this program, these students will take the normal freshman courses, but will receive extensive tutoring service (approx. 20 hrs. per week). Tutors will be paid and closely screened. This program will be operated by the Martin Luther King Jr. Soc. Action Council. Tutors are actively being sought.

If you're really tired of talking about the issues, don't just walk past this organization's table. Come on over and ask questions!

Political Conservative William Buckley, Jr. to Speak at UMass

Distinguished author, columnist and political critic William F. Buckley, Jr. will speak next week, May 6 at the University of Massachusetts on "The Responsibilities of the American Student."

Mr. Buckley is currently the editor-in-chief of National Review and is a leading conservative spokesman in American politics. He is coming to the University as a part of its Distinguished Visitors Program in cooperation with the Four College (Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Amherst and UMass) Coordinating Committee.

The speech will be at the Curry Hicks Cage on the UMass campus at 8:00 p.m. Only members of the four college area will be admitted previous to 7:45 p.m. After that time the general public will be admitted.

Mr. Buckley's controversial career began on the national level one year after he graduated from Yale, when he published God and Man at Yale in 1951. In his book he accused his alma mater of teaching atheism and liberalism. After three years of relative quiet, he moved to head a new magazine, "National Review," which would introduce a respected conservative publication in the spectrum of journals. Mr. Buckley, in defining the conservative view said, "the most progress is made by individuals acting freely."

In 1965 Mayorality campaigning in New York became spirited and controversial as Mr. Buckley stepped into the contest. He was interested in campaigning being forced to depart from its ethnic orientation to a campaign of party platforms and principles. He ran as a Republican conservative against John Lindsay, "to

UMass Students Win in Harper's 1968 Student Writing Contest

University of Massachusetts students have won three of the six top places in the college division of the Harper's magazine 1968 Student Writing Contest, the University has been informed.

First prize winner in the national essay contest was Susan J. Tracy of Marblehead, UMass Amherst junior. Second honorable mention winner was Neal A. Raisman of Sharon, UMass-Boston junior; third honorable mention winner was Carol Truesdell of Concord, UMass-Boston sophomore. A Yale University student won second prize, a University of Wisconsin student third prize and a Wesleyan University student first honorable mention.

The writing contest, as announced in the January, 1968, issue of the national magazine, invited high school and college students to write essays no longer than 1500 words on some aspect of the theme "This generation of young people is unlike any that has gone before." Manuscripts were due Jan 31 of this year and were judged, in the magazine's words, on "impact, clarity, soundness and focus."

Susan Tracy's faculty advisor for her prize-winning essay was Dr. Robert E. Stanfield, assistant professor of sociology. Miss Tracy is chairman of the UMass SWAPS conference committee and has been a member of the Student Senate, the Women's Affairs Committee, the Student Life Committee, the University Reform Committee and the women's varsity tennis team. She lives with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wakelin of 70 Bubier Rd., Marblehead.

CONFERENCE . . .

Republicans remind all students still interested in the Conference that there is still time to register for the event. They added that the program holds equal interest for both Republicans and Democrats. Most of the seminars concern topics that are of equal interest to members of both parties and many Democrats attend the event annually.

Highlights of the day will include Rep. John W. Sears speaking on "Urban Problems", and Senator William Saltonstall speaking on the "making of a candidate."

Other topics include "Economic Issues at Home and Abroad," "Dissent Civil Liberties, and the Law," "The Nature of Republican Conservatism," the "Nature of Republican Liberalism," "Poling and Politics," "Creative Approaches to Foreign Policy," and "Campaign Management."

Smith College has announced cancellation of Chekhov's play The Sea Gull which has been scheduled for presentation May 8, 9, 10 and 11 at the Center for the Performing Arts.

HOLESOVSKY . . .

Investigating the events on various levels which have led to the developing changes in Czechoslavakia, Dr. Holesovsky talked of the change of personnel, which he said is symtomatic of deep changes within the entire society. The events of the parties have been a reflection of the level of events which are taking place within the society. "Parties usually face society not in a monolithic fashion, but as a political machine which represents itself," he continued. The change within the parties is that party members are becoming spokesmen for the population's desires.

Two major changes within Czechoslovakia have been 1) a revolt of the writers, intellectuals and economists, and 2) a national push or movement of the Slavic people for autonomy. The Slovac autonomists have allied with the writers and intellectuals in deposing the old conservatives.

Although the conservatives have tried to restore order including an attempt at economic sabotage, freedom of expression has been rewon. "It's not that the parties were allowing it—it just happened," said Dr. Holesovsky.

The people of Czechoslavakia want democracy, not democratization. Dr. Holesovsky concluded by saying that, "The new movement has no slogans, it is a spirit. We must reconcile to the fact that history goes on and that the struggle for the Czechoslovakian democratic revolution will go on."

Five Game Redmen Win Streak Snapped

by WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

Evan Bollinger's goal with 1.15 left in the game led Amherst to a thrilling 6-5 lacrosse victory over UMass in a battle of unbeatens yesterday. The win was the fifth in a row for the Lord Jeffs while UMass saw its first game winning streak snapped.

Bollinger's winning shot carried high into the net after he had raced down the field from a midfield faceoff.

Ten seconds before Bollinger's goal, Don Agnoli had brought the Redmen to a 5-5 deadlock when he fired home a high shot on a 2 on one break.

The game was close and tight all the way with neither team gaining more than a one goal advantage. As a matter of fact, the game was tied five times.

UMass Captain Bill Sinclair opened the scoring by tapping in a rebound of a Kevin O'Connor shot that had hit the post.

All New England pick Jim Taylor tied the score for the Jeffs, bouncing a shot past UMass goalie Mark Schlossberg at the 4.26 mark.

Steve Connolly's goal at 7.48 put UMass in front for the second time as he circled around the net and Popped his shot over Amherst goalie Steve Koch's shoulder.

The Lord Jeffs controlled play for the rest of the quarter but were unable to score because of fine defensive work by Schlossberg. He made a brilliant save when Chris Brown broke in alone.

Lack of scoring punch early in the game forced UMass coach Dick Garber to make several changes midway through the opening half. One important change was the moving of high-scoring attackman Kevin O'Connor to a midfield position.

Hilton Foster's first goal of the game at 1.32 of the third quarter tied the game at 2-2. His goal seemed to fire up the Lord Jeffs as they contained the Redmen in their own end for the first four and a half minutes of the quarter.

NEAR MISS—UM goalie Mark Schlossberg (20) wards off a goal by the Lord Jeffs in yesterday's game at Amherst. Assisting him are Tom Tufts (84) and Bill Devore (85).

Constant pressure paid off for the Lord Jeffs as Jeff Pitman gave Amherst a 3-2 lead on a fluke goal. A UMass clearing pass hit the side of the net, and Pitman was in the right spot to lift the ball past Schlossberg.

Marty Kalikow knotted the score at 3-3 late in the third stanza when he spinned away from several defenders and drilled a high shot past Koch.

Gary Vassar's early fourth period goal gave the Redmen the lead for the last time in the game. He tipped in a Kevin O'Connor pass from behind the net play with a blind backward flip to O'Connor.

Foster evened the score for the fourth time when his 20 footer beat Schlossberg to the lower right corner.

The Jeffs jumped into the lead at the 12.07 mark when Mike Quinn tallied on a high shot over Schlossberg's shoulder. This goal looked like the game winner until the last hectic minutes of the quarter brought the game to its exciting conclusion.

Although naturally disappointed, Garber said that his team played a fine game. He had particular praise for the great goaltending of Schlossberg.

Garber also commented that the game was one of the best played that he had ever seen.

The UMass freshman lacrosse team remained undefeated, as they picked up their fourth consecutive victory with a 6-2 decision over Amherst yesterday.

The varsity will journey to UConn Saturday to face the Huskies in a 2 p.m. encounter.

Baseball Game Postponed
Yesterday's varsity baseball against Holy Cross at Worcester was postponed due to rain.

STORRS, Conn—The UMass varsity track team notched an important victory Tuesday against their Yankee Conference rival UConn at Storrs. In their tune-up meet for the Conference Championship to be held this weekend at Durham, the Redmen grabbed 14 of 17 first places to win 86-63.

Juniors Bill Wilen and Dave Schlatha won their specialties, the hammer throw and the discus, to lead the weight men. Strong performances by the jumping crew contributed 20 points. Dick Dyer won the broad jump at 20' 2" and Paul Nyman won the high jump. Rocco Pettito scored in two events, as he took first in the triple jump and second in the broad jump to complete a fine afternoon by this trio of sophomores.

The turning point of the meet came in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Sophomore Steve Chase scored an impressive double victory with Steve Burrell and sophomore Markle to complete the Redmen sweep of 18 points.

John Andersen scored the toughest double of the day outlasting teammate Bob Hasselbaum in the 440 hurdles with a time of 49.7 seconds and calling on a final stretch kick to win the 440 intermediate hurdles in 56 seconds.

Paul Hoss pulled away from the field in the two mile event and recorded an impressive 9:12 performance while teammate Marc Gelinas turned in a seasonal best of 9.45. Dave Evans ran a 4.19 in the Mile to capture second place, and Greg Bowman won the 880 in 1:55.0, with Evans placing third.

The UMass freshman track team tasted defeat for the first time at UConn Tuesday by a 77-71 margin.

Walter Mayo was a double winner in the 100 and 220 with times of 10.2 and 20.6. Teammates Dave Canterbury and Ed Heywood scored thirds in each event. Gerry Spellman remained unbeaten in the 120 yard high hurdles and 440 yard intermediate hurdles as he set a freshman record of 56.5 in the latter event.

Leo Duart led the freshman two milers to the tape in 9:45, Ron Wayne was second and Ron Dederian third.

Wayne completed his "routine" day by winning the mile and placing third in the 880 to record nine points.

Yale Stevens won the 880, and Clarence Gaynoa was second in the 440, as the middle distance men found tough opponents in Connecticut's George Pachico who set a school record in the 440 in 50.5.

Buzz Hiller cleared 12' 6" in the pole vault, and Marc Eaton and Cal Carpenter contributed eight points in the high jump as the freshmen out jumped their opponents 21-14. George Ball, shouldering the weight duties because of the loss of Bill Austin with mononucleosis, ran into foul trouble in the shot put, but Dana Robertson and Bill Mahoney chipped in with four points in the javelin.

Varsity Netmen Dropped, 5-3, By UConn; Freshmen Score Win

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Playing one of their poorer matches of the season, the varsity tennis team was downed by UConn, 5-3, Tuesday afternoon at Storrs. The loss drops the team's record to 4-3.

The only Redmen to perform well were the first three singles men, Al Davis, Tom Johnson, and Mike Katz. Davis played well against Mike Britton, possibly the finest player in the Yankee Conference, before bowing 6-4, 6-3. Johnson demolished Miller 6-1, 6-2. Mike Katz eliminated Saul Randolph in straight sets.

The only other point garnered by the Redmen came from the third doubles combination of Cohen and Katz. The last three singles men, Scott Sheppard, Steve Cohen, and Al Grosnick went down to defeat in straight sets.

UConn wrapped up the match when Britton and Miller downed Johnson and Ken Brunco in straight sets. The second doubles match was not played because it had no affect on the final outcome.

Coach Steve Kosakowski said, "We didn't have it today. Some of the guys were way off their games." Today the Redmen travel to Worcester to face WPI.

In another match at Storrs the Little Redmen overpowered the Husky Pups, 8-1, to even their seasons record at 1-1.

Room Rent Hike Highlights Meeting As Senate Officers Are Sworn In

The Student Senate, last evening, approved a seven page report on raising room and board and forwarded it to the Trustees who will consider it today.

The Senate's new officers were sworn into office last night. They begin to serve immediately.

The report was prepared by an Ad Hoc Senate Committee and the Treasurer's Office to study Room and Board Rates. Senate Treasurer Alan Gauthier presented the report.

Basically, the report advocates a $50 per semester increase for all dormitories on campus. Traditional dorms will thus be increased to $200 semester while the Southwest dorms will pay $225 semester. The only exception thus far is Lewis House, a traditional dorm who will pay $225 because of extensive renovations.

Board rates will increase a minimum of $25 per semester, totaling $245 per semester on a 5 day basis. A 2 day meal ticket will now cost $95, a $10 increase.

Senator Hartwell submitted a motion that House Councils be allowed to decide on minor renovations. Further action would then be taken by the area government, and finaly approval by the Student Senate. Another motion, requested that the Mass. General Court allow funds from the Mass. Building Authority to combine funds from traditional dorms under the reign of the Trustees. Both motions were passed.

First hearings were given for the Index, Collegian, Rugby Club, Yahoo, Engineering Journal, Crew Team, and Spectrum budgets. The Senate budgets committee will hold hearings May 5, in the J.F.K. lower house lobby. The Index budget was given a brief nod of approval, but final hearings will decide its passage. The Collegian budget was read by Senator Brad Johnson, Chairman of the Budgets Committee, who added five amendments to the budget for Senate approval.

In other business, Student Senators and Class Officers, during a Constitutional Convention, last night, presented and approved class budgets totaling over $150,000.

All class budgets were debated mainly over whether or not class dues should be applied to class activities, when it is questionable that all class members participate. Senator Ray Wilson spearheaded the protest movement, citing that married students are merely associated with a class and do not really benefit from their budgets or activities.

Senator Larry Marcus noted that one of the main purposes of the classes was to sponsor activities which all class members could attend. Support of removing student tax from class budgets came from Senator Joe Kilmartin, who told senators "You don't realize that there are no classes — this is a University!" Vice President Fred Hartwell cautioned the Senate, stating "You are trying to force constitu-

Outgoing Senate Pres. James G. Collins praised the Senate but reminded that "student Government isn't an end in itself."

H.E.R. Weekend Begins Tonight; Big Name Groups To Be Featured

The last big entertainment weekend of the year at U-Mass will be sponsored this weekend (May 3, 4, 5) by the Student Union Program Council. His Economic Relief (H.E.R.) Weekend will feature everything from bagels to performers.

The festivities will begin Friday night with a free dance on the South Terrace of the Student Union featuring The Bold and The Jury from 8 to 12. In case of rain the dance will be held in the Ballroom. The Bold began at UMass and since have toured the country playing in such places as the New York Playboy's Club.

At the same time, there will be a show in the new Hatch featuring The Novae playing cocktail music and "Hatch Food Specialties" until 11. There will also be old time movies in the Colonial Lounge.

Saturday will feature a picnic by the Campus Pond from 12:30 to 5:30 sponsored by the Class of '71 and the S.U. Program Council.

Folksinger Tom Rush, who appeared on campus for the 1967 Winter Carnival, along with the Bold and the Jury will perform in a free concert. Hot Dogs, hamburgers, and soft drinks will be served.

The big event of the weekend will be the Saturday night Concert with the Happenings and the Cowsills in Curry Hicks Cage at 8 p.m. The Happenings were very well received when they appeared during Homecoming of this year. The Cowsills are a family of four brothers, their sister and their mother. Earlier this week they were guest stars on the Mike Douglas Show.

Immediately after the concert there will be a "Deli in the Ballroom" which will feature sandwiches, soft drinks and pickles at low prices. Food will be served from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Sunday will top off the weekend with the annual Intercollegiate Song Festival in the Ballroom from 2 until 4 in the afternoon.

Rocky Proposes Changes In Draft, Voting Laws

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP — New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller proposed Thursday an armed services draft by lottery and lowering of the minimum voting age to 18.

In a speech prepared for delivery to University of Iowa students, the Republican presidential candidate said the present draft law is "arbitrary and inequitable."

He called for revisions "that a young man could support."

Under Rockefeller's plan, a youth reaching the age of 19 would accept a student deferment or take a chance on being drafted through a lottery. Upon graduation, the student would be subject to the draft for a one-year period.

"This lottery plan," Rockefeller said, "would limit each student's exposure to one year, either at 19 or on graduating from college. This plan is not only completely fair, it is practical."

The governor pledged to "Vigorously support" lowering of the minimum voting age to 18.

If a man is old enough to fight for his country, he is old enough to vote, Rockefeller said.

"As a public official, I have no fear of exposing my ideas to the judgement of voters under 21," he said. "In fact, a good gauge of a man's actions as a leader is how well they appeal to the high ideals of youth."

Rockefeller's University of Iowa appearance was the second stop on a three-city swing through Iowa to kick off his Midwest campaign for the GOP presidential nomination.

McCarthy Tops Kennedy, Nixon In Time's Presidential Poll

WASHINGTON (AP — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., has triumphed in a nationwide mock presidential election on some 1,200 college campuses.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., edged Republican former Vice President Richard M. Nixon for second place in the voting by more than a million students.

McCarthy drew 285,988 votes, Kennedy 213,832 and Nixon 197,167.

More than half the students favored a reduction of the U.S. war effort in Vietnam in a referendum included on the ballot.

And McCarthy drew 85 per cent of his support from these students, computerized returns showed.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, now a major contender for the Democratic nomination, was not included on the ballot, which listed 13 possible presidential candidates. Sponsors said the ballot was drawn up before President Johnson bowed out at the end of March and could not be changed before the voting last week.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, now challenging Nixon actively for the Republican nomination, attracted 115,937 votes although he had not announced his candidacy when the students voted April 24.

Humphrey received 18,535 write-in votes.

There were 57,362 votes cast for Johnson despite his disavowal.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace drew 33,078.

Other votes were scattered, with 3,538 going to the late civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was listed on the ballot as an independent candidate. He finished ahead of Republican Harold Stassen, last with 1,033 votes.

The poll was sponsored by Time Magazine and the Univac Division of Sperry Rand Corp., which counted the returns by computer and announced the results Thursday.

Although the colleges involved have three-fourths of the nation's total enrollment, the turnout was light and the actual voters numbered less than one-fifth of the nation's students.

Columbia Offers Students Concessions to Open College

NEW YORK (AP — Columbia University offered new concessions to its campus rebels Thursday, in an effort to end the 10-day battle of Morningside Heights, and re-open classrooms for its 25,381 students.

Classes at Columbia have been suspended for a week, with no indication they can be resumed before next week at the earliest.

Nearly all city police were withdrawn during the day from the Ivy League campus in uptown Manhattan.

In addition, Columbia's Board of Trustees agreed to consult with community leaders on the fate of a controversial $11.5-million gymnasium being constructed in Morningside Park, which separates the university from Harlem.

The trustees also offered to consider demands for a greater student-faculty voice in the policies of the 214-year-old school, one of the nation's oldest and most esteemed.

up. Holy Cross has not raced very often this spring and could be a surprise. The Redman frosh, off last week's big victory, have looked good in practice all week. A few personal changes have been made, and Coach Mike Faherty is confident his boat will win.

Coach Dave Clarke summed up the club's feelings, "Holy Cross always has a good club. They are well coached and experienced. We will have a tough day, but we are ready."

The regatta begins at 4 p.m. with the freshmen. The junior varsity and varsity races will follow. The course finishes underneath the Calvin Coolidge bridge in Hadley.

The Fifth Column
Batters to Hit For the Pitcher

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

A suggestion was made over the past week that would drastically change the complexion of baseball. If the proposal were to pass, a batter could pinch-hit for the pitcher every time his turn at bat came without his being removed from the game.

The rationale behind this move is to put more hitting into the game, but if the pitcher has a voice it will never happen. As anyone who has ever been near a pitcher knows a pitcher lives to hit. Each hurler fancies himself as a Carl Yastrzemski with a golden arm. He'd never stand to have his whacks taken away.

Steve Ross

If baseball was really interested in putting more hitting into the game they could use different methods. One of the first things they could do would be to enforce the 20 second rule that now exists. This rule states that a pitcher must release a serve within 20 seconds with no men on base or be assessed with a ball. A clock modelled after the NBA 24 - second clock would do nicely to enforce the rule.

Now that the batter doesn't have to worry about getting his arms entangled in a newly grown beard, the second thing the rule committee can do is let him run up and hit the slow pitch. On the few occasions the batter has done this successfully the umpire voided the hit.

Another innovation that could be attempted would be playing two-platoon ball much like football. Dick Stuart would undoubtedly still be in the majors if he didn't have to go out to first base nine times a ball game. This would lead to higher scoring games and would accomplish what the rules committee wants.

The final thing that could be done to give the game back to the hitters would be to eliminate the knock down pitch. The way to do this would be to give a hit batsman two bases instead of one. A pitcher would seriously think about knocking down a batter if he knew he would put him in scoring position. This would allow the batter to dig in which would make it a hitter's game again.

Ray's Brother Believes Alleged Assassin Received Large Pay-off

CHICAGO (AP)—The brother of James Earl Ray, the man sought on a charge of murdering Dr. Martin L. King Jr., appealed to his brother to surrender, the Chicago Sun-Times reported Thursday.

The Sun - Times interviewed Jerry Ray, 32, in the room he occupies at a north suburban country club where he works as a maintenance man.

Ray expressed fears that his brother was dead and said other members of the family also doubted that he was alive.

The Sun-Times quoted Ray as saying: "If he is still alive, I urge him to surrender himself to the FBI or to contact someone in the family and ask them to make surrender arrangements."

He described his brother as "the hottest man in the country . . .the most wanted man there ever was," the Sun-Times said.

Ray told the interviewer he found it difficult to believe his brother shot King because "he never was a man of violence." His brother's criminal record shows that he never fired a gun or hit anyone, Ray said. But he was reported as saying that his brother could have been used in a conspiracy to kill the civil rights leader.

The Sun-Times said Ray related that his brother obviously received a large payoff at some time.

"Look at all the money he came into all of a sudden," the story quoted him as saying. "Buying Mustangs, taking dancing lessons, taking trips to Mexico."

"You don't get that kind of money from sticking up grocery stores, and my brother wasn't the kind to stick up currency exchanges," Ray was quoted as telling the paper.

Ray said that if his brother tries to contact the people who "used him," he would be killed. The story quoted him further: "If he's still alive, the FBI's going to get him, you can be sure of that."

Nixon Proposes New Plan To Combat Poverty

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Richard M. Nixon proposed yesterday a system of tax incentives and loan guarantees to combat poverty and rebuild slums. He acknowledged it lacked the drama of billion dollar offerings, but said it could "remove the ceiling from black aspirations."

The campaigning Republican said American efforts to "reconcile the races and to rescue the poor" must take a new direction, to foster self-reliance and self-respect, and to involve the poor in the rebuilding of their own communities.

"The old ways have failed, because the crisis of the old order is not the crisis of today," Nixon said in a nationwide radio address.

"In the ruins of downtown Washington, of Detroit and of Newark lie the ruins of a philosophy of government that has outlived its origins and no longer speaks to its time," he said.

Nixon said once again that the nation's current economic plight rules out any "massive transfusion now" of federal funds into American cities.

In a radio speech April 25, Nixon advocated programs to enlist private enterprise in the effort to cope with poverty and racial strife. Thursday's speech outlined his proposals in detail.

Nixon did not estimate the cost of this program, but said it would be modest and would avoid "the massive spending which can neither be realistically promised nor responsibly delivered."

Greeks Aid ABC, 'A Better Chance'

by MARTHA CURRAN
Staff Reporter

All proceeds of the University Intrasquad Football game, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council next Saturday, at 3 o'clock in Alumni Stadium, will be donated to "A Better Chance."

Phil Przybyszewski, president of Delta Chi and Chairman of the IFC-sponsored Football game committee, defined "A Better Chance" as "an educational program for underprivileged children; eight students selected by The Independent Schools Talent Search Program, established at Dartmouth College in 1963, will come to Amherst in the fall to finish their high school education at Amherst Regional High School."

"The cost for each boy is $1350," Przybyszewski continued, "the town of Amherst has raised 6½ scholarships. The boys will live together in Amherst with a resident director. The academic atmosphere of this area and the high standards at Amherst Regional will spark the potential of these boys."

Amherst is the third New England town to form "A Better Chance" committee. The program originated in Hanover, New Hampshire, at Dartmouth College, in 1963, and was introduced into public schools both in Hanover and in Andover, Massachusetts. Profiles of five of the boys who were given "A Better Chance" indicate the success of the program as all five received financial aid to further their education at the college level.

"We're doing something good," Przybyszewski said of the IFC, "Saturday's game is for a good cause."

The Profitable Duel Begins

Rarely has there been such fruitful promise for the nation as there is in the discussion which the divergent views of Nelson Rockefeller and Richard Nixon are certain to provoke on the two most serious problems of the day—the war in Vietnam and the crisis in the cities.

Mr. Nixon, in a radio speech tonight, will address himself again, as he did on April 25, to urban and racial problems, a subject to which Gov. Rockefeller devoted a major speech, two weeks ago when he was still an unannounced candidate. Their views could not be more diametrically opposed.

Mr. Nixon views the problem in terms of the dollar and the deficit. He would cut the budget by $8 billion right away and defer until some unstated future time the expenditures which many, including the Kerner commissioner on civil disorders, see as an immediate necessity. Gov. Rockefeller sees the human condition as more urgent than balanced budgets. He would spend a minimum of $150 billion over the poverty problems — as the Kerner report recommends.

Mr. Nixon holds that the promise of billions now is a cruel delusion and that the unfilled promise itself would be disastrous. Gov. Rockefeller believes the promise doesn't have to be illusory at all, that the delusion would lie in denying the sheer necessity for colossal expenditures by both government and industry to save the nation from dissolution.

On the war, the two are in similar disagreement at least on one of the war's important aspects. Mr. Nixon urges a moratorium on discussion lest the administration be embarrassed in whatever negotiations may now be in progress over a site and other matters. Gov. Rockefeller holds that the war is most vital public business and must not be shut off from public discussion.

Mr. Nixon's position would effectively protect him from the necessity for explaining his own view of the war. This is a question which has been up in the air since he obliquely appealed to both hawks and doves more than a month ago by stating, without explanation, that he knew how to end the war and would do so if elected. He has said nothing explicit since.

Gov. Rockefeller, strangely silent for too long, finally put his opinion on the line at Philadelphia Wednesday, and Mr. Nixon now clearly will have to do the same. Gov. Rockefeller's speech was unequivocal (de-Americanize the war and get on with negotiations) and his philosophy unassailable:

"Over the last 20 years, our sense of our own military and economic power has seduced us...Our concepts and our actions seem less relevant to the realities...Neither our ideas nor our policies nor our goals have kept pace with the speed of a revolutionary age nor given true answers to its challenges...Least of all people, we should not tremble before revolution; most of all, we should know how to live with it."

That not only invites, it almost demands a full scale reply by Mr. Nixon. The campaign heats up, and the nation gains.

The Letters from Prison

Exegesis

There are many more letters from prison. Between the delivery of Gabriel's sentence and the time of his death, he wrote feverishly—during his short and long walks, in the fields, in the watchtower, in his cell at night—taking less and less time to act out the day's routines. Toward the end of his letters, in a rare passage (he rarely made allusions to habit), he put it this way: "Now it is getting on toward night, and although evening begins the closing of activities in most of the capitals of the world, it does not seal mine. It unlocks the dungeon of the day, leaving only the scene of moon and stars to bear, through the grotesque branches and startling buds. Now I take one meal a day, at suppertime, because I pick apples and olives afternoons near the fields. I write well into the night, stopping at 3:00 or 4:00 a.m....I am always up for sunrise."

Gabriel was from Chexbres, Switzerland, but, other than that, no facts are known about his early life. The letters are written in English, though his initial fluency is undisclosed. He wrote of his mother: She does not have to be dark to be beautiful. She is brilliant like the sun, but sometimes she chooses to hide in the gloomiest corners of the night. She is reticent and kind; lavish and full in her silence. She has made gifts of her beauty, sons of her knowledge. She is a widow and alone; I murdered to save her. I then found that she did not need to be saved."

The person to whom the letters were written, Bettnoir, is vagrant. The way of the letters, how they fell into my hands, has something of the aura of mystique. I met Bettnoir in the jungle, then in Mexico. He was dumb. Shortly after my return, a package arrived containing a bundle of letters, the letters from Gabriel, with a note from Bettnoir which read: "My Friend, Why I give you these is unclear to me, to you. It may have been the mark on your mouth, the sweat on your palm, confirmed my silence then...."

Gabriel did not go gently, though his rage against confirms my silence now.

Mortar Board Challenges Student Leaders Colloquim

To the editor:

After a year of frustration, culminating Wednesday night at Student Leaders' Colloquium, we wish to make it known that Mortar Board exists and is making an active contribution to the campus community. The theme of the colloquium was "dare to be different," "dare to vocalize," and we accept the challenge.

Mortar Board's existence was questioned Wednesday night by a "distinguished senior." The answer to this question lies in the purpose and goals of our group. We are not a spirit organization. Our main function is to serve the campus community. We examine the needs of the campus and attempt to fulfill a different need each year.

This year, Mortar Board compiled an extensive study abroad file which will soon be available for general use in the placement office. We also attempt to recognize scholarship by annually sponsoring a reception for all undergraduate women who have attained dean's list. In addition, we serve as hostesses for functions sponsored by the Dean of Women's Office.

We would like to fill more needs on campus—we are hindered by a lack of funds, a lack of publicity and a lack of support. We have submitted articles to the Collegian which have not been printed for reasons unknown to us. All information concerning student leader's night and other important campus activities involving Mortar Board has come to us "directly" through the grapevine. Contrary to popular belief, we do have an RSO box which we check regularly.

Concerning Student Leaders' Colloquium, we as a group question the effectiveness of the colloquium. Were student leaders recognized? We think not. The colloquium itself was an unsuccessful attempt to achieve sophistication, but an inadequate replacement for student leaders' night. Where was the excitement, enthusiasm and participation of the entire campus community? The sum total of the night's activities was that three interesting speeches were given to twelve rows of student leaders and Mrs. Gage.

The challenge to lead was posed to all student leader groups Wednesday night. On a comparative basis, we feel as if we have done as much as is humanly possible with nine active members, insufficient funds, lack of support, and lack of publicity.

We will not be insulted further.

Unnecessary Personnel Cause Rising Costs

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was sent to the Board of Trustees by a resident of Gorman House.

To the editor:

The following notice concerning the painting of the dorm was posted by a counselor in Gorman House on April 25.

NOTICE: The school ran out of funds for painting. Painting will be stopped effective Friday, April 26, 1968 (unless enough complaints are heard.)

Added to the botton of the notice by a student was as follows:

One complaint: If the—painters painted instead of sitting around on their fat—drinking coffee maybe they would have the funds for five dorms.

I, myself, must add that this applies to numerous janitors too. I estimate the cost of unnecessary custodians in my dorm to equal or exceed $8000 per year. What are the costs of dorm damages? Should room rents go up or down?

Center for Ideas

(ACP)—There's a new direction for intelligent campus discussion at Kansas State Univ., says the Collegian. The direction is up.

A sign will now point up to an individual attention care center in the student union. The care center, sponsored by University for Man, answers students' needs for discussion in any form.

Students can come and go anytime from 9:30-11 a.m. The center offers "attention" in the form of a sounding board. Any topic may be discussed and any student mood expressed. It's a place to go when a new idea hits a student or an old one becomes a firm conviction.

The idea is informal, personal and sound. Anyone is free to join discussions perhaps he has been able only to overhear in the union.

It would not be wise to demand that students go up to receive individual attention. But it is appropriate to ask them to go up whenever the spirit moves them.

Nigeria, Biafra To Begin Talks

LAOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigeria and secessionist Biafra will begin talks this weekend in London in an effort to end the 10-month West African civil war, a Nigerian foreign ministry spokesman said Thursday night.

The spokesman said the talks would be primarily to determine a site for further negotiations about the war.

Announcement of the talks came after Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, head of the federal military government released a letter to all African countries except Tanzania, which has recognized Biafra, charging the Biafrans with exploiting peace moves for propaganda purposes.

He said if later talks were held in Africa they would be at the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, headquarters of the Organization of African Unity.

Biafra's leader, Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Jjukwu, has come out for Dakar, the capital of Senegal.

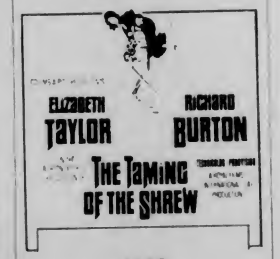
'Poor People' Begin March on Capitol

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The late Dr. Martin Luther King's Poor People's March on Washington got off to a slow, creaking start Thursday starting at the point where a sniper killed him April 4.

"The moment has come," the Rev. Ralph Abernathy told the crowd gathered for the memorial service. "The days of weeping are ended. The days of march have begun."

Southern Christian Leadership Conference spokesmen said those who make the trip will camp in Marks for two days fanning out to recruit new marchers from Negroes in the area.

Dr. King's widow, a trim dignified figure in mourning black, spoke at the somber memorial service that preceded the march. The rolling cadence of her voice was oddly reminiscent of her husband's renowned oratical style.



"On this spot where my husband gave his life for love and service to humanity, I pledge my loyalty and devotion to the work which he so nobly began," she said.

"We're not going to have white power or black power," he cried. "We're going to have poor power."

tional change through financial means."

All four motions to remove student tax from class budgets were defeated, leaving the budgets as they returned from the Budgets Committee.

Appropriations for the Student Workshop on Activities Problems (SWAP) Conference were also questioned, Senator Joe Kilmartin, speaking against the appropriations for the conference, termed it as a 'good time' and motioned to strike the appropriation in the Class of '69 budget; later Senator Pete Blanchett requested class tax be removed from the Class of '70 budget. Both motions were defeated.

Newly elected officers were sworn in, and assumed their positions following the ceremony. Gifts were presented to former President Jim Collins and Vice President Fran Boronski. Senators Collins and Boronski thanked the group, and encouraged Senate involvement to get the most out of their positions as Senators. Collins added, "Student Government isn't an end in itself. I think you'll serve yourself well if you serve the stuldent body."

Within special business, Senator Larry Marcus made a motion that the Senate request that a building or dormitory be named in honor of Berny Dallas, who was killed in a highway accident last April 29. Dallas captained the '65 football team, was President of his class for four years, and was chosen for Who's Who's in American Universities and Colleges. Senator Marcus added that Dallas "knew about people, cared about people, and was a real humanitarian. He knew how to work with people—pull them out of the walls — to do work for him." The Senate passed the motion unanimously.

Varsity Nine To Play Two Games At Maine

Rappoli To Pitch Today

The Redmen varsity baseball team travels to the University of Maine for two games, one today at 2:30 p.m., and one tomorrow at 1 p.m. The Redmen are currently 4-2 in the Yankee Conference.

Bruce Stafford will be behind the plate for the Black Bears. Willie Corbett at first base, Charles Gallant at second, Ralph Bonna at third and co-captain George Ferguson at short will make up the infield.

Handling the outfield will be Darryl Calkins in right, co-captain Allen Cobb in left and Steve Morin in center.

After five games, the Black Bears have compiled a 2-3 record. Cobb, Ferguson, Calkins, Morin and Bonna are the five big bats for Maine.

Playing the two games for the Redmen will be Ron Hansen in leftfield with a batting average of .377. Steve Rogers (.326) will be in centerfield and Alex Vyce (.281) will be the probable starter in right.

Ray Ellerbrook (.255) will be handling the first base chores. Second baseman Don Ferron (.279), shortstop Joe DiSarcina (.254) and third baseman Steve Stanford (.281) will round out the infield.

Tony Chinappi will be behind the plate for the two games. His current batting average is .286.

Rich Rappoli has drawn the mound duties for today, and John Kitchen is tomorrow's probable starter. Rappoli, who has pitched 40.2 innings, has an ERA of 1.76. Kitchen has completed 118 innings with an ERA of 2.81.

Wednesday's game against the Holy Cross Crusaders was rained out. In overall standings the Redmen have an 8-7-1 record. In Yankee Conference action, UMass has defeated Vermont twice, Connecticut and New Hampshire. Rhode Island defeated the Redmen by one run, and UMass has also lost once to Connecticut.

The freshmen nine will be playing host to Springfield for a doubleheader tomorrow at home. Game time is 3 p.m.

Snakebeaters, UConn To Clash

by WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

Trying to bounce back from a heartbreaking 6-5 loss to Amherst, the UMass lacrosse team will journey to UConn to take on the Huskies Saturday afternoon at 2.

UConn has gotten off to a fine start winning five of their first six games. The Huskies have bombed Babson, 19-2, Nichols, 16-4, and WPI, 20-2. They also have edged New Hampshire 9-4 while dropping a 10-6 decision to Brown.

Leading UConn's scoring punch are senior attackmen Bob Gustavson and Carl Wessinger. Gustavson leads the team with 17 goals and 10 assists, while Wessinger has 19 goals and three assists. Wessinger also holds a new Huskie record for most goals in one game with eight in the WPI game.

The Huskies have a large defense led by footballers Steve Dixon and Steve Price. The midfielders are paced by hockey captain Kevin Burke, Doug Woolley, Marc Schumacher, all returnees from last year's 7-4 squad.

Last year UMass defeated the Huskies behind a strong attack, 9-2. The teams have only met twice with the Redmen taking both contests.

UMass coach Dick Garber expects a tough game from the Huskies but feels his team should win if they continue the play which has led the snakebeaters to a 5-1 record.

The high powered offense of the Redmen should eclipse all scoring records before the conclusion of the season. UMass has 65 goals in their first six games this year while last year's record-breaking squad totaled 107 in 12 games.

Crew Favored Over HC

Coming off an impressive sweep of Worcester Poly Tech last weekend, the UMass crew team hosts Holy Cross tomorrow in their final home regatta. The Redmen, in view of last weekend's win, are considered the favorites, but Holy Cross, although disappointing this year, is certainly not to be counted out.

The Crusades are experienced at every seat and have shown improvement of late. Last year the Worcester boys edged UMass by seconds both times they met. Coach Dave Clarke's varsity promises to reverse the trend tomorrow.

No changes have been made since last weekend. Efforts have been made to improve the form and to further develop a closing sprint. Last weekend a great sprint allowed the Redman boat to overtake previously unbeaten WPI.

The Redmen Jayvees will have their hands full with the Holy Cross juniors. Winners of their last two regattas, the Crusaders are looking for another win to enhance their chances in next week's Dad Vail Regatta.

Trackmen To Compete in Yankee Conf. Championship

The UMass varsity track team travels to the University of New Hampshire in Durham tomorrow to compete in the Yankee Conference championships.

The Redmen go into the meet as defending champions, but this year they are the underdog to take the title again. URI is going into the contest as the pre-meet favorite because of their strong field event team.

The meet begins at 9:30 a.m. with the field events. In the broad jump, UMass will be going with senior Bill Tindall and sophomore Dick Dyer. The man they will have to beat is Yankee Conference indoor champion Gene Richardson from Maine. Tindall will also compete in the high jump along with Paul Nyman who was second in the indoor championship.

In the discus throw, UMass will have Dave Schlatka who placed second in this event last year. Schlatka's toughest opponents will be Vermont teammates Ardell and Seaman.

Bill Wylen, UMass' top hammer thrower, will compete in his specialty. URI's Narcessian brothers are favored for the top two spots in this event with Wylen and three others battling for the third spot.

The running events will begin in the afternoon with UMass well represented. Steve Chase, Steve Burrell and Dave Marble will be UMass's entries in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Senior Burrell is the defending Yankee Conference 220 champ. All three runners will have to contend with UNH's top sprinter Bob Crellin in both events.

In the quarter mile UMass will have two of its top runners in what the Coach O'Brien says will be the closest race of the day. John Andersen, who placed second last year, and Bob Hasselbaum will be the top Redman entries. They will be battling Skelly and Pace from Rhode Island and Young of UNH.

The half mile event will be manned by top Redman runners Dave Evans, Diego Gonzalez and

Greg Bowman and Coach O'Brien

Bill Donaldson. They will all be after URI's McGinnis who was the Yankee Conference 1000 yard indoor champ and who placed fourth in the IC4A 1000 in New York.

UMasss only entry in the mile will be senior Greg Bowman who will be facing stiff opposition from Vitale of UConn and Turner from Maine. Bowman won the conference half mile last year.

The last distance event is the two mile. Redmen Paul Hoss is the favorite in the event after his strong two mile performance against UConn last Tuesday. Hoss's top competition will come from Vitale of UConn. Another UMass entry in the two mile Marc Gelinas, will be trying to pick up a place in front of a host of Maine runners, Dahl, Legasse and Turner.

UMass will have two men going for them in the hurdling events. In the 120 high hurdles, Marc Lefever and Peter Moryll will go for the Redmen. The toughest competition will be supplied by indoor champ Whitefield of URI. In the 440 intermediate hurdles UMass hopes ride on senior co-captain John Andersen who will be running the hurdles only 30 minutes after he has finished his quarter mile run.

The mile relay will be a very close event with four teams capable of setting a new conference record. UNH, URI, UMass and Maine all have good shots at the record. Running the event for the Redmen will be the foursome of Hasselbaum, Gonzalez, Bowman and Evans.

UMass head Coach Ken O'Brien says he has to agree that Rhode Island is the favorite because of their weightmen. But if points can be taken from the URI by the other conference runners and outstanding performances are turned in by men from UNH, UMass or Maine, any of these three could upset Rhody for the crown.

Intra-Squad Scrimmage Climaxes Spring Football Drills

Sports Day Editor
by JAN CURLEY

Spring football practice winds up tomorrow with an intra-squad scrimmage at 3 p.m. in Alumni Stadium. Head Coach Vic Fusia and his staff will also conduct the seventh annual coaching clinic from 9 a.m. to shortly before the scrimmage starts.

The coaches will be looking for replacements for the 16 lettermen who will be graduating in June. Uppermost on the list will be a replacement for Greg Landry in the quarterback slot. Sophomore Tim Adams from Wellesley appears to have the edge on junior Ronn Cotlin, freshmen Mike Marchev of Short Hills, N.J., and Mark Devitt of North Dartmouth.

Tackles and guards also pose a problem. The Redmen seem to have better overall speed in the backfield plus some excellent pass catching ends.

Due to miss the game tomorrow because of injuries are lettermen, Dennis Gray, linebacker; co-captain Mike McArdle; Joe Colosi, defensive halfback; Tom York, defensive end and Noel Schablik, offensive center. Steve Rogers last year's starting safety, will be playing in the baseball game at Maine, and Bruce Fulton, a top offensive guard candidate, will be with the lacrosse team at U-Conn.

The teams will be broken up with the first offense and defense Reds against the second offense and defense Whites. Probably starters for the Reds on offense will be ends: Al Becker and Co-Captain Nick Warnock; tackles: Mike Cooney and Jim Nangle; guards: George Crane and John MacLean; center: Bob Sheehan; quarterback: Tim Adams; tailback: Craig Lovell; fullback: Bruce Cochrane; wingback: Jerry Grasso. Defense will be ends: Russ Wood and Randy Robinson; tackles: Marty Scheralis and Mark Toner; guard: Andy Guarino; linebackers: Larry Fortunoff, Tim Porter and Don Dotson; cornerbacks: Ed Sapienza and Billy Frye and safety, Steve Parnell.

Substitutes for the Reds on offense will be Al Marchev, quarterback; Frank Masseilo, guard; Connor, tackle; Bob Toole, fullback; Jim Kelliher, end; and halfbacks, Tom Semino, Dick Heavey and Nathanson.

Substitutes on the Red defense squad will be: David Walsh, middle end; Seroskey, tackle and middle guards, Curtis Moore and Eugene Caso.

Starting White offense will be: Nick McGarry, left end; Dick Donlin, left tackle; Pierre Marchando, left guard; John Dubzinski, center; John Nerl, right guard; Bob Goc, right tackle; Don Young, safety; Ronn Coltin, quarterback; John Decembrele, tailback; Pat Scavone, wingback and Eddie Sarno, fullback.

Substituting for this team will be: Ken Hughes, quarterback; John Barbato, center; Ed Flaim, guard; White, tackle and halfbacks, Frank Tudryn, Mark Russell and Francis DeVito.

Opposing the Red defense will be a White defense team composed of: John Collins, left end; Huprich, left tackle; Bill Byron, left linebacker; Roger Prefontaine, middle guard; Bill Sroka, right linebacker; Charles Baranowsky, right tackle; Joe Lang, right end; Tim Driscoll, Indrisiano and Frank Tavolacci, defensive backs.

Substituting on White defense are: Paul Lachapelle, halfback; Vincent Interlande, tackle; Callahan, middle guard; Norm Weigle, midde guard, John DeFuria, middle guard; Cummings, tackle and Farrelly, linebacker.

Room, Board Fees Hiked; Open House Policies Liberalized

by JAN CURLEY
Issue Editor

BOSTON—The Board of Trustees met in the Hancock Room of the Statler Hilton last Friday and voted in favor of increased room and board rates and an unlimited open housing policy, the exact number to be determined by the houses.

The former policy on open houses was one visiting period per month, if approved by the majority vote of the residents during specified hours and only on certain weekends and holidays.

Under the new policy, each residence hall is allowed to formulate its own visiting programs based on a majority vote of the residents by secret ballot. All visiting periods must be specifically authorized by such voting and must be revised or reaffirmed at least once every 30 days from the date of the last vote.

Visiting periods may be conducted Mondays through Thursdays from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Fridays, Saturdays and nights before holidays from 12 noon to 1 a.m. and Sundays from 12 noon to 12 midnight. No limit has been set on the number per month.

Each resident must meet his or her guest in the lobby and record the name of the guest and the room in which he or she is to be entertained in the guest book. Times of arrival and departure must also be noted.

Entertainment of guests is limited to that which would be acceptable in the lounge area of the residence hall.

No visiting periods will be allowed during times when UMass residence halls are locked for the night. These times are Sunday through Thursdays from 12 midnight to 7 a.m. and Friday and Saturday nights from 1 a.m. to 7 a.m.

All students under 21 wishing to participate in visiting periods by their residences must secure a parental permission card which must be filed both at the office of the dean of students and with the house government of the residence. Compliance with such permission shall be upon an honor system with dialogue between the student and family.

The new policy applies to the fraternity and sorority houses as well as the residence halls on campus. Each housing unit must formulate its proposed visiting program and submit it for approval to the Student Life Committee before it can begin actual visits. Each unit is also required to submit a description and evaluation of its program to the Student Senate and the Student Life Committee at the end of each semester.

In discussing the open housing policy, Dean of Students William F. Field stated, "Open houses will be granted on the basis of house government. Three quarters of the houses will qualify on this basis. There will naturally be a variation in the desires of the houses for open houses.

Vice Chairman Joseph P. Healey said, "We realize the sensitivity of the situation and are resting confidence in the student body."

The room increase is $50 across the board which still maintains the $25 differential between the old and new residence halls. Room rent for the older residence halls will now be $200 per semester compared with the old rate of $150. The rent for the newer residence halls will be raised from $175 to $225 a semester.

The Trustees also voted an increase in board rates from $220 to $245 a semester for a five day meal ticket, and from $85 to $95 for the weekend meal ticket.

Old dorms which are being rehabilitated such as Lewis would also have their rent increased to a level with the newer dorms.

President John W. Lederle said, "None of us are in favor of the increase, but we are faced with inflation and rising costs. We have tried to act as reasonably as possible and financial aid will be made available to the students." He concluded by thanking the student leaders for their help in determining the feelings of the students on campus.

Present policies exempting seniors and students over 21 from eating in the University dining hall, with the exception of Southwest, will be continued.

In other action, the Board accepted the resignation of Dr. John W. Ryan, the chancellor of UMass Boston. President Lederle said, "We are sorry Dr. Ryan will not be with us next year." Chancellor Ryan thanked the Board for their help, and said, "I have some reason for satisfaction when I look back. If my successor receives the same help I did, he will do a fine job." Dr. Ryan is going to the University of Indiana to become regional vice president for six IU campuses.

The Board of Trustees voted a constitution for a humor magazine to be established, but it cannot publish under the name of Yahoo. John Faurier, the business manager of Yahoo, stated, "that the primary question concerning Yahoo was control. Yahoo will now have four faculty advisors, whereas before they had none."

Faurier said, "Yahoo now has significant controls: the Student Senate funding is therefore a reflection of the Senate; the binding clause requesting the Communication Board to review Yahoo and recommend on its continuance."

The Board expressed need for a humor magazine on campus and agreed that the controls seemed adequate, but they would not vote in favor of the name.

Student Senate President Paul Silverman in speaking for Yahoo, said, "The student body is behind the name Yahoo. We feel it can prove itself without hiding behind a misnomer, the reputation will change and the name is a tradition."

Vice Chairman Healey voiced the wholehearted support of the Board for the Daily Collegian, and said that to bring back Yahoo at this time would be a mistake.

William F. Buckley To Speak On Student Responsibilities

William F. Buckley, Jr., author, columnist and a leading conservative spokesman in American politics, will speak on "The Responsibilities of the American Student" at the Curry Hicks Cage, tonight, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Buckley, editor-in-chief of "National Review," is appearing as guest of the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program in cooperation with the Four College (Amherst, Smith and Mount Holyoke Colleges and UMass) Coordinating Committee.

Mr. Buckley's controversial career began on the national level the year after he graduated from Yale University. He published "God and Man at Yale" in 1951, a book that accused his alma mater of teaching atheism and liberalism. He then served a relatively quiet three years as senior editor of "American Mercury." In 1955 he became editor of a new magazine, "National Review," now one of the most respected conservative journals in publication.

Defining the conservative view, Mr. Buckley said, "the most progress is made by individuals acting freely." His philosophy is expressed in his books "Up from Liberalism" (1959), "What is Conservatism'" (1964), and "Dialogues in Americanism" 1964) and many articles. The most recent vehicle of his conservative philosophy is "Firing Line," a television debate program which he hosts.

In 1965 he enlivened the New York City mayorality campaign by stepping in to oppose John Lindsay as the Republican conservative candidate. He said he did so not to win, but to re-establish campaign orientation on a basis of party platforms and principles rather than ethnic interests. He said he ran "to give the people of New York an opportunity to vote for a candidate who consults without embarrassment the root premises of the conservative philosophy of government."

College Republicans Hold Student Leadership Meeting

by MARK SILVERMAN
Staff Reporter

BOSTON—"To show young people how to take their political interest and to transform it into action" was the goal of the third annual National Student Leadership Conference, sponsored by the Massachusetts Republican College Caucus, at Boston College Saturday.

The Conference, which was attended by 200 New England college students, consisted of a series of seminars on current political topics, a key note address by Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe, a banquet, and an organizational meeting of State Young Republican Clubs.

In his address, the Governor spoke of the opportunities which the GOP holds this year. He discussed the Republican Party's chance to fufill its dream of becoming the majority party in the near future. He related the rest of his talk to the efforts young people can make in helping the GOP "to continue on its successful path."

Volpe said, "our party is one of youth and vigor. We need your enthusiastic support. You people are all approaching the age of involvement. If you look into the future, I would urge all of you to work for your party . . . . and to run for office if you so desire."

"The Republican Party needs . . . . campaigners, doorbell ringers, planners, organization men . . . . public relations people, and people who are willing to put to good use the knowledge they have gained from . . . courses in school. People like yourselves, fresh from the classrooms, often surprise . . . .us . . . with your success at campaigning."

"You'll find a warm reception in the framework of the Republican Party if you choose to join us, and I urge you all to do this."

The Seminar portion of the Conference continued the theme of youth involvement in politics, which was set by the keynote address. All topics discussed highlighted ways in which college students can take a part in enacting changes they feel to be necessary.

Highlighting the seminars were John W. Sears' lecture on Urban Affairs, Sen. William Saltonstall's lecture on "The Making of a Candidate", and UM Economics Prof. William Morris' discussion of "Economic Issues at Home and Abroad." A total of 13 seminars were offered to students.

Martin Tinker, Chairman of the UM Young Republicans Club, called the Conference, "a success in its general appeal", and voiced his hope that a similar conference can be held at UM next year.

He elaborated by saying, "The Conference next year will include a series of seminars on national and international policies. We have invited several ambassadors, and have received acceptances from three."

William Webster, who ran the campaigns of Gov. Volpe and John W. Sears, told the Daily Collegian that young people are playing an ever-increasing role in national political history. He cited the McCarthy campaign as an example.

Mr. Webster went on to discuss this year's many political surprises. "This is the most excit-

UMass Now Largest New England College

In terms of full time student enrollment, UMass has become the largest institution of higher education in New England, according to one national survey.

In its publication entitled, Opening Fall Enrollment in Higher Education, 1967, the Office of Education shows the fall enrollment of UMass as 16,481 fulltime students.

Boston University, which had been the largest institution in past surveys, is now second with an enrollment of 16,397 fulltime students. Harvard listed 14,374 and Northeastern University 13,438 fulltime students.

Northeastern is the largest New England institution when part-time students are included in the totals.

UMass Amherst is growing at an annual rate of 1500 students per year while UMass Boston will add approximately 800 students next year.

Projected fulltime enrollment for the Amherst campus next fall is 15,800 students with another 3400 at UMB. Total applications at UMass Amherst recently reached 18,400 for 3150 places in next year's freshman class.

Second 'Spectrum' Magazine To Be Available Next Week

The second issue of Spectrum, the UMass general interest magazine, will be out by the beginning of next week with a number of new changes, according to editor Barbara Ditkoff.

The 64 page issue features an eight page, four color art and photography section and includes writings and art work by other contributors.

News in Brief

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Hundreds of police grappled with rival factions of demonstrators Sunday after a speech by Prime Minister Harold Wilson against race prejudice.

Mounted police and two lines of constables pushed back 200 colored immigrant demonstrators who tried to get close to Wilson as he left the City Hall.

Other police kept back whites on the other side of Victoria Square. These demonstrators were shouting "Enoch, Enoch" — in support of Enoch Powell, Conservative politician who wants an end to immigration.

The colored immigrants — members of the Indian Workers Association — chanted: "White and black unite."

Scuffles broke out between police and some of the immigrants as police cleared the front of the City Hall.

MOSCOW (AP)—Wording of a communique indicated Sunday that Soviet leaders and the fathers of Czechoslovakia's now liberalism failed to reach agreement during a day of secret discussions here.

The communique said there were "exchanges of opinions on the situation in both countries," held in a "frank and friendly atmosphere" during the meeting Saturday with Czechoslovak party and government leaders. "Frank" and "exchange of opinions," in Communist dispatches, usually signify disagreement.

Informed sources said Soviet leaders expressed concern about the new Prague regime's efforts to relax Soviet-style internal controls and to gain greater independence from Moscow.

LONDON (AP) — Frederick West, 45, winked at his wife Sunday — and that was a sign that Britain's first heart transplant patient is coming along well.

A hospital bulletin reported his condition was satisfactory two days after receiving the heart of an Irish laborer killed in a fall. It added: "He is following the normal postoperative course."

His wife, Josephine, visited the National Heart Hospital and watched through a glass screen as her husband, propped up in bed, sipped a drink. He winked and gave her a wave.

West is in a canopy of plastic sheets designed by physicians and aircraft engineers to keep the air around him sterile.

The hospital's senior registrar, John Gibbons, said: "He is looking very well. He is wide awake and can almost sit up. He is feeling a lot better than he has done for some time."

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower "continues to progress satisfactorily and has spent another good 24 hours" at March Air force Base Hospital," a hospital spokesman said Sunday.

The one-sentence medical bulletin gave no other details.

Eisenhower, 77, suffered what doctors described as a mild heart attack after playing golf Monday near his winter home at Palm Desert, Calif. He is expected to be transferred to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C., after several weeks hospitalization here.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Walter P. Reuther's administration won an overwhelming victory Sunday in the first test of its strength at the 1968 convention of the United Auto Workers Union.

Some delegates saw the victory as foreshadowing defeat of a rebel movement to bring about election of international officers through unionwide referendum, instead of by convention delegates.

The so-called, "one man, one vote," campaign of the rebels however, will not come to a direct floor test until today.

HOUSTON, TEX. (AP) — Everett Claire Thomas, 47, drank hot tea seasoned with lemon at breakfast Sunday, three days after his heart transplant operation.

Doctors at St. Luke's Hospital said Thomas, a Phoenix, Ariz., accountant, continued in satisfactory condition.

Thomas received the heart of a 15-year-old housewife Friday during a three-hour operation. He is the world's ninth known person to have a transplanted heart.

Mrs. Helen Thomas visited her husband briefly Sunday. Physicians said Thomas spoke a few sentences, but his voice was hoarse.

WMUA Disc Jockey Starts Marathon For Benefit of the Jimmy Fund

Insomnia rules again, as WMUA starts its week-long marathon for the Jimmy Fund. D-J Ed Jewett began a week of sleeplessness this morning at 7 a.m. in an attempt to break the world's record for consecutive hours on the air.

During the long hours of the marathon, WMUA will auction items donated by local merchants and will exchange top selling records for donations. The donations of $1.50 for LP's and 35 cents for singles will benefit the Jimmy Fund in its quest to find a cure for children's cancer.

Throughout the week-long marathon, WMUA will have a 24-hour-a-day request line. Requests can be placed at WMUA's table in the Student Union from 9 to 4 daily, or brought to the studios in the Engineering Building.

Requests for a dime and dedications for a quarter will keep Ed Jewett awake in his quest for the world's record. WMUA expects to reach its goal of $1,000 long before —Jewett breaks the record of 130 hours.

WMUA will be running contests of all sorts all week. Prizes for all will be top-selling records. For instance, if you can guess how long Jewett can hold out, you'll win ten top-selling LP's. Bring your entry to WMUA before noon Wednesday.

The doors will be open at the station 24 hours a day, and everyone is invited to drop in and look around. There will be lots of good records to exchange for donations. Remember, children with cancer depend on research . . . research depends on the Jimmy Fund . . . and the Jimmy Fund depends on you.

ing national campaign that I've ever seen I think that more surprises are in the offering. I wouldn't doubt that one major bargain between two candidates could change the complexion of this whole thing. It's really too early to pick a winner—if you don't believe this, ask Governor Volpe!

He then tried to explain why Rockefeller was able to score his surprising victory over the Governor in the state primary last week. "Volpe just underestimated the people's desire to vote for a real candidate. The Governor, running as a favorite son, was not actually running for the Presidency. The voters of this state preferred to vote for someone they wanted as their President, either Nixon or Rockefeller. The timing of Rockefeller's announcement to run (the morning of the primary) also had a great effect on the outcome."

Students attending the conference generally felt that it provided them with a good insight into the backstage of politicing. Mike Cutlusi, a Boston College Junior, said "I was very impressed with the interest which politicians are showing for college students.

However, several Young Democrats attending were critical of the organization of the conference.

Tery Fine, a McCarthy supporter, complained that the Conference dealt only with the mechanics of political methods and avoided discussion of real issues. "At Democratic Conferences," she said, "we argue about issues and values; I think we accomplish much more."

Astronomy Department Launches High-Altitude Balloon from Texas

UMass has announced that its first high-altitude balloon astronomy flight has resulted in the successful recording of data on center-to-edge variations of infrared radiation from the sun.

The UMass apparatus was launched by unmanned balloon March 23 at the National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR), in Palestine, Texas, reached an altitude of 89,300 feet and was recovered safely 300 miles to the east after an eight-hour flight.

The equipment was successful in reaching the specified altitude, tracking the sun accurately and recording data for approximately five hours, according to preliminary reports from the UMass department of physics and astronomy. The ultimate judgment of the results of the mission must await full analysis of the data, which is expected to take at least two months.

Analysis of certain differences in infrared radiation from the edge or limb of the sun and from the center is expected to yield new information on the temperature of the chromosphere, the relatively cool layer of the sun that lies between the visible surface and the thin, hot outer corona.

The UMass project is supported by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and directed by Dr. John Strong, a leading U.S. optical scientist whose 1964 balloon telescope flight with Dr. William Plummer, also of the UMass faculty, is credited with the identification of ice crystals in the clouds of Venus. Dr. Strong is a pioneer in the technique of lifting large telescopes via balloon so that observations can be made relatively free of the obscuring water vapor in the earth's atmosphere.

Preliminary preparations for the launch were begun at UMass last fall and the equipment was trucked to the Texas base Feb. 7. William Mankin, a research assistant at the University worked directly on the experiment and led the field operations. During preparation and launch, he was assisted by William Dalton, senior technician; Bartley Smith, electronic technician; Joseph Ouilette, experimental machinist; and Florian Duguay, technical assistant.

In the UMass apparatus, a Newtonian-type optical telescope with an aperture of approximately 14.9 inches focuses the sun's image into a two-channel radiometer box. The box has two slits curved to conform to the limb of the sun. During the flight, the box is activated by a cam so that these two slits are scanned across the image of the sun, each slit in turn scanning from the center to a fraction of a degree past the limb.

Phone Clerks And Operators Accept Contract

BOSTON (AP)—The New England Telephone Co. said a New Work Contract had been accepted Sunday by the New England Federation of Traffic Workers representing some 11,500 telephone operators and clerks.

The contract calls for a 19 per cent wage and fringe benefits boost over the next three years. The union has not been out on strike.

This would mean an immediate $4 to $8 hike for telephone operators, which make up the large majority of the union's members, the spokesman added.

Added fringe benefits include the fields of insurance, sick benefits and vacations.

Creating Class Division

A college education encompasses much more than simple book learning. A great deal of the time we spend here concerns interaction with people, and much of what we learn, and remember later, is not derived from lectures or text books, but rather from other students. One of the reasons people choose a large university is the vast number of people, from various backgrounds, that they will come in contact with during these years.

There has been a proposal though to set up a number of so called one-class" dormitories, housing students of only one class (i.e., all senior women). This idea does not seem to be an especially good one, because this exchange would be limited to students of approximately the same experience with University procedures. In the past, most freshmen have depended a great deal upon the upperclassmen in their dormitories for the useful hints which are not included in the handbook—or written down anywhere for that matter.

Since the "one class" dormitory system would destroy the present interaction and the advantages of it for all members of the university community, I strongly suggest that this proposal be changed in some way to make it more benficial, for all involved.

Responsibility

Friday afternoon the University's Board of Trustees met in Boston and accepted the Student Senate Proposal on Open Houses with slight modifications. Basically, residence halls are being granted the privilege of having open houses throughout the week and on weekends for extended periods of time. The acceptance of this proposal was the culmination of over a year's work and represented a change in attitudes, both student and administration.

The change in attitude must be credited to arguments based on logic and rationale, not threats and coercion. The open house proposal was significantly aided by Provost Tippo and Dean Field, two men who at the beginning of the year opposed extensions of open houses. February's Sit-In cannot be overlooked either, for it tended to galvanize student opinion, and also afforded individuals the opportunity to look into themselves and decide what type of Student Government they want at the University.

Although sometimes slow, we are your student Government. If your Senator does not represent you, do not just complain — recall him. If your Senator speaks only for himself and not for his dormitory or constituency — remove him from office and elect someone who does. The mechanism for true Student's Government is here — it is your responsibility to use it.

We will have Open Houses in the fall, but it is up to each student to insure that they will not be abused. Open houses are just the beginning of social and academic change on campus, but these are empirical reforms and each change is dependent upon a previous one. If we do not establish firm open house policies in the near future, and if we do not enforce our own policies, we will lose not only open-houses but future reforms as well.

The administration and the Board of Trustees have listened to students who have said, "We are mature enough to have open-houses". They have believed us. The Student Body has voiced its maturity, lets not make liars out of ourselves.

PAUL J. SILVERMAN
President, Student Senate

Yahoo

It's not surprising to learn that Yahoo has been hit again with a measure of censorship. Last Friday, the Board of Trustees by a 7-5 vote accepted a constitution for a campus humor magazine but with the stipulation that it not be called Yahoo or anything sounding like Yahoo.

The Yahoo organization accepted this requirement until it was informed of a detail—that in addition to coming up with a new name, the campus humor magazine must get its new name approved at the next Board meeting. On hearing of this additional stipulation, the organization reversed itself and has decided to take a stand.

The Student Senate last night voted to support the Yahoo organization by placing a binding clause on its budget. According to the Senate act, funds for the Yahoo organization can only be spent for a magazine with that name.

The Student Senate has not only called for a halt to the censorship of Yahoo but has supported the right of the RSO organization to choose its own name. The campus community must rally behind the organization as the student government has.

"A Kingdom Wheresoe'er He Came"

Editor's note: (The following are reflections in tribute to the late Bernie Dallas, President of the Class of 1966. They were presented by Charlie Bradshaw, Executive Council of that class.)
To the editor:

I remember Bernie . . . Only memories can now serve to comfort me . . . Memories of one who possessed a truly rich and thorough cognizance of life . . . one who often sought to raise the spirits of the sad and lonely . . . I remember Bernie in Octobers . . . his physical prowess . . . the laughs about the nose which invariably would receive painful bruises . . . the victories over Holy Cross or Boston University . . . in the locker room I recall his praise for others, never the seeking of praise for himself—no one's station was too high or too low—he exercised humbly the love for fellow man which so many hypocritically preach . . his absolute devotion to his coaches, his fraternity, his class, his parents always puzzled me. often embarrassed me. I remember Bernie at Christmas . . . his excitement over the joy Kappa Sigma was affording to the orphans . . . all were at ease with him. I recall being at the piano on one of those Christmases . . . the youngest and smallest of the children was crying because the other children ignored her . . . Bernie took her in his lap and talked to her for an hour or so . . . she left, smiling, with his tie bearing the initial "B" . . . I can remember Bernie serving Mass at Newman, unadulterated by the current trends to forget the God in whom he so strongly believed . . . the Executive Council meetings . . . the Class of 1966 was so easily and closely united by the Dallas spirit . . . no idea was impossible . . . no plan ever failed . . . I wish that his dream of the stadium bell may become reality some day . . I still envision the little blue Volkswagon—Pennsylvania plates —University of Massachusetts on the back and side windows—stopping to help a friend arrive at class on time . . . or making one of countless trips to Springfield or Boston on class business. Commencement . . . he wept unashamedly . . . he had given so much to so many people whom he might never see again . . . to me and my class he has given a character for emulation . . . though he has left us, the memory of his excellence will forever remain.

Henry David Thoreau once wrote:

"Say not that Caesar was victorious,
With toil and strife who stormed the House of Fame,
In other sense this youth was glorious,
Himself a kingdom wheresoe'er he came.

No strength went out to get him victory,
When all was income of its own accord;
For where he went none other was to see,
But all were parcel of their noble lord.

He forayed like the subtle haze of summer,
That stilly shows fresh landscapes to our eyes,
And revolutions works without a murmur,
Or rustling of a leaf beneath the skies."

Death of a Small School

(ACP)—The fate of the small private college may well have been spelled out in recent action by Duchesne College in Omaha, Neb., comments the Midland of Midland Lutheran College, Fremont.

Duchesne's president, Sister Jeannette Kimball, announced the closure of the college as of August 15.

While the action came as a surprise to many, to others it was a simple reading of the handwriting on the wall. After much introspection by college officials, it became evident that the only solution to Duchesne's operational problems lay in the decision to close its doors.

The increased cost of operation and the decreased number of students proved to be the disastrous combination. Duchesne could not hire the faculty, expand the curriculum and construct the buildings necessary to increase enrollment to the minimum required for operation.

"Duchesne College fell victim to the financial crisis that is facing every private independent college in the nation," said Sister Kimball. "Private colleges with fewer than six hundred students are too costly to operate."

The problem boils down to the inability of the small college to compete with the larger, financially stable college and university. It is a problem that will not stop with the closure of Duchesne or other colleges with enrollments under six hundred. Dependent upon tuition and gifts for support, small colleges will continue to face financial crisis.

Duchesne's decision to close may well be an indicator for future actions by similar small private colleges.

If people bring so much courage to this world the world has to kill them to break them, so of course it kills them. The world breaks every one and afterward many are strong at the broken places. But those that will not break it kills. It kills the very good and the very gentle and the very brave impartially.

The Cowsills and The Happenings End a Year of Fine Entertainment

by RONALD J. LABRECQUE
News Editor

A concert aimed at His Economic Relief kept a slightly below average attendance well entertained at the Cage Saturday night. The Happenings, who were Homecoming favorites last Fall, and the Cowsills, a musical family with a full share of talent, were on the bill for the final concert of the '67-'68 season. That season, during which some of the top performers on the scene including Johnny Carson, Simon and Garfunkel, Glenn Cambell, Donovan, and The Byrds appeared, should rank UMass near the top when judging schools on quality and quantity of entertainment provided.

Bill, Bob, Barry, John, Mike, Barbara, and Susan, seven eighths of the Cowsill family, put more talent on stage than it seems fair that one family should have. Bud Cowsill, the father, although he doesn't perform, adds to the act by serving as Manager of the group.

Nineteen year old Bill, who is the oldest of the children, plays lead guitar, sings lead on many of the numbers, and keeps the others in line down to his seven year old sister Susan whose version of "To Sir, With Love," would make Lulu jealous.

Mama Cowsill and Susan join the boys for the better known recordings, the best of which was "I Need a Friend," but it is the five young men who perform the major portion of the show. Both the Happenings and the Cowsills borrowed songs from other groups but first prize must go to the Cowsills whose English Rock sound was as good as the original. It could as easily have been Herman and his Hermits singing "Henry VIII" or the Beatles doing "Paperback Writer" or the Stones doing "It's All Over Now."

The Cowsills are quite a family and quite a group of entertainers who should have no trouble selling their music to keep them out of the financial situation which once a few winters back had them burning pieces of furniture to keep their Newport, R. I., home warm.

The five boys from Patterson, New Jersey, who are known as the Happenings were by no means untalented themselves.

Humor is a basic ingredient of the act and is supplemented by warm personalities which find their way from the stage to the audience resulting in something called audience contact which is so often lacking with many entertainers. Organist Dave Liebert, lead singer Bob Miranda, Tom Juliano, Bernie Laporta, and drummer Lennie Conforte are at their best when they do their hits "See You in September," "Go Away Little Girl," "My Mammy" and "I've Got Rhythm" but are no less than excellent on their lesser known and borrowed numbers.

Their medley of impersonations included a great Beach Boy rendition but was made a winner by their version of the Rolling Stones song "Ruby Tuesday."

The Happenings and the Cowsills ended a year of fine entertainment at UMass on a good note. Plans for next year's concerts are already underway and should keep UMass at the top of the list.

'Spectrum'...

flow of material in the past few weeks indicates that we should have no trouble filling the first issue next semester," Miss Ditkoff said.

She explained that the first issue was almost entirely off-campus contributors due to the "newness" of the publication. "On campus writers were reluctant to contribute until they saw the format and were convinced of the seriousness of the publication," she said since the first issue the campus reaction has been good.

Both the editor and managing editor, Betsy Goldman, said that they would be spending the summer on campus in an attempt to solicit material and line up non-fiction pieces for next year. "We are still not convinced that the entire campus is aware of the opportunity for expression that Spectrum presents," Miss Goldman said. They indicated that the summer recruiting and a large campaign next fall would be aimed at encouraging new writers on campus.

Miss Goldman also explained that distribution will be handled differently this issue in an attempt to reach everyone on campus.

She said that copies of the magazine would be delivered to heads of residence Monday, the 10th. The heads of residence have been asked to distribute them in bundles to counselors who will handle individual distribution. Commuter copies will be available in the Student Union beginning Tuesday.

In discussing the role of a literary publication on campus, Miss Ditkoff said that their function was twofold:

- to provide an open forum for writers of fiction, non-fiction, and poetry as well as artists and photographers among the students and faculty.
- to provide to the general campus a quality publication that will be entertaining, enlightening and indicative of the creative activities going on at UMass.

Viet Cong Triple Movement on South

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration sources said yesterday North Vietnam is "taking full advantage" of a U.S. bombing limitation by increasing threefold the southward movement of supplies and by sending a startling number of troops toward South Vietnam.

These sources said that, based on the latest intelligence reports, as many as 75,000 to 80,000 North Vietnamese soldiers have been moved toward South Vietnam in March and April.

This is almost as many as infiltrated into South Vietnam all of last year, the sources indicated. Since 1968 began, up to 100,000 North Vietnamese have been sent southward, it was said.

Truck tonnage along the supply routes to South Vietnam through Laos during April were two or three times the average in previous months, they reported.

President Johnson March 31 ordered bombing of North Vietnam limited to roughly a 200-mile stretch of North Vietnam extending southward from the 20th parallel. Later this bomb line tacitly was dropped to the 19th parallel.

The action was designed to encourage North Vietnam to talk peace and presumably contributed to the agreement to begin preliminary talks in Paris on Friday or soon thereafter.

"They are taking full advantage of our gesture of March 31," administration sources said.

The latest intelligence reports do not provide hard figures, only estimates which make it possible to determine trends, the sources said.

White House and State Department officials recently have been showing alarm over the rise of infiltration and supplies from North Vietnam since March 31. Pentagon civilian and military authorities have indicated concern, but not alarm before this.

In Saigon, however, U.S. officers were quoted as saying that the weekend Viet Cong offensive fizzled partly because enemy ranks were depleted from 60,000 soldiers killed in the last three months.

Frosh Nine Takes Two of Three from AIC and Springfield

by STEVE SHAMBAN
Staff Reporter

Pitching predominated this weekend as the UM freshman baseball team took two games out of three, slaughtering A.I.C. 10-0 and splitting a doubleheader with Springfield College, winning the first game 2-1 and droping the second 3-0. The Little Redmen's record is now above .500 for the first time this season, at 5-4.

Friday's 10-0 game versus A.I.C. was virtually over after the first inning as UMass jumped on Yellow Jacket starter Tom Doyle for four runs. Pete Silva led off with a walk, stole second and scored as Bob Willman reached first on an error by pitcher Doyle, advancing to second on the overthrow.

Mitch Salnick smacked a double up the alley to left center, scoring Willman and advanced to third as Stan Winston beat out an infield hit. Winston stole second and Salnick scored on a line single to right by Mike Minkos. The final run of the inning was scored by Winston on a sacrifice by Steve Verenis.

All told, UMass batters accounted for 11 hits as they went on to score four in the sixth and two in the eighth making the final score 10-0. Winning pitcher Jack Bernardo went seven strong innings, allowing only three hits while garnering ten strikeouts. Scott Chaussey finished up the last two innings to protect the shutout.

If Friday was a day for the hitters, Saturday was strictly a pitcher's day as both games against Springfield College went into extra-innings, UMass taking the first in ten innings 2-1, Springfield the second, 3-0 in twelve.

Springfield's Ernie DePalma was the hard luck loser of the first game, as a bases-loaded wild pitch allowed Steve Verenis, who had reached on a dropped third strike, to score with one out in the tenth, breaking a 1-1 deadlock.

It seemed as though Little Redmen pitcher Lou Collabello was going to make a lone first inning UMass run stand up all the way, but a run scoring double by Springfield leftfielder Art Cournoyer in the eighth, forced the climactic tenth. Collabello went the distance, walked only two, fanned eight and allowed only six hits as he constantly tantalized the opposition with slow curves and change-ups off his fastball.

Three Springfield tallies, on two hits, two walks and two sacrifices in the top of the twelfth were the only runs in the second game as Chief pitcher Rudy Ascherman was equally as frustrating to UMass' batters as Collabello was to Springfield's in the first game. Ascherman went the full route and surrendered only four hits. He pitched out of four tight jams and must have had UMass batters talking to themselves on several occasions.

For his part, Little Redmen starter Don Anderson survived some shaky going in the early innings and appeared to be getting stronger, only to give up two runs in the twelfth as he apparently ran out of gas. Steve McAulay came in with one out and allowed a sacrifice which scored the final run, before retiring the side.

With spring footabll practice concluded, Mike Marchev and Tom Semino should rejoin the team shortly, providing more competition at second, short and third. The next game will be at home against Rhode Island this Wednesday. Starting time is 3 p.m.

wild pitch. Pinch-hitter O'Connell hit into a force play at second following another walk, plating Hicks with seventh and final run of the afternoon. A fly ball to Rogers brought Kitchen his fourth win against two losses.

Around the Bases — Ernie Smith, reserve catcher, deserves the Bench Jockey of the Year Award for his merciless hazing of opposing players. The squad travels to Chestnut Hill tomorrow for a long-awaited duel with Boston College, the team which knocked the Redmen out of a trip to the Omaha World Series last spring, 7-6, in 12 innings.

FROM THE HALLS OF PROTOZOA

This column, normally a treasure house of twinkly quips and slapdash japery, has now been appearing in your campus newspaper for fourteen years, and if I have learned one thing in these fourteen long years, it is not to try to be funny in the last column of the semester. With final exams looming obscenely close, you don't want jokes; you want help.

So today, foregoing levity, I give you a quick cram course in the subject you are all flunking. I refer, of course, to biology.

Biology is divided into several phylla, or classes. First is the protozoa, or one-celled animal. Protozoa can be taught simple things like bringing in the newspaper, but when shopping for pets it is best to look for animals with at least two cells, or even four if your yard has a fence around it.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera—a shadowy category that borders often on the vegetable. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. The wash-cloth, on the other hand, is definitely not.

Next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people find insects unattractive, but actually there is exquisite beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the lovely insect poems of William Cullen Sigafoos—Tumbling Along with the Tumbling Tumblebug and Fly Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Caught Me. Mr. Sigafoos, alas, has been inactive since the invention of DDT.

Our next category is the mollusca—lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections on the ocean bottom. Shrimps are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce. Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades are generally found at any counter where Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades are sold.

I mention Personna Blades because the makers of Personna Blades pay me to write this column, and they are inclined to get edgy if I neglect to mention their product. Some get double edgy and some single, for Personna Blades come both in double edge style and Injector style.

Mind you, it is no burden for me to mention Personna, for it is a blade that shaves quickly and cleanly, slickly and keenly, scratchlessly and matchlessly. It is a distinct pleasure to shave with Personna Blades and to write about them but sometimes, I confess, I find it difficult to work the commercial into a column. Some years ago, for example, I had the devil's own time working a Personna plug into a column about Alexander the Great. The way I finally managed it was to have Alexander say to the Oracle at Delphi, "Oracle, I have tasted all the world's pleasures, yet I am not content. Somehow I know there is a joy I have missed." To which the Oracle replied, "Yes, Alexander, there is such a joy—namely Personna Blades—but, alas for you, they will not be invented for another 2500 years." Whereupon Alexander fell into such a fit of weeping that Zeus finally took pity and turned him into a hydrant . . . Well sir, there is no question I sold a lot of Personnas with this ingenious commercial, but the gang down at the American Academy of Arts and Letters gave me a mighty good razzing, you may be sure.

But I digress. Back to biology and the most advanced phyllum of all—the chordata, or vertebrates. There are two kinds of vertebrates: those with vertical backbones and those with horizontal. Generally it is easy to tell them apart. A fish, for instance, has a horizontal backbone, and a man has a vertical backbone. But what if you run into a fish that swims upright or a man who never gets out of the sack? How do you tell them apart? Science struggled with this sticky question for years before Sigafoos of M.I.T. came up with his brilliant solution: offer the creature a pack of Personna Blades. If it is a fish, it will refuse. If it is homo sapiens, it will accept—and the more sapient, the quicker.

And now you know biology. And now, for the fourteenth time, aloha.

Redmen Stunned, 3-2, by Maine; Rebound 10-7

Rappoli Hard-Luck Loser; Offense Finally Returns

by MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

ORONO, Me.—UMass, the defending Yankee Conference champion, suffered a big blow in its attempt at retention of the title here Friday, going down at the hands of a scrappy bunch of Main Black Bears, 3-2.

It was third league loss for the Redmen while favored Connecticut has only stumbled once.

Rich Rappoli, despite picking up his first black mark, hurled another fine effort. Maine managed only two scratched hits off the junior righthander through the first seven innings.

Sophomore southpaw Bob Curry pitched the victory for the Black Bears, combining fine control and strategic placing of his outfielders to go the distance. He walked only three while his rightfielders made eight putouts, four of them exceptionally hard shots hit directly at them.

UMass started fast as it has in many of its contests. Ray Ellerbrook tripled up the alley in left center. Joe DiSarcina followed with an rbi single to right, took third when the rightfielder misplayed the ball and then scored on Bob Hansen's line drive base hit.

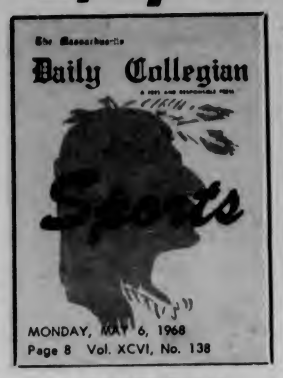
That was the extent of the Redman scoring, though, as Curry settled down to get out of that inning and then was able to weather several other storms.

In the third, Ellerbrook walked with one down and was bunted over to second by DiSarcina. Bob Hansen then singled off the first baseman's glove. Ellerbrook rounded third and headed for home on the play but the second baseman Charlie Gallant scrambled for the ball and threw the UMass speedster out at the plate.

Rappoli was in the midst of control problems when Maine tallied once in the fourth. He walked Del Calkins, hit Wayne Kuvaja, then gave up a run-scoring single to Ralph Bonna on a hard grounder which DiSarcina just misses flagging down.

UMass narrowly missed picking up a run in the eighth. Rappoli slammed a double off the base of the wall, took third on a ground ball to the right side and then was nailed at the plate on an attempted squeeze play.

In the bottom of that frame, the Black Bears knotted up the game when with two outs George Ferguson and Calkins nicked the tiring Rappoli for a double and a single.



Joe O'Connell went into right field as a defensive replacement for the exhausted Kuvaja in the top of the ninth. With two out and a man on, Tony Chinappi, who hit the ball hard all weekend but right at somebody, hit a screeching line shot to right. O'Connell made a clutch half-diving, shoestring grab of the drive which was labeled extra bases.

It was a fitting last out to the day the UMass batters were having. They just weren't hitting 'em where they ain't.

Maine notched their winning tally in the ninth on only one hit, a bunt single at that. Bonna walked when Rappoli missed with a high fastball on a three-two count to start the inning. Gallant then pushed a bunt between the charging Ellerbrook and Rappoli to put men on first and second. Catcher Bruce Stafford then walked on a high three-two pitch after fouling off a couple.

The bases were loaded with none out. Rappoli was pulled in favor of reliever Norm Elliot. Elliot worked three-out to good hitting pitcher Curry, then his efforts to keep the ball down, missed just below the knees with a fastball.

It was a dramatic, joyous win for the Bears, a sad costly defeat for the Redmen.

by HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

ORONO, Me.—UMass bats finally came to life in time to support the steady five-hit hurling of John Kitchen with a 14-hit attack and salvage a split of the important weekend twinbill with a 10-7 triumph over Yankee Conference rival Maine.

The victory kept alive the Redmen's slim hopes for a successful defense of their Yankee Conference crown with a 5-3 slate, 9-8-1 overall. League-leading UConn is 5-1, URI 4-1.

Breaks went the wrong way for the Redmen in the early frames. Maine rightfielder Darryl Calkins made a spectacular grab of a Tony Chinappi belt while leaning over the right-field fence in the second. An inning later, the Redmen loaded the bases but failed to score. Centerfielder Steve Rogers led off with a base hit, his first of three for the day, third baseman Steve Sanford reached on an error by usually sure-handed Bear shortstop George Ferguson, and John Kitchen followed with a safety. However, the threat was in vain when two successive runners were forced at the plate by Bear first baseman Al Cobb. Leftfielder Bob Hansen ended the inning by popping to Cobb.

The home club had taken an early lead in the first when Cobb beat out a slow roller and went to second when UM shortstop Joe DiSarcina's throw went over Ray Ellerbrook's head at first. A wild pitch by Kitchen scored Cobb from second. The Redmen tied it up in the fourth when rightfielder Ted Mareno reached on a fielder's choice, stole second, and scored on Rogers' second single.

A five-run sixth by the Redmen put the game out of reach. Chinappi started things with a walk, and went to second on a Mareno sacrifice. Mareno reached safety when the throw from Maine's starting pitcher, Charlie Walker, was misplayed by Cobb. Chinappi moved to third on the miscue and Mareno to second.

A line shot to left by Rogers, his third safety, scored Chinappi. Stanford then slapped a single over the second baseman's head to rescue Mareno. Kitchen sacrificed both runners along. First baseman Ray Ellerbrook then beat out a slow roller down the first-base line to load the bases. After DiSarcina popped to the catcher, slugging Bob Hansen smashed a bases-clearing triple to right center.

Maine got a run back in the home sixth when Calkins singled, left fielder Hicks walked, and third baseman Ralph Bonna slapped a single to center to plate Calkins.

Mareno's rising liner to left center in the seventh was followed by a sacrifice fly to right by Rogers to bring in another UMass tally.

STEVE ROGERS
Salvdue win on road

As the game turned out, the Redmen produced their three winning runs in the eighth. Hansen led off with a long homer over the 350-foot sign in right center. Second-baseman Don Ferron walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Chinappi's single in the shortstop hole pushed the runner to third. Rich Rappoli came in to run for Chinappi and went to third as Mareno's liner over second plated Ferron. Rappoli scored the final run when Rogers hit a sacrifice fly to center for his third RBI. This run was charged to Ralph Engstrom, fourth Maine pitcher for the afternoon.

But as the Black Bears proved only the day before, they are a good come-from-behind club. Norm Elliot relieved Kitchen in home eighth and was promptly put in a hole when Hicks reached on an error, Bonna walked, and 2b Charlie Gallant lined a single to right to rescue Hicks. Bonna tallied when pinch-hitter Roop hit a sacrifice fly to left.

Maine, who used 22 players had the UMass bench squirming in the ninth but the three runs they produced were not enough. With Elliot still on the mound, Ferguson was hit by a pitch and both Calkins and Hicks walked to load the sacks. Bonna was then hit by a pitch, scoring Ferguson. Senior lefty Dave Katz then came in to pitch and promptly allowed Calkins to cross by unloading a

O'Connor Leads Stickmen to 7-5 Win

by WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

Kevin O'Connor and Steve Connolly paced the UMass offense and the defense held off a last quarter UConn rally as the Redmen gained a 7-5 lacrosse triumph over the Huskies Saturday. The victory was the sixth in seven games for UM while UC lost its second in seven games.

O'Connor scored three goals, including the game winner, and added an assist while Connolly tallied twice in the second half.

Connolly's second goal at 2.10 of the final quarter had given the Redmen a 7-3 lead but the Huskies fought back for two quick goals by Bob Gustavson and Carl Wessinger. UC continued to press but the defense stopped the Huskies two goals short.

Gerry Forgit's quick goal at 1.13 of the first period gave the Redmen a lead that they never lost. Forgit bounced a shot past the UC goalie after being set up by O'Connor.

O'Connor tallied the second U Mass goal late in the first quarter when his bouncer caught the lower part of the net from 10 feet out.

Gary Vassar notched the only goal of the second period as he and Bill Sinclair broke in on the UC goal and Vassar had an easy shot after taking Sinclair's pass at the rise of the net.

UM coach Dick Garber lauded the efforts of his inner defense who held the high scoring UC attackmen scoreless in the first half. Walt Alessi, Tom Tufts, Bill Devore and goalie Mark Schlossberg all played well on defense.

Carl Wessinger broke the scoring ice for UC early in the third quarter with a shot from right in front of the net.

A little more than a minute later, O'Connor scored on a pretty play as he spun away from a UC defender and bounced a shot that just caught the far post and bounced into the goal.

Failure to clear a loose ball from in front of the goal led to Wessinger's second goal as he tapped home a loose ball from a scramble in front of Schlossberg.

Connolly put the Redmen out front 5-2 with his first goal He cut from left to right and let loose with a shot that seemed to catch the UC goalie by surprise.

O'Connor picked up his third goal of the game late in the third quarter as he bounced the ball between the goalie's legs. Marty Kalikow set O'Connor up in front with a pretty pass.

Ryan, Branco Star

Netmen Down WPI, 8-1

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Paced by Ed Ryan and Ken Branco, the varsity tennis team downed WPI, 8-1, Thursday afternoon at Worcester.

Branco downed Steve Henrich at fourth singles in a tremendous marathon match 16-14, 1-6, 8-6 that took 2½ hours. Branco rallied from deficits of 0-4 in the first set and 1-5 in the final set to take the match.

Ryan joined with Al Grosnick at third doubles and took the measure of Solomon Moses and Haven Grenshaw, 6-2, 6-1. In the first set, a torrid serve by Ryan all but decapitated Grosnick, knocking him cold. Ed raced to his stricken partner's limp, prone form and revived him with artificial respiration.

Grosnick, shaken but game, played stellar tennis to win the match. It was his finest moment in three years of varsity competition.

Other winners for the Redmen were Al Davis, Tom Johnson, Mike Katz, and Steve Cohen. The latter three were playing in front of hometown friends.

Coach Steve Kosakowski had great praise for Brance, "He showed me more determination than I have seen in quite a while. Boy is he a fighter!"

The tennis team's record is now 5-3. The Redmen meet AIC this afternoon at 3:00 in a match that had a great deal of trouble getting started. It was originally slated for Springfield on Saturday, but was switched to UMass. For some mysterious reason, the Yellow Jackets couldn't make it and it was shifted to this afternoon.

The Redmen conclude their season with a home match on Wednesday with Springfield and travel to Burlington, Vermont for the Yankee Conference tournament on Friday and Saturday.

Impressive Crewmen Sweep Three Races from Holy Cross

by JAN CURLEY
Sports Day Editor

SOUTH HADLEY — It was an encore for the crew team this weekend as the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen swept all three races against the Holy Cross Crusaders.

The varsity race was the closest race of the meet as only two seconds separated the winning Redmen from the Crusaders. Holy Cross beat the Redmen off the starting line and lengthened the distance. With UMass stroking at 34, they closed the distance and pulled even. With only 700 meters left, Holy Cross again took the lead, but going into the final sprint both teams were dead even. UMass finished stroking at 37, three quarters of a length ahead of Holy Cross.

"As we expected, Holy Cross is coming up with a strong varsity at the end of the season," said Varsity Coach Dave Clarke after the race. "UMass rowed very well considering we settled too low after the start. We came through with a fine sprint," he concluded.

The jayvee race was another close one with the lead seesawing back and forth. Holy Cross began stroking at 33 and UMass at 32. The Redmen upped their stroke to 34 and passed the Crusaders. UMass finished at 7:19, and Holy Cross was three and a half lengths behind at 7:38.

Freshman Coach Mike Faherty had praise for the junior varsity coxswain saying, "It was a well called race by (Rick) Santaguida. They had some trouble with form at the start, but he kept his head, and the jayvees finished well."

The freshmen made quick work of their Holy Cross counterparts as they finished a minute ahead of the Crusaders. UMass led all the way stroking at 34 against 31 for Holy Cross. Going into the sprint, the Redmen upped the stroke to 35, but Holy Cross could only make it 33. The freshmen now have a 4-1 record.

The two freshman teams had rowed once before. UMass had been the victor then with a 20 second win margin. Coach Faherty said, "I'm optimistic with reservations. I'm pleased with the way they kept up their stroke. We've been experimenting with some new style and things seem to be working."

Next weekend the crew team travels to Philadelphia for the Dad Vail Regatta, the final regatta of the season.

Buckley Gives Steps To Student Responsibility

by JOHN JANICKI
Staff Reporter

Noted author, editor and conservative William F. Buckley, speaking at Curry Hicks Cage to a large audience last night, defined "The Responsibilities of the American Student."

The first duty of the student is to "always remember his responsibility to others" Buckley said. "We should admire those of higher moral and intellectual character. We should not adopt the attitude that the world owes us something."

Second, with regard to the faculty the student should respect professors for their academic achievement, but be skeptical of their political views. "The student should learn to differentiate between reformist and hostile criticism."

Fact of Being American

Thirdly the student "must mediate on the fact of his being an American, predisposing a knowledge of history", Buckley continued. "Our culture is not a drag, it is where we can animate our intellect."

Fourth, the student "must insist that reason be re-introduced to all discussion. This is perhaps the most popularly recognized, although not all inclusive, contribution of conservatism. The principal problems of our time are man-made not nature-made and the conservative views the government as a source of control of the passions of men not the well of inflammatory activity," Buckley stated.

Responsibility to Crusade

Fifth, the student has the responsibility "not only to partake of crusades for the benefit of all mankind, but also to learn the limitations of crusades."

Sixth and lastly the student must "not merely regulate his 'basic' appetites, but also he must regulate his political appetite. Gratification of appetites through indulgence in actions not defined beyond the person is self-destroying". Buckley agrees with St. Augustine that "self-control can be the most exhilerating of pleasures."

Privacy Erosion

"The greatest event of this century has been the invasion and erosion of personal privacy. Many students are tempted to avoid participation in an organization so totally involved in an effort against personal privacy as is one such as the NSA (National Student Association").

"The primary responsibility of the student is intellectual, but 'education for what' is an important consideration. How is it possible to retreat into the problems of self and family in our time? It is not possible, we take our consciences with us. We cannot avoid the 'heat in the kitchen' in this century, duty and self-discipline are higher than pleasure gratification," Buckley said.

During the question and answer period when queried as to his preference for the republican presidential nomination Buckley pointed to Nixon as an example of a "viable candidate" although this hindered his "enthusiasm for Mr. Reagan."

Volpe Defends Massachusetts Support To Higher Education

by MARK SILVERMAN
Friday Issue Editor

BOSTON—Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe, in an exclusive Daily Collegian interview Saturday, lashed out against UMass Trustee Robert D. Gordon's criticism of his cutting the University Budget 38% for fiscal 1969. Gordon had added, "In my four years as a Trustee, the Governor...has not attended one meeting. I would like to invite the Governor to attend meetings and give us the kind of political leadership we should be getting."

The Governor's reply to this charge was "Trustee Gordon's comments are so ridiculous that they hardly deserve any comment at all. It was strictly a partisan attack, and he knows it."

"The fact is that we have provided more funds for education in Massachusetts than any previous administration. The fact is that Massachusetts last year ranked highest of all the states in the nation in the amount of increase they had made in the cost of higher education over the last four years.

Strictly a Partisan Attack

"So we have stepped up the pace of spending for higher education faster than any other state in the nation. We were way down, I appreciate that, and we have stepped it up. If Trustee Gordon knows where we can find an additional fifty million dollars to put in the Massachusetts treasury, I'd be very happy to utilize a great part of it for higher education, as well as elementary and secondary education. But in my humble opinion, it was strictly a partisan attack, and the rest of the trustees knew it."

Offers Urban Ills Solution

The nation's urban crisis has developed into a major campaign issue in both parties. Spending priorities for ghetto improvements have been debated by all major Presidential candidates. Governor Volpe told the Daily Collegian Saturday what he believes to be the best method of solving our nation's urban ills.

The Governor began, "It is my humble opinion that dollars alone are not going to solve the problem. I think we're going to have to have a big, big dose of private initiative of people themselves caring about this problem.

Revitilization of Interest

" . . . I can see signs of a real revitalization of the interest of people . . . a great many people have climbed that ladder of opportunity . . . but forget to look back down and realize that there are others trying to climb that ladder . . . and we ought to give them a helping hand, instead of getting up to the top and staying there, and forgetting about anyone else trying to get up that ladder."

"In addition to that, of course, we do need dollars . . . these dollars are going to be needed to provide incentives . . . more to provide tutorial expenses for Negro students who . . . are not quite up to the calibre of . . . white students . . . because the schools they have gone to . . . have not . . . prepared them . . . for collegiate study. However, with tutorial study, they would be able to make the grade.'"

The Governor despite his cutting the UMass budget 38%, called education the "key factor, because once a person becomes educated, then you provide an opportunity for him to get a better job. Once he gets a better job he can afford a better home."

GOV. JOHN VOLPE

Indiana Is Most Watched In Today's Primaries

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind (AP) — Three candidates campaigned down to the final hours Monday to enlist the support of undecided voters in a Tuesday Indiana primary that could alter the course of the Democratic presidential nomination contest.

Humphrey in One Primary

The New York Senator is a formal contestant in two of the day's five primaries, while Humphrey is represented in only one but is a standout background figure in the other.

The big test is in Indiana. There Humphrey is not a candidate of record but neither Humphrey nor Gov. Roger D. Branigin has not been notably successful in silencing talk about Branigin's favorite-son race as a Humphrey front.

Branigin is not committed to the Vice-president and spent most of the day in his office on the telephone talking to political aides across the state.

Many Voters Undecided

Branigin said in an interview he thinks the large number of undecided voters shown in the polls is "a good sign" for his candidacy.

"I think I'll win but I am not bragging about it because I could be chagrined."

Indiana also provides the first full-scale trial of voting booth strength between Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, the third Democratic White House aspirant. And the votes of both will be measured against the shadow candidacy of Humphrey.

Nixon Only GOP Entry

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is alone on the Indiana Republican ballot. But his backers concentrated on opposition to a campaign by the Democrats for crossover ballots that could cut into Nixons showing as a vote getter.

D.C. Contest

The second and more direct Kennedy-Humphrey collision is in the District of Columbia where two slates of candidates for delegate to the party's national convention are running for the vice president while one slate backs Kennedy.

On the Republican side in the national capital there is a contest between an agreed regular slate divided among backers of Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York—the second major avowed GOP candidate—and a rival group, running together but still split in allegiance to Nixon, Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, who still talks about himself as only a favorite son.

There are 23 Democratic and nine Republican convention votes at stake.

Other Primaries

The other primaries are in Ohio, Florida and Alabama, with only Democrats involved in Alabama. In all those cases the bearing of the outcome on presidential politics is questionable.

In Indiana McCarthy and Kennedy kept going under a full head of steam Monday. But Branigin spent most of the day in his office.

Obviously their main target was a reportedly big percentage of the Hoosier voters who are waiting right up to ballot marking time to make up their minds.

Kennedy Depends on Indiana

Kennedy appears as the man with most at stake, relying on Indiana to get his nomination drive fully off the ground. And his backers appear the most worried about the possibility of a big crossover of Republican votes. McCarthy has been discounting Indiana's real significance.

Indiana has 63 Democratic convention votes and 26 Republican but their apportionment will be decided later. They may go to the statewide primary winner for the first ballot or be divided among the districts.

Humphrey stayed away from the Indiana campaign. Sunday he was in Chicago where he failed to pick up an endorsement from Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner but did get a boost from Chicago Democratic committeeman Jacob Arvey. Monday he was in New York for a meeting with businessmen backers and returned to Washington for a speech to a labor group.

News in Brief

PRAGUE (AP) — Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek said Monday night he assured the Soviet leadership that communism remains indispensable in Czechoslovakia.

He said he gave the assurance in Moscow after Soviet leaders expressed concern that Czechoslovakia's current democratization drive could be "misused against socialism communism."

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a sometimes emotional, sometimes humorous farewell ceremony, 90-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden announced Monday he will retire early next year after nearly 57 years in Congress, longer than any other man.

Johnson told him: "You've fought a good fight. You haven't finished the course but you have kept the faith and everybody who knows you respects you."

The President broke the tension and drew a big laugh when he said "I understand the man who was after my job in the last election is now after yours."

Barry Goldwater, former senator and 1960 Republican presidential nominee, is the only announced candidate for Hayden's seat but the retiring senator's administrative alde, Roy Elson, has said he would run if Hayden did not.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's drive for a $10-billion tax increase lunged forward Monday when the key House committee voted to work on the basis of an administration accepted settlement.

The Ways and Means Committee told a Senate-House conference, headed by its own chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., to work out the increase. It agreed also to use the accompanying $4-billion spending-cut worked out by the Appropriations Committee last week as a basis for discussions—adding that the reductions should be at least this great.

Committee members, including Mills, who had been holding out for deeper cuts, accepted the action with the understanding that they could still fight in the conference for a spending reduction in the next fiscal year greater than the $4 billion.

The Ways and Means action came after an emotion-charged weekend that saw Johnson over nationwide television telling opposing congressmen not to try to blackmail him on spending as the price of what he called the urgently needed tax increase. Some members fired back indignantly.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Doctors said Monday they are pleased with the progress of two men who have received heart implants from teen-age donors in relatively swift operations.

Removal of the heart and actual suturing in a transplant Friday required 35 minutes. Sunday's required 42 minutes.

St. Luke's Hospital now has two of the world's four living heart transplant patients. It is the only hospital to have had two such operations, both performed by the same team within three days.

Johnson Cites Student Apathy in Own Concern

by SHARON SAMUELS
Staff Reporter

Brad Johnson, Chairman of the Student Senate Budget Committee, was interviewed last night by the Daily Collegian after a disappointing student response to an open meeting on the Budget Act.

Johnson cited three reasons for the lack of attendance. The first two reasons were the fact of there being a popular speaker on campus and that the meeting was held too soon.

Apathy is Main Reason

"The main and third reason is the apathy on campus," stated Johnson. There are "four very controversial issues" in the budget, that according to Johnson, ought to be of interest to the campus community.

These four issues are new additions to the Student Senate Budget: the Crew Club with a proposed budget of $5,430, the Student Afro-American Association with one of $1,038, Yahoo, with one of $2,844, and M.L. King S.A.C. with one of $41,000.

New Taxes Proposed

Acording to Johnson these new additions add approximately two dollars to the individual student's tax next year. Citing further figures from the budget report, Johnson stated that this is the largest proposed budget to be considered by the Student Budget Committee and that it will tax the student approximately three dollars more than the present one.

Second Hearing Will be Held

Johnson stated that the first full reading of the proposed budget will be held Wednesday night at 7:00 and that any complaints by students should be given to their senators by then. A second open hearing on the budget act will be held sometime after this reading for any students having questions or opinions on the budget on which their Student Tax is based.

98 Negroes Enrolled in UMass Boston

The University of Massachusetts at Boston has 98 Negroes in a total student body of 2570, according to an official statement released Friday.

This amounts to almost four percent of the student body — "a higher propoortion of Negroes in its student body than any other major college in Massachusetts," the statement said.

The overall totals from the report show that Negroes make .015 percent of the college enrollment in the state. According to the report, Boston University had 3 percent Negro enrollment, the highest among major schools in the state.

The relatively higher proportion of Negroes at UMass Boston is a result of a special recruitment program aimed at economically disadvantaged students of all races, the university statement said. The school also participates in the Upward Bound program designed to prepare such students for college.

Mass. Primary Explanation

When questioned by the Daily Collegian on the Massachusetts Primary last week, the Governor expressed his surprise at the outcome, and attempted to explain what political factors influenced the upset.

"It was something that could easily have happened in the light of the fact that Governor Rockefeller, for three days, occupied the center of stage in the press . . . and . . . made the announcement on the very morning of our primary. People, as they were going to vote, heard that he had actively declared himself a candidate. I believe that had this not happened, we would have won easily."

"The fact remains that I was not a candidate for the Presidency as such. I didn't campaign, I didn't ask a single person to vote for me . . . people for the first time . . . had an opportunity to select one of two announced candidates . . . and people took advantage of that opportunity, and wrote in the name of the man who was . . . their choice."

Small Percentage Represented

The Governor expressed his belief that a Nixon-Rockefeller primary battle could help the GOP if it were kept on an issue basis, and did not involve a personality fight.

Said the Governor, "If the two candidates . . . get across this country, debate the issues, and indicate why they believe they ought to be the nominee, it could be a very healthy thing for the Republican party."

Recommended Graduate Code Seen As Limiting Civil Rights

A "draft recommendation for a procedural code" offered six months ago by Edward Moore, Graduate School dean, is still being studied by graduate students at the University.

The code of conduct, as presented by Moore in November, "is similar in some respects to the undergraduate handbook," Thomas Minogue, vice-president of the Graduate Student Senate, told the Collegian.

Because of the very nature of the graduate students' commitment to advanced work at the University, Minogue feels, the administration should recognize that they are responsible adults and, as such, do not deserve to be limited in their rights as voting citizens.

Special Committee

After having witnessed considerable debate over the proposed code of conduct, the year-old Graduate Student Senate handed the problem in February to a specially appointed committee, including Dean Moore and Isidore Silver of the American Civil Liberties Union, for a more complete study of the code's merits.

Some of the grad student members now believe that they would like to include a provision "where the only reason for expulsion would be because of academic infractions," said Minogue. "In our code we expect graduate students to be responsible within the academic community and within society as a whole," he explained. Minogue feels that "a code is beneficial for graduate students, but we want the best one possible."

One Dollar Tax

Speaking on other issues, Minogue said the Senate is proposing before the UMass Board of Trustees "a tax of one dollar on each graduate student to help finance the activities of the Senate." He said, "The tax on the graduate student's bill will make the Senate more visible to the students."

In addition, the Senate wants to enter a program where "it could offer Diner's Club cards to graduating students who wanted them." Minogue explaned that this is one way of establishing good credit which would not ordinarily be obtainable without meeting strict requirements.

Student-Senator Contact

Another problem of the Graduate Student Senate according to Minogue: "there is little contact between the graduate student senators and the graduate students." There is "wholesale apathy on the part of some of the senators. Many graduate students still know little about the Senate and there is little interdepartmental communication. Graduate students are here only for two years to get a degree before they move on, with their main concern being their studies. In addition to a lack of sufficient knowledge about the Senate, some students feel that legislation will not affect them before they graduate." However, vice-President Minogue expects many improvements soon.

The Distinguished Visitors Program, financed and operated by the students, seeks to bring to the campus well-known authorities in a wide range of fields. Students' suggestions for possible speakers or programs of interest for the 1968-1969 year are welcomed and will be considered. If possible, further explain the choice and the potential contact channels, and send the information to the R. S. O. Office, Box 803.

The Name Game

The demand of the Board of Trustees that Yahoo not be used as the name of the campus humor magazine is censorship. In student publications one must admit there are certain unwritten rules. For example, it would not be good politics for the next issue of Yahoo, if there is one, to repeat the Shazam cartoon.

It is one thing for the Board to require a different name. This requirement the organization was willing to accept. However, the Board also retained the right to approve a substitute name. Thus, they not only require a substitute but they will decide whether or not it sounds like Yahoo, or presumably the ideas connected with Yahoo. (Such as the name, Shazam.)

The Board is going too far. The organization has bent over backwards since the spring of 1966 in order to maintain its existence. Yahoo could easily have published off-campus at any time in the last three years. The Yahoo organization, with Pete Ward as a member, has submitted a detailed constitution to the Board. This constitution, a paragon of student responsibility, was approved except for its name.

Those who prefer an on-campus publication as opposed to an off-campus one hold the following views. A recognized student organization is a part of the educational experience of the student. Organizations come into the world without original sin, and their adolescent sins may be forgiven them. An organization should be allowed to reorganize, to revise their goals.

An on-campus publication would be better for the University community because it would provide real satire instead of obscenity or sensational humor in order to secure a wide base of readership. An off-campus publication may appeal to as few as it wishes, so long as it receives minimal financial support. But an on-campus magazine has a responsibility to consider the entire University community as its audience.

Furthermore, it is likely that an off-campus publication would have to give in to various interest groups such as war and draft protestors in return for financial support.

The Board proposes to censor an idea or ideas. The University community must not let this happen. Let us make a stand now in a positive way.

The Editors

Are We Like Alabama?

(Editor's note: The information in this article was obtained in an interview with Dr. Dario Politella, associate professor of journalism.)

An instance of outright censorship occurred last spring at Troy State College in Alabama. Its significance relates to the most recent measures of censorship against YAHOO, however, for the less direct censorship which occurred.

• At Troy State, Gary Dickey, the editor of the TRIPOLITAN, was told not to run an editorial supporting a faculty member, who was opposed to the policies of Gov. George Wallace. The President of the college, a Wallace supporter and appointee, gave the instructions to the adviser who relayed them to the student editor.

• Instead of running a substitute editorial, the editor left an area of white space on his page and ran the word, "censored."

(Let those who suggest that YAHOO run without a title bear this in mind.)

• The editor was dismissed from his position AND as a student for "insubordination." He went on and appealed to the courts and eventually got reinstated as a student.

Once anybody submits to any form of censorship, he is in for a great deal of grief. The University must make a stand now before it gets even later than it is.

Business and Society

The federal and state governments have made numerous moves to increase work and living opportunities in poverty areas but it is now time for private capital to move in and share in the process of building up these sections of our society.

Despite general business problems facing any company which sets up an operation in a substandard area, such as extra job training programs and added dangers of vandalism, International Business Machine has decided to start a small plant in Bedford-Stuyvesant. As now planned the plant would offer about 300 jobs to residents of this Brooklyn ghetto. Granted that, even if the attempt should be a complete loss, it would hardly be a great financial catastrophe to a company the size of IBM. They are doing what very few others have been willing to try—to accept a more active role in solving contemporary social problems.

Other companies have stated that they would move into poverty areas but only if places like Bedford-Stuyvesant were raised to a higher level. How they propose this Pygmalion transformation is another problem.

One factory will be little more than a token, but if it succeeds it will show others that successful plants can be established in ghetto areas. Perhaps the business world will discover that it can make money and help upgrade American society at the same time.

Senior Reflections

UMass and Brobdingnagian Strides

(Ed. note—At the request of the Daily Collegian Board of Editors several distinguished seniors have written short essays reflecting upon their four years at UMass and speculating as to what they would like to see on the campus four years from now. Today's guest essay was written by Chet Weinerman, former editor-in-chief of the Daily Collegian.)

by CHET WEINERMAN

I have been asked by the esteemed Daily Collegian editors to reflect back upon my four years at the University of Massachusetts and also to prognosticate upon what I hope to see here four years from now. Perhaps the Collegian feels that having the status of a Senior 'student leader' graces one with a sagacious hindsight and a clairvoyant foresight, both of which ought to be proselytistically revealed to the unknowing masses who constitute the undergraduate community.

Such an attitude makes me chuckle, for, in many ways, being directly involved in the dramatic changes at UMass since 1964 leaves one with less of a perspective than the "dorm-rat" who has idly stood by watching a very few stooges frantically rotating the carousel of reform. Yet, it is the peddlers of the carousel who know the difficulty involved in keeping it turning, and so perhaps there is some value in hearing the peddler.

When I arrived here in September, 1964, the Orchard Hill complex was incomplete; yet, because it was marginally habitable, the administration — those rat-finks of South College — tripled up students in rooms with no chairs and Hobbitian windows. There was no Southwest complex, and Whitmore Hall was a fifty yard-line and two goal posts.

I remember in my sophomore year, after I had offered my meager services to the tri-weekly Collegian, the then-editor Pete Hendrickson and I were sitting in his office trying to "create" an editorial issue that would set off some sparks. We came up with the idea that women's curfews were unfair and should be liberalized.

On March 1, 1966, a Collegian special came out urging such a liberalization. This started a wave of significant social reform whose culmination was seen this week on the progressive open house policy, a program which is unique for any state university.

Students here are not only interested in social reform, as is evidenced by the tremendous concern for curriculum changes and general academic standards, and I believe that in the next few years this is the area where students will concentrate their efforts. And all the while, the courses are getting tougher, the buildings are getting higher, the lines are getting longer, the faculty is betting better, and the air is singing excitement as it whistles through the cloud-high cranes.

There is only one thing that has remained consistent throughout the past four years, the four most vital growth years the University will see: the people. There will always be unique people at the state University of Massachusetts. Individuals will graduate and drop out and sputter and spit and go to grad school and play football and work and love and debate and relate, and none of them will be in this transient womb for more than a few years. But there always will be the people at this "large, liberal, new, eastern state University" with whom other people can interrelate, and this is the beauty of the climate of our particular University situation.

In the last four years, the University of Massachusetts has taken Brobdingnagian strides among colleges and is now moving ahead of the secure, established private institutions in every field. The result of this exciting growth will be a better university which will attract a better, more capable kind of people — people who want UMass as their first choice and not their security school.

If is these people—the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors—that I have seen in my four years here, and it is these people I will look for four years from now. They are the education that is college.

Legislation Introduced to Change Present Selective Service Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five Republican Congressmen accused Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey and the Johnson administration Monday of having "irresponsibly failed to deal constructively with an issue as important as the draft."

The congressmen, who have sought reform of the draft, introduced legislation Monday to change the Selective Service law.

Proposed Changes

The measure introduced by Reps. Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, Frank Horton of New York, Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Garner E. Shriver of Kansas and Charles W. Whalen Jr. of Ohio would require:

- The drafting of 19-year-olds first.
- A 30-day period after notice before induction.
- Draft boards to abide by uniform national criteria for deferment.
- The Selective Service system to abide by the recommendations made by the National Security Council on "critical skills."
- That entrance standards for enlistment be no lower than for the draft.

Student Deferment

It would also allow deferments for students attending junior colleges, community colleges and similar institutions of learning on the same basis as baccalaureate candidates.

The congressmen said President Johnson allowed recommendations by a commission he set up "to be summarily discarded by a second task force which was headed by the very individual who administers the system being criticized by the Marshall commission."

Presidential Failure

They said also the President "has failed to institute the reforms which received near unanimous support when the draft law was passed last year, especially reversing the draft call to 19-year-olds.

The five GOP congressmen said Lt. Gen. Hershey has refused to institute reforms which his own task force recommended.

Mr. Chesnut came to UMass in 1967 as instructor of trumpet. He is a member of UMass faculty Brass Trio and has performed in several faculty recitals. He was recently guest soloist at the spring concert and tour of the UMass Concert Band.

UMass Symphony Orchestra will perform tonight in Bowker Auditorium.

Senate Budget Debate Covers Range of Topics

by PAT PETOW
Senior Reporter

The Student Senate met Sunday in an unsuccessful attempt to hold the second hearing on all of its budget proposals. The Senate had one budget remaining, when the meeting was called off for lack of a quorum around 12 midnight. An extra meeting will probably be held next week.

Added Budgets

Added to the list of budgets tentatively approved were the Student Senate's own budget, the from the name Yahoo to the ques- Daily Collegian, Yahoo, Spectrum, Rugby Club, and Foreign Student Association budgets.

The evening's debate ranged tioning of the Martin Luther King Social Action Council Program, a proposal for a paid Student Senate administrative assistant.

Yahoo Motion

The Senate passed a motion supporting the continuance of the Yahoo name notwithstanding the decision of the Board of Trustees, after the humor magazine said that it wanted to keep its name.

Late in the meeting, the body discussed the $41,000 budget of the Social Action Council without taking action. Of the amount, $30,000 would be used for tutors for the 125 Negro students admitted next fall in a special program. Other categories of the budget would be spent for fundraising and for communicating through coffee hours and speakers.

For possble bussing of students within the University community should Amherst stores be found to discriminate in services or employment, a sum of $2,500 has been requested. Under the category of "unanticipated expenses" (included in nearly all budgets), $3,500 has been asked.

Faculty Tax

In addition, the faculty is expected to tax themselves to contribute to the Social Action Council effors.

Supporting the budget, Sen. Larry Marcus said, it is questioned "whether or not it is in the realm of student government. It is in the realm of somebody."

Senate Assistant Defeated

The Senate defeated a proposal to hire an administrative assistant out of the funds of $4,000. Sen. Hartwell the sponsor, maintained that more than a secretary was required to do the increasing amount of busy work and some administrative tasks. Painting a gloomy picture he noted that the Senate has never had all its seats filled this year and has had he highest rate of resignations in 20 years.

UMass Grad Receives Fellowship

A former UM graduate student is one of four professional journalists selected nationally for Russell Sage Fellowships in social science reporting at the University of Wisconsin.

D. Neale Adams of the Providence Journal attended UM in 1965-67 as a New England Newspaper Fellow. This program is directed by Dr. Arthur B. Musgrave of the journalism Dept.

A 1963 Amherst Coll. grad, Adams will study at Wisconsin for a year. His interest in grad work in the social sciences is twofold: to learn more of the newsworthy things social scientists are doing and "because what social scientists have learned about gathering knowledge can probably make for better newspapers".

Minister Visits Known Conscientious Objector

"There are now at least 74 conscientious objectors known to us in federal and military prisons and we are finding more all the time," according to the Reverend Robert Horton, coordinator of a new prison visitation program for war objectors.

Initiated during the first week of April, the visitation project is jointly sponsored by the National Service Board for Religious Objectors, the American Friends Service Committee, the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, and the Fellowship of Reconciliation. It is the first coordinated program of its kind since World War II.

Reasons for Imprisonment

"The conscientious objectors in our prisons are there either because they refused to register, or because they registered and later changed their position, or because they were refused CO classification by their draft boards," said the Reverend Horton.

As of November 1967, the Department of Justice reported that there were 952 convicted draft law violators, many of whom are conscientious objectors.

On April 23, Reverend Horton left on his first visitation trip. His intent was to travel to federal prisons and military stockades in southern and midwestern states. Eventually, he hopes to have seen every known war objector who is imprisoned. Reverend Horton is working with local religious and peace groups throughout the country in an effort to encourage people to visit the imprisoned CO's regularly.

25 Year Service

Visiting war objectors in prison is nothing new for Reverend Horton, who has been doing it for the past 25 years. During World War II, he hitchhiked through the country seeing CO's in federal prisons and Civilian Public Service Camps.

In 1957, Reverend Horton began working in the Peace Education Division of the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC). From 1959, he was Associate Peace Education Secretary of the Middle Atlantic Region of the Quaker organization and conducted community peace education conferences in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey.

On World Peace Board

The Reverend Horton has been in the Methodist Ministry for 39 years. During his pastorates in western New York, Reverend Horton was chairman of the Conference Board of World Peace for 11 years, and chairman of the Rochester Fellowship of Reconciliation for ten years. Since 1962 he has served as chairman of the Bucks County World Peace Fair Committee.

Motor Vehicle Inspection Sticker Deadline Is May 15

"Don't get stuck without a sticker May 16," stated Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin as he reminded Massachusetts drivers today of the approaching end of Inspection Period.

The Registrar advised motorists to bring their vehicles without delay to any official Inspection Station.

On Thursday, May 16, Registry of Motor Vehicle Inspectors will order uninspected motor vehicles or motor vehicles bearing a rejection sticker off the highways and appropriate action will follow against the owner and/or operator.

UMass Senior Has Poem Published

Paul R. Hallock, '68, is among the nation's collegiate poets whose work appears in the first issue of Alkahest: American College Poetry.

"A Father's Autumn" by Hallock was selected for the issue that was published in late April by Wesleyan University Press. Hallock is the poetry editor of the Daily Collegian Weekly Supplement "The Exit".

Alkahest was the name for a "universal solvent" for which the medieval alchemists searched in vain.

Undergraduate Poetry only

The publican is a new, semi-annual periodical devoted exclusively to undergraduate poetry in an attempt to present the best poetry now being written on American college and university campuses. It favors no region, no clique, no "school" or style of poetry; excellence is the single standard of acceptance.

Undergraduate Committee

The sole selection of poems for each issue is made by a committee of undergraduates—each distinguished in his or her own institution as a poet or perceptive and discriminating critic. The student editorial committee for this issue is: Paul Flavell (University of Connecticut), Sandra Gary (Mount Holyoke College), Andrew Gaus (Wesleyan University), Kathleen Morris (Bennington College), James L. Price (Dartmouth College), Lawrence Raab (Middlebury College), Michael Wolfe, chairman (Wesleyan University).

Redmen Victorious (!) At Alumni Stadium

by MARTHA CURRAN
Sports Day Editor

Red defeated White Saturday, 26-7, as the UMass football team culminated Spring practice in an Intrasquad game at Alumni Stadium. About 500 people were on hand for a preview of coming events. Many of the spectators were high school coaches attending the seventh annual football clinic conducted over the weekend by the UMass coaching staff.

Marty Scheraiis kicked off for the Red team and six plays later recovered a White fumble to give the Reds a first down on their own 6-yard-line. Red quarterback Tim Adams completed passes to Nick Warnock and Bruce Cochrane on an offensive drive to the end zone and pitched to Craig Lovell for a five yard touchdown pass. The Reds faked the conversion and passed into the end zone, but the attempt was incomplete. After 4 minutes and 36 seconds of play, the score was 6-0, Red.

The Reds capitalized on another white fumble two minutes later as Andy Guarino recovered the ball and brought the Red offense in to play. Adams passed to Warnock from the 11-yard line for a touchdown. Cochrane's kick was blocked by White defensive back Dave Driscoll.

John Decembrele dominated the next White offensive drive, but the White lost yardage for clipping, illegal procedure and blocking on a fair catch call. In came the Reds, and 11.11 minutes into the second period, Warnock scored on a 16 yard pass from Adams. The kick by George Anderson brought the score to 19-0.

The White team was back in the game when linebacker Bill Byron recovered a Red fumble on the Red 23-yard line. White quarterback Mark Devitt called two plays and connected on the second with a 19-yard touchdown pass to split end Don Young. Guarino's kick brought the score to 19-7.

Pat Scavone punted twice for 49 yards and 51 yards during the second period to keep the ball out of White territory and the third quarter went scoreless.

Both teams piled up rushing yardage in the third quarter.

Decembrele was notably absent, having been injured in earlier action. Bruce Cochrane was switched from the Red to the White team.

The final score came during the last quarter as Jerry Grasso passed to Tom Semino on a halfback option play for a 12 yard touchdown. Ed Sapienza's kick was good for the extra point and the game ended 26-7.

Tim Adams, who quarterbacked the red team, was the leading passer as he completed 11 of 18 passes for a total of 123 yards and two touchdowns. Mike Marchev also quarterbacked the Reds and was 3 for 12 with a total of 67 yards including a 45-yard play with split end Nick Warnock. Jerry Grasso passed to Tom Semino for a 12 yard score.

Mark Devitt called the signals for the White team and completed nine of 19 passes for a total of 112 yards and one touchdown.

Co-captain Nick Warnock was the leading receiver with seven for a total of 117 yards and two touchdowns. Al Becker, also on the Red team, caught three for 45 yards.

On the White team, Nick McGarry caught six for 57 yards, and Don Young had 5 for 61 yards and one touchdown.

The leading runners were Craig Lovell for the Red who had 17 carries for a total of 65 yards, and John Decembrele who played only the first half and had a total of 24 yards on six carries for the White.

Head Football Coach Vic Fusia said, "I was happy with two aspects of the game which are true reflectors of a good football team: Speed in the backfield and the way the defense was hitting when they had a bead on the runner. There's a lot of work ahead for both the squad and the coaches."

Statistics:

First Downs — Red 20, White 13
Rushing — Red 141 yds, White 45 yds.
Total yardage — Red 343 yds, White 204 yds.
Penalties — Red 4 for 60 yds., White 12 for 126 yds.
Passing — Red 202 yds., White 159 yds.

Craig Lovell scores on a Tim Adams touchdown pass at Saturday's Intrasquad game.

Coach Gives Green Bay Formula

by MARTHA CURRAN
Sports Day Editor

"A lot of people think Green Bay, Wisconsin is just south of the Arctic Circle," Phil Bengston, newly appointed head coach of the champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League quipped Friday night as he addressed guests at a Sports Night Banquet sponsored by the Varsity M Club.

The weather didn't attract him to Green Bay when he joined the Packers staff in 1959, what did? "The opportunity to work with Vince Lombardi, the fine personnel on the Green Bay unit, and the atmosphere of Green Bay community itself."

The new Green Bay coach was an All American tackle at Minnesota. He served as assistant coach at Missouri and Stanford before he became line coach of the San Francisco 49'ers in 1951. Bengston was a likely replacement for Lombardi who retired as head coach on February 1st. Lombardi, in his new role as General Manager of the Packers immediately chose Bengston as his successor.

Lombardi is a hard act to follow, but Bengston doesn't display anxiety. "A friend told me," he smiled, "that I am like a duck—calm on the surface, but paddling to beat hell down below."

What's the Packers' formula for success? "Community spirit —the players belong in Green Bay; fine leadership — Coach Lombardi will not be excelled for a long time; and the ability to win the close games."

Bengston, who with "an almost emphatic No," said he will make no changes in the structure of the Green Bay Packers, credited his team's excellence to "stress on fundamentals, the same stress you have here at the University. That includes blocking, tackling, running, as well as physical conditioning and team discipline."

Another key point in success is enthusiasm. "As we tell our personnel," the coach said, "If you're not fired with enthusiasm, you will be fired with enthusiasm." Confidence, he continued, is the most common attribute of a successful individual player.

Bengston is optimistic about the future prosperity and growth of the Green Bay Packers.

Trackmen Third in Conference Meet

DURHAM, N.H.—The Redmen track team collected five first places and 61½ points in placing third in the very close Yankee Conference Championship meet, Saturday. The host team, New Hampshire responded to the cheering of the home town crowd to collect 68 and ¾ points, while winning their first conference track crown. Pre-meet favorite Rhode Island finished second with 63¼ points.

The meet, held in a wind strong enough to have some would-be records disallowed, started in the morning with the field events.

UMass' first points came in the discus when junior Dave Schlatka hurled his discus 149'9" to take first place. Bill Tindall's triple jump mark of 43'8½" was good for fourth and two points. Tindall came back later to defend his Yan-Con high jump title.

The Rhody Ram picked up the most points in the morning events (25), followed by UNH 14, Maine 14, and UMass 8. The early afternoon saw New Hampshire start to make their move as they took advantage of Vermont pulling all but two runners from the meet because of final exams. UNH picked up most of the points that Vermont was expected to get and soon they took the lead from URI, 41-38. UMass was last at this point with 9 points.

Then the Redmen started closing the gap. In the quarter mile, senior John Andersen and junior Bob Hasselbaum placed second and third for seven points. Andersen was clocked in 49.1 seconds and Hasselbaum in 49.3. UMass picked up 7 more points in the 100 yard dash when Dave Marble and Steve Chase took second and third behind UNH's Bob Crellin. The UMass men were timed in 9.8 and 9.9 respectively.

In the next event, the high jump, Bill Tindall placed first and Paul Nyman, third for the swiftly closing Redmen. The half mile proved to be a great race between URI's Charles McGinnis and UMass' Dave Evans. McGinnis had beaten Evans in the 1000 in the indoor conference meet. McGinnis took the lead early with Evans running third. Three quarters of the way through the race Evans made his move into second and went after McGinnis. But the Rhody senior had just enough left to nip the UMass sophomore at the wire by one tenth of a second. Evans time was 1:54.1.

Hard working co-captain John Andersen, with only 30 minutes rest from his second place finish in the quarter, ran and won the 440 yard hurdles in a record time of 54.6. However, the wind was too strong and the record was not allowed. UMass had now moved into third with 41 points. Rhode Island and New Hampshire were battling for first with Rhody leading, 60-59.

The next event was the 220. It proved to be the best race of the day as Bob Crellin of UNH outleaned UMass' Steve Chase at the wire for the victory. The finish was so close that both were timed in 20.9 seconds. Dave Marble, another fast improving sophomore like Chase, took third for the Redmen in 21.5 seconds.

Paul Hoss, the Redmen's top two miler started his final kick with a half mile to go to win the event in 9:24.8. Another Redman, Marc Gelinas, placed fifth with his best time to date, 9:43.8.

The last race of the day was the mile relay. The UMass' team of Hasselbaum, Diego Gonzalez, Greg Bowman, and Evans ran away from the field in a record time of 3:20.6. UMass had the lead from the start and the impressive victory and record was set when anchor man Evans blazed to a 48.9 quarter.

It was the Wildcats team balance that spelled victory for them as they scored 35 and ¾ in the field events and 33 running. URI scored 42¼ in the field and 21 on the track. UMass proved to be the best running squad as they scored 45 on the track and 16½ in the field.

Women's Tennis Team Wins

Betsy Clark placed first in the singles competition for the UMass Women's Tennis team last Saturday at Boyden Tennis courts. Mary Fyrer and Beverly Mentes were second in doubles.

Boston Bouvé, Colby Junior, Mount Holyoke, Plymouth (N.H.) State, Springfield, UNH and U-Mass were all represented in competition.

Sen. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy spent their last day before the Indiana Primary campaigning in La Porte. This is the first time Kennedy's name will appear on the same ballot as McCarthy. It is the first real test of his popularity. In previous primaries strength was shown only by write-in votes. The results of this election may determine the party nominations.

And the Race Goes On

RFK Wins in Primary; His First Real Test

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., swept to a solid victory in Tuesday's Indiana primary that projected him to the top level of Democratic presidential nomination contenders.

In his first test at the polls since his belated entry into the race, Kennedy topped Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., the strong man of two previous primaries, and Gov. Roger D. Branigin, an uncommitted favorite son leaning toward Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Alone on the Republican ballot, Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon rolled up an impressive total likely to exceed the 408,000 he received in the state's 1960 primary, when he had only token opposition.

The count from 1,983 of the state's 4,461 precincts gave: Kennedy 161,113, or 41 per cent of the total vote; McCarthy 115,256, or 30 per cent; Branigin 112,522 or 29 per cent.

Nixons' total from 1,677 precincts was 205,841.

McCarthy said the count was not distressing to him, adding "I think we're doing all right. He said he intends to go on to other primaries. The next test between him and Kennedy will come in the May 14 Nebraska primary.

A spokesman for Kennedy said the New York senator "appears to be headed for an impressive victory in Indiana, defeating an entrenched Democratic machine and reversing in four weeks the predictions that he would lose here."

This spokesman said he sees in the returns "evidence of Senator Kennedy's strength among Democratic voters of all kinds."

There was no clear indication of the extent of any Republican cross-over into the Democratic primary. But it seemed likely that cross over votes were being divided by McCarthy and the governor with few of them going to Kennedy.

At stake in the Democratic contest was the prestige of victory in a swing, midwestern state and a claim on the 63 Indiana votes toward the 1,312 needed to win that party's presidential nomination.

Nixon had the 26 Republican votes toward the 667 needed to top the GOP ticket.

How the state's Democratic votes will be cast at the party's Chicago convention remained to be decided later. The Democratic state committee has the power to determine whether the delegates shall be lined up behind candidates on the basis of the top vote getter in districts or on a state-wide basis.

Lederle Discusses Goals, Achievements On WMUA Question-Answer Period

by ROSE MILLER
Staff Reporter

President John W. Lederle called the past year of campus activity, "a good year with a lot of conversation as a tri-partite community." With this statement Action 68 on WMUA last night began a discussion of important campus events.

Originally designed to be a discussion between Jack H. Dean, editor-in-chief of the Collegian, Jim Collins, President of the Student Senate, and President Lederle, turned out to be a question and answer period between the president and Pete Ward. Both Dean and Collins were unable to attend the meeting.

PRES. LEDERLE

Ward asked about the efforts to improve communications between parents, students and the legislators concerning present quality of education and social conditions at the university. Pres. Lederle stressed that the fact that "A Parent's Newsletter" was sent to elicit feelings about more liberal house policy.

The parents' reaction was one of concern, for the parents' felt the present system of visiting in the lounges was "adequate." For this reason parental permission was included in the new open house policy.

Like parents, Pres. Lederle defines a dorm as "a place to study in . . . I would see some restraint in fixing visiting times. If it turns out to be perpetual open house . . . we are really going to have failed."

On specific areas of progress Pres. Lederle cited the program for recruiting Negro students, approval of a humor magazine, and approval of liberalized open house policies. In the recruitment of disadvantaged students he pointed out this plan originated "long before the death of Martin Luther King" thus it is not a tokenism.

The problem of reinstating Yahoo has been finally solved as Pete Ward informed the listening audience that members of Yahoo have accepted The Campus Humor Magazine as the new name for their new organization.

Pres. Lederle reiterated that the name Yahoo was unacceptable to the Board of Trustees, for the magazine had caused "irreparable damage to the university with the cartoon satirizing religion. But "there is no censorship at this university," the president affirms, and "there is definitively a need for good humor and satire."

Concluding the interview, Pres. Lederle called for students to take an active role in participating in student government, student publications and just plain discussion.

Columbia Settles Back to Survey Why of Disorders

NEW YORK (AP) — Red balloons labelled "Strike" bobbed up all over Columbia University's campus Tuesday, but classes met anyway—in classrooms, on the lawn, in off-campus apartments, and one in a nearby bar.

A fact-finding committee met to discover the causes of two weeks of student disorders at the 25,000-student Ivy League university.

Graduate schools reported near normal operations Tuesday, but undergraduate Columbia College was scattered about in "liberation classes"—many meeting outside in balmy spring air.

There were some new subjects. One class was called "Sexual Intercourse, a Political and Human Reality." Another was "Columbia as an International University: Liberation or Bondage?"

Mrs. Wallace Dies of Cancer; Brewer in Office

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's historic state Capitol was closed and flags outside fluttered at half staff Tuesday in memory of Gov. Lurleen B. Wallace, a victim of cancer at the age of 41.

Messages of sorrow poured in from President Lyndon Johnson, Vice President Hubert Humphrey and from governors across the South.

The death of the first woman governor in Alabama's history and the third in the nation projected 39-year-old Lt. Gov. Albert Brewer into office as the state's chief executive.

Brewer, a Decatur, Ala., attorney who was Speaker of the House during the last of his three terms in the state legislature, was given the oath of office Tuesday afternoon.

There was no evidence, made public at least, that the governor had been stricken again with cancer after the removal of a malignant tumor last Feb. 22, her third such operation in two years.

The immediate cause of death at 12:34 a.m. Tuesday was not

UN Warns of War In S. Africa If No Changes Are Made

UN (AP) — A special council told the General Assembly Tuesday that racial war is inevitable if South Africa refuses to turn South-West Africa over to the United Nations. It contended only use of force could oust South Africa from the territory.

In October, 1966, the assembly declared South Africa's mandate over the territory terminated. It named the council the next year to supervise the U.N. takeover and set South-West Africa on the road to independence.

But South Africa has refused to recognize the U.N. action, and barred the council last month from entering the territory, about twice the size of California but with a population of only about a half million.

The United States, Britain and France, among the permanent members of the Security Council with the right of veto, have been consistent opponents of use of force.

Top N. Vietnam Policy Makers Arriving In Paris To Begin Preliminary Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's delegation for preliminary talks with the United States began arriving Tuesday with a top member of the group sounding a positive note.

Ha Van Lao, who will act as adviser to chief negotiator Xuan Thuy, was at the head of 23 delegation members from Hanoi by way of Peking and Moscow. Ha Van Lao told newsmen "I am optimistic" about prospects for the talks. He did not elaborate.

The North Vietnamese official is an army colonel and was with his country's delegation to the 1954 Geneva talks which ended the French-Indochina war. Western sources here believe he is one of the top policy makers in the Hanoi government and probably will play a role as important as that of Xuan Thuy.

French officials said they were proceeding on the assumption that the International Conference Center in the former Hotel Majestic, near the Arch of the Triumph, will be the conference site.

Security remained a major concern. Heavy police reinforcements were sent to the American Embassy, just off the Place de la Concorde, as student rioting threatened to take on a more pronounced political tone and interfere with the negotiations.

Workmen were busily refurbishing the conference center and officials inspected the huge stone structure and checked the area from a security viewpoint.

The Majestic was Gestapo headquarters during the Nazi occupation.

W. Averell Harriman and Cyrus R. Vance, the chief American negotiators, arrive in the French capital Thursday. Part of the delegation is already here.

New Sec. Defense Clifford Apt to Be Policy Advisor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Clark M. Clifford's first months as Secretary of Defense have stamped him as a "big-picture" man who concentrates on advising President Johnson and delegates most day-to-day Pentagon decisions to his deputy.

One of McNamara's chief weaknesses, acknowledged even by his admirers, was his apparent inability to cozy up to Congress. His presentations were brusque and formal and he rarely bothered to make any personal visits to influential senators and representatives.

In a very real sense, Clifford has been mending fences which fell into neglect and caused McNamara rising troubles with Congress.

Clifford was reputed to be a hard-liner and has acknowledged publicly that in the past he had opposed bombing pauses.

Shaft Reaches Trapped Miners; Gives New Hopes for Rescue

HOMINY FALLS, W. Va. (AP) Surface teams punched an air vent 140 feet through the roof of a mountain Tuesday to two of the 25 men trapped in a coal mine and brightened chances for their rescue. Another shaft was being drilled to 13 others but a shale layer prevented its progress.

The long column provides air for mine foreman Frank Davis and miner Edward Rudd, isolated since noon Monday about one mile from the mine's entrance. It also enables rescue teams to drop food and water.

Contact was maintained with all 15 but there still was no word from another 10 trapped two miles into the shaft and hope for them was slight.

"I don't know what the officials up there are saying," said one worker who manned the pumps inside the shaft, "but down here we think we'll get 13 of the boys out tonight." The 13 were isolated about one mile from the mine's surface opening and about a half-mile from Devis and Rudd.

Another major breakthrough was achieved before dawn Tuesday amid near-freezing temperatures when waterproof plastic tubes filled with coffee, sandwiches and water were lashed to the mine's conveyor belt and sent into the mine. Just 13 minutes later, a call came from the trapped men on the radiotelephone:

"We got 'em."

One official said it buoyed the spirits of the trapped men.

"They know if we can get food down to them," he said, "we'll probably get them out."

UMass Student Group Works Toward Success of Poor People's Campaign

On Monday, May 6, there was a third meeting of students wishing to participate in the Poor People's Campaign. The students participating are part of the University's King Social Action Committee.

The entire group of students are involved in several levels of social action. Presently the students are attempting to stimulate consciousness of the social problems in the country. This includes discussion and individual contacts to make the UMass-Amherst community aware of poverty and solutions available.

There are millions of people in the United States starving to death or existing on the lowest levels of survival: thousands of people in the Appalachia and Southern portions of the country have yearly incomes of $600 or less.

This is beyond racial distinctions: whites, blacks, Puerto Ricans, American Indians, and in fact every possible nationality and race suffer these conditions. It is not a matter of prejudices, but rather it is the socio-economic system in this country that has created a large mass of poverty peoples.

The Poor People's Campaign in Washington, D.C. has been developed to amplify this issue. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, organized by the late Martin Luther King, Jr., has organized this national campaign.

College students have been asked to participate. Students are welcome in the Washington, D.C. demonstration to run classes, write letters and pamphlets, talk and involve themselves in

Safety Feature Introduced By "Fail-Safe" Headlight

College students, whether jalopy jockeys or drivers of Dad's new car, are subject to the same perilous frustration as millions of other Americans—the "one-eye menace," an automobile with a burned out headlamp. About 34 million auto headlamps burn out every year.

Now the industry has a "fail-safe" headlamp that bids to end the rein of terror of those highway Cyclops created by burnouts. It's called "Guard-Glo" because it has a standby filament that remains lit after a main filament fails, providing a low-candlepower warning glow to oncoming cars.

The new lamp, developed by Wagner Electric Corporation, has been called "the most significant advance in auto headlamps since introduction of the sealed-beam lamp in 1939." Frank J. Ehringer, president of the company, said he expects the Guard-Glo to make conventional lamps obsolete within a few years. "The unquestioned safety advance for such a small increase in price makes it virtually imperative that every car, new or old, be equipped with lamps having this feature," he said.

Glow of safety

The "Guard-Glo" is available in retail automotive outlets for a suggested retail price, uninstalled, approximately 50 cents higher than conventional sealed beam headlamps.

Automotive sealed beam headlamps are manufactured to industry standards and are available in conventional 7-inch and 5-inch-diameter sizes.

The new Guard-Glo headlamp is identical to conventional types with the exception of an extra "safety" filament that burns at low wattage for the entire life of the lamp. "The extra filament is placed within the lamp so as not to interfere with driving illumination. When a burnout occurs, the safety filament remains lit—not to provide illumination—but merely to glow so as to indicate that the vehicle has two lights," Ehringer said.

The "glow" has an intensity approximately that of a car's parking light and is visible in excess of 500 feet. The safety filiment's longer life results from its burning at much lower temperature than the main filaments. In the headlamp, it bridges the support wires that form a tiny stanchion to support the main filaments.

Aggression and Escalation:— Woodchuck Politics

Many, many years ago there lived in a quiet green pasture a breed of fat contented woodchucks. The woodchucks, although peace loving, lived in constant fear of a tribe of prairie dogs that lived in a near - by pasture.These unscrupulous prairie dogs had corrupted part of the grasshopper population and turned it red.

These bad red grasshoppers were rumored to be swarming over the good grasshoppers who had always liked and been liked by the woodchucks. Actually, the chucks liked most of the grasshoppers. In fact, they liked them all except for the red ones who lived too near the vicious prairie dogs.

If there is one animal that strikes fear and hatred into the hearts of peace-loving woodchucks everywhere it is one of those dirty dogs (prairie) who are always burrowing, digging, and crawling over the ground.

None of the woodchucks really remembered why they hated the dogs so much, but some said it was because they spoke a foreign language, or because of their ferocious appetite for power and land to dig their insidious little holes in; others blamed it on the domino theory; and others didn't know and didn't care, for all the woodchucks knew that for whatever the reasons, they and the dogs were enemies and there was bound to be trouble.

Well, back to the story. As we said before, the good grasshoppers had been attacked by the bad red grasshoppers who were being encouraged by the dirty dogs. When the situation got so out of hand that it looked like the bad red grasshoppers might win, the wise head woodchuck decided to send some young chucks over to the grasshoppers' pasture and help them defend themselves. But when it came time to elect a new head chuck and more and more of the young chucks were coming home in little boxes, trampled to death by the evil red grasshoppers, the woodchuck community wanted to know what the wise old chuck would do to end the slaughter.

And besides, there was this mad chuck who, seeking to be elected head of all the chucks, was making some wild and ridiculous statements about sending all the young chucks to help the hoppers in their war. But the wise old chuck assured the community that if he were reelected he wouldn't send chuck boys to do what hopper boys should do, and he was elected.

After many, many years of war with the red grasshoppers and many, many dead chucks and hoppers (good and bad) the community asked their wise old head chuck why he sent all their chuck boys to the other pasture to do what hopper boys should do and he replied, "Well, you-all know its so damn hard to tell a friendly grasshopper from those damned RED ones.

But I promise you my fellow chucks, just give me a few more of your chuck boys and then soon all our brave chuck boys can come home." All the chucks in the pasture cheered and sent all their remaining sons off to look for red grasshoppers, and just as the wise old chuck had promised, all their brave boys did come home, in little boxes.

Morals: (1) Nine out of ten woodchucks are color blind.
(2) It's alright to cut off a leg to save your face, but only if it's someone else's leg.

Escalation

The recent progress towards peace in Vietnam has been painfully slow, but once the parties sit down together at the peace table, things may change. Since both the U. S. and North Vietnam are so ingrained with war policy, their method of finding a peaceful solution should be interesting to behold.

Ho—Well Lyndon, my country has decided to institute a cease-fire from 11:30 to 11:45 a.m. on Thursdays. What do you say to that?

Lyndon—There you go again, using cheap tricks to get world opinion in your favor. If you initiate a cease-fire the U. S. has no choice but to decrease its bombing by 50%.

Ho—You dirty American. Just for that we'll stop shooting down your planes.

Lyndon—You'll what! Just for that, we'll stop using napalm!

Ho—You're a shrewd operator. But if you stop using napalm we'll have to stop using loaded guns.

Lyndon—Ho ho ho, Ho. I bet you think you've got me. But I've still got an ace up my sleeve. If you stop using loaded guns, we'll reduce our troop commitment to 1,000.

Ho—We'll release all our prisoners of war.

Lyndon—Dammit Ho. That does it. As far as I'm concerned, the war is over.

Dr. Spock's Babies Grow Up

(ACP) — Nobody ever knocks a guy for writing a baby book, says Phyllis Dubrow in the UCLA Daily Bruin.

And while the Joe McCarthys, the Rockwells and the Carmichaels get nailed with "extremist" labels, it just doesn't sound logical that a pediatrician would want to change the world.

But everyone forgot about Dr. Spock. The Good Doctor wrote a little manual about 21 years ago that promised to reveal the Secrets of Raising a Well-Behaved Child.

Try to understand the kid, the doctor said. If he's acting like a regular bastard, try to understand why. Listen to him. Children should be seen and heard.

Don't tell the kid he can't have a nickel for a Hershey bar; explain to him why not. Don't swat him because he put chocolate footprints on the carpet; explain to him why what he did was wrong. Don't yell at him; talk to him. The important thing is to treat him like an individual.

So by the time the little guy was five feet tall, he had the world on a string and his parents wrapped around his finger. The world was his oyster; he could do no wrong.

But while Daddy could give in when the kid asked for an ice cream cone or a two-wheeled bike or the keys to the car Saturday night, when the kid wants a pink and blue world, there isn't much Daddy can do. The kid, however, still figures that's Daddy's fault.

So the kid goes to college believing the moon is his if he wants it. He wants the Multiversity and the Great Society to listen to him just like everyone else has all his life; he doesn't want there to be a war any more and he doesn't want to go into the army.

He wants to change the world —and all of a sudden he's got a vote.

So here we are with a whole generation of Spock babies on the verge of adulthood. Re-enter the Good Doctor, unfurling a banner strangely matching that of his foster offspring. And this time it is to them he says, "Okay, babies, follow me."

Spring Day Could Benefit Jimmy Fund

To the editor:

Next week, WMUA is holding a drive to collect funds for the Jimmy Fund to help those who are not as fortunate as many of us. The idea occured to me that the student body might be able to participate in this drive in a manner that would be beneficial for both the contributor and the Jimmy Fund Organization.

This year, the faculty of the University could, if they desired, help organize a massive drive for a collection. I suggest the following: Since Spring Day is illegal, many persons hesitate to participate due to possible consequences. The faculty and Jimmy Fund could capitalize on this drawback of Spring Day in the following manner.

On the decided day, faculty might inform their classes that no action would be taken against those who participate in Spring Day if they paid an "entertainment fee" of five to ten cents a credit for every credit of class missed on Spring Day. This could result in a large fund which would be donated to the drive.

I am not suggesting this just as a "maneuver" to get people out on Spring Day, since many will come anyway, but rather to utilize Spring Day not only as a time for fun, but also as a time for benefit to those less fortunate than ourselves.

I have made my suggestion, it is now the perogative of the faculty to make use of this day as I offered rather than stand in front of an empty classroom with nothing beneficial occuring.

Students Urged to "Enjoy Spring" Together

To the editor:

I usually am not motivated enough to write letters to the editor, but the spring weather has somehow forced some of my literary desires out of hiding. It could be the warm weather, the green grass, the singing birds, or any of the many enjoyable elements of Springtime which release my inhibitions.

I was thinking how wonderful it would be if everyone on campus would gather together for the purpose of celebrating the beginning of spring. We could bring food, blankets, other refreshments, and maybe a band or two. It would be a time when we could all mutually enjoy the beauties of spring and even more important, the beauties of each other.

Ask yourself, "Would I be willing to cut a day of classes to gather with my fellow students and be free to do what I want without the daily pressures of classes, papers, exams, and other deteriorating elements of student life!" Surely it would be a worthwhile adventure, and opportunity.

Might I suggest that each and every one of you answer the question I have posed? Answer it in all sincerity, because the above opportunity JUST MIGHT COME UP.

Mini Queen Falls for Maxi

By NADEANE WALKER
AP Fashion Writer

LONDON (AP) — It's finally happened. Mary Quant, who gave birth to the miniskirt, has fallen for the maxi.

About half the clothes in the new Quant fall and winter collection are below the knee, and some have a real Gibson girl look.

Miss Quant still shows some supershort skirts and culottes, but in a program note for buyers says they will be delivered three inches longer than shown —plus hem. The Quant, or Ginger Group, clothes are being paraded for buyers this week.

Other British designers started showing the maxi last year. Miss Quant insisted then: "The mini is here to stay."

It takes a designer with Mary Quant's irreverent sense of humor to name the best-seller in the show "Dog's Dinner." It's a little gray jersey dress with long-fitted torso and short skater's skirt, with shiny boot buttons marching down the front. Buyers are lapping it up.

There's a touch of little Miss Muffett or maybe Scarlett O'Hara in the tight ruffled lace leggings that peep out under the skirt of "Quaker Oats". A black ripple crepe trouser suit with long flared top—"Bib 'n' Tucker"— has the same white lace leggings from the knee down.

At the other extreme is another trouser suit just right for transcendental meditation, with baggy bloomer hips tapered to tight legs. Maybe because of the silhouette, or because it's made in lurex plaid, this one is called "Bagpipes."

The Mary Quant maxis are just a couple of inches below the knee at the top of the calf, some straight, some gored.

There are a lot of black in the collection, a fair amount of white, some oatmeal shades, a raspberry pink called "fishpaste" purple and prune tones, and gray. Jerseys and crepes are runaway favorites.

Miss Quant recently visited Spain, and has come back to design high-riding toro trousers and fisherman's pants, cut off and ruffed just below the knee. A German or Austrian influence creeps in, too, with suspender-topped shorts and pinafores.

Despite the fun she obviously has with fashion, most of the clothes in the Quant show are handsomely wearable.

Don't hurry.

Don't worry.

And don't forget to smell the flowers.

If you don't believe that one... how about this?

Shot down again? How can you be sure?

It takes an accomplished actress to refuse a date without offending the man. Also, if he is potential material for a future date, that is, if nothing better comes along in the meantime, he has to be handled accordingly.

A dead give-away to an out and out refusal is the tone of voice she uses. If she sounds like she is in pain just discussing the prospect of a date, chances are that she really isn't too enthralled with the idea.

The ingenuity of her excuse is also an indication of her ulterior motives. If it's an exceptionally clever excuse, she probably wants him to ask again.

One UMass co-ed interviewed by "Squaw Talk" wanted a particular date to call her again, but she didn't want to go when he asked her. Her excuse was that she had to go out of town to buy new tires for her car.

He certainly couldn't dispute the necessity of new tires, and it was a point in his favor that she at least elaborated on the standard "I'm going home this weekend."

Papers and exams are always valid but if she simply cannot bear to be with him, it's dangerous. He might ask her for a study date.

"I'll go but I have to be in by 9:00" is good for discouraging him for a particular evening, but it doesn't ensure future dates.

Sickness is good but it entails staying in the dorm, hibernating, and possibly going stir crazy. It could be really bad if he asks her out for either Friday or Saturday night. If she wants to leave the dorm, she has to make a rapid recovery or suffer the embarrassing consequences.

A rapid recovery on Friday night might force her to accept for Saturday night, so timing is very important.

Once on a date, she might feel a violent desire to be rid of him. Headaches are good here, but impending nausea is far more effective.

"Squaw Talk" also surveyed UMass men this week. Two questions to be wary of on a date are: "Do you drink?" and "Are you over 18?"

The Face that Makes the Cover

If one picture is worth a thousand words, then a picture of a lovely girl is worth even more. At least so goes the reasoning of American photographers and magazine publishers, who, for years, have been planting pretty faces on covers. For decades, American women have admired, envied and emulated the face on the cover — the model whose look became THE look of the year or the era.

During the '40's it was Lisa Fonssagrives, whose bold cheekbones, wide-set eyes and sophisticated air made her the photographers' and fashionables' darling. Suzy Parker set the tone for the '50's. Her large, loose-boned frame, easy way of wearing clothes and all-American classic good looks established a casual yet elegant goal for women to achieve.

This beauty be-all and end-all occasionally drives women to the point of despair. "How do these models look so good all the time? I could never look that way in a million years!"

Yet, surprisingly enough, even top-notch models worry about their appearance. Elaine Fulkerson, the newest face on the cover, has just won a national contest for the Model of the Year, yet she still feels, "I've got problems just like other girls who are concerned with their personal appearance. I have little laugh lines around my eyes. I have to keep washing my hair and using conditioners to make it behave, and I wish my teeth were a little whiter, too. Also, I'm not very fond of freckles but I've got them."

The answer to her problems as well as most models' (and any woman who is desirous of looking her best) is a scrupulous beauty routine. This beauty plan is two-fold: to take the best possible care of her face, as well as practicing with beauty aids to get her best possible look.

Elaine starts in the harsh glare of the morning light, so she'll be able to see exactly how her make-up will look when she's finished and out during the day.

After a thorough cream-washing and gentle smoothing on of moisturizer (a good idea for any beauty plan established for her by the Cover Girl beauty ex-girl over 20), Elaine follows the experts. With the romantic look making such a big hit this year, Elaine's whole make-up plan is keyed to this theme, for a soft, natural radiance.

First, Elaine applies a medicated cover girl make-up in an ivory-beige shade—stroking the creamy liquid base gently upward with her fingertips and carefully blending it in all over —around the eye areas and right up to the hairline—for an even, flawless skin tone. Because cameras tend to "show-up" every little imperfection—this step is most important for a cover girl. So is the kind of make-up she uses—and Elaine likes knowing that hers is medicated —to protect her precious skin against bumps and blemishes while covering lightly and naturally.

Taking stock of what her best features are and correcting her weakest points is another part of Elaine's beauty program. To accent her high cheekbones, she "shades" the area just underneath them with a darker shade of the same liquid make-up. This hollows out the area to give the impression that her cheekbones are much higher than they actually are. For further highlight, Elaine brushes a softly shimmered blusher along the bones themselves, giving them a lovely natural glow that never looks heavy or artificial.

Gray eyes tend to "wash out," so to make hers more prominent, Elaine outlines them very subtly with black eyeliner and applies brown or gray eyeshadow just above the crease of her lids. For special occasions, she adds a highlight of white or gold just underneath her brows. Mascara on both her upper and lower lashes, plus a few extra lashes drawn in beneath the outer corners of the lower lashes completes her eye make-up.

Since her mouth is one of her prettiest features, Elaine uses the Natural Frost lipstick shade that is a favorite with so many cover girls because it glosses and frosts the mouth in such a luscious way. Voila! — Elaine is ready to go out on modeling assignments, knowing that her make-up will look perfect for hours under the lights with just an occasional touch-up of pressed powder.

This beauty plan for the newest face on the cover is just as good for the face that graces the home. Adapting this plan to suit her own coloring and features, any woman can look model perfect—with a little effort. And as any model would say—that effort is more than worth it!

Blonde Lisa Fonssagrives was the beautiful and sophisticated photographers' darling of the 40's.

Suzy Parker — her all-American classic good looks established a casual yet elegant goal for women to achieve in the 50's.

Rationalize that Ice Cream Cone

In the taking-fun-out-of-life department: There is no significant difference in the caloric value of ice cream and sherbet. This edifying but depressing bit of news comes from no less an authority than Philip L. White, Sc.D., Sec. of the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association.

He says that a serving of ice cream (about a sixth of a quart) would provide only about 15 calories more than a serving of the same amount of sherbet. In addition, the nutritional return of ice cream is much greater than that of sherbet. Ice cream supplies "appreciable amounts of calcium, protein, riboflavin, and vitamin A to the diet," while sherbet provides much less of each.

the lives of the people. Classes will be open to college students, so that they may learn more of the situations, philosophies, and solutions. Living space and food will be provided. However, all will work; this is not a festival.

The Washington demonstration will involve several thousand poor people moving to that city and remaining there until Congress decides on action to solve the poverty conditions.

This social action is now being developed on this campus. A food-fund-clothes drive is now underway on campus and in the Amherst area. All people wishing to contribute themselves or their material goods should contact members of the Campus Poor People's Campaign and the King Social Action Committee. All contributions will go to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference for the poor people around the nation.

An acute critic of American life whose essays frequently appear in the New York TIMES and other national publications, DeMott will speak on the subject "America the Unimagining."

The recognition of senior honors students, initiates of honors societies, and winners of special academic awards will be among the features of the evening. Dr. Everett Emerson, Director of Honors, will preside.

Readers Theatre Presents Montage of Am. Scene

UMass Photo

RICHARD EKER and MARGARET FRANSON

The Big Parade: An American Montage, a Readers Theatre program devised and directed by Vincent Brann of the Speech Department, will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, May 9-11, at 8:30 in Bartlett Aud.

Verse, prose fiction, slogans, road signs and other written matter provide the "script" of this 90-minute program, which is an attempt to portray what America is like through what we read, say and hear.

The Big Parade is a montage which brings together, sometimes in startling arrangement, excerpts from the works of many American authors and poets. It is intended to create a new sense of awareness in the audience by bringing to consciousness marked oppositions of viewpoint among American writers and by highlighting the many slogans and clichés we take for granted in contemporary life.

Readers will include Margo Christensen, Margaret Franson, Richard Eber, Mary Ann DePietro, Jim Sargent, Art Cohen, Donald Quatrale, Paula Norton, Larry Jakmauh, John A. Robinson and Kathy Reis. Mr. Eber and Miss DePietro will provide musical accompaniment with the guitar and the auto-harp. Recorded music and sound effects will also be utilized in the production.

No reserved seats will be held for The Big Parade. Tickets will be sold at the door one-half hour before each performance.

Red Sox Defeat Senators, 3-2, On Santiago's 12th Straight Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jose Santiago, with relief help from Lee Stange, won his 12th straight game over a two-year period as the Boston Red Sox defeated Washington 3-2 Tuesday night with a run that scored on a balk.

It was only Boston's second victory in its last nine games, while the Senators lost their fifth straight.

Joe Foy doubled home the first Red Sox run in the first inning and they wrapped it up with a pair in the third. Santiago walked, Foy singled and Carl Yastrzemski stroked a run scoring hit before loser Joe Coleman balked home the decisive run.

The Senators scored in the seventh on consecutive singles by Bernie Allen, Paul Casanova and Ron Hansen, and again in the eighth on Del Unser's hit, a wild pitch and Allen's single. Stange then entered and got the last four outs.

Santiago, 3-0, who won his last eight games in 1967, had a two-hitter for six innings before the Senators broke loose.

Crewmen Prep For Dad Vail

Rowing for the final time this season on the Connecticut River, the UMass varsity and JV crews will be racing Williams today prior to leaving Thursday for Philadelphia and the Dad Vail Regatta. The varsity race is expected to start at 5 p.m., followed by the JV event, after which the crews continue with their work out prior to dismantling and loading their shells for the trip to Philadelphia.

The UMass crews are expected to add two more wins to their already successful year. The number of collees in this year's Dad Vail Regatta has been limited to 36 entries, with the Redmen as one of the top-seeded crews entered.

Redmen Up Record to 7-1

by PETER PASCARELLI
Staff Reporter

Unleashing a first period barrage of six goals that left Trinity talking to themselves, the U Mass lacrosse team routed the Hilltoppers, 15-5, yesterday at varsity field. The win in UMass' final home appearance raises the Redmen's season mark to 7 - 1, while dropping Trinity to 4 - 2.

Trinity came into town boasting a fearsome offense that swept through four wins by huge margins, but the combination of a great UMass defense and a high geared offense, left the visitors gasping.

Kevin O'Connor, fittingly started off the scoring in the first period. O'Connor, who for the day had three goals and four assists, tallied at 1:48 as he moved from behind the net and flipped in the goal.

Less than 30 seconds later Bob Florin got his first of three when he took the faceoff, circled in and scored. Florin made it 3-0 at 6:45 on an assist from O'Connor as Florin took the pass amidst a group of players and shot it home.

Bill Sinclair was next to join the scoring column, as he took an O'Connor feed and scored at 6:57. Steve Connolly helped to set up the marker with a good carry from midfield.

Marty Kalikow got the fifth goal on a freak play, as his hard shot deflected off a Trinity defenseman's pads and went by beleagured goalie Bob Ebenstein. O'Connor ended the period's scoring as he flipped in the ball after being set up at the side of the net by Connolly.

Meanwhile, Trinity could manage only two shots on the net in the period. Walt Alessi made a great defensive play near the end of the period as he stopped a Trinity attacker moving into an open net.

Florin got his third goal in the second period on a Gary Vassar assist as Florin leaped high and drove the shot in. Trinity finally scored at 4:13 as Franklin Stowell tallied with Bill Wight assisting.

At 9:42, Brad Herling, who performed excellently at attack, set up Steve Chambers to make the score 8-1. Herling made another fine feed minutes later, this time setting up Don Agnoli.

Trinity scored at 13:48 on Wight's goal but UMass came back at 14:25 as Sinclair, on a two on one break with O'Connor, scored on O'Connor's assist. The halftime score was 10-2.

Two minutes into the third period, it was Connolly from O'Connor again for another goal. At 7:18, after a fine display of passing, Kalikow set up Vassar for a score.

O'Connor continued the rout at 10:05 as he soared in the air to grab a Herling pass and converted. Steve Anderson closed out the period's scoring with Herling again assisting.

The fourth period saw UMass coach Dick Garber use his reserves for the majority of the time. Trinity with its first team still playing, revived themselves enough to score three times within a minute and a half. Stowell, Nate Prentice and Wight were the scorers.

Don Agnoli from Parker Simonds closed out the game's scoring at 5:41.

Garber was surprised at Trinity's pitiful showing. "I saw them last week and they looked great," said Garber, "But today they looked whipped before the game started."

The coach was especially pleased with Herling's fine play. "Brad is a fine player, too good really to be on the bench like he has been for most of the season. It was therefore a pleasure to see him have the game he did."

The Redmen travel to Durham, New Hampshire tomorrow to take on the UNH Wildcats. Saturday night an exhibition is tentatively scheduled between UMass and Redmen alumni under the lights at varsity field.

STOPPED FOR A CHANGE — UM midfielder Bob Florin's attempt for a tally is thwarted by the Trinity goalie. Fifteen other attempts, however, found their mark as the Redmen won, 15-5.

Redmen Clip Boston College, 11-8, on 13 Hits

by MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

CHESTNUT HILL — UMass' avenging bats rapped out 13 hits, seven of them for extra bases, to give the Redmen an 11-8 victory over Boston College here Tuesday. The Redmen now stand at 10-8-1 overall while the Eagles, who were once 11 - 0, saw their record fall to 12-5.

UMass starter Dave Katz went six innings and gained credit for the win. Reliever Norm Elliott came in with no outs in the seventh, got out of that BC rally, and finished up the game and earned the save.

Shortstop Joey DiSarcina started the Redmen scoring in the first with a solo homer off losing pitcher Pete Ford. After the Eagles tied up the score in the second on Dan Zailska's double and Bill Plunkett's triple, Bob Hansen hit another solo shot to put the visitors back into the lead.

Hansen's homer over the left-center field wall was his sixth round-tripper of the year. It gives the sophomore slugger from East Boston the Redman record for most homers in any one campaign. There are still four games left to play.

In the top of the sixth the UMass hitters knocked out Ford and went to work on reliever Ray LaGace. Ted Mareno started the five-run inning with a walk. Tony Chinappi's sacrifice bunt was then mishandled and there were runners on first and second.

Don Ferron then tripled in two runs, Steve Stanford doubled, stole third and then scored on Ray Ellerbrook's single.

DiSarcina capped the rally off with his third hit of the day, a two-bagger to deep right-center.

Boston College had a big inning of its own in the bottom of the seventh, picking up five runs. Big hit of that inning was a high-hopping single over Stanford's head which scored two runs.

The visitors picked up four more runs in the eighth to make it 11-6. Steve Rogers and Mareno had RBI singles while Chinappi topped off the splurge with a booming double.

Mike Robertson's two-run homer, also his sixth of the year, accounted for the game's final runs in the bottom of the eighth.

Dave Katz is now 2-0 on the campaign. The victory was some compensation for the heartbreaking loss the Redmen suffered last year in the NCAA regional finals. The Eagles won 6-5, in extra innings, earning a trip to Omaha, Neb. and a berth in the College World Series.

DAVE KATZ
Notches second win.

Varsity and Frosh Track Teams Fall to URI

RHODE ISLAND—Falling behind early, the varsity track team was stopped by Rhode Island, 99-50, in a conference meet Monday. The Rams had a balanced attack, scoring 50 points in the field events and 49 in the running events.

Junior Dave Schlatka, coming off a first place performance in the conference meet, took the only first place that the Redmen field event team got when he hurled the discus 139'5. Rocco Petitto and Dick Dyer placed second and third in the broad jump, and Bill Wilen took third in the hammer throw behind URI's Narcessian brothers.

The running events was where UMass picked up most of its points. Steve Chase started the Redmen off with a third in the 100. He then came back to win the 220, followed closely by teammate Dave Marble. UMass also took first and second places in the next event, the 440. Senior John Anderson took first and senior Greg Bowman captured second.

The half-mile was taken by Yan-Con champ Charlie McGinnis of URI. Paul Hoss of UMass placed third in the event. Hoss then came up with a double victory, winning the mile in 4:27.6 and the two-mile in 9:47. Taking second for the Redmen in the two-mile was junior Marc Gelinas.

UMass picked up five more points from their durable co-captain Anderson who won the 440 hurdles as he had done Saturday in the conference meet.

The Little Redmen also had a meet against the URI frosh. The freshman meet was closer than the varsity matchup with Rhody winning, 81-67. It was the difference in the field events scoring that told the story of the meet with URI scoring 55 points and UMass 16.

The bright spot for the Redman field team was a record setting pole vault of 13 feet by Buzz Hiller.

Sprinter Walter Mayo and hurdler Gerry Spellman led the frosh runners with two wins apiece. Mayo flashed to victories in the 100 and 220. In both races second place went to UMass' Ed Heywood. Spellman grabbed first places in both the 120 and 440 yard hurdles. He also anchored the relay team in its victory.

The Redmen frosh scored two firsts in the middle distances with Yale Stevens taking the quarter and Ron Wayne the half-mile. Wayne came back to place second in the mile. In the two-mile, top two-miler Leo Duart turned in a strong performance by winning the event in 9:43.8.

The Little Redmen took most of the first places in the running events, but their lack of depth hurt their chances for a come from behind victory.

UMass Gives 'Special Consideration' To Negroes in Admission Process

by ROBYN CHANDLER
Staff Reporter

The Admissions Office at Whitmore is literally swelling with applications for the fall semester of 1968. The class of '72 will number 3,150, these being selected from the top ten percent of their class.

Robert J. Doolan, assistant director of Admissions, in his consideration of candidates, has somewhat changed the rules of acceptance for many black students. He urges the public's understanding that the standards are not being lowered, but only that more intensive consideration is given to "special case" factors of low achievement and college board scores accompanied by excellent secondary school performance.

He also points out that these Negro students must be given a chance immediately to prove themselves, and with assistance from the tutorial program and the Afro-American Organization," . . . we'll make it." Working hand in hand with the Admissions Office is the Committee for the Continuing Education of Negro Students, a group of faculty members, which has recruited some 120-125 black students, mainly from the Roxbury and Springfield areas, and from the Upward Bound program. He made it clear that it did not recruit out-of-staters, and that some black students were rejected merely because they lacked college board scores and academic courses in their secondary school entirely.

Doolan also said that the University has received over 3300 transfer applications for next semester. Of these, 800 to 900 will be accepted, with students from Massachusetts community colleges getting preference.

In addition, some 25 athletic Yankee Conference Scholarships will be awarded, but those decisions are delegated to the Athletic Department, according to Doolan.

Doolan mentioned some non-academic factors that are considered when looking at applications: an out-going personal interest and need, and especially personal contact with the Admissions Office itself.

Everything counts, maybe even a call from the governor or your friendly neighborhood representative.

Quint Proposes New Curriculum In Place of Cook Committee Report

by DON EPSTEIN
Managing Editor

In a letter sent to all faculty members of the College of Arts and Sciences yesterday, Howard H. Quint, head of the history department, proposed a new curriculum change in place of the controversial Cook Committee Report.

Concerning the Cook Report Quint wrote "the report nonetheless represents a bundle of compromises and is based upon no particular educational philosophy. In actuality, it departs very little in general orientation from our present curriculum."

Quint's substitute proposal is modelled after the new curriculum adopted at Yale University this year.

Implicit in Quint's proposed curriculum is "the right of the student to a wide latitude of free choice." Every student, during his four years at UMass, would have to take "at least 16 one semester courses outside the department of his major, of which at least 12 one semester courses must be outside the division of his major."

See text of letter on page 6

With this new proposed curriculum a student's major department would be able to dictate to a greater degree a student's overall program by establishing certain course criteria for their majors. For example the physics department might require their majors to take three years of math and no foreign languages while the history department may require its majors to take three years of a foreign language and no math.

In an interview with the Daily Collegian last night, Quint said that the success of such a "free curriculum" would rest with the counseling and advisory program, especially in the freshman and sophomore years.

Asked to comment on Quint's proposal, I. M. Hunsberger, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said that he expects the proposal to be considered along with all other recommendations during the course of next year.

Some members of the UMass faculty have called the proposed curriculum too liberal for UMass students although admirable and suitable for Yale students. Quint stated "A well-conceived curriculum can accommodate the students of any respectable institution be it Yale, Harvard, the University of Calif., or the University of Massachusetts."

Student Senate Passes Budget Act; King Council Given Final Approval

by NICK COSTA
Senate Reporter

The Martin Luther King Social Action Council was given preliminary approval, last night, for a $41,000 budget.

The Council is a joint effort by the Student and Faculty Senates and the Administration to admit 125 disadvantaged Negroes next semester with a total $97,000 allowed for tutoring services.

Amendments and binding clauses will offer the services of the Council to any disadvantaged student without regard to race, color, or creed. Students under this program will only be removed from the University for academic reasons by a vote of a "faculty committee." This new effort is the first time that the Faculty will be taxed, and that funds from student, faculty, and administration have mingled for a R.S.O. group.

Treasurer Alan Gauthier made a motion to place the entire budget on referendum, when the entire campus would vote whether or not to include it in the budget. The Senate defeated the motion, citing that the referendum would not take place until next semester and funds should be available for summer action. Students would also be taxed an additional $4 in the spring semester to allow for the new budget.

In later Senate action, the entire 1968-69 Budget was given two readings and then finally approved. This action allows for further action by the Executive Committee of the Student Senate and the Administration.

The total $314,459 budget introduces Yahoo, the Martin Luther King Social Action Council,

WMUA Marathon's Ed Jewett Enters 62nd Sleepless Hour

by NEAL NOVACK
Staff Reporter

"I have built up a resistance to a lack of sleep. I had strong doubts when I first came on, but now I think I can make it."

These were the muffled but courageous words of WMUA's Ed Jewett as he entered the 62nd hour of his grueling goal to beat the collegiate broadcasting record of 146 sleepless hours, and more importantly, to raise as much money as possible for the Jimmy Fund.

Ed, who is faithfully wearing his "What—Me Tired?' sweatshirt, stated: "I'm personally

MacKimmie House Quiet Corridors Are Beneficial for All Participants

Responsible students cause less damage in MacKimmie House. This is the conclusion of a survey conducted last week by George Flavin by means of a questionnaire distributed to the 57 residents of the MacKimmie House Quiet Corridors. The purpose of the survey was to determine the relative success of the Quiet Corridor Project, 1967-1968.

Besides a 95 percent approval of the Quiet Corridors as a success, the residents indicated that less damage had been caused on these corridors as compared to other corridors on campus.

The corridors were indeed quiet according to the survey. In addition, there was no need to enforce the quiet hours. The academic reason was the most frequent response given to the question why a resident chose the Quiet Corridor. The mean of change in last semester's average for the residents on the corridors indicated an increase of .67.

These results indicate that serious, responsible students live on these corridors. They are serious in their studies, they share the responsibilities of keeping quiet on the corridors, and they respect both University property and private property.

The Quiet Corridor Project was begun last September on two floors of MacKimmie House. Next year a third floor will be added. Quiet hours are observed 24 hours a day. However, radios, hi fi's and TV's are permitted as long as the volume is kept moderate.

The majority of the residents are sophomores or juniors, most of whom will remain on these corridors next year.

really pleased about the student support—I really didn't expect such a great student response." At the height of activities yesterday afternoon at the studio some thirty students were picking through the piles of records on sale.

Jan Goyuen, who has helped Ed with the organizational work for the marathon, has estimated that two-thirds of the money donated has come from the sale of records at the studio and the remaining third from the raffle tickets being sold at the S.U. lobby. The drawing of the raffle tickets will be held this Saturday over WMUA.

Aiding Ed's efforts to sustain his physical—as well as mental well-being through the long lonely hours, three cases of Coke have been donated by the Coca-Cola Company of Northampton; pizzas from the Amherst Tower; coffee from the S.U.; grinders, etc.; chicken soup and crackers brought down by four students from Orchard Hill at 4 A.M.; and last but not least, a full course breakfast (including steak) delivered personally by Mrs. Robinson—no, not the Mrs. Robinson of movie fame—Mrs. Robinson of the Executive Council (Class of '69).

Publicity-wise, the marathon has received support from WRKO, Ken Coleman, announcer for the Boston Red Sox, and Jim Morse's column in the Boston Herald.

Despite the tempting bottle of No-Doz sitting atop "the board" (WMUA's instrument panel) Ed Jewett determinedly asserted, "I haven't had any medication—just coffee. My physical condition is a matter of ups and downs. At first I became tired at intervals of two or three hours—now it's every half hour. My condition depends on the type of day and show I'm doing and who's in the studio. If I make it to the halfway mark (May 9th at 9:30 A.M.) then I'm sure I'll be able to go the distance."

The White Attitude

During the past weeks much has been written in this column and elsewhere advocating riot - control restraint, Negro rights, and gun - control legislation, yet these, no matter how well enacted, will never relieve American social unrest. Even if Mayor Daley retracts his "shoot to kill" orders, the open housing bill is successful, and gun-control legislation is passed, ghetto conditions will not have improved, for these ills are only manifestations of a much deeper problem. It would be like treating a cancerous outgrowth without finding and eliminating its source.

That source of unrest perhaps lies the deepest within white America's attitude toward equality. The white community is willing to listen to and is genuinely moved by the conditions in the ghetto, but when confronted with concrete acts, it turns its back with white racist disdain. As openings in employment and higher education are offered the Negro, the heretofore white liberal grows indignant and seems offended.

The prevalent white attitude which encircles the whole concept of Negro rights is based on the self-improvement ideal, and most whites find it irritating that advancement is being "handed" to the Negro. The paradox created by this attitude has caused great obstacles for any real progress. By opening up job and school opportunities to the Negro, many feel that these positions would go summarily to the black man, depriving whites the equal opportunity for the position.

White Americans demand fair competition, yet realize how poor training and discrimination will retard the Negro from often winning such competition.

In order to produce individuals capable of competing and fulfilling to an extent the self - help ideal, the ghetto schools will have to be improved; also progress must be made in housing, code enforcement, and job training. But the results of these efforts will take years to be felt. Is the Negro to remain in ghetto conditions until then? Flashes of discrimination from behind a cry for fair competition have shown that white America feels he should. And until some basic realization and compromise of that faulty self - help ideal can be made, white society will continue to deal, not with the real fundamental problem, but with its manifestations; and like a cancerous growth that basic ill will spread and grow stronger.

...And Then They Forget

The much publicized, "Poor Peoples March on Washington", is now well under way. Into it has gone much time, planning, and effort with still more of the same to be put into it. But this writer questions the worth of the whole ordeal. Is it really worth it? Will it accomplish anything other than passing recognition with a few quickly read and quickly forgotten headlines?

For a possible answer let's go back approximately one month to a town in southern Tennessee, to a balcony outside a hotel room, and to a man, a great man who was maliciously cut down, first of all because he was black, and secondly because he was a black leader and a symbol for black people.

And here we are, not one month removed from that brutal incident, his grave still fresh and broken, and what has happened? Forgetting, that's what's happened! White people have forgotten, or at least they've tried to forget. It was the same thing two weeks ago! Most everyone was excited and disturbed at first, but quickly, like a feeble minded old man, the white people forget. Forgetting was easy. The white man didn't have to think about how sick his society was anymore, and all was nice again, or at least until the next incident occured which would again, like an infected wound, display the sickness deep within society.

White people forget far too often than is good for them. The black man has been forgotten for four centuries, and still he is being forgotten. This march scheduled for later this month will undoubtedly fcllow in the same old American Tradition of forgetting. People will read about it in the papers and talk it around the supper table, and quickly forget all about it as soon as it becomes second page news.

White people are the same; they haven't changed much. But black people are not the same; they've changed! And they have set about changing what has been wrong in America since it's beginning. And whether the white man forgets or not this fact will not change. America is changing, and black people are the ones changing it.

UMass Students Campaign For McCarthy

To the editor:

Over forty U Mass students spent this year's H.E.R. weekend in Indiana working for Senator Eugene J. McCarthy. These people joined an army of college students from all across the nation canvassing long hours through the streets of Indianapolis. The U Mass group manifested a heartwarming enthusiasm and seriousness of purpose that has characterized similar student activities for Senator McCarthy in New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

It was great fun and personally rewarding to work with these people. I regret that the forty or fifty disappointed U-Mass students who had expressed willingness to go could not be accommodated. I want to express my thanks to this group of people for their understanding of the intricate and delicate nature of transportation arrangements, and to the group that went for their wonderful co-operation.

I would also like to thank again Mr. William F. Buckley, Jr. for his graciously providing transportation for seven McCarthy "refugees" on Monday.

Faculty Member Supports Action of Columbia's President

(Ed. note: The following letter was sent The New York Times and is reprinted here as it may be of interest to the University community.)

Gentlemen:

It is apparent that one of the causes of the large-scale opposition to Columbia's Pres. Kirk is his action of calling in the city police. I submit that the underlying reason for this reaction by some to the presence and actions of the police is not, in reality, horror at what then unavoidably occurred or a love of freedom but instead an elitist and undemocratic, and perhaps anti-democratic and quasi-totalitarian, opinion that students are above the law and its machinery and officials.

The Columbia administration's actions have been politically wrong, not morally or legally wrong. Its actions excited opposition, but the character of the opposition was already formed. Columbia's actions did not create it. They served instead as a defenseless lodestone and target against which it could vent its irrational fury. If this logical distinction were made by certain students and faculty as well, the true significance of what has occurred might be painfully pieced together.

A university, a forum for relatively free discussion under a minimum of restraints, was attacked by a group of persons who desire violence and perhaps even crave it. There is no denying that the university administration has not been politically astute, but this failing is not one that merits the destruction of a university or the elevation of a group of later-day arch-priests of the aggrieved, the alienated and the angry to dictatorial dominance over all, the possible consequence of inaction by the administration.

Sincerely,

Karl W. Ryavec

Senior Reflections

An End In Itself

By FRAN BORONSKI

Four years ago this summer I was an orientation freshman in (are you ready for this?) Arnold House; Southwest was just a hole in the ground. Counselors were policemen, residence hall government, judiciary and underpaid. Curfew for us incoming freshmen was 8:00 P.M. for the first few weeks on weekdays and 10:30 P.M. for the rest of the year. Open houses were held at Christmas—with doors open, of course. In 1964 there were forty-five members of the Student Senate; today, there are eighty.

Obviously, many aspects of the University have changed. But most conspicuous has been the change of atmosphere. The wonder of the University is the impermanence of any mood or attitude of its students, faculty, or administration.

The University Reform Committee came and went, but the spirit that was responsible for its origin has evolved into what you, as students, feel now. The 1965 fight for curfews was transformed into the more contemporary struggle for an open-house policy emphasizing student responsibility.

And you who remain have more available to you than we who came before. The search for a total education is a difficult and wonderfully frustrating one.

Look around you.

See what the classroom has to offer; get acquainted with your instructors. If you are dissatisfied with any part of the University express your views where they can be heard. If you are so inclined, become involved in an activity in which you can influence change.

Open your mind in this heterogenous environment.

Smile a lot.

Transfer the critical approach to learning to all aspects of your University life.

College is a means to an end; it is also a meaningful end in itself. Enjoy, enjoy, for it, too, will pass—all too quickly.

Johnson Is Hopeful About Paris Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before the U.S. delegation's takeoff for its meeting with North Vietnamese envoys. President Johnson voiced cautious hope Wednesday that the Paris talks will lead to an honorable peace.

Speaking to Thailand's visiting prime minister about his campaign to—as the President put it—"begin the work of healing" the bitter Southeast Asian conflict with the Reds, Johnson said:

"There is hope now, finally, some hope that that offer will bear fruit and that an honorable peace could come."

The six-man U.S. delegation is headed by veteran diplomat W. Averell Harriman.

UMass Choral Group to Present Annual Spring Choral Concert

The choral groups of the University of Massachusetts will present their annual Spring Choral Concert on Sunday, May 12, at 4:00 P.M. in Bowker Auditorium.

The program will include performances by the University Chorale, Chorus, Women's Choir, Chamber Singers, and Madrigal Singers, and will be under the direction of Dr. Richard du Bois, Director of Choral Music, and Mr. Alan Harler, Assistant Director.

A wide variety of works, ranging from seventeenth century madrigals to arrangements of the traditional sea chanty Shenandoah and the Negro spiritual, Good News, will be presented. Of especial interest will be a performance by the Chorus, with chamber orchestra, of Franz Joseph Haydn's Missa Brevis Sancti Joannis de Deo (the "Little Organ Mass"). The Chorale, which was well received by critics and audiences on their week-long tour of the midwest this spring, will sing Ralph Vaughan Williams' Serenade to Music, with Miss Dorothy Ornest as soprano soloist.

This is Dr. du Bois' fifth year as Director of Choral Music, and under his leadership the number of choral groups has increased from one to five. This year's concert tour was the Chorale's first out-of-state venture, and they sang in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Illinois, and in Ohio at the Cincinnati College - Conservatory of Music. In addition the Chorale and Chamber Singers made their first appearances on television this year.

The concert is open to the public and there will be no admission charge.

Text of Quint's Proposed Curriculum

One of the distinguishing features of a liberal education is that it has no single definition. Rather, therefore, than prescribing which specific courses must be taken by all students, the College of Arts and Sciences requires that each student design his own program of study, suited to his particular needs and interests, from the multitude of courses available to college students within a university. Only two specific rules will limit the selection of courses outside the major.

1. There are three divisions of the Arts and Sciences:
   A. Humanities
   B. Social and Behavioral Sciences
   C. Physical and Biological Sciences
2. Every student, during his four years at the University of Massachusetts, must take at least 16 one semester courses outide the department of his major, of which at least 12 one semester courses must be outside the division of his major.

For the purposes of this rule, as many as two language courses at the introductory or intermediate level may be deemed automatically to fall outside the division of the major.

A. A freshman may take no more than 6 one semester courses in a single division and no more than 2 one semester courses in a single department.
B. He may, however, take as many as 4 semester courses in a department that embraces several different disciplines, such as Classics or Romance Languages.
C. The one and only specific course requirement will be that all freshmen take a basic course in English Composition or an advanced freshmen course in literature depending on results achieved in proficiency examinations upon matriculation at the university.

Senator Joe Kilmartin introduced an amendment, which would allow more involvement in the 4-College program. An additional $1,000 has been added to the Senate General Fund for use as a lecture series by the 4-College Co-ordinating Committee.

Redman Bats Lag in 4-1 Loss to URI Rams

Sporadic Hitting by UMass Fails to Support Rappoli

by HARVEY ELMAN
Senior Reporter

Rhode Island's baseball squad took a big step forward in its quest for Yankee Conference supremacy by coming from behind with two-run outbursts in both the sixth and eighth innings to rap the Redmen, 4-1, yesterday on Varsity Field.

The defeat virtually eliminated the Redmen from contention for the Conference crown which they have won the past two seasons. URI and UConn now have identical league-leading 5-1 marks. UMass is 5-4.

For the fourth time in five Northern starts, junior righty Rich Rappoli (3-2) has found himself without hitting support. Rappoli hurled seven strong innings, giving up two runs, three hits, six walks, and striking out two. Trailing 2-1, however, he was forced to leave in the home seventh for a pinch-hitter.

The Redmen broke quickly from the gate to take an early lead. With two gone in the opening frame, walks to Bob Hansen and Steve Rogers were followed by a line single over shortstop by Tony Chinappi, plating Hansen with the lone UMass tally of the afternoon.

First baseman Ray Ellerbrook made a pretty scoop of a low throw from third baseman Steve Stanford in the top of the fourth. In the home fifth, Ellerbrook beat out a slow roller to shortstop in a close play at first which caused a furor from the URI bench.

The Rams countered twice in the sixth. Cf Joe Petrarca reached on a Stanford error, lf John Coppolino and 1b Ed daCruz walked, and 3b Vin Sheehan slapped a single past the shortstop hole, sending Petrarca and Coppolino across with what proved to be the winning runs. Sheehan's safety found its way through a drawn-in infield looking for the double play.

In the home sixth, the Redmen got singles from Chinappi and 2b Don Ferron but the runners were left stranded. An inning later, UMass again left two men on base. Pinch-hitter Chuck Espanet reached on a Sheehan error and Ellerbrook sacrificed him to second. With two gone, lf Bob Hansen walked and cf Steve Rogers sent Coppolino back to the left-field fence to haul in his long drive.

The Rams added two insurance tallies in the eighth. DaCruz led with a two-out walk off relief pitcher John Kitchen. Sheehan then rapped a sharp two-bagger to right center, sending DaCruz home with the third Ram run. When DiSarcina's throw to the plate to try to nab DaCruz went astray, Sheehan raced to third. Mike Valois, URI shortstop, bounced a base hit off Kitchen's glove to rescue Sheehan with the game's final tally.

Around the bases—The call on Coppolino at the plate in the sixth was questionable at best. This reporter thought Chinappi had put the tag on the sliding runner. Chinappi, by the way, made a fine diving grab of a Valois popup in the sixth and also fired a strike to DiSarcina to rub out a stealing, Petrarca in the seventh. Rappoli and Joe D. neatly picked Crowther off second in the third inning. DiSarcina made a great stop and throw of a ball hit in the hole by All-New England catcher Bob McKenney in the sixth.

Streaky hitting has plagued the Redmen all season. Yesterday the club left eleven men on base. Today the squad travels to Springfield for a 4 p.m. tilt.

Salinick Hits Home Run

Late Frosh Rally Defeats URI, 5-4

by KEN SCHWARTZ
Day Editor

A run scoring single by Mike Minkos in the last half of the ninth inning gave the UM freshman baseball team a 5-4 win over the U R I frosh at the freshman field yesterday.

With two out in the first, UMass scored three runs to take an early lead walked, Bob Wilman then stole second and went to third on a wild pitch, but he should have saved his wind as the clean up batter Mitch Salnick lined a home run to left field clearing the bases. Right fielder Steve Verenis followed with a single and stole second before scoring on two wild pitches.

URI picked up a run in the bottom of the second and then tied the score with two more in the third. Their third inning rally was highlighted by a long tripie off the bat of Dave Nacci. Nacci scored when the next hitter Steve Benjamin blooped a single to left.

UMass went ahead again in the bottom of the third on a two out single by Salnick that picked up Wilman from second base. Wilman and Salnick, both from New Jersey, accounted for three of the five runs for the Little Redmen.

The 4-3 lead held up until the sixth when URI pushed across the tying run, when Barry Narjarian scored on a wild pitch by reliefer Jack Bernardo.

The winning run was set up when Verenis went to second on a throwing error by the Ram third baseman. Minkos then sent him home with a single to left field which was bobbled momentarily by the left fielder allowing Verenis to score.

The Little Redmen had been in trouble in the Ram half of the ninth inning but were bailed out on a fine fielding play by the third UMass pitcher Lou Colabello. With two out and a runner on third base Colabello knocked down a one hopper with his bare hand and threw the runner out.

Steve McAulay started the game for the frosh. He was relieved by Bernardo with one out in the third. Colabello came on to pitch in the ninth.

The freshmen travel to Springfield to play the AIC frosh Friday. The next home appearance will be Saturday when they play two games with Mt. Wachusetts on the Freshman Field.

Red Sox Win, 3-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pinch hitter Jerry Adair's single and Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly drove in two runs in the eighth inning and gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over the Washington Senators Wednesday night.

Camilo Pascual started and retired the first six Boston batters, but left with an ailing back. Dick Bosman held the Red Sox scoreless until the seventh when Ken Harrelson walked and scored on Reggie Smith's triple to the right-field corner.

Elston Howard walked to open the Boston eighth and Ellsworth dropped a bunt down the first line that stayed fair as catcher Paul Casanova watched, and then threw late.

Dave Baldwin came in to fan Joe Foy, and Darold Knowles was summoned to pitch to Dalton Jones. Adair batted for Jones and singled to right, scoring pinch-runner Jose Tartabull and sending Ellsworth to third. He scored on Yastrzemski's fly to right.

NETMEN DOWN SPRINGFIELD, 8-1

by STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

Using the six men that will be used this weekend in the Yankee Conference Tournament, the varsity tennis team downed Springfield College 8-1 in a home match yesterday. This makes the record 7-3 for the season and was the last dual meet.

Scott Shepard (fifth singles) quickly polished off Mendall Parker, 6-0, 6-1, and the rout was on. Shortly thereafter Steve Cohen followed him with a 6-4, 6-0 win over Izzy Stendahl.

Springfield checked in with their only points in first singles as Lee Draser downed Al Davis 6-3, 6-3. Three longer matches all ended in Redmen victories.

Tommy Johnson took the measure of Ruby East 6-3, 2-6, 6-1. Johnson steadied himself after a rocky second set. Mike Katz disposed of Henry Cheney 6-2, 9-7. In this match Katz relied primarily on ground strokes.

The match was iced when Carl Clem downed Ed Tansey, 6-2, 4-6, 9-7. Trailing 7-6 in the final set, Clem broke Tansey's serve two times to take the match.

One tactical shift in the doubles saw Clem and Johnson swapping first position with Davis and Shepard. Clem and Johnson made the move look good after a rocky start. In a matter that saw each side spurt to quick leads, Clem and Johnson won it 9-7.

Davis and Shepard dropped the first set, 6-2, but then found their game and went on to win the next two, 8-6, 6-0. Cohen and Katz tuned up for the Yankee Conference meet downing Boronski and Parker, 6-0, 6-1, Cohen and Katz never looked finer. Coach Steve Kosakowski was pleased with the play of Clem and Johnson in particular, as well as the rest of the team.

Sam Spark Speaks Out

Dancer Defends Drugs

I had the good fortune to interview Dancer's Image, the horse who was disqualified from the Kentucky Derby. He was surprisingly articulate, for a horse, and his views warrant attention.

* * * * *

Me: Well Dancer, do you think the judges decision to disquaify you was a fair one?
Dancer's Image: Nay!
Me: What is it about your disqualification that really bothers you?
D.I. What really bugs me is that the judges are trying to foist their own sense of morality on us horses.
Me: Then you don't think that drugs are harmful for horses?
D.I.: Of course not. Turning on now and then helps me to relax and gives me a greater sensitivity to my environment.
Me: What does your average daily diet consist of?
D.I.: Plenty of grass.
Me: What about old fashioned oats and water?
D.I.: Well, you know. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink it.
Me: What do you think of the law that prohibits horses from using drugs ?
D.I.: It's a ridiculous law. Most of us horses I know are turning on, and the number is increasing all the time. The law should be brought up to date and drugs for horses should definitely be legalized.

Peace Talks Begin Today; Harriman Represents U.S.

AP Photos

Averell Harriman and Xuyan Thuy will sit on opposite sides of the peace table when talks start in Paris.

PARIS (AP) — The top negotiators for the United States and North Vietnam arrived in Paris Thursday and insisted that serious efforts would be made to end the Vietnam war in preliminary talks opening today.

North Vietnam's special ambassador, Xuan Thuy, 55, a smiling diplomat in a gray suit, came in a Russian-built plane several hours ahead of U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman. Thuy traveled to Paris from Hanoi by way of Peking and Moscow.

French sources said the talks would start Friday afternoon. This plan was subject to approval by Harriman and Thuy. Both men are due to see French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in separate meetings in the morning.

Harriman came in on a special flight from Washington with the rest of his six-man delegation, including the deputy negotiator, former Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance. The same plane brought Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford for a NATO meeting at Brussels.

In an arrival statement at Orly Airport the 76-year-old Harriman quoted President Johnson as saying he hoped the Paris discussions would prove to be "a mutual and serious movement by all parties toward peace in Southeast Asia."

Thuy arriving at Le Bourget Field, where Soviet planes usually land, promised a "serious attitude" toward the talks and charged the United States with aggression against his country.

He defined the purpose of the meeting in its first phase as being "to settle with the American side the unconditional cessation of the bombings and all other American acts of war against — North Vietnam — and then to discuss other problems of interest to both sides."

North Vietnam has long said it would not talk peace issues unless all bombing and "other acts of war" — such as naval shellings and reconnaissance flights — were halted unconditionally.

President Johnson has not disclosed Harriman's opening position but other officials have said North Vietnam would have to show some military "restraint" to get the rest of the bombing halted.

Soon after Johnson stopped bombing above the 20th parallel, there was speculation in Washington that he might end the rest of the air strikes and other attacks against North Vietnam completely at the opening of the preliminary talks. However, this speculation died down as administration officials stressed the heavy rate of infiltration of men and supplies from North to South Vietnam, even after the March 31 bombing limitation.

The talks are to be held in the International Conference Center —once the Hotel Majestic—a few blocks from the Arch of Triumph, according to the advance arrangements of the French government. Before World War II the Majestic was one of the finest hotels in the French Capital.

Soviet Troops Rumored to Be Heading Through Poland for Czechoslovakia

WARSAW (AP) — Western military attaches "positively identified" Soviet troops heading through Poland Thursday in the direction of Czechoslovakia, informed sources reported Thursday night. This followed a Polish Communist party statement demanding that anti-Communist trends in Czechoslovakia be "forcibly silenced."

The attaches indicated the troops were heading westward, south of the city of Krakow, about 45 miles from the Czechoslovak border.

But in Moscow, diplomatic sources said Soviet-Czechoslovak relations, while troubled by Prague's sweeping liberalization, showed no signs of being so disturbed as to provoke a show of force. Other sources said the troop movements could be part of planned Warsaw Pact maneuvers.

Rumors of possible Soviet military intervention to halt Czechoslovakia's liberalization policy were discussed in the Prague labor newspaper Prace Tuesday; an editorial said it was "unbelievable" that the Soviet Union could undertake any such "adventurist" policy.

In Poland, the movements of some Western diplomats were restricted. Washington sources reported an American political officer on his way toward the Czech border from Warsaw was turned back. The British Foreign Office said two of its military attaches had been prevented from leaving the Polish capital.

A Western embassy official driving Thursday about 35 miles northeast of Warsaw was overtaken by a sedan, ordered to the side of the road and told to return to the capital. A Polish Foreign Ministry official later said there must have been a misunderstanding and that the road was open to the diplomat.

In Prague, President Ludvik Svododa made new attempts to assure Czechoslovakia's allies it would remain solidly in the Communist camp despite new freedoms of expression, travel and voting. It was the same line taken by party chief Alexander Dubcek after he returned from talks with Soviet leaders last weekend.

House Cuts Federal Aid To College Militants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursday to refuse federal financial support to any student who takes part in a campus uprising that disrupts a college's operations.

It included the ban in a bill that would extend for two more years a $1 billion package of student aid programs that now reach about 1.5 million students.

The decision as to whether a student has been involved in a campus demonstration would be left to the college authorities under the provision.

With frequent references to the uprisings that shut down Columbia Univ. and have swept campuses across the nation, the House members overwhelmingly approved the provision by a 306-54 roll call vote.

The programs affected by the amendment, which still must be considered in the Senate, are the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) loan program, the work-study program, scholarship grants for needy students, and the federally guaranteed private loan program.

Determined Marchers Move Toward Finding "The Dream"

The Poor People's Campaign straggled toward Washington Thursday, its various segments starting late in most instances—stalled by ancient buses and delayed as mules were shod.

But even as the northeast caravan out of Boston was more than an hour late in leaving, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy who came from Atlanta to see them off said, "Time is not running out-it has already run out."

He added, "We aren't going to let anyone turn us around."

When Abernathy arrived, about 60 persons were on hand, including a Passmaquoddy Indian from Maine.

"We are poor people and we are sick and tired of being poor," Abernathy said.

Abernathy, who succeeded the slain Martin Luther King Jr. as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, then left to speak at Northeastern University—a fund-raising lunch to raise money for the Poor People's Campaign.

In Washington, an informed source indicated a decision may be near in a question that has puzzled civil rights leaders and federal officials for some time —where to let the marchers build their shantytown to demonstrate the purpose of their visit.

It was disclosed that civil rights leaders and federal officials, including representatives of the National Park Service, have been looking for a place that would be suitable for all concerned. It was stressed, however, that no final decision had yet been made.

At Marks, Miss., one group began shoeing mules and preparing to begin a mule train to Batesville, Miss. with about 15 rickety wagons.

Another caravon of buses started from Birmingham, Ala., to Atlanta, but this segment, too, ran into trouble. One rusty yelllow school bus halted about 10 miles out of Birmingham. The driver said the fan belt was defective.

As the sun beat down, about 25 passengers, mostly children, waited inside and ate lunch of cold fried chicken and white bread.

To the Toll of the Bells Like Lemmings They Flocked

The traditional bacchanalian respite from daily academic pressures followed the unvarying pattern set in recent years as the chapel bells yesterday morning heralded the beginning of "the day to enjoy the beauties of spring." Armed with a rock band and a small brewery a large number of UMies invaded the woods surrounding a pond in a neighboring town.

Complaints from residents brought response by the State Police who reported that they were attempting to "Keep some semblance of order and administer first aid." Spring day affords the opportunity to . . .

Metawampe Winner Lauds Responsible Student Power

by ANNE JOHNSON

"The key to what we are all looking for are things that are not just safe, but are worth committing oneself for," said Dr. Robert Gage, winner of the 1968 Metawampe Award, in a discussion of student power and personal commitment. He stated that he was "highly in favor" of student power as a means of banding together to speak for something that is "important" to the people involved.

"We only get out of life what we put into it," he said, stressing that the nature of one's personal commitment is as important as its intensity. Dr. Gage was "delighted" to see students involved in issues outside of their own private interests. An example of such a commitment was the three day fast at Smith College in protest of the war in Vietnam. He also spoke of the student support of Senator McCarthy's presidential campaign as "magnificent." "These things make life worthwhile," he said.

Dr. Gage feels that student power at UMass has been used well. He particularly praised the patience with which certain students in the Southwest complex, who had been suffering from lack of heat in their rooms, tried "in a logical" way to gain the support for their problem. "Their aim was to do something about the problem, not to put the finger on any one." The doctor sees as the ideal use of power as being to express concern. He said that power must be used "not for its own sake, but for a larger purpose."

In connection with his concern over the proper use of power, Dr. Gage mentioned that too many times students are egged on by people who are not members of a university but who use the students commitments to further their own aims. He used, as an example, the Student Health Organization, a group concerned with health care, whose reputation has suffered as a result of the action of radicals who have invaded the group.

Students are justified, he feels, in using their power to demonstrate when they feel that their needs are being ignored. The meeting at the Cage between the administration and the Ad Hoc Committee last February 19 failed because the students saw that "by acting unilaterally they had as much to lose as to gain. You only revolt when there is nothing to lose." If the student attempts to talk had been rebuffed, then the only recourse would have been to revolt.

Dr. Gage said he had recently submitted a report on the rights and responsibilities of the students with respect to health services to the Student Senate. As rights the report includes high quality health service, health information, the respect of confidences and the maintenance by the University of a healthful environment. As responsibilities of the student he listed support of the health program, participation and the encouragement of others in participation in the health service and "established health practices."

In conclusion, Dr. Gage wished to express his surprise and pleasure at receiving the Metawampe Award. "Never have I been at such a loss for words to express my feelings," he finished.

Final Exams are approaching quickly, time to study is growing short. Boyden will soon be filled with nervous UMies. Will you be one of them ?

Dorm Heads Appointed

University of Massachusetts Provost Oswald Tippo today announced the appointment of John Hunt as Southwest Residential College Master and Leon Barron as Orchard Hill Residential College Master.

Dr. Hunt, who has served as assistant and associate master at Southwest, assumes a post left vacant by Dr. Clarence Shute, Southwest Master since 1965. Dr. Barron, faculty resident at Orchard Hill's Grayson House, will replace Dr. H. Leland Varley, Orchard Hill Master since 1964. Dr. Shute will return to full-time teaching and study in the philosophy department; Dr. Varley will be a Fulbright Lecturer next year at the University of Malaya.

The Student Union will be open the day before exams through exams until 2:00 a.m. All possible conference rooms and areas will be available for studying. In addition there will be coffee stations set up on the lobby and second floor from 11 p.m. to 12:15 a.m. Each night free.

Viet Cong Still Fights in Saigon; More U. S. Troops in Battle

by ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associate Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces hammered at sectors of Saigon Thursday, adding to the toll of civilians and the flow of refugees in an apparent effort to influence talks about to open in Paris.

About 2,000 troops of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division were thrown into the battle, and beat off enemy attempts to break into Saigon from the south and east, an American spokesman said.

But early Friday, the Viet Cong still clung to footholds in the flaming ruins of shell-shattered blocks along the capital's southern rim, six days after they opened their attack on Saigon.

The flow of refugees from the fighting fronts rose sharply and the food supply in Saigon sank dangerously. Food prices soared.

With preliminary U.S.-North Vietnamese talks due to open in Paris Friday afternoon, President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam urged the Viet Cong on to greater exertions to defeat "U.S. aggression," Hanoi radio said. Wihout mentioning the Paris talks, he expressed confidence of Communist victory in South Vietnam.

Throughout Thursday, U. S. and South Vietnamese planes streaked across downtown Saigon, dropping their bomb loads in the southern and eastern outskirts. The rockets and machine guns of helicopters added to the din.

The Viet Cong's major thrust was directed at Saigon's 4th Precinct in the southeast corner. There, they clashed along the banks of the Kinh Dei Canal with the U.S. 9th Division.

U. S. officers said the American troops killed 131 guerrillas in day-long fighting while losing seven killed One officer estimated the enemy force at about 300 men holed up in buildings along the canal, the southern limits of Saigon proper.

The U.S. Command announced that allied troops have killed 2,170 enemy soldiers in Saigon and surrounding Gia Dinh Province since Sunday. It gave U. S. casualties as 44 killed and 175 wounded and South Vietnamese losses as 73 killed and 267 wounded.

An enemy battalion of possibly 300 men moving toward Saigon heavily damaged armored personnel carriers of two companies of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division trying to block the road to the capital. There was no late report on this action.

The battle also added thousands to Saigon's flood of homeless refugees. Families, carrying their possessions on their backs, streamed into Saigon.

Amherst Professors Honored In Art Showing, At Conference

Two watercolor paintings by Carl N. Schmalz, Jr., associate professor of fine arts at Amherst College, were featured in the 101st Annual Exhibition of the American Watercolor Society, held in April at the National Academy Galleries in New York City. The two paintings are "Lobster Boxes" and "Indian Point."

Professor Richard M. Foose, chairman of the Department of Geology at Amherst College, will be chairman of the Geological Industries Panel at the Governor's Conference on "Massachusetts' Stake in the Ocean" Friday (May 10) at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, Boston.

This is the second session of a two-part conference considering Massachusetts' interests in the oceans and its coastlines. Several hundred representatives of industry, government, and academic institutions will attend.

Throughout this year, Prof. Foose has been a member of the Governor's panel studying the role the Commonwealth should play in the development of ocean resources and ocean engineering. His report to the conference will be one of the six summarizing the work of the panel.

The thirty voice choir, comprised of members of the university community, will be directed by Dr. Nikolas A. Kantartzis of Thessaeloniki, Greece. The program will consist of sacred music, including works by Handel and Beethoven.

Dr Kantartzis came to America twenty months ago to do advanced study here at the university in the Department of Landscape Architecture.

UAW vs AFL-CIO

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union Thursday night overwhelmingly approved a resolution directing union leaders to withhold dues approximating $1 million a year from the AFL-CIO.

The action virtually challenged the AFL-CIO to expel the UAW, largest union in the federation with a membership it claims at 1.6 million.

Delegates to the UAW convention have threatened to withdraw from the federation unless the AFL-CIO executive council calls a special convention by next Dec. 15 to consider demands for "reform and revitalization."

Under AFL-CIO rules, a member union may be expelled if it is three months in arrears in dues payments. The UAW will be three months behind next Wednesday. There have been reports from Washington that the federation might act on the delinquency within the week.

UAW president Walter P. Reuther estimated no more than 200 of 3,000 convention delegates opposed the resolution.

Reuther has accused AFL-CIO president George Meany of dictatorship and of permitting the American labor movement to vegetable.

A Summer for Thought

This school year, more than any other, has left us with an abundance of memories. The Class of '68 should have little trouble remembering the activity, the excitement, and the tragedy that was senior year at UMass. But while this segment of our lives will soon be over, the events which have made it so memorable will continue to shape the course of our lives.

It would be inappropriate this year to look back nostalgically at the year's headline stories. Very few of them are material for nostalgia. Instead we should try to relate this year's happenings to our lives in a more constructive manner—by asking ourselves some very frank questions, and by doing our best to come up with some truthful answers.

So instead of ending the year in reverie, let's make some plans for the summer—plans to think about who we are, what we're doing, and where we're going, and how this relates to our neighbors, our country, and our fellow men:

Think about love and what it means to you—A flower growing from a crack in the sidewalk; birds singing early on a sunny Wednesday morning; or that special girl who comprises so much of your life that life without her is inconceivable. Then think about hate and prejudice and jealousy, and how they can destroy this and much more with such little effort.

Think about The War—Right or wrong, moral or immoral, just or unjust, or just plain idiotic? Think about the men who are fighting there, dying there — friends, neighbors, relatives. Think about your local draft board, and your II-S, and the Selective Service System, and how much longer you've got before your 48 months in college runs out.

Think about college and the degree you're working for (past tense if you're a senior)—Why are you doing it? The college degree killed the Horatio Alger philosophy many years ago. The American myth of "the self-made man" is gone. "We don't even consider an applicant without a degree," says one firm. Think about how much that degree is really worth in terms of hard work, and exactly what knowledge you will have gained by staying here four years. The social and economic pressures of society demand a college degree, but do you want to be here? Has the draft influenced you at all ?

Think about America—Don't be ashamed to be a little patriotic in your thinking, either. Chauvinism is too often confused with patriotism these days, and as a result it's becoming gauche even to display the American flag. Patriotism should not be equated with the D.A.R.

Think about the America you never see — Worry. Wherever you may be this summer—at the beach, in Frisco, working at home—watch for news of the violence and bloodshed which is inevitable. And then think hard about America's poverty - stricken, her starving, her sick. We must all reach the conclusion soon that our ghettos have to go, or they will destroy America from within like cancer.

Think about these and all the other things that make life joyful, painful, interesting. There are no simple answers to any of the world's problems. But each individual's personal solution will be a determining factor in the outcome of these problems, no matter how small or insignificant it may appear to be to you.

Finally, think about your future—And if it's a great big ominous psychedelic question mark you see on that door just ahead, don't be terribly alarmed. The whole world is in the same situation. The people who appear to be so sure of their future just haven't gotten around to facing the reality of the situation—in today's world the future can be changed within minutes.

But as long as we have the power to think, to analyze, and to change—then we should never despair for the future. Whether or not we can do a better job with the world than our parents have done depends a great deal on what we do, say, and think right now.

Have a good, thoughtful summer.

Senate Cannot Legislate on a Personal Question

To the editor:

What type of Senate legislates that all students must contribute to a racially oriented organization?

The Student Senate Wednesday, passed a bill appropriating $41,000 to go to the Martin Luther King Jr. Social Action Committee and subsequently demanded that each and every student donate $3.50 to this 'Tutoring Service.'

I cannot believe that any responsible Senator, keeping in mind that he is not merely speaking for himself, could vote to donate not only his own money but also that of the students he represents. Clearly this type of situation has to be dealt with on the level and any attempt to legislate compulsory donations is outrageous!

Why not tax students to appropriate funds for a WASP organization or better yet a KKK organization? Of course this is unthinkable and similarly, so is this Action Committee tax. Even a referendum is not in order since this is not a governmental question but rather a personal question.

When a Student Senator puts himself in a place where he believes that he can legislate something as personal and private as donations, then it is past time for that Senator to go home. For he is no longer attempting to represent others but rather he is trying to inscribe his own particular values onto them.

I would like to add finally, that no matter how this twisted act of legislation results, I will never pay the demanded 'donation' to this organization.

Budget Creates a Paradox in Appropriating Funds

To the editor:

The Daily Collegian of May 9, 1968 published a copy of the 1968-69 budget for student activities and an accompanying article explaining the usage of the funds. Mention was made of an amendment to the Martin Luther King Social Action Council budget which provided that the Council would offer its services ". . . to any disadvantaged student without regard to race, color, or creed." The Senate then proceeded to follow an apparently contradictory course of action when it approved $1,073 for the Afro-American Organization. The by-laws of the Organization specifically exclude all non-Afro-American students from active or associate membership.

This letter is not an attack on the Afro-American Organization per se: it is an attack on compulsory assessment of all students in support of any organization to which all cannot belong. The criteria of non-discrimination should be applied across-the-board when deciding which organizations will receive student financial support. Happily, the Senate did not overlook this point when approving other items in the budget.

The budget should be re-examined and appropriations to organizations made contingent upon their compliance with this principle. Martin Luther King would have preferred it that way.

Senior Reflections

Humanistic Attitude Needed at UMass

(Ed. note: At the request of The Daily Collegian, several distinguished seniors have written reflections of their four years at UMass. The following is by James Collins, former President of the Student Senate.)

Instead of reminiscing about my four years at the University and thereby unfortunately depicting a not very ribald history. I would rather look to the future of the University and comment on change, expected and required.

Members of future classes may expect a growing and more diversified campus. New faculty and students will add to the growing variety of personalities and viewpoints already present. Facilities, such as new libraries, a fine arts center, and research centers, will, in time, embellish our segment of the Amherst countryside. However, embellishment does not make a great university. An atmosphere of freedom and questioning must pervade a university if it is to be fully utilized in aiding individuals in their quests of personal fulfillment and identity.

The most enjoyable aspect of my education has been attending a school where change is possible and where there are students, faculty, and administrators, who actively seek change. It has been dismaying, however, to find that students are often the least questioning and active members of the University community. I believe that a majority of the undergraduate student body seeks absolute answers from their teachers rather than aid in formulating their own answers to the questions of the day. Too many students are utilizing a college experience merely as a passport to a $20,000 or $30,000 job rather than as an opportunity to gain some understanding of the problems of society and self. I fear that many students will graduate this June and merely engender our country's faults by not acting to correct them.

There are no absolute remedies for the shortcomings of society, and there is no single philosophy of life which will lead to fulfillment and individual worth. However, one can expect that "educated" people think about these topics.

Freedom is present on campus, but a humanistic attitude toward learning is not prevalent. A change in this attitude will hopefully occur at the University of Massachusetts.

Sincerely yours,
James G. Collins

UMass Senior Tells About McCarthy's Indiana Campaign

(Ed. note: The following article was written by one of the dozen UMass students who campaigned this past weekend in Indiana for Sen. McCarthy.)

by James Horvitz

Last weekend hundreds of college students poured into the state of Indiana from all over the country. The purpose was not for a wild time of vacation and fun but for a contribution to a cause, to help Senator Eugene McCarthy in his bid for the Democratic party's presidential nomination.

The organization in Indiana behind this man was something to behold. A full time staff in Indianapolis had plowed through voter registration lists from previous elections and filed index cards for every accountable voter. These index cards were divided up into neighborhoods and precincts and handed over to the many students who canvassed the precincts during the weekend. Hundreds of Indianapolis residents had already volunteered housing for the incoming students. Some were willing to put up as many as could fill their beds, couches, and available space on the floor. Others devoted time simply to provide transportation for students. In fact, one Massachusetts businessman who had flown to Chicago for a business trip decided to spend a week in Indiana to work for McCarthy. Out of his own pocket, he rented a car to provide transportation for canvassers.

The "esprit de corps" among the McCarthy supporters was amazing, especially when contrasted with that of the Kennedy supporters who were also canvassing neighborhoods. In trying to fulfill the "impossible dream," McCarthy students came to Indiana wide-eyed with optimism, knowing that the fight would be long and up-hill. Kennedy supporters on the other hand, most of whom were only high school students, seemed over-confident. Those who canvassed did so in groups of twos, and many did not canvass at all. Many seemed to feel as if they didn't have to work as hard because they knew they would win. However, some McCarthy students stayed out well into the evening in an attempt to gain as many votes as possible for Gene.

In the canvassing itself, the number of voters that outrightly designated themselves as McCarthy supporters was very small. Many of the people gave the impression of being undecided, but by far the greatest percentage of the voters were conservative Republicans.

No general statement can be made about the reactions of the voters to the canvassers. Many of the people were extremely cordial, including some people who had no intention of voting for McCarthy. In fact, some very interesting conversations ensued from visits with staunch Nixon Republicans. Almost all the McCarthy voters invited students in for coffee, yet some anti-McCarthyites who were impressed with the distance his supporters traveled to work for him also did. There were also some hostile reactions. Two girls were chased away from one house with a shotgun and several doors were slammed in the faces of canvassers.

Another impression gained from canvassing the lower-middle class neighborhoods is that many uneducated people were very aware of the issues, the candidates, and their implications on the whole nation, not just on Hoosiers themselves. However, there were others who had no knowledge of the election at all. Some did not know McCarthy's affiliation, and several people really thought that he was Joe McCarthy.

It seems that much of Kennedy's popularity is due to the fact that people see much of his brother in him, and one man actually thought that he is his brother! He said, "I voted for John Kennedy in 1964, and I'm voting for him again this year." These instances of such blunt ignorance were quite rare, however.

Even after the results of Tuesday's primary, McCarthy's magical student support will not diminish. Many Indiana veterans are going on to Nebraska and California and more than a few have dropped out of school for the entire semester in order to work for him full time. The "impossible dream" may be a long way off, but the Red Sox did it.

Ramu the Wolf Boy Undergoes Autopsy

LUCKNOW, India (AP)—The body of Ramu the Wolf Boy, who died Saturday 14 years after being found on his fours uttering animal cries, is undergoing an autopsy here in a last effort by medical men to determine whether or not he was raised in the jungle by wolves.

Ramu was found by police on the floor of the Lucknow railroad station Jan. 17, 1954, when he was between the ages of 10 and 12. He had been kept in Lucknow's Balrampur Hospital ever since.

Many believed he was raised by wolves since infancy. He never spoke but his voice resembled the howling of wolves. He ate raw meat. He seemed pleased by the presence of an Alsatian dog which resembled a wolf.

Others contended Ramu was an imbecile, perhaps a polio victim used by some local mendicant for begging purposes and deserted after losing his usefulness.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1948. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $6.00 per year, $3.50 per semester.

This week the Daily Collegian published a column entitled Senior Reflections in which several soon to be graduates looked back upon their four years at UMass.

To quote one of those essayists: "In the last four years, the University of Massachusetts has taken Brobdingnagian strides among colleges and is now moving ahead of the secure, established private institutions in every fieid. The result of this exciting growth will be a better University which will attract a better, more capable kind of people—people who will want UMass as their first choice and not their security school."

UMass definitely is changing, constantly improving. The past semester was a most significant chapter in the development of the University. Take a look back and see what has been accomplished here, and by the same token what was not accomplished, in the past few months. Look ahead to next Fall and along with the vow that "next semester I'm really going to study" reflect on what part you can play outside of academicism in the development of the University.

The student body is composed of individuals and the story of the semester is the story of individuals, individuals making mistakes, individuals in triumph, but always ever involved in that learning process known as college.

Registration Day January Twenty-third, Nineteen Hundred and Sixty-Eight and the first issue to face the campus community involved the Tabling of the Open House Proposal by the Faculty Senate.

Open house was only one of many issues which disturbed students, disturbed them enough to want to take action. The semester saw increasing concern on the part of students with the society in which they lived, both the isolated campus society and the society of the American masses.

Late in February the Student Senate felt that the time had come to go beyond usual procedures to receive action on the open house proposal in a measure aimed at insuring integrity on the part of members of the "Tri-partite Community". Civil disobedience was endorsed in an effort to make student demands known. It was the student government operating but that organization is only eighty interested people. The campus was soon to see hundreds of students take an active part in the struggle for increased student rights.

The War. Always a concern. On February 6 Wayne Soini led a pro-war rally in the Student Union Ballroom. Discussion was electric but was the creation of concerned students taking an active part. That same evening a man named Bill Baird was speaking at Amherst College on Birth Control. He was to later return to this college town.

Yes, Bill Baird was to return to speak at the University. He was one of many guests this semester that speak on issues that began to concern students. One such speaker was Dick Gregory who spoke on "Our insane democracy". Not everyone in the cage could totally agree with what Mr. Gregory had to say but he made people think. "You never lived until you saw a brick hit a five year old in the mouth" he said, and a brick called racism that has been thrown around too much for a long time was brought up again when he said "When are we going to stop lying and try to honestly settle the problems affecting the country."

Things really began happening in mid-February. A Dow-Chemical demonstration on the fifteenth turned into a sit-in in the lobby of the Student Union. Aprroximately eighty frustrated students voiced their vehement displeasure at what they felt were flagrant violations of student's rights. Associate Dean of Students Mark Noffsinger spoke to the assemblage and asked their cooperation "in having each other's beliefs respected, no matter how they differ". The group wanted to see President Lederle. They were firm in their request. "We must show tolerance to each other" Noffsinger said. When it was all over in the early evening, President Lederle had agreed to speak at an "Open meeting" in the Cage.

On the following Tuesday evening 3000 attended the meeting in the cage. Members of the administration spoke briefly along with several of the demonstrators. The meeting was an important step. It showed student concern. Mistakes were made. Many of the student speakers asked for too much too soon but if nothing else the so-called confrontation made people think. Faculty, administrators and students alike were forced to re-examine their position in the tri-partite community.

Winter Carnival was a pleasant experience. The entertainment was excellent. A lot can be learned from entertainers. Carson's comedy is a commentary on our society. The Byrds sing of what is right and wrong in that society.

March winds did not blow out the flames of student involvement. A number of sophomores worked very hard for a week and produced the most successful Campus Chest ever.

Spring Vacation.

The roof caved in in April. On Thursday April 4 Martin Luther King Jr was shot and killed in Memphis, Tenn. In 1962 he had said "It may even get me crucified. I may even die. But I want it said even if I die in the struggle that he died to make me free". Violence erupted across the nation's cities. On campus a singing memorial originated in the Orchard Hill complex. It was marred disgracefully by hecklers. Some of these hecklers later stated at a meeting of Grayson Dormitory that their reasons for causing a disturbance were more than just "letting off steam". There is something wrong here. King's death brought to the forefront the race problems of America. It was up to each and everyone to act. There was and is so much to be done.

The following week Bill Baird came back to Amherst. A speech in the ballroom, an incident at Zayre's, something wrong that had to be changed, and UMass students again rallied. Thousands signed a petition. A surprisingly large number took further action and formed a Parents Aid Society. The Governor and the Legislature were approached. Student interest and action was becoming the norm rather than the exception.

An event of significance took place in Hampshire Superior Court last week when two UMass seniors won an appeal case. Weinerman and Levco are well known names on campus, but appeared in court as unknown students to the jury and their victory in court opened up a new era in police student relationships.

Events of the semester were of the nature to provoke serious thought. But the life of a student is fast-paced. Take time now to think back. What was right, what was wrong, what can be done?

Think.

Time it was
And what a time it was
It was . . .
A time of innocence,
A time of confidences.
Long ago . . . it must be . . .
I have a photograph
Preserve your memories
They're all that's left you.

Telephone Strike Continues With No End in Sight

BOSTON (AP) — The strike against the New England Telephone Co. ncared the two-week mark Thursday with no settlement in sight.

The company struck out at the wage demands of the striking International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers.

"Wage demands of the IBTW are more than twice the recent average settlements by other unions in the Bell System," a spokesman said.

The IBTW, meanwhile called off picket lines set up at the Western Electric Co. plant in North Andover. The IBTW, which has no members in the plant, picketed Western Electric because supervisors from Western Electric were helping New England Telephone management personnel at other locations.

Gerald Walsh, IBTW president, said the picket lines were removed when the supervisors agreed to stop performing jobs left by members of the Communications Workers of America union, who are honoring the IBTW picket lines against the telephone company.

When the strike was called by the IBTW on April 26, the union said it wanted a $20 per week wage hike for its 13,500 installers and repairmen.

The company said Thursday this was a 16.2 per cent raise in the first year of the contract. The company said it had offered $12 per week, or 5.6 per cent on an annual basis.

Contracts with the CWA nationally, and with two other New England telephone unions gave a 7.5 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits the first year, the company said.

The wage increase and a method for promotion are being discussed by federal mediator John J. Sullivan, who met with the company Thursday.

That meeting came after Walsh charged the company was "seeking to recruit juniors and seniors in greater Boston high schools to man telephone switchboards as strikebreakers."

The company said it expected to handle about 700,000 calls on Sunday, Mothers' Day, which it termed its second-busiest day of the year, after Christmas.

Rugby Club

A newly formed Rugby team plays its last game of the season Sunday at 2 o'clock in the field behind Alumni Stadium against the Boston Rugby Club.

An inexperienced UMass team faces one of the best inside center's, Frank Sykes, and one of the best wing three-quarter's, Jim Ean, in Rugby competition. The majority of the players on the Boston Club team are English or Australian.

UMass coach Tony Moss-Davis expects good performances from Jerry Bruen at prop, Jim Keating at prop, Harvey Silva at lock, Jeff Freedman, captain of the team, at hooker, Ted Hogue at scrum, and Rick Badgley at fly half.

Senator Morton Proposes New Plan To Help Solve Nation's Economic Ills

WASHINGTON (AP—A plan to divert corporate income taxes from the Treasury to the voting public was outlined in the Senate Thursday by Sen. Thurston Morton, R-Ky.

Morton, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, urged consideration of the proposal, which is called the National Dividend Plan and was developed by John H. Perry Jr., West Palm Beach, Fla., businessman and publisher.

As outlined by Morton, who called it a refreshingly new approach toward solving the nation's economic and social problems, the plan offers a way to stabilize the economy, eliminate most welfare programs, decentralize the federal government, strengthen the free enterprise system, improve race relations, and encourage full participation in elections.

Its main provisions, as explained by Morton, would place a 50 per cent ceiling on corporate income taxes; exempt corporate dividends from federal personal income taxes; and distribute all corporate income tax collections on a per capita basis—free of federal personal income taxes—to all who had legally voted in the federal general elections every two years.

"Payment of corporate income tax collections directly to the nation's voters on a per capita basis would provide a perpetual, built-in buying power," Morton said, with voter payments and consumer buying power increasing as corporate production and earnings increased.

He added: "Since the national dividend payments would be based on actual corporate earnings, not on burdensome new or increased taxes, they would provide realistic, permanent pump-priming for the economy."

He said the plan, which could be put into operation gradually over a five-year period, would be based on a constitutional amendment.

Morton told the Senate that some of the nation's foremost economists have studied the plan closely, and "so far none has found a fallacy in its fiscal projections, deductions and conclusions."

The 50 per cent ceiling on corporate income taxes would be designed to prevent a return to the 52 per cent rate or perhaps higher. The present rate is 48 per cent.

Morton said the distribution of payments to voters would be made every three months, through machinery already in existence. He said this machinery consists of voting lists and the banking systems in each state.

Apartment Rent Strike Settled, Improvements Promised Students

by DICK LANE
Staff Reporter

Things are back to normal at the University Park Apartments in Amherst. That's how the apartment residents feel today according to Paul McCarthy and Dennis Helfand, tenants themselves and former spokesmen for their neighbors during the controversial rent strike this spring.

"The strike is over," said Helfand in an interview with the Collegian. He continued, "The situation at the time is fine. The people seem to be a lot happier."

The Amherst student added that all rent money formerly withheld by the striking tenants in escrow by their attorneys David Burres and Steven Silverman of Springfield has been turned over to owner Joseph Rousseau. Helfand estimated that between $6000-$7000 was involved.

Helfand stated that the money was turned over with assurances of new management to be provided for the residents. As a result a new full time resident custodian has been hired and real estate agent Mrs. Margaret Wehr of Granby has been released by Rousseau. The new management is doing a "good job" according to Helfand.

The striking tenants did not hold out for any specific demands according to Helfand, but hope that "individual problems will be corrected." As University of Massachusetts student and spokesman Paul McCarthy stated, "We are definitely satisfied."

According to spokesman Helfand, trouble which eventually led to the strike had been "building up for a long time (2 years). The tenants needed basic services." He pointed to faulty wiring, "filthy" halls, fungus on ceilings, flooding of basements and lack of fire extinguishers

"The place was falling apart," continued Helfand. The problems were general, however, no single one was "very serious in itself," he said. "Effective management" could have solved these conditions according to Helfand.

Helfand blamed "inept management" as the real cause of the strike due to communication troubles between residents and management. "The real estate agent (Mrs. Wehr) misled tenants. She caused the strike more than any need." He added, however, that the tenants did not "ask for anyone's job."

Paul McCarthy added that "It's a good possibility that Mr. Rousseau did not get all the facts from his employees. He is a man of his word."

Mrs. Wehr was unavailable for comment.

Action finally came on the part of the Park Apartments tenants as those from over 40 apartments signed a petition agreeing to conduct a "rent strike" beginning March 1. The strikers included some 80-90 University of Massachusetts students.

The rent strike came as what Helfand termed as a "last resort" at the time. The tenants turned over their rent to lawyers Burres and Silverman and agreed they would pay owner Rousseau of Holyoke when he showed signs of making improvements.

The strike continued until April 9th when a tentative agreement was reached between lawyers from both sides. Among the highlights of the strike were the eviction notices served to 35-40 tenants by Rousseau on March 26 and a picket demonstration conducted by the striking residents on April 9th.

Of the eviction notices, Helfand stated that some of the tenants who "went their own way" rather than with the strike could be evicted.

Questioned about the form of action taken by the apartment residents, a rent strike, Paul McCarthy stated that it was an "economic device" and the "only one we had." He cited three specific advantages of the strike: (1) It publicized the plight of the tenants. (2) It prevented the owner from receiving his rent. And (3) it forced Rousseau's hand. For the University student said that Rousseau must "either come through or capitulate."

McCarthy concluded that the strike in general was a strategic movement which put the striking tenants in control of the situation and he further believes that it was "carried out quite well."

The most difficult part of the strike was in "keeping the tenants together," according to Helfand. As any such strike is effective in certain types of situations and certain groups Helfand said he was not sure if such an action would work if used again. He did add, however, that "If it should ever happen again it would not do him (Rousseau) well."

Rousseau was unavailable also for comment.

Helfand believes that the key to the strikers' success in settling their grievances was both the large publicity given the issue and "strength on the part of the tenants." The Amherst student stated that Rousseau was presented in a very "unfavorable light" by the accompanying news coverage.

McCarthy expressed his belief that the turning point came on April 9th, Thursday, the day of the massive demonstration. He pointed to the fact that within half an hour of the demonstration's conclusion an agreement was reached.

He believes the whole strike again will have far reaching effects on Amherst. "It will make people more aware of conditions in the area," concluded McCarthy.

In summation Dennis Helfand stated that he expects no further trouble in the future with Rousseau or management. Of Rousseau, Helfand said that "I sincerely believe he is interested in development and bringing the apartments up to good standards."

"The strike was very successful. We won," Helfand concluded.

Completing its third year as an independent choral group within the department of Music, the University Chorus is now rehearsing its program for the forthcoming spring concerts. Director Alan Harler will take the Chorus and Madrigal to Ware high school for its first spring performance, May 8. The next day, the Chorus, Madrigal, and Women's Choir will depart for Chicopee high school for a morning concert, as part of the area's Project Culturama, headed by Russell Falvey, a previous director of the chorus.

The campus spring choral concert will feature Chorus, Madrigal, Women's Choir, Chorale, and Chamber Singers, Sunday, May 12. Concert time is 4:00 P.M. in Bowker Auditorium. The public is cordially invited to attend, free of charge.

The principal selection being prepared by the Chorus is Haydn's Missa brevis Sti. Joannis de Deo. Also to be presented are R. Vaughan Williams' O Clap Your Hands, Brahms' Wondrous Cool, Thou Woodland Quiet, and two selections by Randall Thompson: Alleluia, The Last Words of David.

Alpha Lambda Delta Presents Annual Awards

The National Alpha Lambda Delta Book Award, named in honor of Maria Lecnard, founder, was presented to the highest ranking Senior member: Joanne Crooker, a Mathematics major, who completed her requirements for a degree this January with a cumulative average of 3.95. She made 4.0 averages in 7 of her eight semesters here. Joanne is from Amherst. The book award is a volume of "The Complete Poems of Robert Frost."

The local chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta also made Book Awards to two Freshman members who have started their college careers with all-A records: Brenda Gouveia, a Mathematics major from New Bedford; and Rosellen O'Connor, a Nursing major from Needham Heights. These were books of poems by Emily Dickinson.

Freshman Nine Features Some Strong Varsity Prospects

by STEVE SHAMBAN
Staff Reporter

It's an old baseball axiom that pitching is 75% of the game. Consequently, UMass baseball coach, Dick Bergquist should be excited at the fact that he can look forward to a fine crop of freshmen pitchers for next year's varsity. That the opposition has been able to score only 26 runs through nine games this season, an average of less than three a game, is ample testimony to the ability of this year's frosh pitchers.

Freshman Coach Arlan Barber, in appraising his pitching staff, feels that three pitchers, Don Anderson, Jack Bernardo, and Lou Collabello should definitely step in next year to aid a varsity staff that will be losing injured strike out king John Canty and Dave Katz. Anderson is a strong right hander who has pitched well on every occasion this spring. He has a good fastball and curve with good control and is always tough to hit.

Jack Bernardo, also a righty, is one pitcher who Coach Barber feels "could help the varsity right now." He has improved since the opener, possesses a good fastball, a curve that breaks like it's falling off a table and good control as evidenced by the fact that he allowed only one walk in a seven inning stint against AIC.

Lou Collabello is a tall, lanky left hander who relies on guile to a greater extent than Anderson or Bernardo. Using an adequate fastball to set up unsuspecting hitters for his change-ups and slow curves, he has good control and is at his best in tight spots. Collabello is undefeated in three starts this season.

By no means should one get the impression that there are only three pitchers on the frosh, as Barber was quick to point out that several other flingers must be conceded a shot at the varsity. Bob Tavelli has a real live fastball, but must develop a better curve and control to make the varsity. Bill Powell has pitched well in limited appearances, particularly at URI where he allowed only two runs on five hits.

Gary Damon, who lost a tough 4-1 game to Amherst, is a promising pitcher who should concentrate more on his curve than his slider. Scott Chausse and Steve McAulay, who started Wednesday's URI game, have pitched capably in relief and must not be ignored.

In the outfield, Mitch Salnick probably has the best shot at the varsity. Through May 3, he was batting a solid .281, and was a demon on the base paths. His fielding could stand some improvement but he has good speed and gets a good jump on the ball. His Willie Mays style basket catches in centerfield sometimes strike fear into the heart of his coach, but he has agreed to adopt a more conventional approach to fielding.

Steve Verenis is another capable outfielder who will demand a long look at the varsity. So far, he has hit at a .313 clip but he must acquire a better knowledge of the strike zone. Both of these players will probably vie for Alex Vyce's spot in rightfield. Mike Minkos and Joe Ausikaitis have performed well but they will have to improve in several aspects of play to warrant varsity shots.

The infield was featured by a bunch of "never say die" hustlers who performed well together. First baseman Stan Winston has done a good job afield and has batted .318 with evidence of good power. If he hits well next spring, he'll have a solid chance at the varsity. Rick Matuszczak and Joe Gugliotta have split the second base spot this spring. Matuszczak is a fiery competitor and an adequate glove man but Gugliotta's strong arm has made him more of a threat on the double play.

Pete Silva and Jim Tanner have performed adequately at short but Silva's lack of size and Tanner's improbability of dislodging Joe DiSarcina make them doubtful possibilities for next year. Duane Brown has taken over third base completely since Bill Greeley injured his ankle. Greeley, although not hitting for a high average, displayed good bat control as he always managed to get good wood on the ball.

Brown is probably his own greatest enigma. As a schoolboy in New Jersey, he batted over .400 in his junior year but has been unable to reach that plateau since and it has affected his fielding. In Saturday's Springfield College double header, however, he displayed a fine arm and made several good plays in the field, including a fine diving catch of a foul bunt. If he hits back to form, he'll have a chance.

Coach Barber also noted that in the remaining five games, he wants to get a good look at football players Mike Marchev and Tom Semino. Both are infielders who came in with good high school reputations.

The catching has been split by Paul Sulzicki and Bob Willman. Willman possesses probably the best batting eye on the team and is presently hitting over .370. Both players performed adequately afield and should help out next spring.

In summing up the season, Coach Barber feels that the present 6-4 record could easily be 9-1 with a few well placed hits and sees no reason why his Little Redmen shouldn't win the remaining four games on the schedule to end up at 10-4. "In terms of baseball learned it's been a successful season" and he looks forward to several good prospects for next year's frosh.

Lacrosse Team Compiles Best Record Ever

by WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

With two games remaining, the UMass lacrosse team has an excellent opportunity to finish with the best record of any Redmen lacrosse team in history. Including its victory over New Hampshire yesterday, the Redmen have an 8-1 card while the best record for any UMass lacrosse team was 12 - 2.

The Redmen have been sparked by a combination of a high scoring offense and a tight inner defense all season.

For the second year in a row, the team scoring is led by Kevin O'Connor. "Fox" has 20 goals and 14 assists for 34 points. O'Connor has a chance for both the season assists record of 19 held by Steve Harrington and total points held by Dick Hoss with 48.

Several career totals will be in range for O'Connor next season. He has 45 goals in his two year varsity career putting him fourth on the goals list. All time leader is Hoss with 66 goals.

Total career points is another target for O'Connor. Currently, he has piled up 69 points only 13 points behind all time leader Harrington.

Second leading scorer on this year's team is Gary Vassar. Gary has 13 goals and 11 assists for 24 points. Last season, Vassar had a total of 27 points on 10 goals and 17 assists.

Midfielder Steve Connolly ranks third on the scoring list with 12 goals and 4 assists. Right behind Connolly is Marty Kalikow with 11 goals and one assist.

Also having productive seasons on attack are Bill Sinclair with 10 goals, Paul Mushovic, 4 goals, Don Agnoli, 7 goals, and Steve Forgit, 4 goals.

Coach Dick Garber said that the inner defense has not had a bad game all season. He singled out Walt Allessi, Tom Tufts, Bill Devore and goalie Mark Schlossberg as the backbone of the team's fine defense.

Another important factor for the team's fine success was team morale. Garber said, "Team spirit has been tremendous all season, particularly from the players on the bench."

Garber noted that all of the players on the bench never complained but when called upon turned in fine performances. Midfielder Connolly is an excellent example as he played on the third midfield but still was third in team scoring.

The turning point for the Redmen came on a rugged trip during spring vacation, according to Garber. Playing two teams on some days, the Redmen jelled into a fine, hustling outfit despite some injuries suffered on the trip.

After the rugged trip, the Redmen were ready for their opening of the official season with Wesleyan. The Redmen opened the season with a 14-7 triumph, in a game that Garber considered the finest played by UMass this season.

The team continued to roll after the Wesleyan game, winning their next four games, beating Middlebury, 13-7, thumping Tufts, 13-2, smashing Holy Cross 20-3, and defeating Dartmouth 10-4.

Amherst was the next opponent for the undefeated Redmen in a battle for New England lacrosse supremacy. Amherst handed the Redmen a 6-5 setback in one of the best lacrosse games ever seen by Garber.

Garber said that his team gave their best hustling effort of the season in the game, but the Lord Jeffs proved to be one goal better.

Disappointed after the loss to Amherst, the team journeyed to UConn in their next encounter. After a tough, well played contest, the Redmen surged back on the winning track, 7-5.

The Redmen continued to play fine lacrosse by bombing Trinity, 15-5, in their last home game Tuesday.

Prospects for next year look excellent for the Redmen. The starting team is losing only three players. Bill Sinclair will be lost from the attack but the slack will be taken up by Don Agnoli and Brad Herling.

Marty Kalikow will be lost from among the starting midfielders but several fine prospects from the Freshman squad will replace him.

Co-captain Walt Alessi will be the lone member of the starting defense to leave the team. However, Tom Tufts, Bill Devore and Mark Schlossberg will return to form the nucleus of the defense.

Other senior members of the team are attackman Mike Brown, and midfielders Gerald Brown, Richard Mahoney, Greg Norton and George Zebrowski.

The Freshman team has compiled a 4-1 record this season and expects to provide several fine prospects for the varsity next season.

Although the lacrosse team is completing a very good season, next year should be even better and the Taylor Cup, the symbol of New England college division lacrosse supremacy, could be added to the trophy case at Boyden.

Netmen Vie for Conference Crown

A four-way race looms in the Yankee Conference that starts at Burlington this afternoon. Rhode Island has been installed as a slight favorite, while U Mass, U Conn, and UNH are given excellent chances of copping the title.

UMass will go with a singles lineup of Al Davis, Tom Johnson, Mike Katz, Carl Clem, Scot Shepard, and Steve Cohen. The doubles parings are Johnson and Clem, Davis and Shepard, and Cohen and Katz.

Looking over the individual pairings, it would appear Cohen, Katz, Johnson, and Shepard all have excellent chances of winning in their respective division.

In doubles, it will be interesting to see if the switch made earlier in the week works out. Davis and Shepard, Clem and Johnson, playing one and two respectively, were not faring as well as could be expected. However, Wednesday against Springfield both units moved into new slots and played very well. Third doubles, Cohen and Katz, must be rated the favorites over URI, although URI gave them lots of trouble in the regular season match before losing.

UConn will have an additional edge in that the matches will be played on a rock composition surface similar to Storrs. UMass, UNH, and URI are used to asphalt surfaces which are much faster.

The tournament could well be decided by the luck of the draw. UVM and Maine are both weak and could offer little opposition to the stronger teams. If one team is fortunate to draw the Catamounts and the Black Bears, they can chalk up many early points while the other teams will be eliminating each other, and one team could walk to the championship.

Nevertheless, if the Redmen play the tennis they are capable of, they could win it regardless of whom they draw.

TRACKSTERS, EAGLES . . .

The varsity runners, who own a 1-4 record, will have to repeat the strong performance they turned in at the conference meet last week to defeat the Eagles. Both teams have top notch, first place performers, meaning that the depth will determine the outcome of the meet.

In the field events, UMass will be going with top juniors Dave Schlatka and Bill Wilen in the discus, shot put and hammer. They will be opposed by B. C.'s Kavanaugh and Krause who placed second and third respectively in the B.C. relay decathlon recently.

In the broad jump, Rocko Pettito and Dick Dyer, who did well in the last meet against Rhode Island, will go against Greater Boston Invitational champion Doherty. Pettito will double with Gary Wilson in the javelin and Paul Nyman will jump the high jump against Kavanaugh for the Redmen.

The trackmen will also be facing tough competition from the Eagles. The 100 and 220 could prove to be the best races of the day. B.C. will have GBI champ Larry Jeffers running both events. The B.C. junior has been clocked in 9.8 for the 100 and 20.9 for the 220. Against Jeffers, UMass will send the two star sophomores Steve Chase and Dave Marble.

Chase ran 9.9 in the conference 100 and 20.9 in the 220. Marble ran 9.8 in the 100 and 21.5 in the 220. Both will battle Jeffers all the way.

Top distance men for B.C. will be Kinchla and the O'Brien brothers. UMass' Coach Ken O'Brien will match up his top runners against these men. In the half mile, the Redmen will go with senior Greg Bowman and sophomore Dave Evans. Evans will also run the mile with junior Paul Hoss.

Hoss will do some doubling of his own when he runs the two mile with Marc Gelinas. Both Hoss and Gelinas scored in the conference two mile with Hoss taking first and Gelinas fifth.

Running the quarter mile for UMass will be the talented trio of senior John Andersen, junior Bob Hasselbaum and junior Diego Gonzalez.

In the hurdling events, Marc Levefer will go in the 120 high hurdles, and Andersen will compete in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

Coach O'Brien says that the team with the best performances from the "depth" runners will be the winner. The B.C. track is the one that will be used for the New Englands next week and the Coach stated that it will be good for the experience of running on it against the good competition that B.C. should provide.

The varsity runners have already established six school records and one conference record (mile relay) this spring. Tomorrow additional records could fall with Hoss in the two mile and Andersen in the 440 hurdles.

Seniors Andersen and Bowman will run in their last dual meet for UMass at B.C. Both runners who are the season's co-captains, were consistent point scorers and first place finishers. Andersen, who is the Yankee Conference champion in the 440 hurdles, holds the school record at this event. He was the team's top quarter miler this spring. Andersen also owns many indoor records for the Redmen runners.

Bowman, who was also a captain in cross country and indoor track, was the Yankee Conference half-mile champ last year. He is a versatile performer who has run the 440, mile and half-mile this season. He was also a member of the record setting U-Mass mile relay team at the Conference meet. Next year's track team will miss these two top notch runners.

The frosh are also sending a team to B.C. in their last competition of the year. The Little Redmen so far have compiled a 3-2 record. During the season, nine frosh records have been set and there is a possibility of five more old records falling at B.C. in the two mile, broad jump, high jump, 100 and the mile.

The Fifth Column

It Will Be Another Tight Pennant Race

By STEVE ROSS
Staff Reporter

This, my last Fifth Column of the year, I reserve for predicting the future and handing out awards.

My first prediction is when we all return from the summer we will be able to enjoy another nerve-wracking American League Pennant race. Baltimore, Detroit, Minnesota, and if Lonborg can regain his form, the Red Sox will be embroiled in the race. St. Louis, barring injuries, will have the National League flag wrapped up.

STEVE ROSS

Secondly, I foresee Dancer's Image winning the Preakness and Belmont races, each by a city block. Dancer proved conclusively in the Derby that she is the best 3-yr.-old going and will run Forward Pass and other plugs into the ground. "Brute" or no "brute," she got to the wire faster than any other horse at Churchill Downs, which is good enough for me.

In basketball, there will be a complete sweep for the NBA as far as signing the college seniors is concerned. The ABA will fold, but some of the better franchises will be absorbed into the NBA to complete the expansion. The seven expansion teams and seven established teams will each form divisions similar to the NHL divisions.

Greg Landry will sign with the Detroit Lions and see limited action. Bill Munson will handle the quarterbacking chores, while Greg spends most of the season on the bench learning the intricacies of NFL football, slightly better than the brand played in the Yankee Conference.

To the following people because of their unbelievable performances, I leave these tokens of my esteem. To Tommy Aaron, I leave the information that a drive, approach and putt add up to three. I grant him a free seat to any UM math lecture and defy him to figure out what is being said.

Andersen Stops Chiefs As Redmen Romp, 11-4

by MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

SPRINGFIELD — Reliefer George Anderson, in his first varsity appearance, struck out ten and scattered four hits over six and two thirds innings as he hurled the UMass Redmen to an 11-4 win over the Springfield Chiefs.

Anderson, a placekicker for the football team, combined a moving fastball, sharp breaker, and an occasional knuckler in earning his first victory. Despite not having pitched at all before this season, he showed amazing control, walking none and being up on the count against most of the Springfield batters.

The UMass batsmen also had a fine day, rapping out 14 hits, 12 of them in the first five innings. All eleven Redman tallies came within the first five also.

Joey DiSarcina started the hit parade with a long ground-rule double in the first. Bob Hansen then reached first base on a passed ball after striking out. Steve Rogers followed with a line double to left, scoring DiSarcina, and Don Feron drove in two more with a hard grounder up the middle.

UMass added three more in the second. Chuck Newell singled and ran over the Chief's shortstop on an attempted force play that followed. With men on first and second, Ellerbrook grounded to first moving the runners over. DiSarcina's sacrifice fly scored the fourth Redman run.

The next hitter, Bob Hansen, wound up and slammed a long drive over the right field fence. Hansen's blast, which traveled close to 400 feet, was his seventh of the year.

Springfield rallied in the bottom of the third picking up four runs and knocking out UMass starter Norm Elliot. It was with one out in that inning that Anderson made his appearance, and the Chiefs never threatened in any other frame thereafter.

The Redmen batted around in the fifth, picking up five more runs to put the game out of reach.

Ferron's double started the inning. Steve Stanford singled to left and Chuch Espanet stroked a well-placed bunt to load the bags.

Newell plated one with a sacrifice fly to center and pitcher Anderson followed with a shot off the third baseman to reload the bags. A walk to Ray Ellerbrook forced in another run and one out later Hansen picked up two more RBI's with a solid single.

That wrapped up the scoring as Anderson and the Springfield bullpen crew held the batters in check the rest of the way.

UMass ends up its season with a game at New Hampshire Saturday and a home contest against Amherst next Tuesday.

Stickmen Roll, 18-4

DURHAM, N. H. — Two scoring records fell yesterday as the Redmen came from behind to defeat UNH 18-4 in lacrosse.

A new scoring record was set with two games still remaining to be played. The old 1967 record of 107 goals for the season was eclipsed when the Redmen brought their tally for the season to 115.

Junior Kevin O'Connor broke the individual scoring game record by scoring 10 points, two goals and eight assists.

UMass trailed as late as the middle of the second quarter with the score 3-2. At this point they broke the game wide open by scoring four goals within five minutes.

Ten players scored for the Redmen. Martin Kalikow led with five goals, Gary Vassar scored three goals and had two assists and Gerald Forgit chipped in with two goals. Mark Schlossberg turned in another outstanding job in the goal with 13 saves.

The Redmen wind up their season with two away games. Monday they will meet M.I.T. at Cambridge, and Tuesday they travel to Worcester for a match with W.P.I.

An Alumni game will be played tomorrow under the lights at 7:30 p.m. Thirty-five former UMass players will return, including several all-Americans and all-New England stars.

Crew Club Ends Season with Dad Vail Regatta

by JAN CURLEY
Sports Day Editor

Today and tomorrow the crew is in Phila delphia for the Thirtieth Annual Dad Vail Regatta, the final regatta of the season. Going into the regatta the varsity have a 3-2 record, the Jayvees, 2-3 and the freshman boat has a 4-1 record.

Last year UMass finished tenth overall, but they are expected to do better this year. However, the perennial favorites, Georgetown and Marietta, will again have very strong contingents. The Vail is recognized as the small college national championship and 35 schools should be competing from as far west as Michigan and south to Florida. All the races will be held on the 2000 meter Schuylkill River course.

The Redmen varsity has scored two impressive wins in the last two successive weekends. In last minute sprints, the varsity swept past Worcester Poly Tech to win by two seconds. Against Holy Cross, they spurted to a two and sixth tenth second win.

The season started off on a triumphal note as the Redmen defeated Rhode Island and St. John in their first home regatta. At the Harborow Regatta, the varsity ran into some stiff competition from M.I.T. as they lost to them as well as Wesleyan. The Kerr Cup Regatta, held in Philadelphia, was also a dismal day for the Redmen varsity as they finished fifth in a field of six.

On the basis of the impressive wins over Worcester and Holy Cross, the varsity could be seeded top in the boats from New England.

The Jayvees will have a harder time than the varsity. They have a 2-3 record for the season. The junior varsity lost the first race to Amherst when the varsity and junior varsity crews switched off. At the Harborow Regatta, Wesleyan defeated the Redmen, but it was a frustrating afternoon. After getting off to a good start from the line, the referee ordered them to change course and the steering and stroke adjustments hampered the Jayvee rowers.

At the Kerr Cup Regatta, the UMass junior varsity [illegible] the UMass crew. third in a field of six. The Jayvees also swept Worcester and Holy Cross.

Sporting a 4-1 record, the freshman boat will be top contender in its division. Coach Mike Faherty has done an outstanding job of coaching his first year. The only loss came at the Kerr Cup Regatta, but all the wins have been by big margins in length.

Coach Faherty has his reservations about the race, "The only time we met any real competition we choked. We'll hope for the best and take what we get."

In assessing the season varsity Coach Dave Clarke said, "The season has been really good, but a good showing this weekend would make the season even better." For Coach Clarke, this is his last regatta as he will be graduated in June, after three years of successfuly coaching
